Ready To Sail the Bay Route

Successful Company Makes Offer To Operate a Line of Vessels

The offer of a responsible company, with behind it financial interests, to operate a line of vessels from Fort Churchill to England and France, in return for a concession in the Fort Churchill District, in the latest incident resulting from the prospect of the completion of the railway and the preparation of the port for initial shipping within the next two years. The Swedish captain, who acts as spokesman for the company in making the offer to the Government, claims to have had a long experience in sailing the northern waters of Europe, going up to Archangel for many years and also into the Baltic Sea. Conditions for navigation on those coasts, he says, are very similar to these on the Hudson Bay route and he expects to operate a steamship service as an ordinary business proposition.

The value of the offer will depend on the terms, but the offer itself helps to dispel the idea held by some people of desperate perils of navigation which made the route commercially undesirable.—Free Press.

Praise For Canada

Mrs. Stanley Baldwin Lauds Work Of Y.W.C.A. Here

On her recent visit to Canada, Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, wife of Premier Stanley Baldwin, of Great Britain, was "deeply humiliated" to find Canadians surpassed the people of Great Britain in caring for girls who earned their own living. Mrs. Baldwin made this statement in a letter read at the opening of the Young Women's Christian Association annex hostel in London.

Referring to her visit to Canada, Mrs. Baldwin wrote: "I felt so ashamed when I was forced to admit that we have nothing in London to compare in this direction with the Y.W.C.A. clubs in Quebec, Ottawa and Toronto, and we had but one convert-ed house in George street, Hanover Square, theatrical lodgings for the growing needs of women workers and incidentally the future mothers of our nation."

British Industries Fair

Now Recognized As Greatest Annual Trade Fair Of the World

For the fourteenth consecutive year the British Government announces the holding of the British Industries Fair simultaneously in London and Birmingham from 20th February to 2nd March, 1928.

The British Industries Fair is now recognized as the principal annual trade fair of the world, and buyers from every continent flock to attend it. An idea of the interest taken in it can be gleaned from the fact that the Government itself issues more than a quarter of a million personal invitations to buyers in no less than 94 different countries.

Next year the Fair will surpass all its previous records and bookings of space to date has necessitated large extensions and alterations to the buildings of the White City in London, while some completely new exhibition halls have had to be built in Birmingham to accommodate the increasing numbers of exhibitors.

As has been the case for several years past the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in London, is organizing considerable participation by Canadian manufacturers.

The exhibits at the London section of the Fair will consist in the main of such lines as jewellery, watches and clocks, scientific instruments and optical goods, pottery and glassware, leather goods, stationery and sports goods, fancy goods, clothing and textiles, wireless apparatus, chemicals and drugs.—Canada, &c.

Full particulars and advance catalogues of the Fair can be obtained from The British Trade Commissioner, 761, Royal Bank Bldg., Winnipeg, who will be glad to issue invitations on behalf of the British Government to all business men who may require them.

CONDITIONS THAT CALL FOR A TONIC

Symptoms That the Blood Is Thin Should Not Be Neglected

Weak, lacking in strength, easily tired, and ambition, irregular sleepless, loss appetite, digestion disturbed—these are the symptoms of a great majority of people who have been benefited by the use of Dr Williams' Pink Pills. The great value of this medicine in cases of this kind is proved by the statement of Mrs W Heather, Kingston, Ont., who says: "Following a severe cold I was left in a run-down, nervous condition; I had pains in the back and limbs and could scarcely move about. I did not sleep well at night and was despondent and discouraged. I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and can truthfully say that after the use of six boxes the change in my condition was nothing short of marvellous. The pains vanished, I slept well, had a good appetite, and in every way felt well and strong. I also gave the pills to my daughter, who was in an anaemic condition and feeling quite miserable, and in her case, too, they restored health. I hope my experience may help some other weak person."

Dr Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. A little book, "Building Up the Blood," which contains many useful health hints, will be sent free on request.

A Canadian Pioneer of Transportation

Canada has always been a land of pioneers, especially in transportation. One of the greatest of these was Samuel Cunard, the founder of the Cunard Line, who, few people realize, was born in Halifax. He came of United Empire Loyalist stock, and at the age of 22 launched in the waterway of his birth 120 years ago, in 1787. It was due to Samuel Cunard's imagination and enterprise that the great Britannia, practically the first steamship to cross the Atlantic made her first run from Liverpool to Halifax and Boston in 1840. This ship, ably with her gross tonnage of but 1,156 tons, her modest length of 207 feet, and engines of unsupported horse-power, was the forerunner of the modern, giant liner.

ASPIRIN

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the package. If the name Bayer is not there, and if it is not, you have not Aspirin at all. Headaches are dispelled by Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; sore neuralgia, sciatica, and rheumatism are promptly relieved. Get Aspirin—if any druggist—with proven directions.

Ancient Shell Fish Heaps On The Pacific Coast Date Back To Before Columbus

What is a kitchen midden, reference, to which have been in newspaper despatches recently? It sounds as if it might possibly be a particularly efficient form of apron or overalls, or possibly even a labor saving device or electrical fixture. It is none of these things. A kitchen midden, says the Natural Resources Intelligence service of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa, is a prehistoric refuse heap, made up chiefly of shells and bones, much akin to our modern garbage dumps. They are doubtful boasting grounds for archaeologists, nothing evidences on the living customs of other days and no doubt the scientists of another civilization will be vaunting with eagerness the queer shaped bottles, tins and bed rails of a bygone (1927) Canadian city garbage dump.

The excavation of the kitchen midden being carried on near Seal Cove in the northern end of Prince Rupert, B.C., one of the most interesting pieces of archaeological work at present in Canada is some years. According to Harlan I. Smith, Dominion Archaeologist, there must have been a considerable settlement of Indians at Prince Rupert before the time of Columbus, as is plainly evident from the fact that a huge red cedar stump stood on the surface of the refuse heap of kitchen midden as the debris from Indian occupation is known. A prehistoric canoe always over 225 ft. long, carved from a single cedar log, a heart rot or closely crowded outer rings. How long the cedar felt it had been in existence after the heap of debris must have accumulated before the year 1500. It was probably many years in the making, and perhaps many more years elapsed before the cedar took root.

Quite a number of kitchen middens have been located along the British Columbia coast, four of which lie within as many miles of Prince Rupert while others are found within two city limits of Vancouver and Victoria. The white man's cities have attracted the site of the ancient red man's habitations. Whereas the European migrant was attracted primarily by anchorage for his vessels, the Indian was concerned with his food supply and made his abode at the mouths of freshwater streams near ocean beaches where shell fish are abundant.

The kitchen middens were built up of refuse from the sheeing mal villages, refuse which consists almost entirely of clam, mussel and other shells, with bars and there a human skeleton. Typical heaps measure several hundred yards long by five or six feet high, a few extend for miles, and several attain a height of more than nine feet. What enormous quantities of clams and other shell fish these early inhabitants of Canada must have eaten and for what centuries has the coast line been productive of these nutritious foods! Perhaps there is no other food so easily wonned from Mother Earth. The white man took up the digging where the Indian left off and the same mouth which provided fish foods has been appreciated and the clams, quahaugs (hard clams), crabs and shrimps are esteemed items of food which are recognized to be rich in protein, vitamins and mineral salts which fortify the human system against disease.

The Dominion Archaeologist is doing much to discover the history of the early dwellers in Canada, their habits, culture and mode of living. Not the least interesting is his investigations of these old shell heaps, and he reports that the present work has made the best opportunity for real exploration by excavation he has had since 1914, particularly because the old cedar tree with its annular rings gives fairly definite information as to the antiquity of these evidences of canoe habitation by the aborigines.

B.C. Pedigreed Poultry

Another Order Received From Japanese Government By Poultry Breeders' Association

So well satisfied are the Japanese Government with the pedigreed poultry supplied by the B.C.P. Poultry Breeders' Association of British Columbia that its agent on this continent has cabled Secretary E. A. Lloyd an other order, which will run into several hundred dollars. It is for six White Leghorn cockerels and twenty-four pullets of the same breed, all to be the progeny of hens with official records of 300 eggs or over.

F. A. Sansome, of Greenwich, Conn., an agent, recently purchased from the poultry department of the University of British Columbia, a White Leghorn hen for $500. This expensive bird, it is said, is, however, a money maker when it comes to eggs laying. Last year she laid 327 eggs in 365 days. She was one of the three prizes at the World's Poultry Congress held in Ottawa this summer. The world's champion egg layer, Maline," as she is popularly known is also a member of the University of British Columbia flock. Her record is 322 eggs in 365 days.

Report Russia Will Participate In Peace Parley Is Welcome News To Other Nations

The strongest glimmering of common sense that has come our of Russia for a long time is contained in the message from Moscow that the Soviet Government will participate in the preliminary discussions for a disarmament conference under the auspices of the League of Nations.

Since the end of the world war Russia has kept more men under arms than any other nation.

There were several reasons for this, but the principal reason was that the Soviet imposed much distress upon the people that a big armed force was necessary to awe the populace into a state of passive submission.

Of course, the Soviet didn't let the peasants think that was the idea at all. The leaders consistently talked about aggressive forces against the Union of Soviet Black Republics among other nations, fomented, they said, principally by Great Britain, so that it was necessary to maintain a big standing army for the safety of the country.

Russia has been talking fight for years, when there wasn't a rose on the face of the globe that wanted to have anything to do with it.

Another reason for the big army as that it could be used to menace India, and it may have been hoped that the coerce Great Britain into doing the things Russia wanted her to do.

As time has passed and the Soviet realizes that their little game isn't working out as they had figured, they are coming to the conclusion that the big army is a burden that cannot be kept up much longer by bandwinding the people as to the necessity for its maintenance.

And so, the presence of Russia at the next disarmament parley will give the Soviet an opportunity to make a magnificent gesture to the people by offering to cut down an army they don't really want, to prove them an opportunity to now show some sort show of credit.

Be the motive what it may, however, the advent of Russia at a disarmament conference is welcome for itself alone. It will remove the fears of other nations in Europe which have not quite liked the length of the Bear's claws.

Ran-U Ranch Sold

Valuable Property Has Been Purchased By P. Burns

The famous Ran-U ranch, one of the prominent ranching institutions in the west, has changed hands. Hon. A. J. McLean, executor of the George Lane estate, negotiated the sale with P. Burns, of Calgary, and the appointment announced involved will be in the neighborhood of $750,000. The headquarters of the ranch are at Pekisko, west of High River, and near the location of the holdings of His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales.

The property includes 30,000 acres of deeded land and between 15,000 and 16,000 acres of leased land, according to Mr. Burns. The actual count of the stock has not been conducted but it has been estimated that there are about 6,000 head of cattle and 500 head of horses.

When interviewed by the Calgary Herald, Mr. Burns did not reveal his intention with regard to the disposal of the land and he gave no confirmation to the report that some of it would be sold to prominent English men who are apparently eager to acquire holdings in Alberta in the vicinity of the L.C.O. Ranch.

Second Festival Will Be Held at Vancouver in the Early Fall.

The other Festival will be devoted to Scottish music and will take place at Vancouver in the early fall. Vancouver is a world port notable for the variety of its nationality with many old seamen familiar with seacharers. Other Festivals at other suitable points are also being planned by the Canadian Pacific, which has appointed Harold Eustace Key, conductor of the Mendelssohn Choir of Montreal, as Musical Director of these Festivals. Mr. Key will also have supervision of music at Canadian Pacific hotels.

Mr. Key has made a reputation in Canada as conductor, composer, lecturer and organist, and is an authority on choral music and singing. Head of Pelham College, London, the City of London School, and the Guildhall School of Music, he came to Canada in 1904. At the outbreak of the war, he enlisted at Montreal, and served in France with the 67th Canadian (British Columbia) Battalion. He was wounded at Ypres, and returned to Canada in 1918. Since 1920 he has been organist of Hampstead Church, Montreal. In 1926, Mr. Key founded the Mendelssohn Choir and brought it to the highest state of efficiency.

Special attention will be given to every European race and on account of that June has been selected as the most appropriate time for this gathering. The other Festival will be devoted to Scottish music and will take

Body Of Ancient Queen Disappeared Many Years Ago

Search through the museums of the world for the mummy of Fawn Hoof, an Amazon with bobbed red hair, whom archaeologists believe ruled the cave land civilization of Kentucky thousands of years ago has begun.

The perfectly preserved body of the ancient queen, wrapped in deerskins and buried with regal splendor, was unearthed in mammoth cave in 1813. Until 1850 the mummy was exhibited in mammoth cave, but at that time it disappeared.

ISAIAH TEACHES TRUE WORSHIP

Golden Text: "Who shall ascend into the hill of Jehovah? And who shall stand in His Holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart." —Psalm 24:3, 4.

Lesson Psalm 24:1-10
Devotional Reading: John 4:21-24

Explanations and Comments

I. The Personages of God's People, verses 1-9.—The literal Arraign ment is an apt phrase given to the charges by Ewald and Cheyne a people have rebelled against Him, keen the plain principles, the sin and the sin, are responsive to their masters, but the people of Judah do not consider their Lord. This perverseness has brought punishment upon them, and it is only because of Jehovah's mercy that they have escaped the fate of the people of Sodom and Gomorrah.

II. Outward Signs Of Religious Zeal Do Not Deceive Jehovah, verses 10-15.—The prophet now hears in spirit the remonstrance of his audience. Isaiah thinks. They would fain represent the accusations which he had just uttered as unfounded, by appealing to the very exact observance of the divine law but in opposition to the ground of self-justification which the prophet has read out of the hearts of those impeached for he proceeds to prove the divine arraignment which begins in verse ten:

"Hear the word of Jehovah, ye rulers of Sodom," the prophet cries, "give ear unto the law of our God, ye people of Gomorrah." By addressing them as "rulers of Sodom" and "people of Gomorrah," he reminds them alike of their wickedness and of their danger. The "law" in which he bids them give heed, is the inspired discourse he is about to deliver.

ALL-CANADIAN PRODUCE DINNER HELD AT OTTAWA

Toronto.—Sixty years of agricultural development in the Dominion of Canada were fittingly celebrated by representatives of the country's basic industry at an all-Canadian products dinner given by the Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, on behalf of the Federal Government, on the opening day of the Royal Winter Fair. The gathering was honoured by the presence of His Excellency the Governor-General and in addition to the Ministers of Agriculture from all parts of the provinces, many leaders in the public life of the country were seated at the head table.

Addresses by Lord Willingdon, the Federal Minister of Agriculture, and the ministers from the various provinces reviewed the spirit of optimism which prevails throughout the country, the great strides which have been made along agricultural lines in Canada's vast realm and the prospects for even greater progress in the future.

Following the greeting of the Governor-General, Hon. Mr. Motherwell recalled the advances made in the industry, laying particular stress upon legislative measures for its protection. Cultural conditions, and he was followed by Hon. J. C. Elliot, Minister of Public Works, Hon. J. E. Martin, Ontario; J. Bradlets, Quebec; Hon. J. A. Walker, Nova Scotia; Hon. L. Smith, New Brunswick; Hon. A. Prefontaine, Manitoba; Dr. Warnock, British Columbia; Hon. W. M. Lea, Prince Edward Island; J. H. Wesson, Saskatchewan and Hon. George Hoadley, Alberta.

The gathering concluded on a note of reality by the Alberta minister who, while endorsing the optimistic remarks of the various speakers appealed for earnest consideration of the immigration problem. He declared that because of the great industry which had been built up the question as to further settlement and development should be gone into carefully.

"What we are going to ask little Canada to develop all these things—anybody" queried Mr. Hoadley. "Our duty is clear. We are not going to let the people who are to be brought into the country."

"Britain's Waning Prestige"

New York Editor Speaks Of Alliance With United States

Chicago.—Great Britain is trying to arrest the disintegration of the Empire upon which "the sun never sets" by formation of a union with the United States, Charles Edward Russell, New York editor and lecturer, declared at the trial of William McAndrew, suspended superintendent of schools.

Edwell, who was consultant on public information to England during the world war, was called to rub together charges of Mayor William Hale Thompson that British propaganda had entered schools of the United States in history texts.

Before the world war, British decisions have drawn away from the north ern country and the British foreign markets have been narrowed. He identified. A waning prestige in world affairs would be restored through "an alliance with the United States," he concluded.

Russell found propaganda to be rampant in the United States and an anglish speaking nation ready to war between Britain and the United States on one side, and France, Italy Portugal, Poland and South America on the other would be inevitable, he well predicted.

Drastic Changes In Manitoba Liquor Law

Will Be Submitted By Provincial Government When Legislature Reassembles

Winnipeg.—In a determined attempt to establish the bootleg liquor trade from the province, the Manitoba Government has prepared drastic changes in the provincial liquor laws, according to reports emanating from the parliament buildings. It is reported that not only will the sale of beer by the glass be prohibited, but that taxpayers demanded in the plebescite of last June, but the government will provide for the sale of liquor only through a rush and carry system.

The Manitoba Free Press says: "The principal changes in the liquor laws of the provinces are made in the legislation which the provincial government will submit when the legislature assembles early next month.

"All existing liquor legislation is repealed and a new law will, according to unofficial but reliable reports, provide not only for the sale of beer by the glass, but for the sale of hard liquor by the bottle, or the rush and carry system."

Pays Death Duties

London.—Right Hon. Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, announced in the House of Commons that Lady Houston, widow of Sir Robert Houston, had paid to the government $7,500,000 as an "act of grace," despite the fact that the wealthy shipbuilder before his death moved to Jersey Island, presumably to avoid the high British death duties.

A More United Canada

Toronto.—Despite the attractive news added to farm life by modern conveniences, Canada's youth will not stay on the land until agriculture is put on the same footing as industry, declared Premier J. E. Brownlee, Alberta, speaking here. He also stressed the inter-dependence of the provinces, in urging a more united Canada.

Fined For Cruelty

Ottawa.—Carrying live hens with their heads forward causes the birds unnecessary suffering, Magistrate Hopewell held in the police court here. He fined two women who pleaded in carrying their fowl in that manner after they were warned by the Humane Society inspector.

Prince is Popular

London.—The second unruly demonstration by admirers of the Prince of Wales within a few days occurred recently when 5,000 women and flappers, who had gathered to watch the Prince emerge from a moving picture show rushed his automobile.

Change Design Of British Coins

London.—On December 1, for the first time since 1816, a simultaneous change in the designs of all British silver coinage will be effective. Gold and copper coinage will not be affected. The alterations are all on the obverse side.

Will Represent Canada

Senator Dandurand Will Leave For Geneva Within Few Days

Ottawa.—Hon. Raoul Dandurand, government leader in the Senate, was appointed Canada's representative at the next session of the League of Nations Council, Premier King announced in the House of Commons on the privy council. The prime minister declared that Senator Dandurand would leave for Geneva within the next day or two to be present at the forthcoming council meeting.

Senator Dandurand represented Canada when this country was elected to the council of the league this year. The prime minister pointed out that the appointment was not permanent.

Eight Fighting Planes

Canadian Government Purchases Machines For Military Training

Ottawa.—The Canadian Government will receive eight fighting aeroplanes during the next month to be sent to Camp Borden, Ont. Planes used in present day military training are di vided into three classes—initial training planes, advanced training planes and service planes. Of the first two classes there are already a number at Camp Borden, but not any real fighting machines, so the final course of a military airman could not be completed there. The new planes will complete the cycle of training.

Electric Accumulator Is Latest Invention

Device May Revolutionize Every Form Of Transportation

London.—An electric accumulator, stated to be powerful enough to drive an express train over a long distance on any existing track without a third rail or overhead wires, is being successfully tested in London, says the Daily Express.

The accumulator, or storage battery, is the invention of a Spanish Jesuit priest, Father Almeida, of Salamanca, who is backed by a group of prominent British financiers. The device can also be used on automobiles, the paper said, which foreshadows the possibility of its revolutionizing every form of transportation.

A company has been formed to develop the invention but its directors have refrained from advancing claims for it until its success is demonstrated.

Winners At Royal Show

Grain From Saskatchewan and Manitoba Given Prizes At Winter Fair

Toronto.—A sample of the new variety of wheat, known as Reward, exhibited by William Pierce of Mirlo, Mill., took first prize in the spring wheat (except durum), open competition at the Royal Winter Fair. Some 50 samples were entered in the class.

Second and third places also went to Western exhibitors, Joseph Hames, of Orkney, Sask., taking the second ribbon, with his exhibit of Marquis wheat, while George S. Cundell, of Wildrose, Sask., won third place, also on Marquis.

In the alsike wheat class William Dornborough, of Laura, Sask., took first place, while his son won second prize, and J. W. McOdie, of Marquis, Sask., was awarded third.

All fall wheat prizes went to Ontario exhibitors.

Name Stations On N.R. Line

Request Made To Name Stations After Men Who Boosted the Road

Edmonton.—Commissioner J. H. Holmes, of the local Board of Trade sent the following telegram to Hon. C. Dunning, minister of railways:

"Ottawa press dispatch, fourteenth instant, states names of stations on Hudson's Bay Railway are now being decided upon. In that connection we curiously express the hope that instead of using places, surveyed line, places, and service places. Of the first two classes there are already a number at Camp Borden, but not any real fighting machines, so the final course of a military airman could not be completed there. C.P.R. Handles Record Amount of Grain

1. View of Combs Cove at the Transcona Yards, Winnipeg. 2. Loading Canada Foreign-Go at Fort William.

Grain marketing and loading figures for the week of October 21 to 27 constituted a record for the Canadian Pacific Railway since that Company first handled grain out of the West. During the same week the peak of the grain rush was reached and the bulk of the great crop of 1927 handled to elevators ready for shipment. This period saw 25,321,000 bushels of grain marketed over Canadian Pacific lines, an increase of 11,171,000 bushels over the same period of 1926, which year was considered one of the greatest grain years in history of the west. Monday, October 24 was the record day when 5,116,000 bushels were marketed. This exceeds by several million bushels the total grain production of western Canada in the year 1927.

As a result of the heavy marketing the grain loadings reported by this railway reached a record figure. For the same period this year 13,553 cars were loading as compared with 8,270 cars for the corresponding period of last year.

Despite the exceptionally heavy movement of grain, operations at the Transcona yards in Winnipeg, where grain activities centre, have gone along without a hitch. This was made possible by months of preparation for the expected rush.

BRITAIN DECIDES ON REDUCTION OF NAVAL PROGRAM

London.—Although provision was made in current naval estimates for laying down three new British cruisers this fiscal year, only one will actually be laid down, Right Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the admiralty, told a questioner in the House of Commons.

Mr. Bridgeman said the Government had decided that in view of the situation disclosed at the recent Geneva tri-partite naval disarmament conference it was not necessary to proceed with laying down the other two vessels this year.

Commenting on the statement The Westminster Gazette's political correspondent says:

"The Government at last has bowed to the storm of protest from the country on the excessive national expenditure and the need for further disarmament measures. Whether, however, Mr. Bridgeman's statement is a concession in form or substance, it cannot be determined until next year's shipbuilding program is presented to Parliament."

Twenty-Five Nations Enter Olympic Games

Hockey Players From Canada Will Participate In Winter Sports

Geneva.—Twenty-five nations have entered under International rules up to date of participating in the second Olympic winter games in February, 1928, at the famous Swiss winter sport resort of St. Moritz.

Preparations under way as well as the entries that have been made indicate the games will exceed in interest from every point of view first Olympic winter contests that were held in 1924 at Chamonix.

The official program which will cover a period of a little more than one week from February 11 to 19 includes international contests, comp contests and demonstrations. These cover skating, sledding, hockey and bobsledding, besides demonstrations of "skikjoring" or skijoring behind horses

The hockey contests will have representatives of the best ice teams of the world, including those of Norway, Sweden, England, Czecho-Slovakia, Canada and many others.

Horses For Chicago Show

Western Canada Breeders To Make Entries In Livestock Exhibition

Chicago.—The horse breeders of Western Canada, long renowned for their success in the production of high grade draft animals, will come to the international livestock exposition here this week, favored to win a large share of the ribbons in the draft horse division.

Particularly in the Clydesdale class are they expected to make a proud showing.

Many of the families names among the Canadian breeders are absent from this year's entry list in the Clydesdale class, Haggerty and Black, breeders of many years' standing, have not entered, nor is J. H. Pearce, who bred the reserve champion Hereford here will be a heavy entry from other Western Canadian breeders.

Man With the Longest Beard Dead

Wahpeton, N.D. — Hans Langseth, 82, Richland County farmer, famous for his 17 foot beard, is dead. For years after letting his beard do sweep from July 14, 1875, he travelled around the world with a circus without meeting a match for his beard, which he could wrap around his neck like a long necklace. In 1922 he won the world's longest beard championship at the days of '49 celebration in Sacramento.

Denied Vote in Ireland

Belfast, Ireland.—The Northern Ireland legislature, by a vote of 39 to 14, has rejected Joseph Devlin's bill giving women the right of franchise at 21, the same as men. Premier Lord Craigavon said that when the Government later introduces its bill to abolish proportional representation it hoped to embody it in a provision for the enfranchisement of women at 21, if the British parliament did the same.

SCHOOL LANDS
SEEING RISES PRICES

High prices have been realized for parcels of school lands sold by auction in various districts in the province during the past week. One quarter section at the Vegreville sale established the high mark of $76 per acre, and an average price of about $40 per acre is reported for the 320 quarters offered.

LAKE ATHABASCA
FISHERMEN ACTIVE

Nearly 500,000 pounds of fish were caught in Lake Athabasca during the fall season of 1927, according to a report received by R. T. Reid, Dominion fisheries inspector at Edmonton. The catch was made up of 400,000 pounds of lake trout, 70,000 pounds of whitefish and 5,000 pounds of pickerel. The fish from Alberta's northern lakes is finding an ever increasing market in a number of American cities.

Here and There

Establishing what is believed to be a world record, J. H. Hoover, of Smithford, Sask., recently dug a total of 171 potatoes from one hill.

A new record for the Port of Montreal was set on Saturday, October 22nd, when 1,543 ocean going steamers having entered the port this season (with four months to report to run) as compared with 1,541 for the whole of last season.

All wheat yields in a season of amazing returns went by the board on October 28th when J. P. Cook, of Sedgewick, 35 miles south of Lethbridge, Alberta, reported a return of 170 bushels on a single acre of fall-sown land.

Hon. W. S. Fraser, Chairman of the Saint John Board of Harbour Commissioners, announces that plans for the first unit in the enlarged harbor facilities for Saint John will include four new steamship berths and an elevator of 2,000,000 bushels capacity and that plans for these would be prepared at once. They will be located on the western side of the harbor.

Increasing interest is being manifested throughout the country in the project sponsored by the Department of National Defence regarding the establishment of a flying club. Inquiries have been received formally requesting the Government to assist in its part of the scheme by shipping the two flying planes provided under the provisions of the plan. Montreal and Edmonton are the first two applicants.

Inaugurating a street mail service by air from Cabbell City to Ottawa and bridging Prince Edward Island, Capital 45 years ahead of regular train schedule, a machine with first class mail from the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Scotland" landed on the Ottawa River near the Parliament Buildings. This is the first air mail to reach Ottawa by the air, and is part of a mass gathering organized on the part of the postal authorities.

Manitoba's first flu show was to be held from Nov. 28th to Dec. 3rd under her roof, in the old Nation's Day area of Winnipeg. J. H. Evans, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, will be superintendent, and A. H. Doyle general manager. There will be eight classes, including one for the best pair of matched teams, one for groups or herds and one for the most attractive display from a standpoint. Several champions to be will be shown, all of which are open to all classes.

What is said to be the most valuable shipment of horses ever to reach Canada arrived in Montreal recently aboard the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Scotland" "Duke of Bridgewater." The owner is W. J. McAllister, of Bromptonville, Quebec Province, who secured these prize animals in England. He travelled in France and Belgium. They include the famous Lord Willingdon, for which Mr. McCallum paid $10,000. Two horses are the best of the breed in the West after being exhibited at Toronto, Chicago, Guelph and Ottawa.

Canadians would be considerably surprised if they were given full details of the British investments going into Canadian channels at the present time, according to H. A. Pearcy, director of the Bank of England and of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The British do not seek publicity in his business deals, he stated, with the result that large sums of money were often placed by the Dominion and never heard of. A case in point is mentioned when the investment in Montreal and five other capitalists of $200,000 in timber interests in British Columbia five years ago, upon the success of the venture is further increased at $2,000,000.

Three times were in operation now, all owned by the company and all subject to the same conditions. Every one in the valley felt that his star was but temporary, so no one called it home.

Facing the station stood the Bank-lost House, where the absentees had their headquarters, a two-storied building, square as a box, sun-dried and staring. The front of it bore a sign, printed in black letters on a white board:

"Elite Boarding House.

M. McMann, Prop."

M. McMann knew that Eagle Mines could never be her abiding city. Indeed, she had no hesitation in declaring that Canada would lose her just as soon as she made her plea. She would "go back to God's country," which in this case meant Lincoln, Nebraska. Mrs. McMann had often wondered audibly why she had left. Certainly it was not for lack of friends. No woman ever had more friends, and though absent from them now she was not forgotten. To the boarders she gave verbatim extracts of letters she received. Her friends were very insistent for her return. "Why in the world do you bury yourself alive in that cold country, where they have only three seasons, July, Autumn and Winter—a woman like you, who can make her way in any place!" or "Everybody is asking me when are you coming back—you sure would get a royal welcome."

Some of the boarders rather unfeelingly urged her to go and never mind them,—so wantly, indeed, that Mrs. McMann grew rather resolute on the matter. It is sometimes a decided social blunder to agree with everything that is said.

Mr. McMann had returned to his native land the year before, shaking off the rather cumbersome yoke of matrimony at the same time, and leaving a letter saying that so far as she was concerned he was dead—for all practical purposes—and that he didn't want—and that he would leave her the farm and the insurance, too, if she would sign a paper saying that she would never try to find him. He "hoped to God" she would marry again, though he realized it was a needless hope, for no man anyone; but in another way he would be glad for someone to know from actual experience how he had gone through. And he was "feelin' fine at present and hoped she was enjoyin' the same grand state."

Mrs. McMann accepted the farm and looked forward to the insurance. She explained the letter by saying that Mr. McMann had gone queer by the hardships he had suffered homesteading in this dreadful country. She talked about him now in the present tense, quoting largely from the complimentary things he had said to her. "Mr. McMann always said—you Mercy Dell,' that poor dear man often said to me; 'you are never clean stuck when it comes to a hard place—you are ever-ready!' or 'Everybody is asking me when are you coming back—you sure would get a royal welcome."

A meeting of members of the Fort Local Teachers' Alliance was held in the High school last Saturday, when Mr. A. Redd, of Leduc, gave a very interesting address on Light. (High School Physics). This was one of a series of meetings arranged for the winter by the local Alliance. Last month Mr. J. E. Edgar, B.Sc., gave a talk on "Life in the Soil." On December 17th Mr. Steele-Smith, M.A. will speak on "English Teaching in First Year High School." The officers of the organization are A. J. Pecoll, president, and J. E Edgar, secretary-treasurer.

POPULAR ENTERTAINER PLEASES FORT AUDIENCE

Under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society of the Fort Saskatchewan United church, a very interesting and successful entertainment was given on Monday evening in the Memorial hall, to a large and appreciative audience, by Miss Thomas M. Siegel, assisted by a few local ladies, who contributed, very acceptably, several musical items. Rev. Pocock acted as chairman in his usual happy manner.

Miss Siegel is an outstanding elocutionist and excelled in her clever impersonations and faithful interpretations of the several varied pieces she presented. She has the happy knack of keeping her audience in good humor and if she does happen to bring the tear-drops into play during the rendering of a pathetic story, she can "dry those tears" in a short time by the introduction of something funny.

The musical items included a solo by Mrs. Glover; duet, Mrs. Glover and Mrs. Baker; quartets, Mrs. Glover, Mrs. F. E. Evans, Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Pocock. These were well received, encores being demanded, to which the ladies responded very gracefully. Mrs. Pocock was the accompanist. A vote of thanks proposed by Mr. Galloway and passed by acclamation and the singing of the National Anthem brought an enjoyable evening to an end.

FORT LADY CURLERS ELECT SEASON'S OFFICERS

A well attended meeting of the ladies' curling club was held last Monday afternoon in the rest room of the Memorial hall. Officers elected for the season were:

President—Mrs. D. Harper.
Vice-President—Mrs. E. B. Wright.
Executive committee—To be elected.
Draw committee—Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Grubb.

Prospects are bright for a successful season. Any lady wishing to join may apply to the secretary.

Entertainment

Antonio Moreno and Allen Terry are starring in "Slave Nostrum" (Our Gen) at the Eden Palace theatre this week. This is a very interesting picture, giving an insight into the secret service systems of European countries and depicting submarine warfare during the world war. Usual prices: 60c, 35c and 15c.

THE NEW CAR

The new Ford goes on display tomorrow, December 1. Known as Model "A," it replaces the Model "T" which for nineteen years made automotive history, and comprises a line of six passenger models equipped and by light delivery and truck models.

Pleasing appearance, a wide range of bright color combinations, great power, high speed, flexibility, roadability, unusual economy, economical operation and rugged, simplified construction are cited as outstanding features of the long-awaited car. Design and manufacture have been planned so as to high-priced machines are said to be incorporated in the new product.

DEDERICHSEN ELEVATOR AND MILL DESTROYED BY FIRE

The elevator and mill of the Dederichsen Milling company was totally destroyed by fire last Thursday night. The entire business district of the village was saved, that building being only a few yards from the mill. A barn in the vicinity of the burned mill was likewise ignited by the flames and destroyed. Two locomotives near the elevator were saved as well as the office only a few feet away.

The fire brigade was out soon after the blaze started but the fire was beyond control, so all energy was directed toward saving the other buildings and the Mosek elevator.

W. A. Krause, owner of the elevator, resides in Edmonton, and the elevator and mill were operated by his brother, Gustave Krause.

JOE HAMES SAYS HOUDINI'S SECRETS SURVIVE

It remains for Bert Johnson to explode the fallacy that the secrets of the great Houdini died with him. It only takes one glance at the stage setting of this Canadian magician to prove beyond a doubt that at least some of Houdini's secrets still remain as a token to the greatest magician of all time—the great Harry Houdini. Bert Johnson is called the Canadian Houdini, and lives up to the name. He has been doing magic for the last twenty-five years, and although how the people like it is limited not. His line of rapid fire magic is the equal of any world class of magic. Not only a whirlwind magician, he also is a mentalist in that he reads thoughts, in which he uses five talking figures, is beyond the comprehension of the average person to follow the leftward dialogue, and incidentally Bert Johnson is the most here-vailed at his wonderful test escape, but this reason he has a doubtful name on which he called the Ring Dice Mystery, presented to him by the eminent Doc Canning, who for years

SCRATE—FRASER

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Rev. W. A. and Mrs. Smith on Saturday evening, when Beryl, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Gordon Fraser, Fort Saskatchewan, became the bride of Rev. R. Scrater, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Scrater, of Bonnyville.

The bride wore a dainty gown of powder blue georgette, with picture hat of gray velvet, trimmed with fox-fur in harmonizing shades. The bride's mother was becomingly gowned in black crepe-backed satin with silver metallic cloth, black and silver hat to match.

Promoting Health—Preventing Disease

The subject of immigration is creating widespread interest throughout Canada. The newspapers are full of it, churches and organizations of all kinds are discussing it, Governments, Federal and Provincial, are deeply concerned about it. In particular, there is much debate as to whether Canada is securing the number of British-born immigrants in proportion to the number of foreign-born essential to a proper assimilation of the latter and the maintenance of British ideals, customs and institutions in this Dominion.

But how many people who become greatly wrought up over the alleged lack of British settlers give more than a passing thought to issues in our Canadian-born population which could be prevented if they and others would but exercise the necessary caution. Last year, for example, according to the Canadian Social Hygiene Council, based on careful study by expert statisticians and investigators, the total number of infant deaths in Canada was greater than the entire immigration from the British Isles.

Why, it may well be asked, go to an much trouble and expense to bring in people and assist them to become established in this country while at the same time neglect these simple precautions which would result in saving the lives of babies in our Canadian homes? It is because of ignorance on the part of people and inadequate reaching them each ignorance.

Since the war the Canadian Red Cross Society has conducted a persistent campaign for "the improvement of health, the prevention of disease, and the mitigation of suffering" with the slogan "All for health; health for all," but with only indifferent results. The Canadian Tuberculosis Association has with equal vigor sought to arouse and educate the people to the danger attributing to the great white plague. For three years past, research workers of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council have studied the situation dealing with preventable diseases and are now about to embark on a campaign of education in an effort to secure the active interest and co-operation of the people of Canada.

As a result of the Council's research work they have ascertained that almost fifty per cent. of present-day illness is not necessary. It has been shown that, in Canada, there are 180,000 people ill each day and that, therefore, one-half of these, or nearly one per cent. of our total population, is continuously ill unnecessarily. It is estimated that the total cost of illness to the Dominion of Canada each year equals 75 per cent. of the Federal Government's total expenditure during 1924, or $270,000,000.

This is by no means all. It has been established that preventable illness is the cause of a great many social problems with which, at first glance, it may seem to have no connection. Preventable illness brings preventable death and preventable death leaves behind it widows and orphans who have overtaxed the resources of juvenile delinquency and found that a large proportion of the cases coming to the juvenile courts came from homes disrupted by preventable death. Preventable disease breeds poverty in its train and poverty reacted to improper living conditions and provided a breeding ground for more preventable disease which in turn led to more preventable deaths. It is a vicious circle, resulting in enormous suffering and loss.

The most encouraging feature at present is the fact that the Dominion's leaders in business, finance and industry are awakening to a realization that health is a business problem; that they and their companies, their employees and their shareholders are now bearing colossal bills as a result of preventable illness. Aside from the humanitarian aspects of the problem, it is now becoming more generally realized that preventable illness is imposing a huge financial burden on the nation and on the nation's business in all its many departments.

The Canadian Social Hygiene Council, the Red Cross, and other health agencies are agreed that it is now time for a concerted drive to reduce unnecessary illness. They are engaging in a campaign of education for recruits just as Kitchener and others campaigned for them in 1914-15. The crux of the problem is,—"If the people respond enthusiastically and in their thousands in a way to save life they did in a war to destroy life? If we can teach mothers how women can only be made to realize that guarding their milk and water supplies will make an epidemic of typhoid impossible, that small-pox, diphtheria, scarlet fever and other infectious diseases can be controlled and gradually wiped out as completely as leprosy or yellow fever, then they are going to see to it that their communities take the required action.

Science has made possible the accomplishment of this highly desirable result. It remains for the people to inform themselves and profit by the information which is so readily available to them.

Constitution Is Given Executive Approval At Montreal Session

The constitution of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, which was referred by the Vancouver convention to the national executive, was formally approved by the annual session of the executive at Montreal.

It was also urged to ask the Federal Government to appoint a commission to investigate the fisheries of B.C. with a view to their conservation.

A committee of commercial arbitration has been appointed by the national executive under the chairmanship of George Hendersen, vice-president of the Montreal Board of Trade. On the committee with him are Hon. Lorne McGibbon, K.C., Bell Telephone, Bank, and President Lafleiur, of the Montreal Board of Trade. The committee will meet in Montreal next February and report to the annual session of the Chamber of Commerce.

CAUSED IN HEALTH AND IN WEIGHT

How Given All the Credit To Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

When a young girl becomes pale, complains of exhaustion at the least exertion, has short breath, headache or almost trouble, she should know that these are some of the most symptoms of anaemia, which means that her blood is thin and weak. In such conditions there is the most urgent need for a tonic that will promptly restore the missing qualities to the blood and then bring back health and strength. There is no medicine here is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Thousands of weak and ailing girls have found new health and happiness through this great medicine. Miss Gladys V. Bond, Kenville, B.C., used this treatment successfully, and says:—"I cannot praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly for the good they have done me. I was in a condition of very poor health, suffered from severe headaches and nervousness. My appetite was poor, and very little exertion would leave me tired out. On the advice of a friend I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In a few weeks I began to feel better, my appetite improved, and the headaches left me. I continued to use the pills until I had taken six boxes, by which time I felt as well as ever, and I gained in weight from 94 pounds to 115 pounds. For this reason I advise all weak girls to try this medicine."

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, indigestion, nervousness, or after effects of la grippe. Sold by druggists, or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Golden Text: "Pure religion and undefiled before our God and Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep oneself unspotted from the world." James 1:27.

Lesson: Isaiah 5:1-8.

In vertional Reading: Isaiah 55:6-13

Explanations and Comments

I. The Parable Of the Vineyard, verses 1-6.—"Let me sing for my well beloved a song of my beloved touching his vineyard." "Isaiah begins his discourse like a player who has a crowd around him, and with alluring words addresses and rouses up him self and his hearers. Such the winged rhythm, the musical cadence, and the graceful assonance of the invectives are inimitable, and cannot be represented in a translation."—Delitzsch.

"My well-beloved (Jehovah) had a vineyard in a very fruitful hill (the land of Canaan)." He gathered out the stones, dug it well, planted the choicest vines, built a watch tower and hewed a winepress; but instead of the choicest grapes, which he had a right to expect wild grapes, which he had a right to expect wild grapes all his care, the vines yielded only wild grapes.

"The owner had a right to expect much from a vineyard on which he had lavished so much thought and care. So God expects us, especially those of us on whom he has bestowed high privileges and opportunity, to render to him the fruit which is meet for R. McPadyen.

And now, "Ye inhabitants of Jerusalem and men of Judah," Isaiah cried, "judge, I pray you, between me and my vineyard." The prophet of God identifies himself with God: as Nathanbefore David, he speaks out the thoughts of God. "What could have been done more to my vineyard, that I have not done in it? Wherefore, when I looked that it should bring forth grapes, brought it forth wild grapes?" Isaiah's hearers are called for the answer was evident, the fault lay not in the owner of the vineyard. After a pause the prophet continues: "And now I will tell you what I will do to my vineyard: I will take away the thorny hedge, and it shall be eaten up; I will break down its stone wall, and it shall be trodden down; and I will lay it waste; it shall not be pruned nor hoed, but there shall come up briers and thorns also: I will also command the clouds that they rain no rain upon it."

"Thus God deals with nations and individuals. He gives an opportunity of all, with the one desire that they may profit by it. He is sleeping, however, when the yield is of wild grapes, according to his judgment must fall."—F. B. Meyer.

Recipes For the Week

(By Betty Barclay)

PUMPKIN PIE

1 cup stewed strained pumpkin.
½ teaspoon salt.
½ teaspoon ginger.
½ teaspoon cinnamon.
2 teaspoons cinnamon.
2 eggs.
1 cup canned sweet cat condensed milk.
1 cup water.

Unbaked pie crust.

Mix ingredients in the order given; pour into pan lined with unbaked pie crust. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) for about ten minutes, then reduce the temperature to moderate (350 degree F.), and bake for about thirty-five additional minutes, or until the filling has set.

PINEAPPLE BAVARIAN CREAM

Dissolve a package of lemon-flavored gelatin in one-half pint boiling water. Cool slightly, then add one-half pint juice from canned pineapple. When cold and beginning to thicken whip until it will drop from a spoon in a lumpike mass, and quickly fold in one cup of grated pineapple. Add two cups whipped cream sweetened. Pile lightly in glass glasses and garnish with cherry rings or pineapple.

New Comet Discovered

Is Enormous Distance From Earth Say Professors

A new comet invisible to the naked eye, situated in the constellation of Cygnus (The Fishes) and with the brightness of a star of the thirteenth to fourteenth magnitude, has been photographed at Hamburg University by Professors Schwarzman and Walch.

The comet appears on the photographic plate as a nebulous formation with a distinct nucleus its daily movement had been very slight, proving that it is an enormous distance from the earth.

Certain morbid conditions must exist in the stomach and intestines to encourage worms, and they will exist as long as these morbid conditions permit them to. To be rid of them and spare the child suffering, use Miller's Worm Powders. They will correct the digestive irregularities by destroying the worms, conditions favorable to worms will disappear, and the child will have no more suffering from that cause.

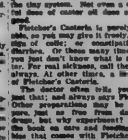
The BABY



Why do so many, many babies of every condition all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that need be very serious, through the night, and keep them up?Ask the night!

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered yet, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence comes full all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhoea. Or these many things when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of infants, that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

Methods Used By Travellers To Determine General Direction Both By Day And By Night

When travelling in naturalliar country, it often becomes necessary to determine direction. Most people are able in a general sort of way to do so in the daytime by means of the sun if it be shining, or at night (speaking more particularly of the northern hemisphere), by means of the north star.

Some people seem to possess the faculty of telling direction by means of the sun with a remarkable degree of accuracy. To those who have difficulty in this regard, the well known method of making use of the watch in connection with the sun may be employed. This is effected by holding the watch level and pointing the hour hand at the sun and accepting the midway between it and the figure 12 on the dial as the due south direction.

This is not any direction so accurate, but will be good enough for most practical purposes. The sun appears to go from east to west in its clockwise direction (to those in the northern hemisphere), making the complete circle in twenty four hours. To be more exact, the earth makes a revolution once in twelve hours or, in other words, moves twice as fast as the sun appears to travel. Assuming that the sun is due south when the hour hand of the watch is at 12 noon the watch will be due south when the hour hand becomes quite apparent after a little consideration.

For the reason the method is not absolute, that is that at 12 noon by the watch, except on four days in the year, the sun is not exactly due south but is sometimes ten days in its position. Another reason is that the sun does not move around the horizon on a level with the hands of the watch but alsaingly, moving up in the morning and down in the afternoon. This is by no means important to know further during an hour near the middle of the day than during the same per od of time in the morning or the evening.

At night the position of the Pole Star, or Polaris, is an infallible guide. This star may readily be picked out in the sky by using the two outer stars of the Great Bear constellation or "Big Dipper" as it is often called on pointers. The North Star also forms the end star of the handle of the Little Bear constellation of the "Little dipper," but this cannot always be made out even when the stars are shining on account of the fact that they are no much less magnitude.

When travelling in strange country, through the woods, etc., it often happens that one is unable to know the direction when the sky is overcast with clouds. Some people who are familiar with the woods can read the signs from the evidences of Nature. Thus the southern sides of certain kinds of poplar trees are smoother and lighter than the northern sides, due to the action of the sun. In certain trees, more moss will grow on the north side, than on the south. Some Indians, it is claimed, can tell direction in a grassy country by the way the grass lies due to the prevailing winds.

But these methods, when one is lost on a cloudy day in a strange district are practically of no value. It is more likely than not to add to one's confusion How much better would it be in this case if one were provided with a good magnetic compass and a good map of the district as well, and knew how to use them both.

The Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior, are engaged in the task of publishing such maps. One series, that known as the Mailcase Topographical Series, is intended eventually to extend from one end of Canada to the other. They also have collected a great deal of information regarding the true direction of the magnetic needle, since the magnetic needle does not point true north but more or less east or west at different places The map sheets above referred to and publications containing the information collected regarding the magnetic needle are available to the public in each case at nominal cost.

Warm Year In Far North

Northwest Passage Open This Year Which Is Unusual

The Northwest Passage through Franklin Straits and Peel Sound was open this year, according to Bishop I. O. Stringer, Bishop of the Yukon who, with Mrs Stringer, reached Vancouver en route to Toronto to spend the winter

Bishop stringer, accompanied by his wife, left for the far North by way of Edmonton last June, travelling down the Mackenzie River by gasoline schooner and visited Aklavik, Baillie Island, Bernard Harbor, on Coronation Gulf and Cambridge Bay on Victoria Island.

The summer was a particularly open one and seamen stated that the Northwest Passage through Franklin Straits and Peel Sound was open this year, Bishop Stringer declared. It is fortunately there was no one to make us the trip.

The Eskimos estimated it would be at least another ten years before a like opportunity occurs to make this trip.

Fashion

A One-Piece Frock Of Youthful Charm

This chic one-piece frock will be found quite simple to fashion; yet a style very attractive in every detail. The front of the skirt has three certain tucks at the necessary flounce, and the deep V front has a becoming collar and rolled collar. The long tight fitting sleeves are finished with turn-back cuffs, and the waist is girdled with crushing ribbon fastening with a buckle in front. Buttons—an important trimming — make the finish, and frilling adds a dainty finish to the collar cuffs, the V in front sleeves and small women, and is to size 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 (Bust) requires 3¾ yards 39-inch material, or 3¼ yards 54-inch and 2¾ yards 4-inch ribbon for frilling, and 1¼ yards 6-inch ribbon for belt. Price of this pattern 15c.

The designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book are always ready for the home dressmaker, and the women or girl who desires to wear garments suitable for taste, simplicity and economy will find her desires fulfilled in our patterns. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

Improving Feeding Value Of Hay

Mixtures Of Sweet Clover and Western Rye Grass Give Good Results

Sweet clover and western rye grass have given satisfactory results when grown in combination at the Scott, Saskatchewan, Experimental Station. The mixture improves the feeding value of the hay. A good aftermath, principally of sweet clover, is always secured from the first crop after seeding. Sweet clover, however, does not appear in the second crop except where the seed failed to germinate in the first year. It has been observed that the sweet clover often matures earlier than the rye grass. On the other hand it cures more easily when mixed with rye grass than when grown alone.

Preparing For Dog Derby

Annual Race At The Pas Will Be Held in March.

Preparations for the 1925 The Pas dog derby, a 120-mile event which attracts international attention, are are under way and "members" of the north country, many of whom have gained victories in the United States and Canada, are preparing their kennles for the annual training grind which precedes the running of the northland classic.

The derby, held in conjunction with The Pas winter carnival, will be held in March 12 to 15, inclusive, 60 miles a day being travelled by the racers over a course on the Saskatchewan River.

R. H. Hill has been re-elected president of The Pas Dog Derby and Winter Carnival Association, and he and his executive will endeavor to have entries for the derby from both Canadian and American districts.

An endurance race of 100 miles—50 miles a day—for "commercial dog teams" — the teams who pull the supplies for the hunters and prospect ors—will be a feature of the 1925 carnival.

Five teams from Northern Manitoba will compete in eastern dog classes this winter, having entered for the derby in New Hampshire, Quebec and Montreal. The entries are Emil St. Goddard, Leo St. Goddard, "Shorty" Cochrane, Earl Bydgess and Harry Cochrane, all of whom have wonderfully fast teams.

Peace River Finest Territory

The Peace River block is the finest territory in Canada, and its people were never so prosperous as now, declared J. Newman, who has a 320-acre farm there. "Settlers are continually pouring in, the population has practically more doubled in the past year," he added. He thought there were 100 miles of Canada Northern Railway laid and not a sufficient proportion of British newcomers.

Methods Used By Travellers To Determine General Direction Both By Day And By Night

When travelling in naturalliar country, it often becomes necessary to determine direction. Most people are able in a general sort of way to do so in the daytime by means of the sun if it be shining, or at night (speaking more particularly of the northern hemisphere), by means of the north star.

Some people seem to possess the faculty of telling direction by means of the sun with a remarkable degree of accuracy. To those who have difficulty in this regard, the well known method of making use of the watch in connection with the sun may be employed. This is effected by holding the watch level and pointing the hour hand at the sun and accepting the midway between it and the figure 12 on the dial as the due south direction.

This is not any direction so accurate, but will be good enough for most practical purposes. The sun appears to go from east to west in its clockwise direction (to those in the northern hemisphere), making the complete circle in twenty four hours. To be more exact, the earth makes a revolution once in twelve hours or, in other words, moves twice as fast as the sun appears to travel. Assuming that the sun is due south when the hour hand of the watch is at 12 noon the watch will be due south when the hour hand becomes quite apparent after a little consideration.

For the reason the method is not absolute, that is that at 12 noon by the watch, except on four days in the year, the sun is not exactly due south but is sometimes ten days in its position. Another reason is that the sun does not move around the horizon on a level with the hands of the watch but alsaingly, moving up in the morning and down in the afternoon. This is by no means important to know further during an hour near the middle of the day than during the same per od of time in the morning or the evening.

At night the position of the Pole Star, or Polaris, is an infallible guide. This star may readily be picked out in the sky by using the two outer stars of the Great Bear constellation or "Big Dipper" as it is often called on pointers. The North Star also forms the end star of the handle of the Little Bear constellation of the "Little dipper," but this cannot always be made out even when the stars are shining on account of the fact that they are no much less magnitude.

When travelling in strange country, through the woods, etc., it often happens that one is unable to know the direction when the sky is overcast with clouds. Some people who are familiar with the woods can read the signs from the evidences of Nature. Thus the southern sides of certain kinds of poplar trees are smoother and lighter than the northern sides, due to the action of the sun. In certain trees, more moss will grow on the north side, than on the south. Some Indians, it is claimed, can tell direction in a grassy country by the way the grass lies due to the prevailing winds.

But these methods, when one is lost on a cloudy day in a strange district are practically of no value. It is more likely than not to add to one's confusion How much better would it be in this case if one were provided with a good magnetic compass and a good map of the district as well, and knew how to use them both.

The Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior, are engaged in the task of publishing such maps. One series, that known as the Mailcase Topographical Series, is intended eventually to extend from one end of Canada to the other. They also have collected a great deal of information regarding the true direction of the magnetic needle, since the magnetic needle does not point true north but more or less east or west at different places The map sheets above referred to and publications containing the information collected regarding the magnetic needle are available to the public in each case at nominal cost.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

The Dominion Government will, it is expected, shortly be in the market for a loan of possibly around $50,000,000. Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, now has the question in hand.

A ton of counterfeit market basket notes, with a face value of many million dollars, was discovered and confiscated by police in a printing plant at Frankfurt-on-Main.

The total number of persons killed by automobiles in the City of New York for the first nine months of 1927 was 274, as compared with 229 for the same period of 1926, showing an increase of 45.

The New York World, Democrat, says that the politicians of New York state have been highly mystified by the appearing of a great deal of quiet activity on behalf of Vice-President Dawes as a possible candidate for the Republican nomination for president.

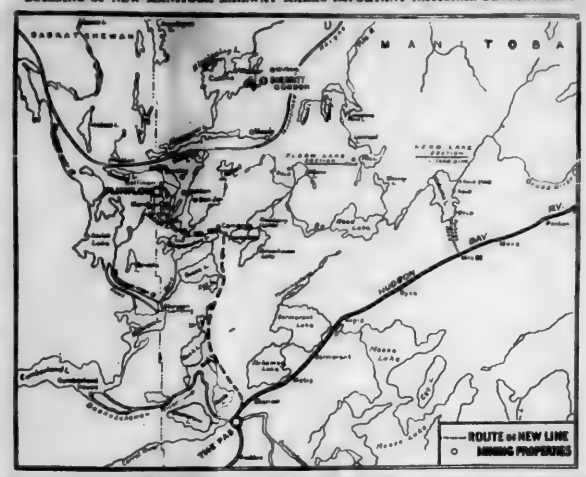
BUILDING OF NEW MANITOBA RAILWAY MARKS IMPORTANT NATIONAL DEVELOPMENT



The Government of Manitoba has reached an agreement with the Dominion Government and the Canadian National Railways whereby a line will be constructed and the Canadian National Railways will operate a short line to serve the highly mineralized area of Manitoba, part of the Province of Manitoba, instead of granting the bonds of a railway through the region, as previously planned will make payments not exceeding $1,000,000 annually, for a period of five years towards meeting possible deficits incurred in the operation of the line during the development period through which the territory must necessarily pass.

The Whitney mining interests, who are developing the Flin Flon property, which the new railway will reach, have agreed to contribute the sum of [illegible] towards the cost of the railway [illegible] to the Flin Flon property. Its [illegible] boundary to a point where the [illegible] of land is reached, and the [illegible] is estimated at [illegible] A satisfactory freight rate basis has been established.

The results of the provincial government and of the mining companies will be watched by Northern Manitoba Railway [illegible] but the company will be entirely controlled by the Canadian National Railways, which will receive the ownership [illegible] Manitoba Government has also [illegible] and operate, for road gaining [illegible] the cost of the actual construction cost.

As indicated the Manitoba Government has had agreed to guarantee the bonds of the Manitoba Northern Railway after confirmation at Ottawa, between the Hon. Charles A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, Premier Bracken, and representatives of the Canadian National Railways and the mining interests. It was decided that the plan now to be adopted would put [illegible] the way to the Flin Flon [illegible] the important national development to proceed without delay. The [illegible] of construction will, it is expected, start immediately after the first of December, on which date the Whitney interests [illegible] the Manitoba Government [illegible] hold from the Mining Corporation of Canada. Work will be pushed rapidly ahead, in order that steel may be laid in the winter of 1928 and engines run in by the direction of the smelter and the power plant.

The Flin Flon is only one of many mining properties in this general area and it is estimated that there are over 300 claims in the region, comprising largely of zinc and copper, having a total value of $500,000,000. The ore is not of a high grade as is to be found in some other fields and rails, therefore, will be a larger expenditure on labor and machinery, with smaller returns per ton of ore. The ore deposits in Northern Manitoba are, however, very much larger than those yet discovered in any section of Eastern Canada.

Fight For Speed Record

Rivalry Between Britain and U.S. is Becoming Intensified

A British car with two engines of 1,350 h.p.—the size that thousands of British motorists use in their every day cars—is being designed and built in secret to attain a speed of 250 miles an hour.

It is so advanced that the makers, the Sunbeam Company of Wolverhampton, expect to have it ready at the beginning of May. Its trials may be on a secret new course in England or on the track in Jesse.

The car has been designed by Louis Coatalen, engineer-in-chief of the Sunbeam Company, and it is highly probable that "Bill" Colmeco, founder and designer of the famous K.L.G. sparking plug, and one of the most renown of all British racing motorists, who retired a few years ago, will drive the machine.

Next year is likely to witness the most tremendous fight for speed supremacy between America and England on land and in the air. It was stated recently by an American engineer at the motor show that American designers have already got to work on an aeroplane with a theoretical speed of 500 miles an hour.

Christmas Seals Campaign

Manitoba Sanatorium in Need Of Funds To Carry On Good Work

This is the first year of a Canada-wide Seal Sale to fight tuberculosis. The Manitoba Sanatorium, Ninette, Man., is using this method to raise funds for carrying on the work of combating this dread scourge. Christmas seals have become an institution, almost like old Santa himself, and their use grows more popular each succeeding year. Appealing particularly to the people of Manitoba, the Manitoba Sanatorium is hoping for a wide-spread use of these seals at this coming holiday season. The Christmas seals sell for one cent each. By sending a dollar to the Sanatorium and ordering a hundred seals, you will then be able to scatter a hundred health messages, and each dollar's worth provides nearly ninety cents for prevention of disease in Manitoba.

In many homes this Christmas this year will mean only wretchedness and pain; Tuberculosis has wrecked tired bodies and dulled many hearts in the happiness and joy of the Christmas season. The more seals you buy the more these people can be helped, the more can tuberculosis be prevented from taking root in other homes.

service and more economical maintenance. Lubrication is a combination of pump and splash systems and cooling combines thermo-syphon and pump circulation of water. The water pump is so designed that it comes into use only when the motor is turning at a fair rate of speed, and every cooling at low speeds or in cold weather is thus avoided. The motor itself is essentially a low-speed motor, developing its maximum power at 2200 r.p.m. This is consistent with established Ford practice which always has aimed at securing a minimum amount of strain and wear on moving parts.

The motor is set in the frame at an angle of 3 1-3 deg. and practically a straight-line drive to the rear axle is thus secured. The nine plate multiple disc clutch comprises four driving and five driven discs which operate without lubrication. A feature of the clutch is that on disengagement it immediately and completely neutralizes the driven plates with the result that the gearshift lever may be snapped across immediately the clutch pedal is released without fear of clashing gears. Clutches of this type have hitherto been peculiar to high-priced cars.

The transmission departs from conventional light car practice in the use of ball and roller bearings instead of bushings. These bearings make for more satisfactory operation, smoother performance and longer life. The steering gear also is unique in the light car field, being of the irreversible worm and sector type with the worm carried in ball bearings. Front and weight of car also is carried on roller bearings which are placed at the top of the spindle bolts, and the result of these refinements is unusual ease in steering.

Transverse semi-elliptic springing is used, and for it Ford engineers claim the following advantages: that the springs contact with the frame at only one point and that in the centre line of the chassis with the result that the chassis is subjected to no twisting strains; that it permits the full torque tube drive; that it reduces unsprung weight to a minimum and improves riding qualities; that the springs have only their natural function of absorbing road shocks to perform; and that danger of uneven application of front wheel brakes is removed because the front axle is rigidly at right angles to the chassis centre line and there is no possibility of uneven tension upon the brake rods. The brakes are of special Ford design and operate on the inner surface of substantial steel drums. All brake parts are machine-plated as a precaution against rust and each brake is instantaneously adjustable through manipulation of a small adjusting stud on the exterior of each brake drum. Brake pedal or hand lever will apply all four brakes simultaneously. Sixty per cent of the braking effort is applied to the rear wheels and forty per cent to the front wheels.

The new car is completely equipped with five steel spoke wheels, improved method of chassis and motor lubrication, four hydraulic shock absorbers, speedometer, windshield wiper, rear-view mirror, remote door-latch controls. There are six body styles: Tudor, Fordor, Coupe, Sport Coupe, Phaeton and Sport Roadster. Each style will be available in an attractive range of optional color combinations.

Unusual performance is promised in the light car field in chassis for the new Ford Model "A." It will attain a speed in excess of 60 miles per hour and may be held at that speed for long periods without discomfort to passenger or injury to mechanism. It acceleration at a terrific pace and seems literally to leap away when the clutch is engaged. It has been driven at more than 60 miles per hour in intermediate gear. It manoeuvres with great ease, negotiates the roughest roads at speed without undue body motion, holds on a sharp unbanked curve at 45 miles per hour and has a turning radius of only 17 feet.

Production at present is centering upon the Tudor model. Other models including the Model "AA" Truck and Light Delivery Models will be available on the task of swinging over the huge factory at Ford, Ontario, is completed.

The NEW CAR

ALL THAT engineers have learned, all that millions of owners have experienced in nearly a quarter of a century, have made possible this car which is ready for the road of to-day as was the famous Model T in 1908.

Sixteen million automobiles, serving their owners in jungle and desert, on mountain and prairie, on boulevard and highway, were the best cars that have ever been assembled possible.

Its advent marks a new epoch in automotive engineering in point of inherent quality—alcories of mechanical design, finish, one of the finest records, precision in delicate machining processes.

Nowhere in its construction has there been slighting of either major operation or minor details. From its commencement back-cap to its lenticular bearing, the new Ford car epitomizes everything skill to a degree unparalleled in the annals of motor car manufacture.

This entirely new car surpasses the accepted standards of light car accomplishment. It provides all the refinements of price class, establishes a new standard of performance, speed, power and smoothness that heretofore has marked only expensive cars as fine cars.

Yet Ford production in large scale production, unparalleled in the history of automobile manufacture, places this car within the reach of every person.

An advance showing of the New Ford Car will be made Friday, December 2nd, in the following cities:

Saint John	Ottawa	Montreal	Fort William	Edmonton
Quebec	Hamilton	Toronto	Winnipeg	Calgary
Montreal	London	Sherbrooke	Moose Jaw	Vancouver
	Windsor	Kitchener	Regina	Victoria
			Saskatoon

As rapidly as the manufacturing processes these public showings will be repeated until all of the 736 Ford dealer premises have been covered.

If you live in one of the cities listed above, visit the exhibit of this New Car. At other points, see your local dealer next Friday. He will give you complete specifications, prices and an excellent conception of its unusual features.

FOREIGNERS ARE FLEEING FROM INTERIOR CHINA

Shanghai With another general strike in the offing and with Shanghai had the return of a continued flight of foreigners from the interior, the deputy commissioner has made further preparations to provide for the internal settlement.

A barbed wire barrier now is being constructed along the entire length of the Avenue Edward VII between the French concession and the international settlement. The suffragette movement also was assigned to guard the office of the chief executive situated on the Avenue.

The duke of the new general strike which has been declared upon by the general labor union, will be directed later. There are about 20,000 striking longshore workers still out from the last strike.

Meanwhile, the Japanese naval authorities warned the Cantonese that the Japanese navy will hereafter take drastic steps in the event of unlawful actions by Nationalist soldiers or by the recent strike on Japanese owners or others guarding it.

Report, credited at Hong Kong to foreign vessels in the Canton river, has immediate outbreak on either side of the river. Two Rebel steamers bearing Hankow with 3,000 soldiers reached the centre of anti-foreign rebellion, were fired on. The American destroyer, John D. Ford, which recently came here from Manila, was fired on by Canton shameful and Nanking. The destroyer brought its lone back name and naturally came into action in reply.

Disquieting reports have been sent last week, some of anti-foreign disorders have come since then. At the front a Japanese source, in that city said that soldiers in civilian clothes rufians and labor pickets were overrunning the city and that the Japanese women and children there will embark on the first available ship steamer.

Although a great majority of missionaries in the interior of China are now en route for Shanghai, or plan soon to start, about 100 are expected to insist their posts in the Canton valley despite the advice of authorities.

Increase In Taxable Value of Property

Statistics Shows Figures Higher for Period From 1919 to 1920

Ottawa.—An increase of $1,302,772 was in the total taxable value of real property in Canada is shown for the year 1920 as compared with 1919, according to a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The total value of taxable property in the Dominion was $7,331,783,335 for the year under review as against $6,028,972,849 in 1919.

Personal property, which is estimated in certain provinces, increased from $2,230,779 in 1919 to $2,452,454 in 1920.

AMENDMENTS TO GRAIN ACT ARE BEFORE HOUSE

Ottawa Amendments to the Canada Grain Act, proposed by the board of grain commissioners, were tabled in the House of Commons when the government brought down the measure to give effect to certain that grading of wheat and oats in store at terminal elevators should also be applied at country elevators.

On February 2, the subject matter to the commissioners relative to suggested amendments, on February 7, he left Hon. Chief commissioner, replied, setting forth the proposals. He stated that the object of the bill was the provisions of the grain commissioners would also the farmer the same privileges as "the Canadian bill," which was before the Commons had received. The commissioners' proposals, however, defined the conditions under which grain might be delivered to a country point in the various districts to take delivery of any grain and ship the same specified grades.

The greatest amendments covered the duties of commissioners. With the present duties Hon. Dunning declared he is weighty and gives the commissioners perpetual control over wheat, which he considered to be unnecessary, as the grain trade was now well established.

Further amendments are expected to be moved today with the Argentine and Australian wheat situation considered. It is planned to make a second trip to South America every three weeks starting a 10-ton cargo on the first trip, and increasing the loading space to capacity. It is estimated that the build to South America will require from 5 to 10 boats.

Mr. Norris will be the leader of the Liberal group in the legislature, nominated last night at the meeting. Judge Robson will be leader of the Liberal party in the legislature, but will not take any active part in the affairs of the province.

Spanish-South American Air Service Planned

Will be Started if German Govern ment Finances Completion of Airship

Berlin Notable action between Spain and South America, having within its purview the projected Graf Zeppelin, Count Von Zeppelin, the German government has taken the initiative in establishing more extensive air communication between the two countries, the completion of the airship in the mind which I have just been informed.

Similar agreements are expected to be negotiated with the Argentine and Brazil, it is understood here. It is planned to make a round trip to South America every three weeks carrying a 10-ton cargo on the first trip, and increasing the loading space to capacity. It is estimated that the build to South America will require from 5 to 10 boats.

Gain in Employment

Ottawa.—There was a moderate gain in employment at the beginning of March, the upward movement being rather more pronounced than in the earlier years recorded. The largest increases took place in manufacturing and construction, while logging and steam and trade were seasonally slacker.

Trappers Overtake Swift Deer

Many lakes have drifted down from the north or have been overtaken and overwhelmed by deer and other swift-footed inhabitants of the woods of Ontario and Quebec. Deer are not a new thing in these skeptical but the above photograph, taken only a short distance from the Canadian Pacific lines in the Laurentian Mountains, proves the Laurentian Mountains, that such a thing is possible, in the case of deer at least. Heavy snows, as can be seen, accounts for this and in the pictures above several trappers on snowshoes have succeeded in capturing two animals in question. The deer hunting plentiful into the country was no doubt caused only after an exhausting chase through the deep drifts. The little doe that prevents to be just as painful for the trapper, will doubtless be admired in a short time by thousands of people in some city park. Trappers in the northern portions of Ontario and Quebec have saved many of these young animals from death by freezing them from heavy drifts of snow, and thus keeping them from packs of hungry wolves.

WRIGLEY'S

THE EQUALITY OF STATUS BINDING BRITISH EMPIRE

Ottawa. — Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice and chairman of the Imperial Conference committee on treaty making powers, continued to House debate on the Imperial Conference. Mr. Lapointe was followed by the Imperial conference of 1926 had no authority to make any such declaration. Mr. Lapointe explained, was to establish "the principle of equality of status which was already recognized, and which is one of the logical outcome of the development of the various nations. It also formed a definite, clear and effective answer to that principle [illegible] in such a way as to make it [illegible] on the understanding that the grain would not be exhibited.

The championship wheat was exhibited at Toronto by William Pierce of the Manitoba demonstration farm at Brule, Man. At the Toronto grain exhibition the "winning bushel" was purchased by J. B. Almey, of the horticultural branch of the Manitoba Department of Agriculture.

J. H. Evans, deputy minister of Agriculture for Manitoba, commented enthusiastically on the fact that Manitoba grew a wheat had won the event. ed award

"Winning of the highest honors is all the more remarkable as seven pitchmen when we consider that this has been a somewhat "off year for wheat in this province," said Mr. Evans.

Mr. Evans is looking forward to Manitoba growers winning Prince Edward's cup, at the International fair at Chicago.

"I found in looking over samples of the grain sent to the International that the wheat which won the championship at Toronto was not by any means the only good wheat at all able," Mr. Evans concluded.

REWARD WHEAT BRINGS HONORS TO MANITOBA

Winnipeg Representatives of the Manitoba Department of Agriculture and of the Manitoba Agricultural College declined to comment on the report from Ottawa that the grand championship cup of the Canadian National Exhibition at the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto, was awarded here.

Eastern press despatches said the wheat was only beaten to the Manitoba Government by the Dominion Experimental Farms, Ottawa, for testing and never was awarded for exhibition.

A statement from the records division of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, said the entry was "unauthorized." It was said that samples of Reward were sent to various farms in the grain growers for "testing" on the understanding that the grain would not be exhibited.

The championship wheat was exhibited at Toronto by William Pierce of the Manitoba demonstration farm at Brule, Man. At the Toronto grain exhibition the "winning bushel" was purchased by J. B. Almey, of the horticultural branch of the Manitoba Department of Agriculture.

Survey Homesteads Along Bay Railway

Some Quarter Sections Now Open For Entry Says Minister Of Interior

Ottawa Homesteading facilities in the territory adjacent to the Hudson's Bay Railway and the progress of the surveys in that country were outlined by Hon Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior and Mines.

The Minister said "From time to time during the past few years various officers of both the Interior and other which I preside have made investigations and carried out surveys in the territory adjacent to the Hudson's Bay Railway route. Lands immediately adjacent to the railway from Pas Mine to Mile 221 have already been surveyed into quarter sections and are now open for homestead entry.

"Data of considerable worth has been secured respecting the location of the soil and value of agricultural lands, forests, water powers and minerals. Land and aerial surveys have been projected over much of the region and a topographic map has been made in map ing the area more completely.

Additional land surveys will be made in any districts which are found suitable for immediate settlement and generally such activities will be undertaken as will enable the government to adequately cope with any development that completion of the railway may bring about."

Hazing Is Punished

Freshman Class Of Guelph Agricultural College Is Fined

Guelph, Ont.—The Ontario Agricultural College faculty assembled to hear the complaint against the freshman class of the Farm Boys' Residence, a young English student of the class. By decision of the faculty and student body, the class was fined $150 and was ordered to be confined to residence every night with the exception of one night a week, for the remainder of the term. An apology from the class must also be given to the offended student.

The hazing of Beddoes was an attempt, it is said, on the part of his fellow class mates of the freshman year to inflict such punishment on the young fellow for "squealing to the authorities over some minor matter."

Reluctant To Build Cruisers

British Hopes Naval Limitation May Yet Be Reached

London.—The British Government is reluctant to lay down more 10,000-ton cruisers at present, in the hope that naval limitation may yet be reached, Rt. Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, told the House of Commons recently

Replying to a question in the House, Mr. Bridgeman said that a new situation had arisen owing to the fact that, although Great Britain's proposals for limitations in the number of large 10,000-ton cruisers had not been agreed to at Geneva, the discussion left the hope that a limitation might be reached. In these circumstances, he added, the British Government was reluctant to lay down any more of these cruisers at present.

Luxuries Once But Necessities Now

PRACTICALLY any Canadian citizen may own today an automobile possessing claims of beauty, comfort and efficiency which no king of old, wealth could have commanded a dozen years ago.

For the automobile industry has outgrown its original function as a means of transportation, and has in an amazingly short time, brought about the refinements which are exemplified in the present-day General Motors car.

How its foundations first were laid many years ago, this institution has featured that every Canadian has a right to own a motor car, and by degrees, has a right to embody his ideas of beauty, his desire for comfort, his need for dependability.

General Motors has at its command the master minds of the industry. It has the finest automotive research laboratories, and the greatest automobile proving grounds in the world, wherein have been pioneered and developed some of the industry's most revolutionary advances.

And General Motors has used its prosperity and success unceasingly in improving the quality and increasing the value of its products. . . .

It is thus that General Motors of Canada has played its part in transforming motoring luxuries into necessities of every-day necessity. . . .

Helmi shuddered with the loathsomeness of it all, and looked wistfully after the train as it went on across the bridge to Mine No. 2. But when she looked up her heart was quickly lifted, for above her were the eternal hills of God, mistily purple, although the sun was no bright in the valley. They reminded Helmi that the ugliness of the scene below was a recent, temporary thing that could be speedily changed The hills in their beauty, their strength and endurance were eternal. The rain and the wind had beaten on them for long centuries; the whole artillery of the skies had been marshalled against them, yet they had not been moved. The strength of the hills was in Helmi's heart when she walked across the narrow pavement and boldly asked for a job at the Elite Boarding House.

CHAPTER XIII.

Spring had come with its carpet of flowers, its radiant days and velvety black nights, spangled with stars and musical with the sound of rushing waters, for the snow of the mountains filled the river's course with a foaming flood on whose surface logs rolled, and sometimes broken trees.

The snow was covered with thick grass, through which the mountains looked up blue-eyed and shy through their tawny mats, shading in color from palest pink through mauve into purple Helmi had never seen them before, and wondered if this was their first time to come. The buttercups which followed were like those at home, and so were the cuckoo—and the wild roses! The women laughed at her delight.

"Goo Whiss!" said Mrs. Turner, who lived near the boarding-house, "It doesn't take much to please the Finn girl. A day at a stroth would kill her for sure if she makes such a fuss over a few little wildflowers."

The coming of Spring with all its beauty brought no improvement in the tattered yards, where the condensed milk tin mounted higher and higher. Blinds still hung crooked, boards in the verbandahs were still broken.

"There's no use putting on curtains," said Mrs. Turner, apologetically, by, "this darned slag blows all over, no one can keep clothes a good color —no what's the use of trying. I ain't goin' to break my back trying to clean up the dump. Certainly no one tried to clean it for me; and if all goes well we'll soon be able to get out. I'm for get this stuff about cleanin' up, Helmi, and we'll all like you better. We've been here longer than you, you know."

When Helmi wanted to dig up some ground for a garden, she met with opposition. "I ain't goin' to put in a garden for someone else to eat—and that's how it easy turn out." Mrs. Turner had been in to have her morning chat with Mrs. McMann. Calls were usually between ten and twelve, and this morning Mrs. Turner was determined to kill the garden idea once for all.

Helmi, with a towel on her head, stood on the kitchen table washing windows. "That's what I tell Helmy," said Mrs. McMann, patiently, "that she's got a notion that women should be all the time cleanin' dirt or diggin' it out. I tell her she's tryin' to show off before the men. She's got that old country idea that if you want to make a hit with the men you have to show them what a great worker you are. I think Helmy is tryin' to get the idea over to this young Jack Doran—but Jack Doran was dazzling with Mary—not that it mattered to her she told herself over and over. She wrote a long letter to her sister Anna in Finland, and put a five-dollar bill in the letter for her grandmother, and tried to feel she was a good girl to stay away from the other—but failed.

Mrs. McMann told the other women that she was glad to be able to say of Helmi that she knew how to keep the men in their place; how when Bill Larsen, the bartender, who was a good fellow, too, tried to get fresh with Helmi because he knew her language, she threw a plate of soup at him—good soup it was, too — but Helmi was just that kind, the first thing that came to her hand she used. No one had tried to get fussy with her since, "and," Mrs. McMann continued, "she's a great girl for her English lessons, off every night, as soon as her dishes are done, to the teacher over the river."

Helmi blushed till all traces of interest, too. From her window, which she washed clean the first day it occupied the room, she could see the mountains, and they answered to her every mood When she was happy they lifted her up; when life was dull and gray, the mountains told her it didn't matter much—in a hundred years it would be all the same.

Medical Missionary Returns To India

Seventy-Two-Year Old Woman Resumes Duties After Furlough

Although she has reached the age of 72, Dr. Ann B. Kugler, the first American woman medical missionary to India, has by special dispensation of the Board of Missions of the United Lutheran Church in America been permitted to return as superintendent of Guntur Hospital. She built and developed this institution in the 44 years she has spent in India.

Returning to America on furlough in 1925, much broken in health, Dr. Kugler, then 70, was due to retire. But during the past summer the board granted her urgent request that she be permitted to return.

During her stay in America, Dr. Kugler received individual gifts totaling more than $3,000, which she declared would be used to purchase new equipment for her hospital.

Dr. Kugler went to India in 1883, when even men medical missionaries were scarce. In 1904 she received from the Viceroy of India the silver Kaiser-i-hind medal in recognition of her services to the people of India. Many years later the Government again honored her by adding a bar to this medal.

Little Helps For This Week

"It doth not yet appear what we shall be."—1 John 3:2, 3.

Here we not all, could life's potty strife,
Some rare ideal or noble life
That seems somehow possible? Did we not hear
The Saviour of his wings, and feel it near,
And just within our reach! It was; for still
We lost it in the daily jar and fret,
And now live idle in a vague regret;
But still our place is kept, and it will wait.
Ready for us to fill it soon or late.
—Adelaide Anne Procter.

There is no joy, they say, in no beauty, there is no glory of living or acting, no supreme moment you can picture in your dreams, that is not in your life as God sees it, stirring in the intuition you have of it now, waiting for you in the glorious Fulfilment that shall be there.—Adeline D. T. Whitney.

Ruled Over Jungle Capital

King Of French Protectorate Lived In Lavish Luxury

Twenty years ago a king ruled on a balcony of a hotel in Marseilles and flung handfuls of gold and silver coins to the crowd below. "Vive le France!" he shouted as he scattered a fortune to the winds.

"Long live the king," screamed the appreciative crowd as it fought for the coins.

He lived in lavish luxury, ruled in title only, and only once left his little jungle capital. That was in 1904, when he toured France dressed in his costume of state—an old derby hat ornamented by a $100,000 diamond, knickerbockers of gaudy silk, an ancient full dress coat and old tan shoes.

Holds Third Place

The Canadian poultry and egg production has reached a value of over 75 million dollars a year, according to a statement of the Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, in the Poultry Supply Dealer. Ontario is by far in the lead with a production of over 21 million. Quebec is next with 13 million, and Saskatchewan third with 11 million dollars' worth of poultry and eggs produced in a year.

BERT JOHNSTON'S SHOW ATTRACTS LARGE CROWDS

The Bert Johnston show, which has been showing at the Empire theatre since Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, has had a large audience each of the three nights. They have an attractive program, which is changed at every performance. This consists of conjuring, card manipulation, ventriloquism, fluminus, mental telepathy, escaping from handcuffs and bonds, Punch and Judy show, etc., etc. The conveyance is a versatile one and the kingpin of it is Bert Johnston, who can talk the blind leg off a mule and is a host in himself. All the time he is talking he is saying something, and that cannot be said of everyone.

Bert Johnston gives a good show for the price of admission and judging from the size of the audiences his performances have given satisfaction to the townspeople.

AN ASSURANCE TO ALL FORD OWNERS
I wish to assure the Ford owner of this community that as long as they drive their Model T cars a full stock of the genuine parts will be available at my garage, and that expert Model T service will be maintained. Not only that, but the same conditions will apply throughout the Dominion wide Ford Dealer organizations.
I also wish to thank Model T owners for their patronage in the past, and I trust that in the New Car I may have a forcible argument for their patronage in the future. The New Car, which will soon be on display in our showroom, is the ultimate expression of automotive engineering and design, made possible by the 16,000,000 Ford cars that have gone before it.

PARTRIDGE HILL PIONEER PASSES, BURIED AT FORT

The death occurred on Monday, November 28, of Mrs. W. G. Allen, in the Lamont hospital, after suffering for a year or more from a lingering disease which she bore with great fortitude and patience. The deceased was a pioneer of the Partridge Hill district, having come there from Parry Sound with her husband and family over twenty-seven years ago, and spending some of the intervening years in Lamont and Edmonton. For many years she was prominently identified with the work of various church organizations, and all philanthropic movements.

She leaves to mourn her loss, a husband, one daughter, Mrs. L. Hicks, of South Edmonton, and two sons, Dr. J. A. Allen, of the Lamont hospital staff, and Wilfred, of Partridge Hill, besides five brothers and one sister, who with one exception, are living in the west.

The funeral service took place on Wednesday at 2 p.m. from the United church, Fort Saskatchewan, and was conducted by the Rev. K. J. Hodgins, assisted by the Rev. C. E. A. Pocock and the Rev. G. W. Longlin.

Interment took place in the local cemetery and the pallbearers were: J. H. Allen, John M. Allen, Joseph Allen, Norman Johnston, J. Stanley Reid and Duncan Johnston.

Beautiful flowers were sent by The Family; Partridge Hill W.M.S.; Partridge Hill U.F.A. and U.F.W.A.; L.O.L. Aylesmere; Wm and Carrie; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Allen and Pearl; Mr. and Mrs. W. DATES SET FOR CALGARY AND EDMONTON FAIRS

The 1920 exhibition and stampede in Calgary will be held during the week of July 9 to 14 and the Edmonton exhibition in the week of July 16 to 21, it is announced following the annual meeting of the International Association of Fairs and Exhibitions last week in Chicago. The meeting was presided over by E. L. Richardson of Calgary who has been president of the International association during the past year.

A FEW REASONS WHY

An exchange asks, "Who is the home merchant?" and then answers as follows: "He is the man who pays for the street on which you walk, for the schools in which your children, or perhaps you were educated; he helps to keep the church in which you worship; he is the man who builds a home which enhances the value of your property. Every subscription paper that is passed has his name upon it. He is the one that cannot afford to outside you, and respect if nothing else would prompt this; he hands his share of the burden of good government and stops with you in prosperous and darkness, in prosperity and adversity. These are a few reasons why your patronage should be given to the home merchant, who, first, last, and all the time."

PREVENTABLE FUEL WASTAGE IN HOUSES

With the advent of the heating season, householders are again forcibly reminded that the daily grind of Fuel ness approximates season, of Fuel consumption and the frequent removal of ashes is at hand. Do they realize that in many modern houses as much as one-quarter of the fuel value are wasted by the escape of heat, and that the prevention of this heat loss is simple and inexpensive as compared to the savings effected?

Investigators have found that approximately 75 per cent. of Canadian houses allow heat leakage which in many instances dissipates the equivalent of from 30 to 50 per cent of the fuel consumed. Unfortunately the only visual manifestation of this waste is seen in winter shortly after a snow storm. The heat passing through the roof melts the snow, leaving the upper part of the roof either wholly or partially bare while the garage, verandah and eaves still bear an unbroken covering of white. Too often even this warning remains unnoticed.

When it is realized that at least domestic furnaces and stoves deliver but 50 to 60 per cent of the theoretical heat contained in fuel to the

Canada's Gold and what it means to You!

Never in the history of a country has any industry shown such phenomenal growth as that of the Canadian Mining Industry during the past few years.

Never before in the history of any country or industry have such unbelievably large returns been returned to the individual investor.

Now—important still! NEVER BEFORE HAS THERE BEEN A SITUATION SUCH AS THIS WHERE A MAN WITH ONLY LIMITED CAPITAL MAY INVEST A MODERATE AMOUNT WITH SUCH EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY FOR LARGE RETURNS FROM HIS INVESTMENT!

There is no reason for not knowing what is going on! Upon receipt of a letter or postal card, the company named below will cheerfully furnish reliable information or anyone interested in learning full details of one of the most outstanding mining developments of recent years in the entire North country.

THE NORTH AMERICAN DEVELOPMENT LIMITED
CANADIAN LIFE BUILDING
TORONTO, ONTARIO

On To The North!

Whatever misgivings the people of Canada have had regarding the building of the Hudson Bay Railway and the creation of a workable port on the Bay are being rapidly dissipated as week after week announcements are made of conditions and discoveries and new developments in the vast area to be opened and served by the new route.

In times past pessimistic statements were held and views expressed relative to Canada's future and the doubtful success of many Canadian enterprises. The prairie section of Canada would never, according to official reports to the British Government, be fit for agricultural settlement. Later, the construction of the C.P.R. was described as the apex of folly—it would only pay for axle grease. Still later, it was emphatically declared that wheat could not be successfully grown west of Moose Jaw. There was a time when the idea of making Montreal an ocean port was openly ridiculed, the world being unable to consider the impracticability of creating an ocean port hundreds of miles from the sea up a river frozen solid for many months of the year.

But Western Canada has become the granary of the Empire and has made Canada the greatest wheat exporting country in the world; hundreds of millions of bushels are raised west of Moose Jaw; the C.P.R. is the greatest transportation system under one management in the world today; Montreal stands deemed only to New York as the chief port of the North American continent.

And now that construction of the Hudson Bay Railway is being energetically proceeded with, enthusiasm and businesslike methods having replaced former lukewarmness and decisions based on guesswork, the old opposition is dying away as step by step former fallacies and misconceptions are removed. No great has been the progress made in this direction that all political parties are outspoken in support of and pledged to the project, thus removing it from the arena of partisan controversy.

The road has been completed to within approximately 150 miles of Churchill, and contracts have been let for this additional mileage. Work on the creation of an up-to-date, fully equipped port has commenced. The continuous aerial survey of the airplane now in progress has already brought the information, surprising to many doubting Thomases, that both Bay and Straits have remained free from ice for a much longer period than was formerly believed to be the case.

Opponents of the Bay project always contended that navigation would be so perilous, and, as a consequence, insurance rates on boats and cargoes so high as to be prohibitive, that no shipping company would undertake to establish a service on such a route. But already a responsible steamship company has opened negotiations with the Government for the establishment of a line of vessels operating in and out of Churchill, while insurance authorities have announced that there is no reason why the rates of insurance to be charged should be unduly high or a deterrent to the success of the route.

As if these things were not in themselves sufficient to justify the expenditure on the road to the Bay, there comes official announcement of the completion of arrangements between the Dominion Government, the Manitoba Government, and the wealthy Whitney interests of New York for the building of a branch line of railway from The Pas on the N.B. line to the Flin Flon mining area which will be a feeder to the Hudson Bay Railway and provide an enormous and paying traffic.

This contract further involves the development of a great power plant at White Mud Falls near the Hudson Bay line, the construction of a proper transmission line to the Flin Flon, and the establishment of great pulp mills, all of which will provide a huge volume of freight giving the Bay road a paying traffic to and from Churchill. This subsidiary expenditure is estimated to reach no less a sum than fifty to sixty millions of dollars, and provides for extensive northern development which could not possibly be undertaken without the Hudson Bay Railway.

And it is confidently predicted that this is only a beginning and that with the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway, and the rush of traffic thus made feasible to it, there will follow a new era of exploration and prospecting that will result in uncovering as yet unknown sources of great mineral wealth.

Canada in the past has suffered the disadvantage of not building commensurate with its great breadth. Development to the north in the next decade or two will provide remedy for this disadvantage.

It is business for a man to have an idea in life if he has no ammunition to back it up.

Wire is the man who does of his own free will that which he would otherwise shortly be compelled to do.

Nitrogen From the Air

Calcium Cyanamide Most Desirable Method of Obtaining Nitrogen Will Be Extended

Britain now leads the world in the economic production of nitrogen from the air. Whether we can take too much nitrogen from the air, and be faced with the problem of an extraordinary luxuriance of soil and unwanted soil is a point which chemists must decide. If it were humanly possible to disturb the balance, presumably the crops would gain ground at expense of the nitrogen; and, since oxygen is the incendiary and inventor, animal life might blaze up into new planes of terrific energy that would keep pace with the vegetation that had been stimulated by the extracted nitrogen.

TRIALS OF INDIGESTION

Errors About This Trouble Into Which People Fall

Many people so far misunderstand the digestive system as to treat it like a machine; neglecting it until it works sluggishly, then irritating it into work even if the use be perverse. The stomach needs help at all times, but a study of the process of digestion will show that peptones, as commonly taken, are seldom necessary and often harmful.

To safeguard your digestion the diet must be controlled. Over-eating is always harmful, but one must beware also of small meals, that building the bonds of the blood. Remember, the blood has a very sacrificial in all parts of the body and find fuel for its energy. Hence when the blood becomes weak and fails to do its work, indigestion arises. Overcome this with remedy for indigestion is to build up the blood. If you suffer from any form of indigestion choose your diet carefully and take wholesome nourishment. Above all, start building up your blood by taking a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Then under the influence of the new blood supply, your digestive system will respond naturally, your appetite improves and your food will do you good. So begin to improve your digestion by starting to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now.

You can get these pills from your druggist or by mail at 50 cents a box from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Autos For the Army

Motor Vehicles May Take the Place Of Horses in United States

Even in the army old dobbin may lose caste and the motor vehicle take its place among the pets of the United States War Department. Instructions have been issued for an inquiry to determine to what extent automotive power can be substituted for animals in military transportation.

Several points are in favor of automotive transportation, according to army officers, especially in overseas service, where animals are difficult to secure. The study will be made in practically every branch of the army. It will be commenced with similar investigations in other nations, it is indicated.

Makes Good Publicity Agent

Recent Speech Made By Prince Arouses Interest Of English Business Men

The extraordinary effect of the speech in praise of Canada and its opportunities made recently by the Prince of Wales before the Canada Club in London, is spreading all over the country. Immediately after the speech Canada House and the Canadian Pacific offices in London were deluged with inquiries from business men desirous of securing further information and a flood of enquiries has poured in from Belfast, Liverpool and Glasgow as well as from London.

There has been a rush of inquiries from men interested in commerce and industry who are planning to go to Canada to investigate personally its prospects, and also from hundreds of those seeking employment.

The officials at Canada House express themselves as at the result of the speech and regard the Prince of Wales as the finest publicity agent that Canada has ever had.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

LEMON SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour.
½ teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon paprika.
1½ cups water or meat stock
2 tablespoons lemon juice.
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley.

Melt butter, add flour, salt and paprika and when well blended add water or meat stock. Bring to boiling point, stirring constantly, add lemon juice and parsley and serve.

CHIFFLE CAKE

1½ cups of prepared cake flour, sifted.
2 teaspoons of baking powder.
¼ teaspoon of salt.
½ teaspoon of cinnamon.
2 eggs well beaten.
1 cup of sugar.
2 tablespoons of shortening, melted.
2 ounces of chocolate, melted.
½ cup of milk.

Gradually beat the sugar into the eggs; add the melted shortening and the flour sifted, measured, and sifted again with the baking powder, salt and cinnamon. Bake in a pan 7 x 11 inches, about 45 or 50 minutes, in an oven at 350 degrees Fahrenheit.

When the cake is cool cover it with this frosting:

1½ cups of confectioner's sugar which has been sifted.
2 tablespoons of cocoa.
1 cup of milk.

A scant half teaspoon of vanilla.

Mix the sugar and cocoa together, then stir in the two liquids, mixing it all thoroughly.

Interest in Crime in the U.S.

Steadily Increasing Number Of Articles In Private and Reformatories

It is indeed a sad commentary on current conditions that crime in all parts of the United States is growing with such rapidity. This situation is reflected in the steadily increasing number of inmates in prisons and reformatories. In a recent survey by the United States Census bureau, covering penal institutions in thirty-one states, it was found that between 1923 and 1926 the number of prisoners committed from the courts increased 23.3 per cent.—Thrift Magazine.

Building New Type Plane

Will Carry Two Persons and 100 Pounds Of Baggage

An entirely new type of small plane, carrying only 42 feet in length made at Peterboro, Ont., according to Capt. H. P. Ayres, who was in Ottawa a few days with officials of the air board.

Captain Ayres says the new craft has been designed with a view to solving the boundary problems of machines and providing a food-proof plane which the private individual can operate with a maximum of safety.

The new ship which carries two persons together with 100 pounds of baggage, has a cruising ability of seven hours and can maintain a speed of 110 miles an hour.

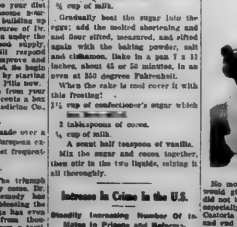
The BABY



No mother in the enlightened age would give Baby anything else she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of Baby Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Prettily does and fever, too; it means no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that everything else might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's deliciously baby purely vegetable; you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic, constipating diarrhoea, or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: It is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but the Fletcher's is the one doing to test them! Reward Wheat Shows Highest Average Protein Content of Any Western Prairie Grown Variety

Reward wheat shows the highest average protein content of any wheat grown on the Canadian prairies, according to chemical tests just completed at Ottawa.

Reward wheat, a result of centuries of breeding work by the Dominion Cerealist at the Central Experimental Farm, stands higher than Kota, Rudy, Marquis, Garnet and Kitchener, according to these tests.

Samples of Reward wheat from experimental farms and stations in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have shown an average protein content of 17.52 per cent., regarded as remarkably high for flour making qualities. Other wheat varieties, tested on a similar scale, contained protein of from 14.54 per cent. to 17.39 per cent.

At the instance of the Dominion cerealist an analysis of a series of wheats grown on 18 experimental farms and stations from Prince Edward Island to British Columbia has been made during the past year and a copy of the Dominion chemist's report has just been received in Regina.

The work consisting of 163 samples, comprising 45 varieties, all taken from the crop of the same year.

Chief objects of this study were to ascertain varietal differences, chiefly in protein content, under the same environmental conditions, and also to find out the influences of different environmental conditions on the character of the grain of the same variety.

Automobiles in Alberta

Another record has been established by Alberta in its automobile registrations. It ranked highest among the 20 samples taken at Brandon, first among 12 samples from Scott and first of 14 samples from Indian Head. It was a close second at Beaverlodge and second too, at Morden. At Southern, Swift Current and Lethbridge, it ranked fourth.

A report from the Minnesota State Experimental Flour Mill at Minneapolis, on bargain and Garnet wheats grown at Scott, Sask., shows these grains to have rich flour-making qualities. These samples, were considered almost alike and both were classed as "unquestionably strong" with excellent bread-making properties. The analysis of the wheat showed both to contain less than 15 per cent. protein. Reward in early tests, has been shown to have much more than that.

Trees Are An Lightning Rods Says French Expert Of Wireless

Trees are fighting reds and the increasingly bad weather is due to the destruction of forests, says Edmond Brauley, France's grand old man of wireless.

"If there are no longer seasons," he says, "deforestation is the principal, if indeed, also, not the sole cause.

"Trees on the highest mountains protect the inward breezes and their roots deep in the damp ground, are nothing less than no gauge lightning rods, constantly discharging into the earth the atmospheric electricity and thereby preventing its accumulation in the clouds, an accumulation that would cause terrible storms. In wooded districts there was calm, but now that the woods are being cut down there are constant hard storms."

Eric Geo. C. H. Bent Hood, Conservative member of Parliament and sportsman, recently wagered that he could beat carrier pigeons in a cross country race. He travelled 175 miles and turned loose 600 birds, then sped home by motor car and fast train. The whole feat had arrived an hour before the speeding general.

Danish Scientist Makes Interesting Discovery

Found in Brussels Head Of Famous Statue Owned By Denmark

An interesting piece of archaeological surgery, which gives hope that the Venus de Milo may some time be supplied with arms and Winged Victory with a head, has been accomplished here through the keenness of observation of the Danish scientist, M. Blinkenberg.

Mr. Blinkenberg, who made a long study of ancient Greek sculpture, particularly of various replicas of Aphrodite, visited the museum Cinquantenaire at Brussels recently to studying the famous torso of the Venus of Cridus, one of the most precious relics in the museum he noticed that the head seemed to have been broken off in precisely the same manner as the head of a Venus he had studied in Copenhagen.

Returning to the Danish capital he had a plaster cast made of the head and shipped to Brussels, where it was found that the head fitted exactly to the decapitated torso. Arrangements have been concluded for an exchange between the Copenhagen museum and the Venus of Cridus, with the head restored, may become one of the most beautiful statues of Venus extant.

Roughage Ground Or Fed Whole

Experiments Would Indicate That Grinding Roughage Does Not Improve It

The results of an investigation into the advantages and economy of grinding roughages for dairy cows, conducted at the Central Experimental Farm, show that the grinding of the rough feed did not add materially, if at all, to the feeding value of the ration. The investigation are given in the latest report of the Dominion Animal Husbandman. Among other things it was demonstrated that ration fodder is not of as high value for milk production as corn silage. When corn fodder and mixed hay were both cut and ground and fed in comparison with silage and the same mixed hay, not all or ground, the latter mixture proved to be slightly the more efficient for milk production. Three results indicate that grinding roughage does not improve it. On the other hand, the system labor of cutting and grinding adds materially to the cost. It can safely be said, therefore, that under normal conditions, it would not be economical to grind rough feed, at least for dairy cows, particularly since there is no class of stock better adapted to grinding their own feed.

Japanese Children Send Gifts

As a Christmas gift to the children of the United States from 5,000,000 Japanese girls, 58,000 dolls have been made by the most expert craftsmen in Japan. They will be a reciprocal remembrance for the 12,000 "friendship dolls" sent by children in the United States to the Japanese girls' festival last March. Exhibits of hundreds of silken kimonos and obis, with trunks and appropriate furniture have been supplied for each doll.

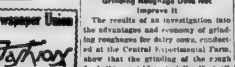
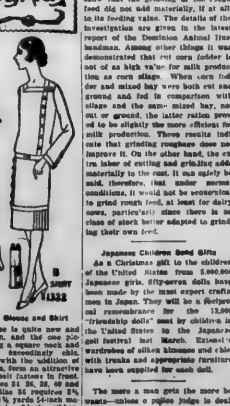
Ago Of Steers To Feed

Two Year Old Steers Make the Best Gains

In selecting steers for feeding work, the age of the animals is an important consideration. All things considered the average feeder would be will-ad fed two year-olds. In the opinion of the authors of an Experimental Farms bulletin on the "Winter Feeding of Beef Cattle in Ontario." The bulletin gives an account of experiments in feeding steers of different ages. Over a six years period the two year-olds made the greatest gains, but the yearlings were a close second and the three-year-olds were not far behind. The younger steers had the advantage in the cost per pound gain, as the cost increases with age, the lower feeding cost of the younger steer is due to the fact that he is growing and putting on fat at the same time while the three year-old makes his gains by putting on fat alone. The younger steer, however, needs a somewhat more nutritious ration than the older one, the latter making the best use of coarse rough-





A Smart Tunic Blouse and Skirt

The tunic blouse is quite new and smart this season, and the one pictured here, having a square neck and sleeves, is exceedingly attractive. Bands of ribbon, with the addition of buttons or buckles, form an attractive trimming, and a belt fastens in front. No. 1532 is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. It requires 1¾ yards 32-inch, or 1¼ yards 54-inch material, and 2 yards of ribbon. Price 20 cents the pattern.

The skirt has six gores at the left side, and is joined to a dart-fitted yoke. It is trimmed with bands of ribbon, and 1 yard 36-inch lining for the yoke will be required. Reasons Are Numerous

Why City Men Move To Farms and Farmers To City

An attempt by the Department of Agriculture to find out why the tide of humanity flows in the city and why another longs for the farm has resulted in the disclosure of a wide variety of reasons.

Opportunity for making a better living on the farm thrills in the city was found to be the principal reason for movement from city to farm which, the department survey said, was composed largely of former farmers who had been disillusioned by city life.

The high cost of living in cities drove some persons to the farm, and others were induced to take up farming for the satisfaction of an independent life.

Some farmers move to town because they cannot make farming pay, or are grown in the city by the love of a larger income. Others move because of better school facilities for their children, others still because of being physically unable to continue farming, and a small number because of financial inability to retire.

Lack of a wedding out of older people on the farm who are replaced in part at least by men and women in their prime was found by the survey. Although the total farm population is reduced in numbers the report stated, the trend is in the development of more vigorous and efficient agricultural operations, a distinct improvement. A detriment, however, is that it tends to require the removal from the city a volume of financial wealth and experience, the loss of which re tards rural institutional improvements.

Wild Flowers Of the Rockies

Abundant Flora Found Amid the Higher Altitudes

One of the great charms in the national parks in the Canadian Rockies is the variety and beauty of the wild flowers. At first thought one would be inclined to expect to find an abundant and interesting flora amid the higher altitudes, but, strange as it may seem, the wilderness gardens which bloom above the clouds in the upper regions are among the most beautiful in the world. Over five hundred varieties have been identified by botanists, and their exquisite color, fragrance, and delicate loveliness add the finishing touch to the charm of that wonderful region.

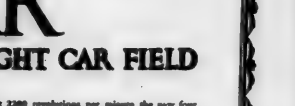
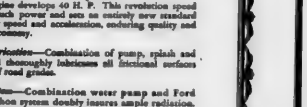
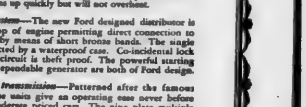
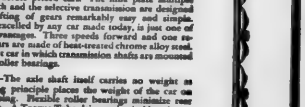
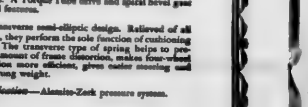
The NEW CAR
INTRODUCING A FINE CAR IN THE LIGHT CAR FIELD











THIS entirely new car surpasses the general standard of light car accomplishment; sweeps aside all boundaries of price class; establishes a new standard of acceleration, speed, power and smoothness. Horseshoes the following characteristics never been combined only in expensive cars.

Speed—faster than a mile a minute.

Acceleration—5 to 25 miles per hour in high gear in 6½ seconds.

Endurance—this car will travel all day at 30 miles per hour without undue strain on motor or chassis.

Riding comfort—flexible springs and four hydraulic shock absorbers permit comfortable travel at high speed over the roughest road.

Handability—this car's low center of gravity holds it snugly to the road on an unbanked turn even at high speed.

Power—in deep, loose sand with the front wheels cramped hard from a dead stop, the car will turn in a tight circle, forward or reverse, without effort.

Effective braking—the instant response of mechanical, four-wheel brakes with dual control gives positive braking for any emergency.

Positive steering control—A short hand on the steering wheel with dual control car ready in loose sand and over bumpy roads. Turning radius 17 ft.

Economy—20 miles per gallon of gasoline, plus the well known economies of Ford car maintenance.

Appearance—the result of pleasing proportions, beautifully finished in an extensive range of color combinations of durable satin lacquer.

Quietness—Vibration in the engine is practically negligible. New final drive is exceptionally quiet. Double-dry cut upon cut, aspidium covered fabric and hardwood blocks between body and frame eliminate body noise.

SOVIET RUSSIA PROPOSES THAT NATIONS DISARM

Geneva.—Soviet Russia has challenged the entire world to disarm.

The Russian delegation to the disarmament consultation of the League of Nations offered to destroy her land sea and air forces, providing other nations would do the same.

The stupendous proposal left the other delegates bewildered and grasping for an answer, but with the expressed fear that it had thrown the peace fabric at Geneva. However, the general impression was that it was impossible for Russia to mean what she said. Nevertheless, there is everywhere a disposition to grab the Soviet leaders full credit for their readiness to wipe out armaments.

That the Russians themselves really do their plan to lay down all arms and make their country impenetrable to the invader for the present, at least, was shown in the opinion of many by the fact that they valued their willingness to negotiate in a proposal form for the reduction of armament if their radical project proved too revolutionary, and that they did not insist upon immediate consideration in detail of the sweeping measures. Such consideration was adjourned until the next session of the commission early in 1928.

Furthermore, although by reminding that complete disarmament is the best guarantee of security, the Russians, in a spirit of conciliation agreed to send an observer to the special committee on security. It will tackle the problem of how best to increase guarantees of security in order that the nations of the world may be more willing to cut down armaments when the international conference is convoked, probably some time next year.

Cost Of Canada's Army

Expenditures For Year Total $18,402,561 According To Report

Ottawa.—Militia service in Canada during the year 1926-27 necessitated expenditures totalling $18,402,561 according to the annual report of the Department of National Defence. This figure does not include $868,154 for general air services. In the year 1917-18 the grand total of militia service expenditures was $226,741,579 and for the next two years the expenditures were in excess of $200,000,000.

Flying operations by the Royal Canadian Air Force during the year showed a total of 1,229 hours or 8,500 time, covering service flying forest protection, aerial photography and fishery protection.

The active militia strength on March 31, 1927, was placed at 3,129 ranks, other than commissioned officers.

Commuter Lost Fight Against New Ruling

Was Advised To Submit To Border Immigration Law

Buffalo, N.Y.—The first attempt of an alien to fight the border immigration ruling was lost when Judge Hazel, in district court dismissed an application for a temporary injunction to restrain immigration officers from enforcing the ruling.

The injunction was sought on behalf of James Kemp, of Niagara Falls, Ontario, who is owner of a business establishment in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Judge Hazel, commenting on the action, advised Kemp to submit to arrest for his entry across the Niagara river and then to apply for a writ of habeas corpus in order that his action may be brought before the district court.

The new immigration ruling which became effective December 1 provides among other things, that Canadian nationals, who commute to this country, must have visas and pay a head tax of $25.

Montreal Merchants Outwit Burglars

Leave No Money in Store After Closing Hours

Montreal.—Thieves operating in Montreal have, for the past few months, apparently acquired a pessimistic attitude regarding their exploits in the same establishments. But the harassed shopkeepers have arranged in their own way means of thwarting the work of the marauders as unremunerative as possible.

Over last week-end thieves entered a branch of a chain grocery company and carried the safe away. That was their fourth visit in two months. The management, however, had one of the employees carry the money home, so that the strong-armed men received nothing but a lot of trouble for their pains. On the previous three visits the robbers secured $50 and three safes.

Changes in British Cabinet Inevitable

Rumor is Causing Much Speculating By London Newspapers

London.—A cabinet shuffle is inevitable early in the coming year and already newspapers are speculating on the changes. It appears probable that Chancellor Lister, Mr. Bridgeman, first lord of the Admiralty, and Col. Ashley will be elevated to the House of Lords, and that their position in the cabinet will be filled by younger men. The progressive members of the Conservative party are making demands for better representation in the government, and are very much dissatisfied with the present administration. This feeling is resulting in considerable demand within the party, which must be satisfied before the next election looms in sight.

Has Approved Agreement

Ottawa.—The Government has approved by order-in-council the agreement between the Canadian National Railways and the City of Vancouver," announced Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals. One of the provisions in the agreement calls for the building of a new hotel in Vancouver at a future date.

The International sweepstakes at the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto was emphasized strongly this year by the exhibition of a large shipment of champion stallions from England, Scotland, France and Belgium. The horses, including Clydesdales, Percherons, Belgians and Belgians, were brought to Canada in October by W. J. McCallum, of Brampton, Ontario, and Regina, Sask. The shipment arrived on board the Canadian Pacific freighters Beaverbrae and Beaverdale, and represented what is considered the finest assignment of horses ever to cross the Atlantic.

A notable stallion with the group is "Lord Willingdon," photographed above, a Clydesdale champion many times over and considered one of the finest ever bred overseas. While the shipment proper, including over 70 horses, will be sold by Mr. McCallum throughout the west this winter, "Lord Willingdon" will be taken back to Scotland by the owner to be used for breeding purposes. This horse was purchased by Mr. McCallum as a price exceeding $10,000. It was the only two-year-old winning double championships in Scotland this year, being champion at the Royal Show, Newport, Wales, and champion at the Kilmarnock Show.

Mr. McCallum's optimism for the horse industry in Canada has prompted him to spend about four months each year touring the four countries mentioned, and making a personal selection of the stallions available for export.

Hazing Barred From Agricultural College

Hon. J. S. Martin Gives Ruling Attending Guelph School

Toronto.—Hazing or initiation practices at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, have been banned by Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture.

The minister's action was prompted by the recent hazing of Edward Beddoe, young English student at the institution who was imprisoned in a pig sty and "sentenced" off in front of a crowd in the streets of the city a short time ago.

Mr. Martin takes the ground that hazing is, in effect, little short of mob law in a mild form and states that students who participate in any future affairs of this kind may be immediately expelled from the college.

Serious Floods Near London

People in Low Lying Country Forced To Leave Homes

London.—Serious floods in many places, especially in the low country to the West of London, followed a heavy 24 hour rainfall which accompanied a back for over the city. The rainfall exceeded half the average for the whole of November.

The Birche river burst its banks, flooding scores of houses near Greenford Public entered the district quickly to awaken the inhabitants, who had to leave their beds hastily to save what they could.

Miles of the district were under water, and the roads were impassable. The local electric plants were flooded, cutting off light and increasing the difficulties of the area

Canadian Doctors in London

Will Examine Immigrants From England Before They Sail

London.—Twenty doctors from Canada have arrived here for the inspection of potential migrants from this side of the Atlantic to the Dominion under the pre-embarkation medical examination scheme which has been placed in operation by the Canadian department of public health.

It is hoped that by testing the fitness of prospective immigrants before they sail, the possibility of their rejection on arrival in Canada will be practically eliminated

World's Chess Champion

Buenos Aires.—Alexander Alekhine, Russian chess-master, won the world's chess championship when Jose R. Capablanca, the title-holder since of 1921, resigned the thirty-fourth game

OATS TROPHY AGAIN WON BY HERMAN TRELLE

Chicago.—Canada retained the oats sweepstakes for the best oats grown on the North American continent through Herman Trelle, Wembly, Alberta, at the International Grain and Hay Show here. L. H. Patterson, Victor, Montana, taking the runner-up championship

Mr. Trelle has the out crown which he won in 1926 with a fine sample of Victory oats weighing 42½ pounds to the bushel, United States measure.

Canada has won the oats championship six times, and Montana twice, by winning today the Canadian exhibitor stepped Mr Peterson from taking the trophy as it was a prospect for a third win. Next year Mr Trelle will have an opportunity of "fitting the trophy

All the winning seed grain samples are placed in a gold painted glass case under lock and key in gold painted boxes. The blue ribbons denoting championship taken by the exhibit are laid on top of the grain. Above the glass is a big map with golden crowns showing that the field peas championship went to Saskatchewan and the coral pea medals to Alberta

George Avery, Keloe, the only Saskatchewan entry in cattle class, was the first Canadian exhibitor taking tenth prize. L. E. Peterson, Valier, Montana, won and Maurice Larcombe, Birtle, Man., was observed and Lionel Larcombe, Birtle, Man., fourteenth, and Lazcombe Birtle, Man., fourteenth

Norwegian Scientists Going To Antarctic

Will Make Study Of Continent from South Pole

London.—A party of Norwegian scientists and explorers have left Norway for Cape Town, whence they will start on board the Antarctic steamer Norvegia, to explore the South Antarctic continent. They will explore from Enderby Land round the continent to the 120th degree West, following the route of the Bellingshausen expedition of 1823.

Afterwards they will go to the South Shetland Islands to study the flora and fauna. The scientific leader of the expedition will be Professor Holtedahl and the captain of the Norwegia will be Captain Horwedt

Several naturalists will be included in the company

World Abandons Tax Title

Japanese Prince Holds Himself Responsible For Bank Failure

Tokio.—Prince Iwao Matsukata, holding himself responsible for the failure of the fifteenth bank, called the Peers Bank, became its stockholders and directors numbered most of the Japanese peerage, has requested permission to abandon the title.

The Prince, who was managing director of the bank, has petitioned to sell his remaining property, amounting to upwards to the equivalent of $50,000 to pay a share. The Prince, who once was a multi-millionaire before the bank's failure last April, is now living in a small house on the outskirts of Tokio.

Vancouver is Recommended

Vancouver.—Officials of the Imperial Aeronautical Association of Japan have been cabled by Y. Miura, air attaches of the Japanese embassy at Washington, recommending Vancouver as the terminus of the Japan Pacific flight which will be attempted next year

Shipping Milk To Orient

Vallejo, Cal.—Americans living in the Orient soon will have fresh milk from contented cows. A dairy company here is shipping several hundred gallons of milk to Shanghai and Singapore, using the same methods of refrigeration employed by fruit exporters.

Large Orange Shipment

Vancouver.—Importation of Japanese oranges through Vancouver reached a new high mark when three steamers arrived from the Orient recently carrying a total of 500,000 boxes for distribution in British Columbia and every other province in the Dominion.

APPRECIATION

Advertisements are beginning to appear with donations of bulky and unsolicited articles being kept at Christmas. To the observant these advertisers tell their own story, give their own measure, and set the important business from which some to harvest and to which sooner or later they will be returned.

In other words, Christmas shopping. The holiday is little more than three weeks ahead, three short weeks days. In no time these days will pass. The natural procedure will be to wait until Christmas Eve when there will be jammed by other procrastinators, stocks picked out, clerks weary, customers in a flurry, Christmas shopping's rapid pace, all because the remainder of today have been neglected.

Every town owes a debt of appreciation to their Christmas shopping early. They reap all the advantages in variety of commodities, leisure of choice, and when Christmas Eve comes they can proceed about their last minute holiday tasks calmly, while the others flurry and splutter.

Twenty-First Annual Meeting of United Grain Growers Limited

Reports Show Successful Year and Sound Financial Condition of Company—Directors Re-elected—Livestock Service.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Dec. 30th.—The Twenty-first annual meeting marked the discussions of the delegates at the meeting of United Grain Growers held yesterday.

The first was the refusal of the delegates to allow the closing of the Grain Growers Livestock Commission in Alberta. The Directors' report outlined the development of the new Provincial livestock marketing organizations in each of the three provinces and recommended that the Company's livestock business in Alberta be closed. In Saskatchewan they had already closed the Company's livestock office on the Moose Jaw yards, owing to the fact that the Saskatchewan Co-operative Livestock Producers had decided to commence operations in that province. In Alberta the Alberta Co-operative Livestock Producers had assumed their standard of operation but were encountering opposition in the result at Calgary and Edmonton on the first of the year, instead of having their livestock marketed through the Company's office as heretofore. Because of the situation thus created, the Directors recommended closing the livestock business in Alberta. Delegates from Alberta, however, insisted that the interests of that province should not be deprived of the assistance which they had been getting for their livestock. The meeting asked for information on the plans of the new provincial bodies and was addressed by A. E. Cheyrel, representing the Alberta Co-operative Livestock Producers, Limited; W. D. McKay of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Livestock Producers, Limited and I. Ingaldson of the Co-operative Livestock body

LOCAL NEWS

Oh yes, it gets cold in Alberta but the atmosphere is so dry, you know, you dont feel — ! ! ! ! ! ! ! !

Three weeks ago we reported an item concerning the sale of our rink's street cement. As we heard of it, it was between Otto Schaefer and another party. This was wrong. It was Mr. Schaefer was not a party to the contract, but Mr. Serpell, of Thorhild. We regret the error.

The Fort Saskatchewan ladies' curling club played the first game of the season last Tuesday, four rinks were organized during the afternoon. A game between rinks, skipped respectively by Mrs. D. Hamer, president, and Mrs. H. F. Wight, vice-president, ended with the honors going to Mrs. Wright's rink, with a score of 24—6. All ladies interested in both the club and make the 1927-8 season an outstanding success.

College Hospital For Women Lepers

Romance Surrounds Gift Of London Postman To Indian Colony

Francis Cardinal, a London postman, who delivers letters in Gaswell Road, has settled for India an especial leave to open a cottage hospital which he has built for women lepers.

Mr. Cardinal served in India during the war, and was impressed with the sufferings of the untreated lepers. After the war he became acquainted with an old woman of nearly eighty, who lived next door, still was also interested in lepers. A bond of sympathy grew up between them, and Mr. Cardinal became a sort of adopted son.

A short time ago the old woman died, and left him a small sum of money, which Mr Cardinal has put with his own savings, making just enough to build a cottage hospital at the Manamadern leper colony, South Southern India, at a cost of £125 and pay for his trip to open it.

There was a flat stone by the fireplace on which she often took her English book to read. For she loved the sound of the flowing water. It brought her back to the elemental things of life, and told her again the stories she had heard when she was a child—stories of man's long struggle with the wilderness, flood, famine and cold—and in the blithest murmurings Helmi could discern a warning note, as was trying to tell her that winter was coming pitiless and cold, and that now was the time, when the grass was green and the water running, to build protection from the cold, and lay up stores against that long, white, desolate time.

So—Helmi came closer to the top of the street, on a knoll that had a balm of gilead tree on it, she came upon a pile of lumber—new, shining lumber, fragrant in the warm air. She stopped to look at it, then, knowing down, passed her hands over the satiny surface of the boards on which the drops of gum glistened like gold beads. It was a sultry afternoon at the end of June, and she was wondering how she would get along when the frosts of winter came. She carried a bag of laundry—she and the teacher traded work in their own odd fashion.

As Helmi looked at the lumber a sudden impulse came to her. She leaned in build a house—a house with a little place that would be her own. Wasn't it providing being a girl and not able to hit out for yourself—never able to step out and do big things, and here she was, working all day long for twenty-five dollars a month, while the poorest man in town earned two dollars aday and only worked eight hours. It sure was the limit!

And she would just have to build herself a house. She would be content to stay in Eagle Mines if she had her own home. Then she put the thought away, remembering Ami Lili coming to her aid. A house meant an anchor, and she wanted to be free, always free. More English and more money, and then she would go to the city, learn stenography, work in an office, wear swell suits and have a wrist watch. Her plans seemed to end there in uncertainty. But here at her feet lay the material for a house, and it didn't do any harm to put the lumber!

One sultry Sunday morning just before daybreak Helmi was wakened by a smashing crash of lumber that seemed to burrow under the boarding-house, then burst upward with a terrific crash like the blasting on the mines. She ran to the window. A dull blue light was over everything, and great black clouds in connection were advancing in the western sky. She watched them, fascinated, as they billowed, surged and frothed with an inward boiling motion. Then the thought of the lumber on the knoll—it would get wet and lose its lovely satiny sheen. When she looked she saw a man was working there, carting a board, as unconcernedly as if the sun were shining. Then a flare of lightning ran along the blade of his saw, and Helmi shut her eyes in fright as a terrific deafening peal shook the village in their neighborhood.

Helmi's mind acted quickly. Sunday her writing. She wanted to write to Miss Abbie. Miss Abbie would never tell she had heard from her, and yet if anyone asked her Miss Abbie couldn't lie. That was the worst about being a Christian like Miss Abbie, you couldn't lie, even when you should. Mrs. H. John had warned her not to write to anyone, but she did want to write just these words. "Dear Miss Abbie—Helmi thinks of you every day." That couldn't hurt anyone, especially if she had it posted in Kenora on. Miss Abbie would know why she did not sign her name. She wished again she could ask someone. Jack Doran would be the best one—he was always easy to talk to, and he did not laugh at her English.

Another flare—closer to the top of the street, on a knoll that had a balm of gilead tree on it, she came upon a pile of lumber—new, shining lumber, fragrant in the warm air. She stopped to look at it, then, knowing down, passed her hands over the satiny surface of the boards on which the drops of gum glistened like gold beads. Helmi's mind acted quickly. Sunday morning a man at work and now a thunderstorm! God speaking to the whole island would not like to see a man building his house on Sunday, and yet Helmi knew how the man felt. It wasn't wicked he could not help wanting to build—she knew how he felt—she felt too. Now she was running down stairs—out out into the storm.

The sky seemed to split wide open above her head as the rain, the heaviest she had ever known in the Dutch frontier to serve the allied armies and give military information of the most valuable character.

Death risks were her daily advertisement. Once she had to swim a deep canal on a winter's night to avoid a German sentry. Her devices to elude the passport officers were innumerable in some of her adventures street urchins were her allies. They would slip through sentries and bring back a passport which could be used again, or would divert a sentinel's attention at a critical moment when her subterfuges had been discovered.

She was condemned to death, and though the sentence was commuted, died neglected in a prison in Cologne from pleurisy only two months before the allied victory for which she had worked without flinching.

Big drops fell on his face as she hurried along, and instinctively she leaned further over him to shelter him. There was no lounge or bed downstairs, so she laid him down. She ran to the room she brought him and laid him on her bed. He would get along when the fainting went away. She carried a bag of laundry—she and the teacher traded work in their own odd fashion.

West Canadian Graduates

Supply Is Not Sufficient For Demand Say Authorities

American college youths may be proving themselves as it has been declared, entitled for business, but really the Canadian graduate is being snapped up by industry as fast as he is produced, authorities said when asked by Answer C. W. Barron, New York editor and writer, who recently said that modern universities were "enabling college men for practical business." The supply of Canadian college graduates was not sufficient for the demand it was shown in support of the contention that Canadian students were as smart and successful in business.

These are the words and works of life; this do,

And live; who doth not this hath lost heav'n's way.—Henry Vaughan.

What a man is told that the whole of religion and morality is summed up in the two commandments,—to love God and to love our neighbor, he is ready to cry, like Charoles in Gebir at the first sight of the sea, "Is this the mighty ocean? is this all?" Yes, all: but how small a part of it do your eyes survey! Only trust yourself to it, launch out upon it, sail abroad over it, you will find it has no end; it will carry you round the world.

NO MEDICINE LIKE BABY'S OWN TABLETS

For Either the Newborn Babe or the Growing Child

There is no other medicine to equal Baby's Own Tablets for little ones—whether it be for the newborn babe or the growing child the Tablets will always do good. They are absolutely free from opiates or other harmful drugs and the mother can always feel safe in using them.

Concerning the Tablets; Mrs. John Armour, R. R. 1, South Vaughan, Ont., says:—"I have Baby's Own Tablets by me and whenever my little children, to whom, when a medicine is needed, we have given only Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are the best medicine you can give to little ones, especially those are young children."

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulates the stomach and bowels; banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fever and make teething easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or direct by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Carnivorous Cow

A German newspaper tells of a cattle-owner who sent over Denmark his covering a crate of geese standing before the barn, the cow dropped the hay she was chewing, ate eight of her way to the crate, and had devoured five geese before the farmer noticed what was happening.

Always Ready and Reliable.—Practically all pains arising from inflammation can be removed with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Simply rub it on the sore spot and it is quickly absorbed by the skin. Its healing power is conveyed to the inflamed tissue which is quickly soothed. This fine old remedy is also a specific for all manner of cuts, scratches, bruises and sprains. Keep a bottle handy.

Saskatchewan Means "Rapid"

Saskatchewan, the name borne by the great river which rises in the Rockies in Alberta and flows through Saskatchewan and Manitoba to Lake Winnipeg, is an Indian word meaning "rapid" or "swift flowing."

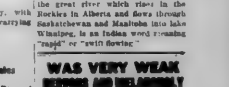
WAS VERY WEAK NERVOUS AND DELICATE

Mrs. Geo. McCauis Was Built Up Strong and Well by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Mrs. Geo. McCauis, Campbellford, Ont., writes:—"For some time ago I was troubled very badly with my heart and nerves, the result of a fall, which was my going through the change of life.

"I was very weak and melancholy, and no nervous I could hardly bear to hear a clock ticking, and I did not sleep well.

"I was advised to try



Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I sent at once for a box; took them and got so much better, and before they were all gone I felt good, by nerves can fine, I do not mind my noise, and I can sleep well. I can not recommend them too highly to those suffering as I did."

Price 50c. a box at all druggists and dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ALBERTA CHEF MOVES-MENT AIMS VANCOUVER

"The Alberta cup movement is the greatest factor in Vancouver's prosperity so far as foreign trade is concerned," states J. H. Dollar of Vancouver, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, who visited Calgary and Edmonton recently.

"Between October 1 and the end of January next, it looks to me as if Vancouver will move between eleven and twelve million bushels of wheat, practically all of which will be from Alberta," added Mr. Dollar. The grain movement, he stated, was proceeding smoothly, with plenty of ships available at Vancouver, and little difficulty is anticipated in handling shipments for some time yet.

Canada's Next Objective

The title to this article was the subject of a constructive address by Brig.-General H. Mitchell, president of the Toronto Board of Trade, before the second annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce held recently at Vancouver. Some portion of that address can, we feel, be passed on with advantage to the readers of this paper. General Mitchell said, in part:

The Diamond Jubilee of Confederation sees Canada entering upon a period of its greatest expansion. It sees Canada united in an effort to improve its position as a nation within itself, and to an ambition to make a place for itself among the nations of the world. It already has an assured place among those nations forming the great British Empire. It has consolidated its position after the war by quiet, persevering effort, and has steadied down to the things which can build up a country. It is now ready for and is indeed progressing toward the next objective.

Canada has been fertile agricultural regions. It has wealth of forest, mineral and water power resources. Its geographical and its topographical features form an asset rather than a hindrance to its development. It has many ports on the two great oceans of the world, and it has a waterway in the heart of the country. It occupies half of North America, is in the centre of the great British Empire. It is midway between the East and the West and on the way between Europe and Asia via America. It has great transcontinental railways and fleets of inland shipping. And along with this favorable position and its unsurpassed natural material resources, it has human resources of contented, industrious, law-abiding people of solid character and high ideals. Our natural wealth lies in our potential assets and in the development and use of those resources. We have made our way considerably in the past sixty years, but ours is a country of the future, and we in Canada are the trustees of these great assets for those who are to come after us.

With all these resources and at this particular time, what then is our next objective? We are bound to progress along some road and in some direction and at some rate. The road must be toward increased prosperity, and the means and the rate of travel are for us, ourselves, to determine. We must answer this somewhere among our natural resources. The objective for our effort in Canada's next period of expansion lies on the high ground before us, which we must attack with a united front to secure initiative and gain ascendancy in the markets of this continent, of the British Empire and of the world.

To develop these resources, to supply the needs of the different parts of our own country, of the continent, and the world, we must:—

1. Know what resources we have—in stock.

2. Ascertain what of our resources are the best seller: (a) to ourselves—prosperity; (b) to the Empire—the Mother Country and overseas Dominions; (c) to the other nations of the world.

3. Determine with what resources we are first to enter into competition, and with what next to follow.

4. Build up actively new industries, and trade from these resources in which we are predominant or which are peculiar to Canada.

5. Create a demand for our products: (a) provincially; (b) nationally; and (c) internationally.

6. Secure extensive publicity in all possible markets for those products to which we can readily compete.

To further develop the assets of these great Canadian natural resources to the first duty of every citizen of every community and of every province. The problems involved in each further development are many and varied. New problems arise and old ones recur in new forms. Changed conditions bring changed problems looked at from new angles.

General Mitchell proceeded to enumerate some twenty problems awaiting scientific and economic solution, upon the commercial success of which, he contended, will depend much of the future and future stability of our natural resources. Included in this list is improvement of our wheat culture to secure earlier ripening varieties; effective measures to prevent rust in wheat; cheap and effective transportation of our basic products by water as well as by rail; the economic production of low grade fuels, such as lignite, for commercial use; economic long distance electric power transmission; elimination of alkali from the soil of certain of the western agricultural areas and projection of structures from attack; development of the pottery and ceramic industry from our vast deposits of clay; the utilization of the waste straw of our agricultural areas for fuel or other purposes.

These are some of the things which we must set ourselves to solve, as a nation of energetic, alert people. We must make our Human Resources to develop our Natural Resources.

It is of our national duty at this time to look forward with cheerfulness and confidence to attack these and our other problems with all our energy and skill, with a pride in Canada and the Empire, and with firm faith in its future.

Road To Pin Flax Area

Construction Work Will Proceed With All Possible Speed

Preparations for the construction of the railway into the Pin Flax mining area of Northern Manitoba, which will open the way for a $50,000,000 development of mineral resources in the north country, already are under way, following the letting of the contract.

Supplies and equipment are being accumulated for shipment to Pin Flax which is 75 miles southwest of the Pin Flax property and within a short time 500 men will commence the preliminary clearing and construction. The number will be increased to 2,000 or more as the work progresses up to next summer.

The first trainload of equipment to be used on the Pin Flax railway left Montreal recently, and this will be followed by additional loads within a few days. By spring millions of dollars' worth of construction material and an army of workers will have been assembled in the north country.

Very soon the dust of the locomotives will have broken the silence of the north, the first work being the construction of between 30 and 40 miles to secure the advance contingent of workers. The remainder of the road will be pushed on to supply all the men and material on the project, and no workmen will be brought in from Eastern Canada.

Under the contract, trains must be running regularly between Flin Flon and the Pin Flax mines, by December, 1928. The construction of the road forms an estimated expenditure of $2,000,000.

Canada's Road Expenditure

Grand Total For Last Fiscal Year Amounted To $1,839,488.91

The grand total of Canada's naval service expenditures for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1927, amounted to $1,839,488.91, according to the annual report of the national defence department at that issued here. Of this million and a half odd dollars, over one third was consumed by the barracks at Halifax, N.S., and Esquimalt, B.C., the former accounting for $766,985.51, and the latter for $750,631.93. The maintenance of the two destroyers, Patriot and Patriote, cost the country $339,319.89 for Patriot, and $167,574.39 for Patriote. The four mine sweepers, Pembroke, Ypres, Armentieres, and Thiepval, accounted for $150,741.46 of the annual expenditures.

Theory Scholarships Announced To Aid Work Of T.B Association

The Canadian Tuberculosis Association announced following a meeting of the executive at Ottawa, that the necessary financial arrangements whereby thirty scholarships of $500 each have been granted to assist authorized nurses, on short duration courses in Canada to visit the tuberculosis centres in England, France and Italy, in 1928. Those awarded scholarships will receive $500 each, but no one has will be made to all the tuberculosis institutions in the United Kingdom.

The Last Asthma Attack may really be the last one if the proper measures are taken. Dr. J. D. It always relieves and has continued use often has a permanent effect. Why not get this famous remedy today and commence its use? Inhalant in smoke or vapor it is equally effective.

The sugar beet crop in Southern Alberta this year will, it is estimated, yield between 45,000 and 50,000 tons, the largest crop in the history of the industry in Alberta. Last year's crop was 41,000 tons.

Seem Most Quickly.—Have you it persistent sore that refuses to heal? Then try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the dropsies; it will stop sloughing, carry away the proud flesh, draw out the pus and prepare a clean way for new skin. It is a recognized tonic or among aids and members of people use rarely that it handed where prepared.

It is estimated that Prince Edward Island, the smallest of the nine provinces of Canada, will have a total production this year of 2,000,000 bushels. A considerable percentage of this crop will find a market in the United States.

Western Beef Cattle Big Winners

Cattle Bred At Glencarnock Stock Farms, Brandon, Capture Prize At Chicago International

Canada, and western Canada in particular, has every reason to feel proud of the excellent showing made at the recent Chicago International Exposition. The numerous awards coming to western Canada should draw the attention of outsiders as well as our own people to the fact that our agricultural and livestock growers can more than hold their own in competition with any part of the American continent. In proof of the fact that we are producing as good livestock in western Canada as in any part of America, may be mentioned the honors carried off by the Glencarnock Stock Farms of Brandon. Max James D. McGregor, the proprietor, who is a breeder of Aberdeen Angus cattle, had made what is believed to be a record for all times at the Chicago show it is very doubtful if at any previous International, animals bred by individual, have carried off so many honors. All the classes of cattle were very strong and exceptional merit represented this year. All the best animals of Canada and the United States were gathered there, and an animal had to be outstanding for recognition. Awards given to Glencarnock bred cattle were as follows: Grand champion female, 7th; grand champion female, 7th; grand champion female, Glencarnock Jessie, 9th; senior champion female, Glencarnock Black Diamond, 1st; grand champion female, 1st; junior champion female, 1st; get of sire, 1st; produce of dam, 1st; senior

Canada Retires Loan.

Financing By Federal Government Shows a Healthy State Of Affairs

An indication of the healthy state of Canada's financial condition is given in a recent announcement by Hon. James A. Robb, Canadian Minister of Finance, to the effect that $700,000 million loans maturing between Nov. 1, and December 1, $55,506,650 will be paid out of revenue and the balance of $16,493,350 will be taken care of by an issue of four per cent. three-year treasury notes which have been sold to the chartered banks of Canada at par. By this arrangement interest charges of $6,597,000 annually will be saved.

The sale of these treasury notes marks the first financing since 1913 which the Dominion Government has contracted at a cost so low as four per cent. The treasury notes will be dated December 1, 1927.

Says Hydro Power Will Be Broadcast

Scientist Believes It Will Be Accomplished Before Long

Wheat Pool London Office

Will Act As Intermediary Between Winnipeg and European Countries

Interviewed on his way Liverpool, D. L. Smith, of Winnipeg, former general sales manager of the Canadian wheat pool, who was recompanied by R. A. McPherson, Dell. Alta., a director, stated that he had journeyed to England to establish a London office for the pool, which he said would not mean that Canadian grain would be any cheaper to us. He pointed out that as he is a pool man the Canadian farmer could sell grain at any cheaper "As a matter of fact," Mr. Smith said, "your bread is really dearer than ours in Canada although we have grain on the spot." He explained that his idea in opening the London office was to act as an intermediary between Winnipeg and the European countries. Direct sales to the millers has not been contemplated.—Canadian Press.

Mr. MacPherson said the season's crops for Alberta, Manitoba and Saskatchewan would be the largest, with the exception of the year 1915, when 450,000,000 bushels, but owing to frosts the quality was somewhat inferior. "We do not want to remove the element, but our farmers are growing wheat for business, not for pleasure," he said.

Mr. Smith, in commenting on the state of farming in Britain, said it seemed to be in much the same conditions as that in the United States. Wealth in both countries, he said, was in the cities, and both countries were paying for mass and low agriculture. He thanked English farmers should meet together more and work in closer co-operation, as was done in Canada.

A Profitable Wheat Crop

Phenomenal Yields Of Wheat Reported From All Parts Of Alberta

Phenomenal yields of wheat and other grains are being reported from all parts of Alberta. H. R. Fraser, a farmer at Lacombe, has had a total yield of 12,130 bushels of wheat. One field of 162 acres of winter wheat produced 7,290 bushels or 70½ bushels to the acre, while a 20-acre field of spring wheat yielded 4,240 bushels or over 40 bushels to the acre, so that the average for the two fields was 56½ bushels per acre.

The province of Alberta has a threecrop this year of 178,319,000 bushels, the largest crop in its history, and an increase of 65,300,000 bushels over last year.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

POOR MAN'S PUDDING

6 cups whole milk.
½ cup rice.
½ cup raisins.
1 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon nutmeg.
½ Cup raisins.

Put all together in a buttered pan in a moderate oven. Stir frequently at first, and then occasionally. Bake 3 hours. Should be creamy. Better cold than hot.

PINEAPPLE PUNCH

1 quart water.
2 cups sugar.
2 cups crushed pineapple
2 cup orange juice.
¼ cup lemon juice.

Boil water, sugar and pineapple 20 minutes. Add fruit juices, cool, strain and freeze with ice water if necessary. Either fresh or canned pineapple may be used.

Mixture's Liniment for Grippe.

Exports of cheese from Canada for the 12 months ended October 31, 1927, totalled 117,231,500 pounds valued at $23,007,500. Most of this cheese found a market in the British Isles. Exports of Canadian butter during the same period were 1,327,000 pounds valued at $1,017,000.

New 'Plane Is Weather Proof

Can Travel Under Any Conditions Opinion Of Inventor

An airship which, it is said, will be able to cross the Atlantic and back in almost any weather, has been designed by four young ex-naval officers.

It has a rigid keel, though the ship is of the half-rigid type, and can carry with ease forty passengers and can go, while it can negotiate any of the landings met with in night flying or in fog.

Two big rigid airships are now being built by the British Government and have distance, performance classical and trans-oceanic transport involving non-stop flights of 5,000 miles at high speed.

The new airship has a torpedo shape without the usual projections, upon some aeroplane and inboard accommodation will be provided, free from noise and vibration.

The new keel arrangement is said to give a strength increased in transverse strength. It is due to fore, passage of the engineers, landing on the water in high seas, handling in their keels, all been dealt with in detail.

Lieut. C. Lisenbe Sutton, late R.N. said that although the envelope of the proposed new airship is filled with non-inflammable gas no fears need be entertained as to its safety.

A new type of ground plant has been considered for use on land or water which can be quickly be handled with by any member, employing only the ship's crew and a ground staff of mechanics.

Mr Graham Wood, the designer and inventor of the already, which fields the early experiences of H. G. Wells, qualified as an air pilot in 1912. He was one of the first 200 airmen to qualify in this country.

Has New War Device

Japanese Doctor Experiments With Hand Grenade Filled With Air Explosives

Experiments with a new type of explosion which may revolutionize the methods used in warfare and replace methods used in industry have developed in the Tokyo laboratory of Dr. Hantaro Nakaoka, prominent Japanese authority on physics. The method is to pass a direct current of 40,000 volts and 10,000 amperes through a copper wire in liquid air. Under such circumstances the hair explodes instantaneously, producing 10,000 degrees of heat, according to a report as if many guns were fired, it is said. Dr. Nakaoka began this expert investigation in an effort to solve mysteries relative to the atomic activity of the hot stars. Human hair is said to be largely cellulose, the same material from which the most modern high explosives are made.

Preserving "Pudus" Plane

Earliest One Used By Curtis Only Survivor Of Its Type

The old Curtiss "Pudus" plane, in which Glenn Curtis made some of his earliest flights, will take its place among antiquities in the Smithsonian Institute soon. The plane, its joints loose and its frame rusty, has been hauled out from the junk heap at the Curtis Aeroplane Company's factory, and mechanics are getting it ready for its last resting place. It has been overthrown "since 1912 when Burt Acosta took it up for an exhibition flight.

The plane so far as is known, is the only survivor of its type. It was known as a pusher plane because the engine was behind the pilot and the propeller pushed the plane along sometimes as fast as fifty miles an hour.

FEDERAL SURPLUS OF 60 MILLIONS IS REPORTED

Ottawa.—With eight months of the fiscal year closed, the surplus of Dominion revenues over expenditures stands at rather more than 60 million dollars.

During the month of November the net debt of the Dominion, largely as a result of interest payments on loans, increased by $17,722,000, but taking the whole twelve months into consideration the net debt has totals $20,451,000.

Preparing for a substantial surplus by the end of March, with consequent reduction in taxation or increased payments on the national debt, is the declared intention of the Liberal party. The budget speech will be delivered in the house of commons on the second week in January.

Customs duties are up nine millions and excise duties up five millions for the eight months, while post office receipts up by a million. Income taxes (sales, transportation taxes) have risen in all by nearly four million dollars.

Expenditures for the net debt of Canada as at 31st Oct. were $2,247,918,743; on Nov. 28 last it was $2,241,196,743.

Gold Shipped From New York To London

Perth Time Since Outbreak Of World War

New York.—Gold has been removed from New York to London for the first time since the outbreak of the Great War in 1914. The shipment, which amounts to $7,000,000 was announced by the International Acceptance Bank, Inc., but with the exception of a statement that it was a "special transaction" no details were made public.

The gold in the form of coin, was removed from the vaults of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York by forwarding on the Cunard Liner, Aquitania, to a correspondent in London. Although the sensational advance in sterling exchange had created Wall Street to include in its calculations the possibility that part of the huge hoard of gold accumulated in this country since the war might be transferred to England, announcement that a shipment actually had been arranged occasioned some surprise.

For Royal Chimney

Offenders Under Manitoba Liquor Laws May Receive Consideration

Winnipeg.—A petition for royal clemency towards offenders under existing liquor laws is now in circulation.

Contending that they have suffered greatly paid for their misdemeanors against liquor laws, a number of friends and relatives of persons whose petitions will not have reached by the date when the new consolidated liquor laws are likely to have passed have organized to bring pressure on the Government to liberate these prisoners at once, it is claimed. Although the Government's view of the petition is not yet known, it may be contended that these prisoners and others normally committed to jail after the passing of the new act are still subject to punishment under clauses in the new legislation.

Motion Of Censure Defeated

Ramsay MacDonald, Labor Leader, Moves Vote Of Censure Against British Government

London. — A motion of censure moved in the House of Commons against Premier Baldwin for his failure to participate in the coal debate on November 16 was rejected by a vote of 347 to 125.

The vote of censure was moved by the Labor Leader, Ramsay MacDonald, and a seven-hour debate ensued.

The Prime Minister, in the course of his remarks, explaining the unsolicited visits imposed upon him, and intimated that the duty of leadership in the House would eventually have to be delegated to some other minister.

Government Ownership Failure In Belgium

System Yielded More Revenue In Hands Of a Company

Brussels.—No successful has been the first year of Belgium's experiment with government railways instead of private lines and to-night spokesmen are declared soon to be called upon to explain why the deficit on the railroads, a chance forced by the financial panic of a year ago, has topped all previous records in history.

The whole public ownership system, which potentially is a gold mine, yielded a mere $1,000,000 last year although the railroads, never published anything. With the possible exception of the Belgian railroads, the rail system of Belgium is the most extensive in Europe, and it was considered the height of optimism when the government took charge ago.

Observe Friendships Pact

Tryst Kept At St. Paul's Cathedral After 22 Years

London.—Observing a pact of friendship made 22 years ago, four men met on the steps of St. Paul's Cathedral one day recently and one "Auld Lang Syne" with joked-linked arms. Subsequently they had lunch. Of the eight friends who, in 1905, when all four workers, made a pact to meet at St. Paul's 20 years later. The tryst was kept by only four, the other two having fallen in the war and two having died. The pact was made by making the gathering an annual event.

As the friends were on the point of leaving the Cathedral for a farewell lunch together, they were joined by the wife or one of their former colleagues, who, while they waited, had entered and kept the tryst on behalf of her late husband.

Thousands Fight For Sacred Relic

Hindus Pay Huge Sum For Garments Of Widow

London. — Thousands of Hindus fought to obtain fragments of the charred clothes of a Hindu woman who suffered fatal burns attempting to perform the ancient rite of suttee — self immolation of a widow on the body of her husband—says a despatch in the Evening News from Allahabad.

The widow, who was rescued by the police from the funeral pyre of her husband, subsequently died of her burns, and her body was thrown into the sacred Ganges near Benares.

Hundreds of rupees were paid for possession of her garments, which are regarded by the Hindus as sacred. Fully 12,000 Hindus fought to obtain fragments as her clothes.

Traveled By Dog Team

Doctor Made Long Trip To Aid Dying Boy

McCall, Idaho.—A dog team carrying medical aid to a dying boy across a hundred miles of bleak Idaho mountain country was believed to have won the race.

Traversing the rugged snow covered hills in bitterly cold weather, the mushers sledded the Wardenhut Mine in the Thunder Mountains in time for Dr. Dan Numbers to administer to Ernest Hostrom, 20.

Dr. Numbers began his trip to the mine by automobile. Heavy snow blocked him, and he enlisted the aid of Ray Hoover, musher, and a team of crack sledge dogs. Young Hostrom was stricken with influenza and bronchopneumonia, and hope was given up for him unless medical help arrived quickly.

Wins More Awards

Guelph, Ont.—W. J. McCallum, of Brampton and Regina, was a big winner at the provincial fair yesterday, capturing both championships in the Percheron classes and junior and grand Clydesdale on his Lord Willingdon, a young animal which went to the top at both the Toronto Royal and the Ottawa Winter Fair.

Miss Catherwood says she is training for the event.

Northern India Swept By Cholera Epidemic

Smallpox Has Also Broken Out In Bengal Districts

Karachi, India.—Spread of an epidemic of cholera in the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, in Northern India, has claimed 1,729 victims since March 1, it was announced here today. The number of deaths has increased from 1,729 to 4,000 since March 1, Mahkab from 150 to 617, at Nowshahi, from 62 to 137, and at Howrah, from 31 to 78.

Western Bengal is the worst affected district. The deaths of the population in northern India and the frequency of travel transmitting the disease from place to place, have made it a grave menace to the whole country.

Smallpox has also broken out in the coast lines of Europe and Africa which approximately 3500 have been reported in a week since March 1.

Further comparisons will be made in another ten years and 10 the variations in the various districts.

Professor Wagner was struck by the fact that there were people living in the coast lines of Europe and Africa which approximately 3500 have been reported in a week since March 1.

Professor Wagner, eminent German scientist, that the world-wide drop was largely due to the gravity of the situation. More than 100 persons died in Calcutta over the week end from smallpox alone, while deaths in the Bengal districts increased.

Unemployed in Britain

Official statistics show that 1,113,208 persons were unemployed for the week ending December 26, in the British Isles. While a slight increase over the previous week, the figures are 750,847 under those of 1926 during the coal strike.

May Top U.S. Aerial Mail

Postal Department Considering Lines Where Services Would Connect

Ottawa.—The tapping by transcontinental mail services of the American mail airways at convenient points of transmission is under consideration by the Post Office Department.

The scheme, broadly, is that with a service from Montreal, the United States services could be tapped at Syracuse or Albany, remote to New York, while another line from Winnipeg would effect a junction with the United States service at Chicago and St. Paul, and on the coast planes from Vancouver would fly over to Seattle.

The Canadian air service would either be by the air force along the lines of the experiments now being carried out or by a private company of Canadians.

Recently an offer was received from the United States for establishing a service to Montreal but this was not entertained. If the plan is proceeded with, and it is now in the inquiry stage, it would be broadly national and calculated to connect with the United States service at centres in Canada. The Alaska-West and Pacific points across the line.

Actual mail services have reached a high state of development, and even the mail handled is essentially letters rather than baby stuff, and, at that, of the more urgent class which is the special delivery rate.

Claims Continents Are Drifting Apart

Difference Of Three Feet Yearly Between Europe and America Says Scientist

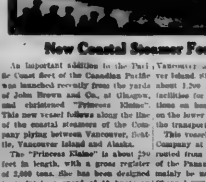
Ottawa.—A variation in time differences between Table, Ottawa and Greenwich, England, has been noted by officials at the Dominion observatory since longitudes were checked in 1924 and 1925. The variation is due, it is said, to the theory of Professor Wagner, eminent German scientist, that the continents are drifting apart.

Further comparisons will be made in another ten years and 10 the variations in the various districts. Professor Wagner's contention will be regarded as confirmed.

Professor Wagner was struck by the fact that there were people living in the coast lines of Europe and Africa which approximately fitted into indentations in the coast lines of North and South America. He conceived the notion that at one time the continents had been one but had been driven asunder by a mighty cataclysm of nature and were still drifting apart at the rate of approximately three feet a year.

Offer For Saskatoon Street Railway

Saskatoon.—An offer to pay the city $1,000,000 in cash for the street railways and the electric power plant and to take over debentures on the same, are high lights in a communication from Mr. G. M. Yule, K.C., acting on behalf of C. J. Yorath, president of the Mid-West Utilities and his associates, handed into the city hall here.



New Coastal Steamer For C. P. R.

An important addition to the Pacific Coast fleet of the Canadian Pacific was launched recently from the yards of John Brown and Co., at Clydebank, and christened "Princess Kleins". This new vessel follows along the line of the coastal steamers of the Company plying between Vancouver, Prince Rupert, Vancouver Island and Alaska.

The "Princess Kleins" is about 320 feet in length, with a gross register of 2,000 tons. She has been designed to maintain a speed of 19 knots on service, and is qualified to be used between Seattle on the south and Skagway, Alaska to the north.

TO INVESTIGATE PIONEER BELTS OF THE WORLD

Ottawa. — Canada will co-operate with a committee of the United States National Research Council in an investigation of the five pioneer belts of the world. The survey will be made with a view to determining the character of these belts to assimilate education and increase the production of food supplies.

The Dominion, Siberia, Argentina, South Africa and South America are the countries in which the pending pioneer belts are situated. In Canada, the belt extends through the northern portion of the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The scheme originated with the United States organization, hailing the way the New York Times January will require to import a greater quantity of food and when a surplus of A portion citizens may wish to find new homes. A resolution, it is understood was passed by that body several months ago asking for co-operation in the work of investigation.

Dean Rutherford of the University of Saskatchewan, Dr. Mcintosh and Dr. McArthur, of Queen's University, Kingston, waited upon Premier W. L. Mackenzie King and members of the cabinet in the matter of Canada's which was heard in camera, agreed that the Dominion Government co-operate by providing every available assistance through the various federal departments. After hearing the representations Premier King promised the assistance of the Dominion Government would be given. Already, it is understood, several universities have intimated their intention to co-operate.

Underpaid Farm Help

Says Low Wages Paid To Farm Women Is Responsible

Toronto. — That no self-respecting domestic servant would work for the wages which farm women get for the hard conditions they endure, is the view of Miss Oper, of Leamington, Ont., in the course of her presidential address at the annual meeting of the United Farm Women of Ontario. She felt that economic conditions were far from satisfactory. The cities of North, South and South America. He conceived the notion that at one time the continents had been one but had been driven asunder by a mighty cataclysm of nature and were still drifting apart at the rate of approximately three feet a year.

Committed For Trial

Men Charged With Collecting Information About British Forces For Soviets

London.—George Hazen, a German, and Wilfred Francis McCartney, described as an Irish American, were committed for trial on a charge of criminal court on charges brought under the official secrets act by a magistrate in Bow Street court.

The two prisoners are alleged to have attempted to collect information about the British army forces, particularly the air force. At a previous hearing it was brought out that the men were gathering information believed to be useful to Soviet Russia.

Fire Chief Retires

Winnipeg.—Fire Chief J. E. Buchanan, has handed in his resignation after 45 years of service. Chief Buchanan comes within the recently adopted provision of the pension by-law which requires every civic employee to retire on pension on attaining the age of 65, if he has 20 years' service to his credit

Flying Fatalities

Washington. — From January 1 to October 31 of 1927, the first year of Government registration and regulation of commercial flying, there were 102 persons killed in plane accidents and 94 injured in aerial service conducted for a profit, it was revealed by unofficial statistics.

Coolidge Will Not Run

Washington. — In his own words, Calvin Coolidge is "eliminated" as a candidate for President in 1928. He has not changed his stand of August 2, when, in the Black Hills, he said: "I do not choose to run," and he is emphatic now that "my decision will be respected."

THE RECORD

H. Coley, Editor and Publisher

FORT SASKATCHEWAN, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 14, 1927

THE KEK IS GIRD

For the benefit of the uninitiated it is here stated that a kiss is a compression of the closed cavity of the mouth by the cheeks, giving a slight sound when the rounded contact of the lips with another's is broken. It tastes better than it sounds.

A would-be corpse-hanger has informed an interviewer and newspaper that every kiss indulged in shortens one's life three minutes. If this bird has the correct dope he has certainly suggested a delightful method of leaving this vale of tears. The phenomena of limited meet be given up in order to reach a ripe old age, a referendum on the subject would undoubtedly be passed in favor of an early but blissful demise.

But it is apparent that the facts in the case are necessary to the issue to be arrived at. There are no records available of long-lived but non-osculatory souls with many descendants, so one must rely more or less on personal experience.

The aforesaid experience confirmed all but a few more fortunate self-centered ones that they were born to endless Monotonah. For where is there a man with soul so dead as to admit that he has kissed more than he good for him? And he is not going so far as such a woman is fatile. Other evidence to refute the contention that kissing is a habit that can be broadened, but why trouble one's self about it? If one could prove that a single kiss caused injury to health there is no earthly inducement to make the leap. A little kissing now and then is relished by the best of us.

Such objection is said to be a cold, cold, night alone rain that and hide all and would seem that the overwhelming majority of opposite sexes would be the new invention to delight in the ordinary course.

United Grain Growers To Continue Operations In Western Provinces

A resolution definitely instructing the board of directors of the United Grain Growers Ltd. to maintain the company's livestock business in the western provinces was adopted by delegates at the annual meeting at Winnipeg.

The resolution was passed after a five hour discussion during which a directors' report was presented recommending the closing of the company's Alberta business. Alberta delegates strongly opposed the report. The adopted resolution reads: "We instruct the directors to continue the operations of United Livestock Growers' Ltd., on the markets of St. Boniface, Man., Calgary and Edmonton, and also at Moose Jaw if they consider it advisable to do so at that point."

The United Growers, Ltd., is the organization through which the cattle business of the U.G.G. is operated.

To Helmi it was all a miracle. The lubrication, which to her was a definite personality, a real, living spirit, terrible in its workings, had given Jack to her. Straight and quick and sure it had come and sunk him into her arms. Maybe sometimes thinking did bad things for people. It couldn't always be angry. Helmi felt the satisfaction of something wonderful and vast, yet kindly, which swept her heart when she stood up to sing with the girls at the party in the church basement. She knew that tonight was her trial. God had spoken again in the lightning. Helmi was deeply awed, but obliviously happy. The lightning took her friend.

On the second morning Jack Doran wakened. Helmi was beside him in a moment.

"Tell me, Helmi," he said, "what happened? I remember the storm, and you coming running and calling to me. The lightning ran blue over my face. Then what?"

A great shyness seized Helmi, but she told him as well as she could.

"I am all right now, Helmi, am I not?" he asked doubtfully.

She nodded.

After a long pause Jack seemed suddenly to realize what she had done. "You're a good Samit," he said, "how did you happen to come out through the storm?"

She told him all about Peter Smart and her fears for him. "I knew how you felt," she said, "about wanting to work, even if it was Sunday. It is good to build a house any day, but I was afraid God might misunderstand and be mad at you, and so I ran out to get you."

"You're a good Finn-girl," Jack said drowsily. "Will you let me get up now?"

Helmi's eyes were very dreamy and sober when she ran downstairs and sent one of the men upstairs to help Jack to get dressed. The other men in the bunkhouse discussed the matter after she had gone, old Sim, the night watchman, leading.

"I wouldn't wonder if Helmi, for all her haughty ways, would fall in love with young Jack. A woman loves to take care of a man, and, after all, most matches are made by an old conspirator called "Proximity." Any girl, any man—put them together—Whiff!"

Old Sim made a sound which sounded more like the blowing out of a match than making of one.

CHAPTER XIV

As the summer advanced through the hot days of July, redolent with sweet grass and wild roses, to the harvest haze of August, through which the sun shone with a golden glow of amber sadness, the flowers began to show a bolder color. The timid blues, lavender and pinks of the small blossoms of early summer were replaced by the showy purples, deep blues and gold of the larger flowers. Plump and decked: flaxgrass gallardia in gold and brown; asters in purple and cloudblood; wild sage in heavy purple, and colorous; fringed gentian in deeply blue as a mountain lake in a thunderstorm; and further up the mountain's color, the flowers thinned, most brilliant, riotous and unsion of them all.

The mountains grew more wonderful and alluring to Helmi every day. Her their beauty changed with the hour. The hard blue sky behind them in the early morning made their lofty and tops stand out sharp like the blade of a knife, with a cruel, cutting brilliance that made her afraid to look at them; at noon, when the sun stood above them and wandering clouds trailed gray shadows over their slopes, they seemed to be more friendly and serene; but best of all she liked them when they twisted gray and violet mists around their heads, like dainty bonnets with a gloss, twisting and draping and never satisfied. From the kitchen window she could watch every change in the two great peaks, and when her work was done she often sat there wrapt in pleasant thoughts that could be expressed even in her own language. The thunder-storms that raged upon the mountains, when black clouds spit out fire and thunder about the valley, were her delight, and seemed to sweep her soul with deep emotion.

One day Mrs. McMann found Helmi crying as she watched the raging skies, and scolded her for being such a coward.

One day Mrs. McMann found Helmi in Finnish, shaking off a hand which Mrs. McMann had really intended to be kindly; "I have a good time—I cry happy cry—Blitz is my friend—he knows me!"

Mrs. McMann decided that there is a queer strank in all foreigners, no matter how nearly like human beings they may appear. "Cry all you want to, Helmi," she said, "but that's no way for you to speak back to me," Helmi apologized.

The hottest days brought on the breeze the smell of ripening grain from the plains, and many a shiver had a sudden chill of the gold cold like back East, and every night he would go back to it as soon as he could. "The isn't livin' at all—there's no sunshine or harvest here—nothin' but yellow black coal out of a bank, pilin' it in a car, and then when that one is full gettin' at another one—all in a black hole—and the sun shinin' and birds singin' back home. Gosh! I sure am fed up!"

Helmi's days glided by on butterfly wings. She was so happy. It did not seem that winter could come, or any other unpleasant experience. She had grown more and more proficient in her work at the boarding house until now Mrs. McMann left almost everything to her. This had its drawbacks, too, for Mrs. McMann loved the centre of the stage. She loved to feel the world could not go on without her, and to have to admit that a young Finnish girl, only eighteen years old now, could come into her establishment and in six months be informed of every detail, was not an easy thing to do. She explained to the boarders how carefully she had taught Helmi all she knew, and often sounded the pessimistic note, "and I suppose now, when I've spent hours and hours on her, she'll step off and get married."

"With Jack Doran, then," said one of the men, at which Bill Larsen's face darkened.

"Oh, Jack Doran" said Mrs. McMann scornfully; "Jack Doran will look a little slighter than a foreign girl and a waitress at that. His people are prominent citizens in the East, and although Jack is a wild young chap and likes his fun, he wouldn't go to the length of marrying so far out of his station. I know Jack pretty well, and I'm not afraid."

"Well, you know," said the man who had spoken first, "he wouldn't go so far wrong if he married Helmi. If you ask me, she's as good as he is."

This conversation took place on a Sunday afternoon in September. Jack and Helmi had gone for a drive to the English River, where, beside the hills, they had cooked their lunch on a fire of sticks. It was a dreamy day in the hesitant Autumn, when the foliage was beginning to show like gold brocade against the darker green of the mountains.

Helmi had brought her English reader, and put it in his hand as soon as the meal was over. "Read it, Jack," she said, "this is the place."

"By Nebo's lonely mountain,
On this side Jordan's wave,
In a vale in the land of Moab
There lies a lonely grave."

Jack read the poem through. "Do you understand it?" he asked.

Helmi shook her head. "Not all—some—but I love it. One does not have to understand. It gives me such a happiness here," touching her heart, "that I want to cry. I know it is about a good man. He died—God buried him quiet. Maybe it was over in that mountain—that would be good place. Read it again, Jack, please; I will watch close. Maybe I will see angels going into that cave."

Jack laughed "Helmi, you're a queer stick," he said. But he too, found himself lifting his eyes to the mountains, for never before in him had the solemn and moving measures throbbed with such majesty and power; and when it was done, and Helmi's eyes, shining with a hidden fire, looked into his, it seemed to him that the soundless feet of angels were passing by.

Helmi sat with her back against a tree, her shining hair catching the sunshine like the golden trees around her. Her eyes were fixed on the distant hills in deep adoration. To Jack she seemed like some beautiful spirit of the wood.

Vast Collection Of Gifts Of Remembrance

Have Been Placed Within Tomb Of Unknown Warrior

The tomb of the Unknown Warrior in Westminster Abbey was opened recently. The fact, which has become known to many persons has occasioned no considerable surprise and some anxiety.

Exactly why the tomb was opened can now be explained.

This important step was taken by the Abbey authorities to enable them to place inside the tomb the vast collection of tokens of remembrance, some of them of great intrinsic value, placed upon it by the relatives of the fallen.

It was not until some time had elapsed after the funeral consecration of the tomb that the problem of dealing with these spontaneous gifts became acute.

Every day the officials saw the pile of gold and silver trinkets, medals, crucifixes, rings and other articles, growing larger and larger.

For a time, the tokens were lodged with the dean's verger, but it soon became obvious that a permanent home would have to be found for them.

Accordingly, it was decided to place in the tomb with the remains of the Unknown in whose honor they had been deposited.

The actual task of opening the tomb was conducted with the utmost secrecy. In the presence of a few responsible officials a small cavity was made, into which the pathetic collection of relics was gently and lovingly placed.

Predicts Rapid Growth Of Canada

Population Of 22,000,000 People By 1960, Believes Premier Gardiner Of Saskatchewan

A prediction that Canada would have a population of 22,000,000 people by 1950 and the declaration that the Dominion does not want parasites became "if there is any country in the world where men cannot live without working it is Canada," featured an address delivered by Premier James C. Gardiner of Saskatchewan at a Canadian Club banquet held in Brandon recently.

Mr. Gardiner graphically outlined the future development of Canada, and stressed the urgent necessity of increasing the country's population. He stated that a great many of the men who had made a success of farming in Saskatchewan had come to Canada early in life without farming experience.

Sounds Note Of Warning

Dangerous Doctrines Appearing In the West, Says University Professor

A note of warning that Western Canada was coming under the sway of an intellectual aristocracy in the same way that Russia had been enthralled by a political and social aristocracy was voiced by Dr. W. M. Swanson, professor of economics at the University of Saskatchewan, addressing the Saskatoon Eclectic Club on "Dangerous doctrines up-pearing in the West," he said, "A new tyranny is springing up. Our political and social life is in danger of being directed by an intellectual aristocracy which seeks to shape our politics and direct our affairs. Such an aristocracy it was, that raised Imperial Russia—an aristocracy that flourished on the poverty and suffering of the common people."

A Good Definition

The geography lesson was almost over, and the teacher decided it was about time she asked a few questions.

"What are the headens of different Red Indian tribes called?" was her first query.

"Chiefs," answered a small boy.

"Correct," smiled the teacher. "Now, can anybody tell me what the wives of these men are called?"

For a minute or two there was complete silence. Every pupil in the class was thinking hard. Finally, the same small boy stopped into the breach.

"Miss Chiefs," he cried proudly.

Little Helps For This Week

"Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness; for they shall be filled."—Matthew v. 6.

The body is not much. T were best Take up the soul and leave the rest. It seems to me the man who leaves The soul to perish is as one Who...gathers up the empty sleeves When all the golden grain is done.
—Joaquin Miller.

The more the soul withdraws, so to speak, from the body, and retires with in itself, the more it rises above itself, and the closer it comes to God, the more the life it lives on this earth resembles that which it will enjoy in heaven, and the larger forctaste it has of the first fruits of that blessed harvest. Aspire, therefore, to holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord.—Archbishop Leighton.

MADE HER BABY PLUMP AND WELL

Nothing makes a mother more grateful than a benefit conferred upon her child. Mothers everywhere who have used Baby's Own Tablets for their children speak in enthusiastic terms of them. For instance, Mrs. Norberta Levede, Three Rivers, Que., writes — "Baby's Own Tablets are a wonderful medicine for little ones. They never fail to regulate the baby's stomach and bowels, and make him plump and well. I always keep a box of the Tablets in the house and would advise all mothers to do likewise." Most of the ordinary ailments of childhood arise in the stomach and bowels, and can be quickly banished by Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets relieve constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers, expel worms, allay teething pains and promote healthful sleep. They are guaranteed to be free from injurious drugs and are safe even for the youngest and most delicate child. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

If Adam were living he would be 5931 years old, according to computations of the late John P. Brady of Hillsboro, who found the first man was born in the Garden of Eden in Octo ber 23, 4,004 B.C.

An excellent protection against worms can be got in Miller's Worm Powders. They render the stomach and intestines untenable to them. They heal the parts that have become inflamed by the attacks of the parasites and serve to restore the strength of the child that has been undermined by the draughts that the worms have made upon it, and their operation is altogether healthgiving.

CATHOLIC CHURCH LADIES HOLD SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR

The bazaar held by the Altar Society of the Catholic church at the Memorial hall last Thursday was very successful. There was a large attendance at the bazaar in the afternoon and articles were sold rapidly. Tea was served during the afternoon and the tables were well patronized. A whist drive was held in the evening and seventeen tables were required for the players. Prizewinners were: ladies' first, Mrs. Jos Normandeau, consolation, Mrs. Hessi; gents' first, Mr. Paquette, consolation, Dr. Henry.

There were two contests held during the evening, the prize for one being a boudoir set donated by Mrs. Horan and won by Mrs. vouillard and the other a radio set donated by Mr. W. A. Dubec and won by Mrs. Grubb.

NEW GARAGE OPENED

A new garage has been opened on Main street by the LePage brothers in the building formerly occupied by Monston brothers. The garage will be under the supervision of Joe LePage, an old timer and well known in the district. He, with James Graham, opened the first garage in Fort Saskatchewan in 1913. Later he returned to Detroit, where he held several responsible positions in the mechanical field. He came back to the West last year and opened up a garage in North Edmonton, but, believing he had a better opportunity in Fort Saskatchewan he closed up that place and bought the building he is now occupying. With his many years of experience in the automobile business, chiefly the mechanical end, Joe LePage is well qualified to give satisfaction.

Perhaps you can find it at L. D. yee 1Hand's.

CURLING CLUB DANCE ENJOYABLE FUNCTION

Though the attendance at the curling club dance held last Friday was not very large, the fact did not affect the enjoyment of those present. Rather, from a selfish point of view, it may have added to the comfort and pleasure of the dancers, they having for once lots of silverroom. This, however, is small comfort for those responsible for the finances of the curling club, though it is a consolation to know that no loss was sustained.

The local orchestra continues to show improvement and is publicly commended by one of the officials, his few appreciative words receiving applause from the dancers.

Lunch was served in the buffet room and was all that could be desired.

Canada, the Land of Opportunity

As the year of Canada's Diamond Jubilee draws to a close it is gratifying also inspiring to recall the widespread interest which everything pertaining to Canada now arouses throughout the world, and more particularly in the Empire and the United States. Never before in its history did the Dominion receive more, or better publicity than it has enjoyed this year. People in other lands are beginning to get a true conception of Canada and its great possibilities and possibly nothing is better calculated to spread such knowledge in industrially British circles than the decision of The Financial Times, London, issue the largest circulation of any financial journal in the world, to issue an extraordinary issue supplementary on Canada during the next three years.

In an editorial introduction to the first of these, entitled "Canada Financial Times heralding the Wilfrid Laurier's statement: "The nineteenth century was the century of the United States, the twentieth century will be Canada's century," declares that the Wilfrid was no mere visionary, as events have proved. It adds: "Unquestionably the nineteenth century was the century of the United States, for America's growth in population, enterprise and wealth were without prior parallel in the world's history. But the future of Canada's progress in the twentieth century will have been paralleled by any commercial period of America's nineteenth century expansion. In the past two decades Canada's expansion in all material respects has been prodigious."

In the twenty years' period (1896-1916), there was a 58 per cent. increase in the population, which is now estimated at 8,200,000. At that rate of progression the end of this century should see Canada with a population at least equal to that of Great Britain now.

The value of Canada's field crops saw nearly a fourfold increase in the twenty years' period, to $1,321,241,100. More land was taken up Dominion in that period than in the three centuries preceding, yet scarcely half of the available farm land in the Dominion is yet occupied.

There was more than a fourfold increase in the total trade of the Dominion to $2,356,479,000. The United States had a population of 75,000,000 before its foreign trade was equal to that of Canada today.

The value of Canada's manufactures was about trebled to $2,343,000,000. So was the total capital invested in manufacturing industries, which, at the end of 1916, amounted to $3,371,000,000.

The value of the mineral output showed a 250 per cent. increase, and the ratio of value per capita of population rose from $12.51 to $25.69.

Thanks largely to the rapid development of the pulp and paper industry there was more than a sevenfold increase in the export of forest products.

There was a 56 per cent. increase in the marketed yield of the fisheries.

The value of furs exported showed a tenfold increase to $17,917,000. When the limit of extermination has been reached there will remain a considerable of fur-bearing animals of superior value for profitable exploitation by fur traders

Steam railway mileage rose from 21,853 to 39,322; no other country in the world equaled Canada in railway mileage, proportionate to population.

Electric railway mileage rose from 514 to 2,500. There are now 63 electric railway companies in operation, with an aggregate capitalization of $222,000,000.

The number of motor vehicles registered in Canada twenty years ago was under 2,000. In 1916 the number was over 160,000.

Nine times as much electrical energy was developed in 1916 as in 1906 — the harnessed horse power then being 500,000, against 4,542,000 now. Canada is second only to the United States in turbine hp. installation, and second only to Norway in such installation per head of population. On a per capita basis the Dominion has nearly five times the installation of the United States. Yet the harnessed horse power of Canada is only about a tenth of her available resources. She has four times as many telephones per capita as Great Britain.

There were fewer than 1,000 bank branches in Canada in 1906; in 1916 there were 3,779. The assets of the Canadian chartered banks in 1906 were under $500,000,000; in 1916 they were $1,356,619,200.

The total life assurance in force with Dominion licensed companies in 1906 was under $700,000,000; in 1916 the aggregate was $4,000,965,200. The fire insurance aggregate rose from $1,500,000,000 to $3,945,437,100.

With the collapse of Russia, Canada has become the second largest wheat producing and exporting country—second only for the time being to America. The Prairie Provinces alone produce wheat and other crops substantially exceeding the value of the world's total annual output of gold.

Canadians may well find encouragement and inspiration in such a record of progress to go forward with confidence to the achievement of still greater things for their Dominion in the next twenty year period.

Silver in Canada

British Columbia is the Largest Producer Of the Province Metal

Following the discovery of rich silver deposits near Cobalt, Ontario, in 1903 the production of silver in Canada rose rapidly hereabouts and since that date up to 1915 Ontario was the leading producer. Recent discoveries in the British Columbia restored that province in 1916 to the position of leading producer of silver in Canada, when the production exceeded that of Ontario by more than one million ounces. Canada's total production of silver in 1916 was 22,371,324 fine ounces.

Being Practical Work

Services Of Red Cross Society At Forts Of Entry in Lincolnshire

One of the inspiring bits of work carried on by the Canadian Red Cross is known in all its fullness only in those living in the vicinity of the International Boundary. At the numerous points—three centres, twenty towns and children are welcomed, warmed, fed and cheered after their long cramped journey and sent on their way rejoicing to their new homes. Sometimes the newcomer has come to most a prospective husband, and to go with him to a home on the prairie. Lacking the appropriate bridal outfit, she finds herself embarrassed and wealth were without prior parallel in the world's history. But the future of Canada's progress in the twentieth century were formed by any commercial period of America's nineteenth century expansion. In the past two decades Canada's expansion in all material respects has been prodigious."

In the twenty years' period (1896-1916), there was a 58 per cent. increase in the population, which is now estimated at 8,200,000. At that rate of progression the end of this century should see Canada with a population at least equal to that of Great Britain now.

The value of Canada's field crops saw nearly a fourfold increase in the twenty years' period, to $1,321,241,100. More land was taken up Dominion in that period than in the three centuries preceding, yet scarcely half of the available farm land in the Dominion is yet occupied.

There was more than a fourfold increase in the total trade of the Dominion to $2,356,479,000. The United States had a population of 75,000,000 before its foreign trade was equal to that of Canada today.

The value of Canada's manufactures was about trebled to $2,343,000,000. So was the total capital invested in manufacturing industries, which, at the end of 1916, amounted to $3,371,000,000.

The value of the mineral output showed a 250 per cent. increase, and the ratio of value per capita of population rose from $12.51 to $25.69.

Thanks largely to the rapid development of the pulp and paper industry there was more than a sevenfold increase in the export of forest products.

There was a 56 per cent. increase in the marketed yield of the fisheries.

The value of furs exported showed a tenfold increase to $17,917,000. When the limit of extermination has been reached there will remain a considerable of fur-bearing animals of superior value for profitable exploitation by fur traders

Electric railway mileage rose from 514 to 2,500. There are now 63 electric railway companies in operation, with an aggregate capitalization of $222,000,000.

The number of motor vehicles registered in Canada twenty years ago was under 2,000. In 1916 the number was over 160,000.

Nine times as much electrical energy was developed in 1916 as in 1906 — the harnessed horse power then being 500,000, against 4,542,000 now. Canada is second only to the United States in turbine hp. installation, and second only to Norway in such installation per head of population. On a per capita basis the Dominion has nearly five times the installation of the United States. Yet the harnessed horse power of Canada is only about a tenth of her available resources. She has four times as many telephones per capita as Great Britain.

There were fewer than 1,000 bank branches in Canada in 1906; in 1916 there were 3,779. The assets of the Canadian chartered banks in 1906 were under $500,000,000; in 1916 they were $1,356,619,200.

With the collapse of Russia, Canada has become the second largest wheat producing and exporting country—second only for the time being to America. The Prairie Provinces alone produce wheat and other crops substantially exceeding the value of the world's total annual output of gold.

Canadians may well find encouragement and inspiration in such a record of progress to go forward with confidence to the achievement of still greater things for their Dominion in the next twenty year period.

Bank of Montreal Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal brought to a close a year in which the Bank had enjoyed almost record growth

Sir Vincent Meredith, President, and Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, General Manager in their addresses stressing the rapid strides that Canada was making and the world's waiting, note against possible set-up relations

Sir Vincent Meredith in his address said in part

Under conditions in Canada during the year have been active, and while there is still keen competition in all lines, balance sheets generally show satisfactory profits. Manitoba exhibits more than ordinary activity. Bank clearings, bank deposits, railway gross earnings, imports, note circulation and lower net casualty mortality all reveal this wonderful and arresting.

One of the most appreciated services in the north will be to cash wages when also arrives. Every camp is a new town, and in the months from February to October, at least 12,000 camps were given at the three ports.

Conspicuous among the support val many new industries, P. J. McManus, Convener of the Red Cross Surgeries Committee of Halifax, who is at present in the north, and in the months of the year 161,2 cars were sent, having a total weight of 172,000, or practically the same as in the like period of last year, though the number of cars was 2,000 less.

I see no reason why an abatement of confidence in the continuance of these prosperous conditions need be apprehended

Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, in addressing the shareholders, said in part

In the fundamental respects, earning power and liquid strength of resources, the position remains highly satisfactory. Never have we been better prepared to care for all the normal needs of the public and to meet any unusual demands.

I have referred in the past years to the various agencies in the country's commercial activities. The Canadian has experienced a period of unbridled speculation in real estate. To-day undisputed the high prices of land, especially near the enhanced speculation, is not to be possible or a tribute to a period of good harvests and of the lands of prosperity. Until the spring days Canada was fear known abroad a commercial and financial depression and capital could not be invested here chiefly in connection and industrial loans and in rather bold terms to provide transportation for an unusually active industrial year. To-day money of the largest investment capital cannot in our country be found in the world. It is generally recognized that Canada has the natural resources and the business ability and the energy to develop them, and plays an important part in the work of many Government agencies.

Urges Teaching Of Astronomy

Goes Hand in Hand With Industry Says Dr. Aml

In an illustrated lecture by Dr. A. H. Aml, President of the Ottawa Centre Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, recently delivered, Dr. Aml pointed to the need of the younger generation acquiring a knowledge of astronomy.

Dr. Aml lectured on the total eclipse of the sun as witnessed by him in England last June. He asserted a testimony went hand in hand with industry, and for that reason young Canadians should have a sound foundation for their work in later years.

Dr. Aml said some inducement should be extended to Canadian scientists so that they would get need to seek more remunerative positions abroad.

Make Aerial Survey Of The Immense Grazing Lands Known As Wood Buffalo Park

Great expanses of grazing lands, numerous hitherto unknown lakes, and stretches of heavily wooded country were revealing by aerial photographic plates during the past month from planes engaged in a survey of the southern part of Wood Buffalo Park near Fort Smith, Northwest Territories. The information made available by this aerial survey will prove of importance in studying the possibility of this great range to provide feed, water, and shelter for the future development of the buffalo herds which now roam an expanse of 17,300 square miles. Owing to unfavorable flying conditions the entire reserve could not be photographed, and only the southern portion was surveyed this year.

The Wood Buffalo Park, which lies on each side of the boundary line between the Northwest Territories and the province of Alberta is administered by the Department of the Interior, Ottawa Branch of the Department of the Interior, and at the request of this branch, the aerial work was undertaken by the Topographical Survey of the same Department in co-operation with the Royal Canadian Air Service of the Department of National Defence. The greatest dimensions of the park are approximately 175 miles north and south and 150 miles east and west.

The nearest post is Fort Smith, N.W.T., on the south boundary of the provincial boundary. In the area occupied by the park the last remaining herds of wild roaming buffalo were discovered many years ago and these are now estimated to have increased to about 1,500 animals. The Indians in the area have been brought the overflow from the herd in Buffalo National Park, Wainwright—nearly 6,000 more—on land to the north, making a total allowance for natural increase, is now in the vicinity of 9,000.

The aerial survey of Wood Buffalo Park when completed, will be one of the largest yet undertaken and is the farthest north survey of its kind within this continent. The season's operations were carried out with two Vickers machines, each carrying a pilot, a photographer, and a surveyor navigator. The home base of the planes was at Lesser Slave Lake, Saskatchewan, and they were flown to the local base at Chipewyan at the West end of Lake Athabaska, a distance according to the water route followed of nearly 500 miles. The West end of Lake Athabaska forms part of the Eastern boundary of the park as that Chipewyan is situated virtually on the edge of the park.

Previous to the survey the great stretch of country lying between the Peace River and Great Slave Lake, West of Slave Lake, while containing the largest portion of the park, had on a large extent remained terra incognita. The was due to the fact that it is almost lacking in navigable rivers and much of it is timbered plain of little relief in which the ground observer can seldom get an extensive view. Only a few old Indian trails give access to the interior.

From an aeroplane at a height of 5,000 feet the country spreads out to a horizon sixty miles away with clear detail. The cameras have accurately recorded all the major areas. The fish and winter range of the buffalo stands on clearly; the heavily wooded rolling country and the many and numerous flooding grounds are also recognizable on the photographic prints. A third class of country in which the existing areas include in the lowlands is also shown. This country is nearly flat with low islands and on it drainage is poor and muskeg numerous. Although such land does not furnish much pasturage it serves the useful purpose of conserving the water supply and forming a natural fireguard.

The examination of the photographs of the southern half of the park covered by the work of the past season reveals a great many previously unknown lakes, rendering any approximation of water shortage. Valuable data on the situation as to pasturage and road location may also be obtained to assist in the colonization and development of the park.

Photographs taken at 5,000 feet are on too small a scale to show animals but the officers in charge of the ground control operations reported that they saw a number of buffalo which were in good condition and evidently thriving. This confirms the reports received from the Indians and the half-breeds.

Dominion Lands Branch, which is in charge of the park, to the effect that the different herds and subsidiaries were getting along peaceably together and that all were thriving.

Romance Of Early Trading

Days When Records Were Written and Kept On Sheepskin

Romances of the early trading posts of Northern Quebec is retrieved in a thesis advanced by Mrs. Jean Peever, 87 Maitland, by the sale of a farm in chancery said to amount to nearly $300,000,000.

The story when important records were kept in the wilds by writing on dressed buckskin are recalled by her statement that James Hudson, agent to have died intestate, actually left a bachelor will bequeathing his estate to his family.

This will written on a strip of buck skin 24 inches broad, was in the possession of Samuel Frost at Fort Coulonge, Que., 60 years ago, according to a statement by William Osborne Peever, 90, Vancouver, who declares he read it.

Wood Buffalo Are Thriving

The wood buffalo in their natural habitat in Wood Buffalo Park near Fort Smith, N.W.T., continues to thrive and multiply. The buffalo in the southern range within Alberta are intermixing with those of the plains shipped during successive seasons since 1906 from Wainwright Park, Alberta.

There are 1,210 deer mile in Canada with an annual output of over 17,770,000 barrels, of which about 10,500,000 barrels are exported.

SUNFLOWER SILAGE

Has Steadily Increased In Favor In the Prairie Provinces

There is little doubt now, that cost replacement for good roughage crop for districts in which seasonal conditions do not meet requirement for good results with corn. In regions where the summer is cool the yields of corn is generally low, and where long spring and early autumn frosts are frequent the crop suffers considerable damage. In such districts sunflowers are generally a dependable crop. They also stand drought better than do corn or other silage crops. During recent years the never-ever sown in rainbrown as a silage crop has steadily increased, particularly in the prairie provinces. Considerable data on the palatability and nutritive values of this valuable crop has been collected by the Chemistry Division of the Dominion Experimental Farms and detailed in a bulletin on "Silage," distributed by the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

In regions where corn gives a satisfactory crop every year there is nothing to be gained by changing to sunflowers but in the colder climates of Western Canada and in the north and south and 150 miles east and west.

The nearest post is Fort Smith, N.W.T., on the south boundary of the provincial boundary. In the area occupied by the park the last remaining herds of wild roaming buffalo were discovered many years ago and these are now estimated to have increased to about 1,500 animals. History Clearly Shows How Much America Is Indebted To England For High Ideals

Major Thompson of Chicago suffers from acute Anglophobia. He threw red ante-de-le of figures with an alleged British bias has prevented laughter on both sides of the Atlantic. Major's Anglophobia must be unpopular in Chicago, or William Hale Thompson would not be its mayor. But however much he and his sympathizers may hate England, the irony is fast in that the United States owes its Independence, its Constitution, its courts, its literature and language to England. Long before the Revolution the British Crown granted charters to colonists in America so wise, and just, that they became, with little change, the constitutions of Connecticut and other commonwealths. All the leaders of the republic were of English stock —Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Hamilton, Franklin and Marshall. Of the same, surely there was Benjamin Thompson, afterward Count Rumford, a physicist of supreme rank and fame.

John Harvard, an Englishman, founded the college which is today the acknowledged leader of American universities. Its most distinguished president was Charles William Eliot, whose forty years of service came to a close in 1909. Is he wrote among the reasons he was an Englishman is bold and fastens, in poise and dignity, as of Englishmen who have been governing in Northern Ontario, where ladder cars does not succeed. Sunflower silage is therefore generally preferred distinctly superior to oats peas and vetch silage for wintering both beef cattle and lambs.

It should be remembered that where there is no silo on a farm sunflowers cannot be grown to replace corn, as the latter crop may be fed as dry fodder a use to which sunflowers cannot be put.

Many an author's heartiest literary work consists of an effort to sell what he has written.

Say It With Canadian Apples

This is the slogan of the Canadian Pacific Fruit Express Company for Christmas and it has a very true and at the same time a patriotic appeal to Canadians to advertise the Dominion in the countries overseas. It will be agreed that if there is hardly a better way to do it than by means of this distinctive Canadian fruit whose look, scent, sight and taste entirely so nearly how of the five senses of the average man, woman and child. You can have what you want pen prefer though many people would have their wants fully met with a standard box of Macintosh Reds such as is shown in above illustration. Wherever you live, what you have to do is easy. Order from your grocer a standard box of apples weighing 50 lbs. and containing about 150 apples. Then get in touch with the Canadian Pacific Express Company, tell them you want to send it to some land, France, or where you will, and they will do the rest. The fruit is guaranteed by Canadian Government certificate and it is carried overseas in refrigeration storage by Canadian Pacific steamships. As to the cost, well to Great Britain it will cost you a good deal less than the apples themselves. And you will have sent fresh and rosy evidence of the finest attractive possess it can be the luck of man to receive at Christmas or New Year.

First Broadcast Was Made On December 24, 1906

Radio almost reaches its per-ond chapter of 20 years ago, Reginald A. Fessenden, inventor, recalled in Decem-ber of the federal in the conclusion of the charges that the General Electric Company, the American Telephone and Telegraph company and other companies had combined to con-trol patents to enable a monopoly.

He told the first radio broadcast was made December 24, 1906, when he sent over Brant rock a talk and violin solo. "I was put on the air at Marconi's Brant rock wireless station in Massachusetts. Then I broadcast a Christmas message to ships at sea.

Merry Christmas

'TIS night's set, the belfry's busy,
The candles lit, the carols sung,
The anchorage lifted, the bells are rung
And in the hearts of old and young
Are greetings glad for Christmas.

"NO ROOM"

"No room in the inn" for Christ, our Lord,
"No room" is what those people heard.
"No room" is still the favorite word.
"No room in the inn" and room to board.
Then low in the manger the Christ-child lay,
For there was no room in the inn that day.
And that great city went on its way.
Yet there was no room, no place to stay.
"No room" for Christ in the hearts of men.
We hear to-day as they heard it then.
A helping hand to the poor we lend.
But for Christ, no room, in the hearts of men.
We connect take the Christ-child in.
So we shun the good and hew to sin.
And thus we fail, whom we should win.
All because there's "No room in the inn."

CHRISTMAS

Comes Christmas Day. What it means to you depends upon your environment. Possibly it depends upon your disposition. In the main it depends upon your capacity to appreciate of everything else depends upon your capacities. In the main it depends upon your capacity to be thankful for so much. If he seems to read but must read words, his capacity to be thankful is limited. As he grows in knowledge, his capacity of learning is increased and thereby his field of enjoyment is increased. A man is not blessed, as it sometimes is supposed of us being. Greater happiness comes to those whose troubles have been many and whose burdens have been of various all things in life. So what Christmas Day means to all of us depends upon our capacity for knowledge.

There is a Christmas time in your home. Around it are those memories through some of the happiest moments they ever will know. To you are not sorry to be reminded by the coming of this merry season that time for the first time? To that little one whose face is so expectant of all the good things in store for it? To those years it will become busy and you are counting but it never will have such a power of enjoyment. Then all of a sudden, it will become. Nothing again when the child of today will become a memory. To you, who were children yourselves, are children of today, we know the feelings of all those mentioned several times, from the youngest to the largest. You have known the experiences of all of them. And how merry you are this Christmas! You know how to make all the toys run better than any of the others! You are merry for yourself, for everybody! You do not forget it but it carries its emptied influence.

You know there is a Santa Claus and all of the legends. You have known the experiences of all of them. And how merry you are this Christmas! You know how to make all the toys run better than any of the others! You are merry for yourself, for everybody! You do not forget it but it carries its emptied influence.

You know there is a Santa Claus and all of the legends. You have known the experiences of all of them. And how merry you are this Christmas! POST DECKET TEAM WON FIRST GAME OF SEASON

In a fast game the local hockey boys showed their superiority to the R.C.H.P. team of Edmonton Tuesday night. The final score was 7—4, the Fort boys getting the advantage as the game progressed. The score was three all in the first period, but the Mounties only scored once in the second and failed to find the net again. The Fort got two in the second and two in the third. These scoring duties for the locals were Fred Par-

Young London Financier Restores Fortune After Big Failure

Three years ago most of his friends regarded Mr. Clarence Harry a well-known financier of London, as a ruined man. Young as he was they believed his career was. If he ever at least he'd up for a long period. A great company with which he was associated was wrecked up and Mr. Harry shared the debts up for a long period. A great company with which he was associated was wrecked up and Mr. Harry shared three-quarters of a million pounds.

But Mr. Harry set to work quietly and has built up a new fortune. He has just started a big new London coal and company to take up the many small independent companies now in operation. He has taken a share in several of the big drapery companies now in operation. He has taken a share in several of the big drapery amalgamations recently. One of his most spectacular enterprises was a big pire combine which he formed in Dundee.

After taking a short time I noticed a wonderful clearing of my complexion has improved, also headaches, indigestion and biliousness never bothered me any more."

In the meantime the down-stairs meal was being spoiled, but with intense curiosity Jack noticed.

Every second Sunday Helmi had the afternoon to herself, and, without any arrangement, she and Jack took the trail to the Falls. Not a word of love had passed between them. They were just two good comrades. Sometimes Helmi told him about Finland, sometimes he read to her; sometimes they sat still for the day always held for Helmi a pleasure so keen, so placidly, it made her tremble.

The acutest part of Helmi's happiness revolved around the little house which Jack was building. To please her he promised he would not work any more on Sunday. She loved to watch him from her bedroom window as he planed and sawed and hammered.

He must be a good, that Jack Burns, to fit the boards so nice and make it all so well. He can't be bad like Sam Lill said, or why should he want to build? In his spare time he works, while other men play cards and smoke and go to bar and drink. I think he must be good man, that Jack; I think I like that Jack Burns a pretty good bet!"

Jack's shirt ended at four in the afternoon, and after he had changed his clothes he usually went to work at his house. Helmi often went over with him and helped to hold the boards while he planed them. Their conversation was limited. One day when he was putting in a window frame he said: "I don't mind working my eight hours while I have something nice to look forward to. I love making things, though perhaps if I had to do it, it would seem like work, too. Do you ever get fed up on dishwashing?"

"Gosh, yes," said Helmi, "but I try always to make them shine, and nothing is too bad if it can be well done."

There was a long silence then, broken only by the sound of planing.

"I don't know what I'd do when I get done with this," he said.

Helmi looked up in surprise.

"I believe I'll build another one down by the river. There's a big tree there on a high bank. I would like a place right beside it, and then I could hear the river all the time. I would like that."

"No chance," said Helmi quickly; river is dangerous."

"Dangerous, Hi-lmi," he corrected. "I can't say it—it's a long word for her.

Helmi wrote the word carefully in her book. "Yah, it's dangerous," she repeated. "This house is near the river—near enough—too near, may be."

"Why," he asked, carefully sighting the edge of a board.

Kids might talk in," she said.

Jack gave an exclamation of surprise and looked at her hastily. Helmi's face was grave and unabashed. And all that, she wouldn't tell him a thing, whose business in life was the rearing and protection of their young had spoken through her.

"Boo here, Helmi," Jack said naughtily, "don't you say that to anyone. Why, people don't talk that way, that's all."

"All right," Helmi said simply. "I won't say it again, but it's true." Then she went on writing—"dangerous, gangerous, dangerous."

Jack went to the city for a week to get Christmas, and when he returned Helmi could not keep her heart from beating or her eyes from glistening when he walked in carrying his valise. He wore a new overcoat of black cloth, with an otter collar. The whole room seemed to be bursting with light and happiness when he came in. After supper he stayed behind until all the men had gone to the bunkhouse, and then came over to where she was setting the tables for breakfast and handed her a purple velvet box.

"For a good Finn girl," he said.

The lid opened with a spring, revealing a seabeast of pearls on a white satin lining, and a little card with a tiny house set against a snowy hill and flanked by evergreens, with these words printed on it in gold letters: "With love and best wishes for a Happy Christmas," and, written below, "For a good Finn girl called Helmi, who came out in the storm and carries snow in out of the wet."

Helmi gave an exclamation of surprise. "O Jack," she said, "it is so nice it makes my heart pain. Is it all for me?"

"Nobody else," he laughed.

Helmi turned to him with the rapt look in her eyes she had had the day she watched the mountain-side for an ga, an adoring, worshipping look that transfigured her. She was always attractive, always striking, with her deep, dark eyes, high coloring and burnished hair; but now, with the eyes so tender, so full of devotion, she was beautiful.

Jack put his hand on Helmi's shoulder and drew her to him. "I think you should let me kiss you now, Helmi,—just once—I have never kissed you—or any other girl."

Aunt Lili's warnings were all forgotten when Jack's arms tightened around her. The river, under two feet of ice, was singing its 'dd song; the sky was still luminous with the first of summer; the clouds had risen to form a Chinese arch, faintly green

CHAPTER XV

Mrs. McMann and Bill Larsen, the bar-leader, having a common grief now, had become fellow-conspirators. They were consumed with one desire, though from widely different motives. Mr. McMann feared that the best girl she had ever had, and more than that, she resented the sincere respect and friendship the boarders had for Helmi. Here she was, a girl who simply stepped off the train without a reference or letter, and in less than a year was the most popular girl in the valley. When the Anglican Church, desiring to raise money for their insurance's salary, had put on a contest in Eagle Mines, Drumheller, and Brule, running one girl in each place, Helmi had won in a walk. And there was something funny about the way she acted. Mrs. McMann confided to her friend Mr. Larsen, for when it was all over and the minister and Helmi had to find out where she came from, how long she had been in Canada and all that, she wouldn't tell him a thing, and begged him not to write anything about her in the papers. It was queer to see Helmi afraid of anything.

Bill Larsen looked as meditative as anyone could with Bill's cast of features. "There was a Milander girl in Winnipeg about a year and a half ago who raised a lot of fuss," he said. "She was a bad scarlatina and got in jail, and all that. I remember the name, because I'd had a lot to do with Finns one way and another down at Fleet Arthur (if anyone it's a pretty common name—but Helmi wouldn't be afraid if she wanted to have a rush."

Mr. Larsen's mind reverted to the unpleasant episode which marked the beginning of his acquaintance with Helmi.

Mrs. McMann was for direct action. "I think we'd better put it up to Jack straight, and see what he's goin' to do. I don't believe for one minute he intends to marry Helmi, but she thinks he does, and if he's a feelin' for, she may kill him or herself. I know a Finn girl once who drank lye because her beau didn't come to take her to a dance. They're high tempered and quick with a gun or anything that comes to their hand."

Mr. Larsen admitted it.

"I don't suppose she's told him a bit more about herself than she tells us," Mrs. McMann continued. "You see, she never writes a letter only to Finland, and she didn't come straight from Finland here, that's sure enough. And where did she get the duty clothes she brought here? It says books cover, and no sum can put it out of her."

Mr. Larsen was unable to offer any advice "She's a steady girl, is Helmi," he said, "and I don't like to see her fooled if she wants to get married . . .

Mr. Larsen left the sentence unfinished

"She'd be foolish to marry any man," said Mrs. McMann. "Her dollie's down her twenty five dollars a month, rake or shine, and lots of time to herself, and takin' beaus all the time. Gettin' married is a queer business, Bill. No one takes warning' I didn't, and she won't. It's like the pigs that stick their noses in the hot feed and go along squealing, and an other and another feed it—on one scream. But I think it's up to us to bring Jack Doran to a show-down, just to see what happens. I never was one that could bear suspense—I like to have a thing settled one way or an other."

Bill admitted he was somethin' of an out-and-outer himself.

Early Postal Items Prove Interesting

Collection Of 100,000 Now Being Catalogued in London

Some curious relics from early days, before letters could be sent for a penny, are in a collection of 100,000 items belonging to the Union of Postoffice Workers, which is being catalogued at London and for which a group of Americans offered £200,000.

The collection, which is the life work of A. V. Morsten, retired post man, won't go to America, but push on it, a certain breakdown is almost sure to result sooner or later. In nearly all cases this condition, which doctors usually describe as general debility is due to poor blood blood that is deficient in iron and nourishment. When the thing is this and weak your whole system suffers. You lose appetite, have no energy, your nerves trouble you and you feel restless.

What you need is help to build up your blood and you should begin at once to make your blood rich and red by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You will soon notice the difference in your health by a better appetite and increased vigor. The reason is that the new blood created by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills stimulates all the organs of the body to healthy activity, and so the system gains nourishment and strength. UNITED CHURCH SUNDAY SCHOOL CHRISTMAS CONCERT

The Sunday School of the First United church held their annual Christmas concert in the church on Friday, December 23. The church was filled to the doors by an audience whose enjoyment of the program was very evident. A large Christmas tree, beautifully ornamented, filled one corner and gave the proper atmosphere. The program was simple to compared with that of last year, being given entirely by members of the school. Musical numbers predominated and were invariably excellent. A numbers of drills also added to the beauty and enjoyment of the occasion, one of these given by colored boys and girls being an especial favorite with the children (and some others). A number of recitations were sprinkled through the program and added to the variety.

Near the end of the concert Santa Claus himself was ushered on to the stage and in the jolliest kind of a way assured the girls and boys that his well known love for them had suffered no diminution. He was greeted with enthusiasm and forced to respond to an encore. The smallness of his singing voice was a surprise to many.

The entertainment was crowned by a distribution of Christmas treats to the Sunday school pupils.

CANNING FIRM PREPARES FOR BUSY SEASON

Some 800 acres of land in the district surrounding Edmonton have been leased for the coming season by the Border Canning Co. of New Westminster, B.C. This firm will open a branch plant in Edmonton in the spring of 1928 and expects to grow a large acreage of peas, beans, spinach and other vegetables for canning purposes. They also expect to bring in shipments of tomatoes from the interior of British Columbia to be canned in the Edmonton factory.

VALUABLE SILVER FOXES IMPORTED

The growing importance of the fur farming industry in Alberta is indicated by the importation during the past week of a shipment of 87 pairs of silver foxes from ranches in the Maritime provinces. These animals which are valued at $26,000 were consigned to the National Silver Fox Club at Belleville, a newly organized firm which plans to engage in fox breeding on a large scale.

CANADIAN LEGION TURKEY TROT DRIVE

They were giving turkeys away for two hits at the Canadian Legion whist drive last Wednesday night but there was not a large crowd present to avail themselves of the opportunity. Those who were there had a real good time and the fortunate winners of the birds were: T. Charlton, Percy Karren, P. H. Bagdon (2), D. Harper, Dr. deSchmaeze (2), Mrs. Charlton, Mrs. Hunter, J. D. McLean, Mrs. O'Brien, Miss West, John Mohr.

HOCKEY

The Fort hockey team matched their skill against the Wild Cats of Edmonton on Monday afternoon and were fortunate to secure the long tally of the game. Not that they did not deserve it but the teams were so evenly matched and the goal tenders so efficient on their jobs it was not until the period the final goal was scored. Bob Karren, in goal for the Wild Cats, had, roughly speaking, twice as many shots to stop as Russ Tercier, the custodian for the Fort, and there were some stingers among them. Only one did Bob fail, and the one failure to save meant a win for the Fort.

The local boys played a spirited game against tenacious opposition. There was more combination shown than in the first game but there is room for considerable more yet. Team work will add to their efficiency and will make this promising aggregation a hard one to beat.

AGRICULTURAL SHORT COURSE AT UNIVERSITY

In order to provide the farmers of the province with an opportunity to obtain in a short time a first hand knowledge of the work being carried on along agricultural lines at the University of Alberta, arrangements have been made to hold a short course from January 24 to February 8, 1928, under the direction of the teaching and investigational staff of the College of Agriculture.

The courses designed for farmers, old and young, who would not feel justified in making the expenditure of time and money required for a regular University course but who would welcome the opportunity to become acquainted with their provincial institution and its work. It has been arranged at a season when the duties of the farm are less pressing, so that as many as possible may be able to take advantage of it and it is believed that those who attend will be able to get a real grasp of the spirit and direction of the University work in agriculture.

A program has been prepared covering as completely as possible the more important aspects of the work. Lectures and demonstrations will be given dealing with soils, field and garden crops, common insect and disease pests, livestock, common diseases of animals, farm buildings and machinery. Inspection trips have also been arranged to a number of places in Edmonton, including the packing plants, the Canadian government elevator and the provincial seed cleaning plant. The foregoing program of agricultural work will be supplemented by special lectures from other members of the University staff and from one or more members of the Provincial government on topics of special interest. Farmers interested in attending the short course are advised to communicate as soon as possible with Dean R. A. Moore, College of Agriculture, University of Alberta.

SUPPLICES CROSS BOOKING SERVICE UNITED CHURCH

On Christmas morning the junior choir of the First United church, numbering twenty, appeared in their new surplices for the first time. This was certainly a fitting occasion for such a refreshing and inspiring innovation. In the rendering of their three anthems and the leading of the several hymns the young people acquitted themselves splendidly. Mrs. Floyd Baker as choir director and Mrs. Prescott as organist this young choir has developed in such a way as to be quite an acquisition to the morning worship.

The adult choir with Mrs. F. Brown as organist led the singing at the evening service, rendering very effectively some Christmas anthems.

SMALL DEBTS OFFICE OPENED

New offices for Norman Plummer, magistrate under the Small Debts Recovery Act, will be opened on the east end of the ground floor of the Court House building, Calgary, according to an announcement made by Hon. J. F. Lymburn, Attorney General for Alberta.

ABSENT TO MARRIAGE EDMONTON MINING MEN

F. W. Abbott, K.C., president of the Edmonton Exhibition association, has assumed the duties of acting manager of the association until after the Edmonton spring show in 19-33 when a permanent appointment will be made by the board to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late manager, W. J. Stark.

SESSION TO OPEN FEBRUARY 2

The Alberta Legislature will convene for its 1928 session on February 2, according to the announcement made during the past week by Premier Brownlee. It is not expected that the session will be a lengthy one this year, although a number of new bills and amendments are being included in the agenda which is now in course of preparation.

Dr. J. S. Collip of the University of Alberta, one of the co-discoverers of insulin and recognized as one of the outstanding scientists on the continent, has been given the appointment as chairman of the department of biochemistry at McGill University, and will leave Alberta shortly to take up his new work.

Take Necessary Precautions

Canadians have no reason to apologize for the climate of their country, even in periods of severe winter cold; on the contrary they are proud of the fact that, in so many respects, the Canadian winter is a very real asset in the Dominion. There is nothing enervating about the climate of Canada, for it is due the high quality of the grain produced. It is largely responsible for the fact that Canadians are a hardy, robust, healthy people, full of initiative and energy. It is not a climate in which idlers and slackers survive, consequently it develops a progressive industrious people.

But just as in the tropics people must exercise certain precautions during seasons of intense heat, so must Canadians take precautions during periods of intense cold, or in stormy seasons. To neglect commonsense precautions at such times is to invite disaster.

During a blizzard which recently raged on a portion of Western Canada and the Western United States, a little bad of seven years was allowed to leave his home for the rural school he attended some distance away. He had his way, became utterly exhausted, and his death resulted. Such a tragedy is the result of not taking the very natural precaution of keeping a young child home at such a time. It was foolhardy in the extreme to allow the child to venture out.

The Saskatchewan Department of Education has issued a timely warning to parents and teachers to exercise care in permitting children to proceed to and from school in very severe cold weather, when strong winds prevail during severe cold or a blizzard threatens. The Departmental warning points out that "it is better to keep a child home than to risk a tragedy, or, if adverse weather changes occur during school hours, detain the children in the school until they can be safely conveyed home."

The advice is given that "at such times parents may well telephone the teacher stating whether their children are or are not en route to school, and the teacher should, in like manner, telephone parents if their children are not being detained at the school until sent for, or that they have been started for home under escort.

As conditions only a comparatively few years ago, when rural telephone were few and far between, the province of Canada are now crisis-crossed with rural telephone lines. Nearly every rural school has a telephone installed, and an instrument is to be found in the great majority of farm homes. Good use should be made of them in the manner suggested by the Saskatchewan Department of Education.

Commenting on the above official warning, one Saskatchewan paper correctly says that it is usually when parents do not know what the teacher is doing and the teacher does not know what the parents are doing that such deplorable accidents as did happen in the recent storm occur.

A severe cold weather the number of fires from fire also largely increases. Roaring fires are built before the family retires for the night, or before leaving the house for an evening in order that it may be warm on their return. Fires occur all too frequently with calamitous results. Sometimes the stove is chocked too tightly and while the family sleeps the house falls with gas.

All of which only serves to emphasize the need of taking every possible precaution while coping with the problems which severe cold weather brings for a few weeks during the height of the Canadian winter.

Signs Walls To Dominion

Work To Be Learned At First Hand Says Premier Baldwin

Premier Baldwin paid a high tribute to the educative and unifying influence of the Empire Parliamentary Association at the fourteenth annual meeting of the United Kingdom branch of the association in Westminster Hall.

He advocated frequent visits of the members of the home branch of the association to the Dominions and of the members of the branches in the Dominions to Great Britain and to each other, and in this connection he referred to his own experience in Canada last summer. Such visits, he said, tended to remove misunderstandings and to contribute to the public knowledge of Empire policy.

The Premier referred to the proposed visit of a delegation from the United Kingdom branch of the Empire Parliamentary Association to Canada next September, and the hope that the speaker of the House of Commons would head that body which, he said, would be the finest example of all parties there and should be composed of men who did not regard these periodical visits overseas as simply pleasure jaunts.

No man loses poor as he who has nothing but money.

Beware of the man who apologizes when he does you a favor.

Expect Will Conduct Research

Cancer Theory May Be Tested On Animals

As soon as the sanction of the Ministry of Health is obtained, the Isle of Man will become the centre of a controversial question which has been carried out by Dr. Louis Sambon, one of the world's leading cancer experts.

He plans to make a minute examination of the flora and fauna of the island and to leave no stone unturned in the hope of finding a cure for the disease. Dr. Sambon, who is working under the direction of the British School of Tropical Medicine, has intimated that he already has a theory regarding the origin of cancer and hopes by this means to find support for his theory.

With the aid of street maps and medical registers he plans to make a thorough check-up in all the inland districts of persons who died from cancer in the last fifty years and all cancer victims living.

"If my previous experience counts for anything," he said, "I will discover that cancer clusters in undefined areas, and that the people living there are liable to be attacked.

The examination and I will then conduct a minute examination of the vermin in rats, mice, especially rats, mice, cockroaches, cellar beetles and various kinds of worms. We have already established a theory and we want to see how it is supported."

Dr. Louis Sambon, an authority on tropical diseases, who almost 30 years ago reported the causes of pellagra and later investigated the cause of sunstroke which lived in the most quite-infested Roman Campagna, has in recent years devoted his attention to cancer.

THE BEST MEDICINE SHE EVER USED

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Highly Praised By a Quebec Lady

Mrs. Frank Pitts, of Lake Megantic, West, Que., gives unstinted praise to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the good they have done in her family. Mrs. Pitts says: "I have been a user of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for many years, as occasion required, and have always found them a reliable medicine. My husband, who was recovering from an attack of typhoid fever, had was in a very weak condition, took the pills and they quickly gained health and strength. My daughter was in a run-down condition and was forced to discontinue work. Again Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were resorted to and she soon restored to excellent health. Then my eldest boy had an operation performed for adenoids, which left him in a weakened condition. I knew Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were tried, and he was soon in normal health. He can truly say that more than satisfaction has been obtained by the use of this medicine. The pills have done more good in my home than hundreds of dollars worth of more expensive medicine."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills assist digestion, correct the blood-ade, the vitalization of the heart, shaky nerves and the pallor of the face and lips that are the results of this, impure blood.

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Big Blackout Plans

It is stated that western capitalists have bought 160 acres of land on the swamp at Oak Lake, Man., for the purpose of a municipal farm. While the deal has been involved in the dust, has not been disclosed, it is said that the fencing alone will cost $30,000.

French Savings Restricted

When Bank Account Exceeds 20,000 Deposited Must Withdrawn

Although the French people are noted for their thrift there is a number of savings bank regulations that will strike the American saver as peculiar.

Individual deposits are limited to 12,000 francs while for mutual societies or trade unions they are limited to 50,000 francs. When an account exceeds this legal limit the bank informs the depositor to withdraw the excess.

A depositor can have but one passbook within the territory of the French Republic. The penalty for infringement on this rule is confiscation of the forfeited interest being credited to the savings bank where the depositor had his money.

A married woman's bank account income is subjected to various restrictions as the husband may elect. But if she has an income of her own she is no more restricted than her husband.

A minor may deposit money but he cannot withdraw it until he reaches the age of sixteen, without the authorization of his legal representative.

Unclaimed accounts to be paid at majority, at the time of marriage or at some other stated date may be refunded, but the same are not to be included in the amount allowed each depositor.

The savings bank reserves the right to limit individual withdrawals to 50 francs a fortnight.

HOLIDAY SALADS

Apple and Orange Salad

Peel and slice oranges, rejecting all white membrane. Cut wedge-shaped slices from red apples, leaving the skin on. Arrange on lettuce-covered salad plates, using alternate slices of orange and apple.

Grapefruit Salad

Peel oranges and grapefruit and divide into segments, rejecting all white skin. Arrange a few of the orange segments on a lettuce-covered salad plate and fill centre with grapefruit segments.

CREAMED MUSHROOMS

Wash ½ pound mushrooms. Remove stems, scrape and cut in pieces. Melt 3 tablespoons of butter, add mushrooms, cook 2 minutes in a covered dish; sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge with flour, and add ½ cup cream. Cook slowly five minutes. Add a slight grating of nutmeg, pour over strips of buttered toast and garnish with toast points and parsley.

JUNKET WITH CRANBERRY JELLY

Make a good, firm cranberry jelly, fill dessert glasses half full. When the jelly is firm fill the glasses with a plain junket; when junket is set, put away to cool. This may be served plain or with whipped cream heaped over it, and a little piece of cranberry jelly on top to add a touch of color.

Hanged Down By Asthma

The man or woman who is continually subject to asthma is entitled for his or her life's work. Strength to depart and energy is taken away until life becomes a dreary existence. And yet this is needless. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has brought a great change to an army of sufferers. It relieves the restricted air tubes and opens the passages through which breathing must have favorable to their existence.

Don't dose a Child's Cold

CONTINUAL dosing upsets children's delicate stomachs. Vicks is applied externally and therefore cannot upset the digestion. It acts in two ways: (1) The body heat releases the ingredients in the form of vapors which are inhaled. (2) At the same time Vicks "draws out" the soreness like a poultice.

Infantile Mortality

Latest Figures Show That Mortality Rate Is Decreasing

Infantile mortality is decreasing rapidly, the latest figures showing only one infant mortality, recorded for 72 per thousand births, against one of 99.5 in 1925 and 102.2 in 1924, with an infant mortality rate of 151.1 in 1913, the highest in the Dominion. Manitoba, with a rate of 120.9 in 1926, is the highest province, showing the greatest improvement during the year of all provinces. In June, 1926, the Quebec rate stood at 123.6.

The Dominion birth rate for June per thousand population was 25.1 against 25.3 in June, 1926. The death rate was 10.16 against 10.9.

Advisory Weather Service For Aviators

Weather Bulletin Plan Under Review At Meteorological Head-quarters

A scheme for the development of an advisory weather service for aviators is now being worked out at the Dominion meteorological headquarters

The project will, it is expected, eventually result in a network of specially equipped observatories from Newfoundland to British Columbia being instituted. The scheme is being designed primarily for air mail service by way of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and to guide the 1,000 gigantic dirigible from England, which is scheduled to terminate a trans-Atlantic cruise at Montreal next summer.

Sufferers from catarrh will find that the Oil when used accordingly to directions will give prompt relief. Many sufferers from this ailment have found relief in the Oil and have sent testimonials.

A Girl's Essay On Boys

Boys are men that have not got as big as their papas, and girls are women that will be ladies by-and-by. Man was made before woman. When God looked at Adam He said to Himself: "Well, I think I can do better if I try again." And He made Eve. God liked Eve so much better than Adam that there have been more women than men. Boys are a trouble. They wear out everything but soap. If I had my way half the world would be girls and the rest dolls. My papa is so nice that I think he must have been a little girl when he was a boy.

Canadian Tree Seeds Are Being Successfully Planted In Many Parts of the World

Seed Drill Survey

Seems For Improvement In the Preparation Of Grain For Seed Purposes

Results of the seed drill survey made in Saskatchewan this year, and announced recently by Hon. C. M. Hamilton, provincial minister of agriculture, show that out of each ten samples of wheat examined three graded No. 1, four graded No. 2 and three graded rejected. Of oats examined, 18 per cent. graded No. 1 or No. 2, while 16 per cent. went No. 3 and 66 per cent. graded rejected. The lower grade samples in the majority of cases were lowered in grade because of the presence of noxious weeds.

An official of the seed crops branch said a comparison of the different makes of cleaning machinery used appeared to indicate that the make of type did not make as much difference as the other factors - the pollution of the seed grain and the man running the mill.

"It is clearly shown," he said, "that many farmers in Saskatchewan are not getting the best possible results from their seed cleaning machinery, perhaps though not having the proper knowledge of how to set, fix, clean and adjust the machine properly through an inadequate understanding of the best methods of operation. There would appear to be a big scope for improvement in the preparation of grain for seed purposes.

London Paper Prints Canadian Supplement

Financial Times Sees Rapid Progress Ahead For Dominion

The Financial Times, London, has undertaken to publish a Canadian supplement every six months for the next three years. The significance of this is notable. It means that this authoritative journal sees a period of great and rapid progress ahead for the Dominion calling for periodical reviews of conditions in addition to the information printed in its regular editions. A staff of travelling correspondents is kept in the country and it considers market movements in-portant enough to warrant the expense of cable tolls on quotations and special news.

The first supplement has made its appearance, and consists of forty pages, well illustrated and printed on book paper. Its contents include a foreword by Hon. James Malcolm, and articles on agricultural progress, banking, British trade railways, minerals, industries, insurances, investments, shipping, water power, the Provinces, and opportunities for investment

In his introductory article Mr. R. J. Barrett, managing editor, states that Canada's expansion in the past two decades has been prodigious, surpassing that of any equivalent period from their seed cleaning machinery, perhaps though not having the proper knowledge of how to set, fix, clean and adjust the machine properly through an inadequate understanding of the best methods of operation. There would appear to be a big scope for improvement in the preparation of grain for seed purposes.

Fin Flon Power Site

May Change Site from Where Mud Falls to Island Falls

Intimations from the Whitneys in New York have been received at the capital indicating that a change in the power site of the Fin Flon mine may be made from White Mud Falls to Island Falls.

Island Falls are on the Churchill River, considerably closer to the mine property than are the White Mud Falls, on the Nelson, and it is understood, the Whitneys and the Sherritt-Gordon interests, after points have been propositioned carefully, are inclined to the view that the former would be the best power site for their develop ment.

The investigations of the financiers did not reveal any surprise at Ottawa, as it was known that the White Mud Falls were never definitely decided upon, and, after the government lands it is clear that certain restrictions would be imposed if the White Mud were developed, the value of the site to the mine owners was distinctly lessened.

Island Falls has a capacity of 95,000 horse power, which would look after the mining development. White Mud would supply more than 250,000 horsepower, and there would be a large surplus to be sold elsewhere. Originally it is said, the Whitney engineers were of the opinion that there would be no rate control, and that the White Mud offered splendid spectacular site as a result producer. With control of power rates, however, its advantages were very much diminished, and consequently there has been a disposition to turn back to the first site.

It is understood that the interior department has asked the Whitneys to come to a decision as quickly as possible.

Water As a Lubricant

Better Than Oil For Rubber Bearings in Cabin

A discovery has been made which has caused wide interest in the engineering world. It is claimed that rubber bearings lubricated with plain water are in all that sense superior to other bearings can do, and that oil for lubrication can be dispensed with. Rubber bearings have been tested on heavy machines running 3,000 revolutions a minute. A particle of grit simply rubs across the rubber until it is removed by the water, which runs through a fine groove in the bearing. Lubricating oil is used in the machinery on thousands of boats, and some qualities of it are very expensive. The new system, discovered and perfected by an English engineer, may lead to all kinds of changes in high-speed machinery, some of which is lurkiness, and so, bringing about big changes in the running costs.

Sugar From Waste Wood

Sawdust Treated With Acid Makes Substance Suitable For Food

Sugar from waste wood is forecast by a report made recently by Dr. W. H. Ormandy to the Society of Chemical Industry, in England. Dried sawdust is treated in a carefully-designed chemical plant with hydrochloric acid. This treatment converts the cellulose of the wood into a mixture of sugars, one of which is ordinary glucose, or corn sugar, a material that is perfectly suitable for human food. Not all of the sugar produced by the process is pure enough for food use, although most of it is. The by-product of higher sugar is to be fermented into alcohol, which will be used for motor fuel.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JANUARY 1

JOHN THE BAPTIST AND JESUS

Golden Text. "He must increase but I must decrease." John 3:30.

Lesson Mark 1:1-13.

Devotional Reading Isaiah 40:3-11.

Explanations and Comments

1. The Title of the Gospel, verse 1. This is the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God. Our word gospel is composed of the two Anglo-Saxon words god, meaning good, and spell, meaning news. The word as used in the New Testament refers to the message of good tidings, not to one of the four four books to which it is now applied before the second century. It is the good tidings concerning Jesus the Christ, the Son of God, which Mark begins here to recount. This first verse is Mark's confession of faith.

Every time Christ is born in a man's heart, the gospel has a new beginning. And every other beginning of the gospel its beginning in the eternal purpose of God (John), its beginning at Bethlehem (Matthew and Luke), its beginning at the baptism (Mark), will be of more effect, so far as you and I are concerned, unless it has another beginning in you and me."—J. H. Jowett.

II. The Work Of the Forerunner Of Jesus (verses 2-8. Verse 2. 3 and 4 are all one sentence, and seven words affect their meaning, namely, "as"; as it is written, John came."

On account of the parents of John and of his training in the wilderness, turn to the gospel of Luke. Verse 2 is from Malachi 3:1. And in verse 3 from Matthew 11:10 and Luke 7:27. Jesus himself in John's mission 3:28.

From Isaiah 40:3-5." John the Baptist was God's messenger sent to prepare the way for Jesus the Son of God. It was the voice in the wilderness announcing the coming of the Lord and warning men to be ready. Instead of discovering upon the threshold story of the Messianic period, as was the universal custom, John left that there were requirements to be made, and turned men's thoughts away from the outward and material to the inward and spiritual.

"The revival of religion needed today to prepare for the fuller coming of the Son of Man into our earthly life and to secure that richer baptism of all our relationships in the divine spirit, is a revival strongly ethical and genuinely social, rather than ecclesiastical or emotional. Let the call to the world, south, north, east and west, be 'about face' towards righteousness in the common relations of everyday life! 'Then all flesh shall see the salvation of God'"—Charles Reynolds Brown.

A Most Dangerous Practice

Some Possibilities Present in Talking, Says Noted Scout Master

[illegible] Baden-Powell, famous English scout master, has written a book in which he says that the next war will come in 2000. He makes the interesting suggestion that in another war in Europe, the United States will not be on the same side as Great Britain. He inference being that naval competition has driven a wedge between the affections of these nations.

It would seem that there is a ragiment or two of European peasants, who are bound to drum up another war. They persist in talking it day and night. That is a most dangerous practice. If, instead, their time was occupied as industriously in decrying war, in reminding the people of the last world catastrophe, of the carnifex and sufferings of the population, of the millions of wounded and mutilated human beings, there would be some expectancy that another war would not come. But if these peddlers of calamity continue to preach their sermons of prophecies war is pretty sure to happen. There is a new crop of cannon fodder ready for the harvest reaper, who were seven years of age in 1914, are now twenty, able to carry a rifle, capable of being trained into the tricks of carnage. That seems to be sufficient for certain Europeans who keep the war pot boiling. No doubt the makers of armament are eager for the harvest.

In well-organized, sensible communities the preachers of dangerous, one-sided views would not thrive. That would appear to be the appropriate treatment of these next-war prophets.

PEACE NOT AIDED BY WEAKENING BRITISH EMPIRE

London.—Widespread refusal of Britons to bear arms would create the collapse of the League of Nations and the Locarno Treaties, said Premier Ramsay Baldwin in reply to a recent Labor Party motion declaring that 2,000,000 persons who declared they would refuse to support any further[illegible] recurring to arms.

The letter was presented to the premier, December 18, by Arthur Ponsonby, Labor member of the House of Commons.

"I share your longing for peace," said Premier Stanley Baldwin in replying to the peace letter.

"God forbid that it again should be disturbed," the premier continued, "but I have yet to learn that the cause of peace would be served by rendering Great Britain impotent. You cannot strengthen the League of Nations by weakening the British Empire. England totally disarmed is an easy prey to hostile forces can you think of anything more likely to excite cupidity and hostile intention? We should sink to the level of a fifth class power; our colonies would be stripped from us and our commerce would decline."

Further, Premier Baldwin said:

"The effectiveness of the Locarno treaties depends very largely on the knowledge of the world that reposed that in the event of an unprovoked attack, the mighty weight of Great Britain would be thrown into the scale against the aggressor. To deprive of us that weight, the treaties would be deprived of nearly all their value once more in Western Europe would spring up that fear and unrest, that uneasy dread which the treaties have done so much to allay.

"The complaint that has been heard in the League of Nations assembly is not that the armaments of Great Britain are excessive or a menace to the world, but that they are now placed more powerfully at the disposal of the League for the enforcement of its decrees."

Mission To Canada

Under Secretary Of State For Dominion Affairs To Come Here Next Summer

London.—The Daily News understands that arrangements are being made for Lord Lovat, under secretary of state for Dominion affairs, to embark next summer on a mission to Canada, New Zealand, Australia, and South Africa, mainly with the object of linking new life into the empire's migration activities.

Lord Lovat probably will assist in the detailed negotiations in each of the dominions which will follow the departmental discussions on the exploratory enquiries about to be made by Lieut.-Col. L. C. M. S. Amery, secretary of state for Dominion Affairs.

Insanity Increasing

New York. — Alcoholic insanity, which has been reported increasing since 1920, again went forward this year, according to statistics of the state department of mental hygiene. Last year there were 422 cases of alcoholic insanity admitted to the state hospitals, or 5.8 per cent. of the total. This year 544 cases, or 7 per cent. of the total, were admitted.

Premier Gardiner said he had not his statement to make regarding just [illegible] the session, but that it would be brought down during the session.

When Mr. Speaker, W. G. Robinson (Estevan) takes the chair there will be three new members to be introduced to the House three by-elections having taken place since the assembly rose early in the year. D. M. Robertson, Lawson, who was elected to fill the vacancy for the Moose Jaw constituency, caused by the sudden death of W. P. McLachlan, Moose Jaw, is one of the new members. The second is W. G. Hunt, K.C., Moose Jaw, who was elected to represent Moose Jaw City upon the elevation of W. K. Esplen, K.C., to the bench of the King's Bench. He is Hon. George Spence, who returns to the provincial field from the Federal House to represent South Qu'Appelle constituency in the room of F. L. Hyde, who resigned.

None of the three by-elections aroused the party standard, which remains at 52 on the Government side of the House and 10 on the Opposition side.

Manitoba University Benefits

Receives Grant Of $50,000 From the Carnegie Foundation

Winnipeg. The Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching has voted a sum of $50,000 to the University of Manitoba, in connection with a pension scheme for members of the university's staff.

The grant is to supplement the pension of those more than 40 years old now on the staff, provided the university contributes an equal sum. The sum contributed by members of faculties who enter the pension scheme. The $50,000 will not be available to the university unless such contribution is made.

The Carnegie foundation was formed in 1905 when Andrew Carnegie gave to a board of trustees $10,000,000 to be utilized to pension college professors after about 25 years' active service.

France Building Boats In Accord With Washington Agreement

Paris. The French naval program for 1927 to 1931, which was stated to be fully in accordance with the Washington accord, was passed by the Chamber of Deputies at a special session. The voting was by a show of hands, the Socialists abstaining.

Before the vote was taken the Socialists announced that the program was "a manifestation of the race to heavy tonnage."

Charles Dumbles, who sponsored the bill, declared it was fully in accord with the Washington agreement. The program for 1927, which must be completed before June, 1930, includes one cruiser of 10,000 tons, six destroyers, five submarines of the 1,900 class, one submarine mine layer, and two despatch boats.

Merry Party For Canadian Homes

Waving good bye to their native shores did not seem to depress the spirits of these Scottish girls who sailed from Scotland recently for Canada. They were included in a large group of household workers recruited in Glasgow to be placed in homes throughout the Dominion. They were all smiles over the prospects of their new homes and in anticipation of many experiences that would befall them in the country across the Atlantic of which they had heard so much about.

The photograph was taken as the group were on their way to board the Canadian Pacific liner Montclare.

SAY U.S. SHIPPERS LABORING UNDER A DISADVANTAGE

New York. Charges that United States shipping is being discriminated against by Great Britain, Canada and Australia are contained in a resolution recently forwarded to President Coolidge, Secretary Hoover, and Departments by the New York Maritime Exchange which urged that the United States adopt retaliatory measures to safeguard its interest.

The exchange cites Canadian regulations, which require that cargoes destined for Canada must be unloaded through Canadian ports and not through United States ports in order to obtain preferential duties, and also sets forth the understanding that cargo shipped from the United States via Canada may remain in bonded warehouses there without being shouldered, whereas if the cattle are sent from the United States they must be unloaded immediately on arrival in England.

The state department has already advised the exchange that the question referred to in the resolution are receiving the careful attention of the department, but that the information in the hands of the department with respect to the shipment of cattle does not agree precisely with that contained in the resolution.

In the resolution adopted at the Maritime Exchange, it was suggested that if the respective governments fail to entertain minimum propposals along the lines suggested, the United States formulate "and pass in effect similar regulations in our behalf whereby a surcharge equal to that imposed upon our commerce shall be collected in addition to the ordinary duty in traffic landed at ports in Canada for destination in the United States."

FORT SASKATCHEWAN, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 29, 1937

HAPPY NEW YEAR

THAT YOU May Have a Prosperous Year Is Our Sincere Wish

RESOLUTIONS

There is no good reason why New Year's affords a better time to make a good resolution than any other season of the year. Any date on which one may make the resolution that one would be better for doubting from some practice to which one is addicted, or from a course in which one has not hitherto followed, is a good time to begin. However, New Year's is a favorite date because it is the start of another year. The slate is wiped clean then and a new account is opened. It is easier to make a resolution than it is to keep it.

Resolutions have to do with improvement. It doesn't require resolution to do worse than one did in the old year. A worse course does not differ from a bad one. To do better is the one which requires fortitude and persistence.

Despite resolutions we may make most of us do not change greatly from year to year. It's the trend, though, that makes the child a man or woman. What sums the direction is on an unsailing plane while with others there is a down grade and the latter is the easier. In the one person, though the difference between the two may not be exceedingly perceptible. Most of those who improve a little do not do so consciously, while many of those who grow worse do not do so as a result of any conscious decision on the kind of a course in which one is running; for we do run in grooves every hour of the day, whether we be a plane surface without any rule to lead him in his course is no rule to follow.

We do not fancy New Year's resolutions. Good ones made and broken are worse than no resolutions made at all. Yet, one who never thinks of doing of habits and matters connected with the business of another year will not get very far in personal spirit. Those who resolve to infrequently and then do not enough of them is a thinker.

THE "NEW" YEAR

The New Year will be a republican of old appearance, a re-enforcement of old laws, a modification of old customs, a return to what is best known as "normal times" and a return to old relationships are much the same today as they were when the year 1937 was piloted over the top, not his chance to work on the same habitats wherever were written the characters and the words which will make the history the human race shall hope to discover the morality of the planets and the governing laws that govern it.

We enter upon the New Year, to be sure, but in it we shall be modern-ists in the same sense that we were. We will be reminded as we put our calendars immediately with dates similar to those which we have had before them for many years and for many more.

WHEAT PEEL SHOW

Dates for the wheat show, to be held January 2nd, 3, 4, 1938, Edmonton, for the Canadian district, have arranged for the delegates in this district to hold a meeting at the Macdonald Hotel at the hour either of the Alberta Wheat Pool. There are two classes of wheat to be shown, one through every department of the Wheat Pool and given a thorough inspection by the judges. Every delegate into the province should go through every department of the Wheat Pool and given a thorough inspection by the judges. Every delegate who is to complete the delegation thoroughly with the manager of the various departments of the Pool and with the officials of the Pool, so that they may be well qualified to distribute information to their constituents.

A committee of the Board of Directors of Alberta Wheat Pool has been appointed to report on the resolutions passed at the recent annual meeting of delegates from all parts of Western Canada from the United States to that of the general the Pool. The committee will report the opinion that the difficulties in the way of making the suggested changes do not appear to be insurmountable.

LIVESTOCK WORK WILL BE FEATURE OF SHORT COURSE

The important place occupied by livestock in the agricultural development of the province will justify giving the problems of this industry a prominent place on the program of the short course to be held at the University of Alberta, January 24 to February 5, 1938. The department of animal husbandry is well equipped with both breeding and market classes of the various breeds of livestock, including a number of the steers which were winners at Toronto and Chicago recently, and the farmers who attend the course will have an opportunity to study, present day types in horses, cattle, sheep and swine. Attention will also be given to the results of investigational work carried on at the University in connection with various livestock problems.

GOOD RETURNS FOR FARMER'S WOOL CROP

A total of 697,230.56 has been distributed among the farmers in the central and northern part of the province during the year 1937 according to the Alberta Provincial Sheep Producers' Association and through the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Ltd. Total wool shipped amounted to 111,000 pounds and an average of 24.56 cents per pound was realized. The price, while comparing favorably with that of last year, was reduced in some degree by the high percentage of inferior grades in the 1937 clip.

ALBERTA BUFFALO HEAT FOR BRISBOIS

Fifty buffalo carcasses out of the thousand recently slaughtered by contract at the Wainwright park were conveyed by the Montreal Terminals branch of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa. The meat was distributed by St. Henri and dried for shipment to the Eskimos in the extreme northern part of the Dominion of Canada. 69TH BATT. ANNUAL DINNER

The annual dinner of the 69th Battalion (Edmonton Regiment) Association will be held at the Royal George hotel at Edmonton on Saturday evening, January 7. This dinner commemorates the yearly birthday of this famous fighting battalion.

A "Fitzroy" newspaper weighing about 200 pounds and having a lying record of 100 miles an hour, and a cruising speed of 70 miles an hour will be used in monthly production after the first of the year, announces Clarence D. Chamberlin, the transport flier who set the mark. He will use about $6,500.

A boy was running down a steep hill with a parachutist to which a baby was tying safely.

The casualty list will be enrolled," cried an old man. "Yes may best the baby."

"Oh, it's all right, sir," replied the boy. "We've got another one at home."

Helmi was awakened next morning by the first beam of the March sun. It came around the corner of the factory cotton blind and played across her pillow with a tremulous radiance. It was a jolly little sunbeam that seemed to have a story to tell if there was anyone to listen. But Helmi's heart was too full of its own happiness to listen to any other voice. The spring, out of doors and in the long day with a song, a strange song, that came bubbling out of her far-off childhood. Helmi had not thought of it since she came to Canada, and did not know that she knew it but to-day it came upon her unawares, and her little Finnish song with its old world ritlies and rhythms. She would have been as careful if not more so than she was of her sister's marriage than her pleasant reception of her romantic family. But most Helmi had a deeper understanding, as she sang the old chant, the "Kalevala" of her own country.

"Now the time has come for parting
From my father's golden fireside,
From my brother's welcome hearthstones,
From my mother's happy dwelling."

Weird and solemn and doleful, sadly with pain and the heart-throbs of another generation, the "Kalevala" had no place in this new world of action and realities.

But Helmi sang on as she got dressed, in a mechanical, tuneless voice, imitating the old minstrel whom she had heard sing it years ago, laughing at it, yet bound by its strange spell. She was glad she remembered it; it would make Jack Doran laugh that big rollicky laugh she loved so well. He would say again, "You are a queer child, Helmi."

"Do not harm the bride of heaven,
Do not injure her thou bravest;
Counsel with the bride of heaven,
To the young wife give instruction."

Helmi rolled up the cotton blind and tied the red cord in a bow-knot. The warm March sun was filling the shadier with a ruddy glow, even brightening the washing-basin little houses. But Helmi saw only the trees thrown into the upper heavens, indicating a windy day; curling smoke climbed up the staircase with faithfully telling who was and who was not astir. To Jack Doran's house on the hill, faintly pink in the morning light, Helmi's eyes turned lovingly, and as she watched the first feather of smoke dirted aimlessly up into the waking air. Some day that little house would be hers, and she would have her own little pots and pans, shining just like silver.

Helmi's light heart sang the old melody of love and mating, but the words which never mattered much anyway, were the dismal lines of the "Kalevala." However, sung as they were by her in ragtime, no trace of the golden was left.

"Cut a reel upon the mountain,
Or a willow in the valleys;
Hide it underneath thy mantle,
That the stranger may not see it."

Helmi laughed at the cousins instructions given to the young bureaus in the matter of keeping his wife in her place. It was all very humorous even though she remembered how angry it made her when she heard it sung in Finland. She had once been severely whipped by her father for saying that if her man ever dared to strike her she would kill him with a knife and throw his body into the flood. But the whipping had only confirmed her determination. She helped her father would jail and break his leg or be struck by the bird.

Helmi dressed as quickly as she could. Her hare little roses gilded now by the warm sunshine, was a parade of gay woollen hats. He had dressed her garished dreams. Helmi's radiance of spirit covered every deformity, even as the sunshine watered to life again the faded pattern on the shabby little quilt, falsely called a counterpane, which lay on the floor of the bed. Helmi's bed was a narrow white enamelled one, with no trace of the original gloss that its complexion was now that of an English chimney, after all, and foreign, too."

A silence fell on the room Helmi, who had a way of doing her work without bringing her mind to it, was aroused with the sudden jerk one feels when a train stops. The cessation of a movement before had hummed like a factory, was now plunged suddenly into tense silence.

Mrs. McMann, having invented the story of Jack's penchant, proceeded to elaborate.

"There is some talk of your bringin' a wife here at Easter, and that it will be the city girl from Edmonton.

Jack Doran stood up and threw back his shining hair. His face was pale under his coat of March tan.

"You're a great gossiper, Mrs. McMann," he said," but you miss out in some things. I am going to have a wife before Easter, but it is not the girl from Edmonton. As a matter of fact, I do not know a girl in Edmonton, not one; but I know a girl in Eagle Minee that I think a lot of."

Helmi was pacing behind him, and he turned impulsively and took her hand. "Helmi has worked her last day for you, Mrs. McMann, for today she is going to marry me, if she will. Will you marry me, Helmi?" he said impulsively.

Prince George a Linguist

Qualifies As Interpreter In France For British Navy

Prince George, youngest son of King George and Queen Mary, has been posted officially as a fully qualified interpreter in French for the British Navy, in which he holds the rank of lieutenant. Naval officers of his rank must have a knowledge of French, but this knowledge is not always very extensive.

The Prince of Wales is the best French student among the King's sons, but proficiency being due to his six months' stay as a boy in France with the Duc de Bruteuil, when he acquired the confidence essential in conversation with a foreigner. He is good at German, too, and speaks some Welsh.

Both King George and Queen Mary speak French fluently.

Finds Another Microbe

A new and deadly microbe has been discovered by Dr. Vilbert, head of the Pasteur Institute at Kandia, French Guinea. It is a spiral bacillus, and covered on chimpanzees and produces a contagious disease similar to yellow fever. Dr. Vilbert contracted the disease, but recovered.

One of our minor regrets has at years been that nobody in the family went to medical school long enough to know how to use the leg of a cane.

New Northern Manitoba Map

Flin Flon Lake Area Mapped By Topographical Department

The Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior has just issued the Cormorant Lake sheet of the National Topographical series on a scale of four miles to an inch. This sheet is a provisional series map without contours. It is plotted from aerial photographs taken by the Royal Canadian Air Force During the photographic flights Dominion Land Surveyors acted as navigational officers. This map may been obtained from the office of the Topographical Survey at Ottawa for the nominal price of twenty-five cents each or fifty cents in folder form or printed on linen

The area shown on this map lies north of The Pas, Manitoba and extends just over the border of Manitoba into Saskatchewan. It lies between latitudes 54 degrees and 55 degrees and longitudes 100 degrees and 102 degrees. It is similar in style to The Pas sheet on the south and Wekusko Lake sheet on the east. It is named from Cormorant lake which lies just north of the Hudson Bay Railway. Other lakes which are well known from the mineral discoveries which have been made in their vicinity are Athapapuskow Lake, Flin Flon Lake, Schist Lake, Flin Lake, and Elbow Lake. The mining fields may be reached from The Pas by steamer to Sturgeon Landing, thence by a wagon road to the Athapapuskow Lake from which canoe routes lead in numerous directions. The Mandy Mine produced some very rich ore which was transported by sleighs, scows, and rail to the smelter in British Columbia. Important developments are now taking place at several other points including the immense deposits of the Flin-Flon property. This map will be of considerable assistance to those interested in development work or in further prospecting.

Women In Work At Geneva

Play Important Part In Disarmament Negotiations Of League

Women are laying a silent, but important part in the disarmament negotiations under the auspices of the League of Nations.

Mme. Maxim Litvinoff, the pretty and charming wife of the chief of the Soviet delegation, is an English girl, and is down on the delegation's official list as an interpreter. Mme. Litvinoff, who translates the documents of the Moscovites from Russian into English, was Miss Ivy Low, of London, the daughter of Sir Sidney Low. She is known in literary circles as the author of a number of novels.

Every British naval officer, wife of another Russian delegate, the Soviet Minister of Public Instruction, is a celebrated actress. She appears on the Moscow stage as Rosenel. M. Lunacharsky has written a number of plays in which his wife has taken the leading rôle.

American womanhood stops into the picture when it comes to Count von Bernstorff, head of the German delegation. The Countess was Miss Jeanne Lackemeyer, of New York. She is now at Geneva with her husband and is interested, like Americans generally are, in the outcome of the disarmament problem.

Soft corns are difficult to eradicate, but Holloway's Corn Remover will draw them out painlessly.

Canadian Bacon Market

Farmers Should Not Abandon Hog Production At the Present Time

An optimistic note with regard to the market for Canadian bacon was struck by A. J. Mills, representative of the British Ministry of Food in conference with packers at Toronto. He expressed the conviction that Canadian farmers would be very poorly advised to slacken in hog production at the present time, stating that such an improvement in the British market was in sight, with many of the countries which had been looking to Britain with bacon during the past year being practically out of the business.

Builds on the ground her lowly nest.

And she that doth most sweetly sing,
Sings in the shade when all things rest.

In lark and nightingale we see
What honor hath humility.

THOUSANDS OF MOTHERS USE NO OTHER MEDICINE

Baby's Own Tablets Are the Ideal Remedy For Babies and Young Children

Canadian mothers are noted for the care they give their little ones, the health of the baby is most jealously guarded and the mother is always on the lookout for a remedy which is efficient and at the same time absolutely safe. Thousands of mother's have found such a remedy in Baby's Own Tablets and many of them use nothing else for the ailments of their little ones. Among them is Mrs. Howard King, of Truro, N.S., who says:—"I can strongly recommend Baby's Own Tablets to mothers of young children as I know of nothing to equal them for little ones."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Extending Activities

The Canadian Colonization Association, which this year extended its activities into the tobacco lands of South-western Ontario, were successful in locating seven families there. Its survey calls for the settlement of 125 families on these lands in 1938.

Time Has Tested It.

FORT HOCKEY TEAM PLAYS TIE GAME WITH VEGREVILLE ELKS

The Fort hockey team bought out the C.N.R. on Monday and went to Vegreville to pay their respects to the Vegreville Elks. The game was played in the afternoon and was very fast from start to finish. Roy Stuckey started the ball rolling by scoring two in the first period and Kelly Walker added another point just before the bell rang. In the second period Fred Favell contributed, and later Webber, with a beautiful centre ice rush, netted one more. The Elks in the meantime had scored four, so that at the beginning of the third period the score was 5-4 in favor of the Fort.

The game as played in the Vegreville district league is divided into periods of 22 minutes and the local boys, not being accustomed to playing so long without a rest, and having exerted themselves to the utmost to hold their own with the brilliant and finely-trained Elks, were visibly tired when the third period commenced. The home team scored twice in this period and also another which is stoutly protested by the local boys, who claim it was thrown in by the hand of one of the opposing players from a mix-up in front of goal while several players were full length on the ice.

With a doughty individual rush H. Anderson scored the sixth goal for the Fort team, this making, if the blind goddess of Justice has her way with the protested goal, a tied score, 6—6.

Lees and Mitchell were the stars for the Elks, Lees playing a brilliant game without relief during all three periods.

The line up was as follows:

EDMONTON JOURNAL BUILDING DAMAGED BY FIRE AND WATER

With no water available in the hydrants as a result of a breakdown at the power house a few minutes before, fire damaged the building of the Edmonton Journal shortly after 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. The amount of damage done is said to be inestimable.

Breaking out in the fan shed on the roof of the building, the fire quickly spread its way along the tar and gravel roof of the building and was licking the sides of the radio station before it was extinguished.

Employees armed with fire extinguishers and firemen using chemicals fought the blaze for 25 minutes before the water was turned on in the hydrants.

Numerous hose lines were taken to the roof when the water again was turned on in the mains and tons of water seeped through the roof and found its way right down to the ground floor where it poured out of the front door. All operations in the building were suspended as a result of the avalanche of water, and the Journal was unable to publish the noon edition.

The Edmonton Bulletin offered their offices and equipment for the use of the Journal and the entire noon edition of that paper was published by the courtesy of the Bulletin. Employees were able to clear away the wreckage and water sufficiently to permit publishing the last edition.

ALBERTA STOCKMEN ARE INSPECTORS ELECTED

John Wilson of Innisfail and Geo. R. Ball of Strathcona, have been elected to represent Alberta on the directorate of the Canadian Sheep Breeders' Association for 1928, it is announced as a result of the recent vote. Arthur J. Ottewell of Clover Bar has also been named as Alberta director of the Canadian Swine Breeders' Association.

Brotherhood

A social evening was enjoyed by the young people on Friday when the members of the Christian Endeavor society of the Moravian church gave a program and banquet in the basement room of the church. IF YOU WOULD NOT SIGN IT, DON'T SAY IT

A great many of us have acquired the unfortunate faculty of talking too much. We purport to know much about the other fellow and his personal and business affairs. Without making sure of our facts, we proceed to collect and pass out gossip. A great many persons, as soon as they see or hear of something a little suspicious, proceed to make it the shaky foundation for their next conversation.

One of the best methods to pursue in trying to break ourselves of this pernicious habit of peddling idle gossip is to adopt and live up to the following rule:

Whenever you are tempted to tell a bit of gossip you have heard, or whenever you see something that you do not just understand, give it this test before you tell it: Would you be willing to write out, sign your name to and pass around the gossip which you have heard or the suspicions which have been aroused in you by what you have seen or heard Could you honestly say that what you are about to say or repeat would be right, and that by repeating it you would not be injuring anyone and would not object to having it published over your signature?

If what you might otherwise say will not bear this test, let it alone. Let the subject drop right there. If you won't sign it, you are suspicious of it; so—Don't Say It.

—Mond Co-operation.

Britain Forges Ahead

There persists of gloom who have been predicting the rapid decline of British power and prestige throughout the world, and these seek always the wish to such a conception has been the failure of the thought, never surely to be coming, to realize that they will have to revise their opinions and recall their predictions. For evidence accumulation, and fact is being piled upon fact, which go to demonstrate the virility, prestige and power of the old Land and the Empire as a whole.

Notwithstanding the fact that Germany was particularly hit by defeat Britain for entering the world war, and owing its hymn of hate because it realized that the British entry into the conflict spelled defeat for Germany. It is a fact today that a more friendly feeling exists in Germany towards Britain that is entertained for any other nation which was allied against her.

For a time the anti-foreign feeling in China was interpreted as being largely an anti-British feeling, for the cultivation of which Soviet Russia was largely responsible. But the inevitable reaction has now set in with the true designs of Russia and the true nature of Britain policy is becoming distinct and understood.

At the meeting of the Institute of Pacific Relations held at Honolulu last July, Sir Frederick Whyte, chief unofficial spokesman for ultra Britain, presented a memorandum on the history of Anglo-Chinese relations from the time of Lord Macartney's mission in 1793 down to the famous communication of Sir Austen Chamberlain of a year ago. This memorandum dealt fairly with the mistakes made by both nations, and it demonstrated from the past acts of Great Britain that the constituency attitude of Sir Austen Chamberlain's document was the logical outcome of those acts.

It is interesting to recall at this time, when the Nationalists of China are breaking off diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia, the manner in which Sir Frederick Whyte's memorandum was received by the Chinese Nationalist delegates at the Honolulu meeting. These delegates had distributed in advance a printed case against Great Britain, which was replete with sharp strictures on British foreign policy. But when Sir Frederick presented the other side, no impressed were the Chinese delegates by its fairness and by the British point of view that they withdrew their own document and asked for the return of the copies distributed. This is hardly a sign of British decadence in world affairs, or an evidence of loss of prestige. The fact that anti-British feeling in China is gradually dying down is the result.

Surely and steadily Great Britain is regaining her position as the financial centre of the world. The pound sterling has returned to par, even to New York, and the flow of gold, which has been almost continuous to the United States for some years past, has recently had an ebbing in the first gold shipment from New York to London. Great Britain continues promptly on date due to make her enormous payments to the United States on account of war obligations, and with every payment made her position becomes stronger.

British financial institutions and industrial concerns are once more increasing their position in world markets, and the flotation of British investments and securities in foreign lands and in the overseas Dominions had to be withdrawn in order to carry on the grim struggle, British investors are again active throughout the world.

As carriers of the commerce of the world, and the great commercial clearing house for all nations, Britain remains supreme. On ship building, despite all the efforts of other nations, Britain retains the leadership by a wide margin.

And to this general improvement in position the overseas Dominions of the Empire, led by Canada, are contributing an ever increasing share.

Prince Of Gypsies Buried In Splendor

Thousands Of Delegates Attended Funeral In Czecho-Slovakia

Dressed in medieval splendor, Horvath, Prince of the Gypsies, has been borne to his grave in Parkany, Czecho-Slovakia, while thousands of Central European gypsies mourned at his bier.

His coffin was of ebony and his body dressed in his favorite brocade. In his hand was a whip to symbolize authority over horse and wife, while at his side were wine flask and flower bottles so that he might treat his old friends in Limbo.

At least a thousand delegates from Hungary, Roumania, Hungarian and Roumanian gypsy tribes attended the funeral, headed by 30 musical bands, most of them on horseback.

Titled Taxi Drivers

Many Russian Nobility Are Chauffeurs In Paris

There was a time when the Paris taxi drivers were simply bachelors of art and candidates in philosophy. This has all changed. They are now Counts, Dukes, Marquises, Colonels and Generals. The Russians have aristocratized them. But there are also many poor Russians driving them. They may be picked out by their grave, courteous manners, their broad smiles. They know all the city map, and I believe they smack by St. Anastasia instead of a real Gallic Saint Insignard. I have read letters written to the papers recently that these Russian ex-Grand Dukes and Cossacks Hetmans are not only ignorant of the French myth, but that they refuse to learn their geography. One lady reports that the driver took her for a ride through the suburbs out of the direction of the address she had given, and persisted in looking around at his change with a broad smile. As he kept up a brisk pace and a brisk pace in Paris means something like 40 out every hour, finally the ladies they were hailed by a signal at a crossing. The lady called a gendarme. "What do you mean," asked the latter of the driver, "don't you know the streets?" "Sir," replied the ex-Colonel or ex-General, "your Commander-in-Chief has never made the plans. How can I advance without maps?" A phrase reminiscent of the Russian front, perhaps.

Miller's Worm Powders will drive worms from the system without injury to the child. The powders are so easy to take that the most delicate infant will not object. The child welcomes them as speedy eaters of candy because they quickly pervade the worms that cause the pain, and the final destroying of the child is relieved. With no starving a remedy at hand no child should suffer on from worms.

A Paying Proposition

Picking bad spots off of cotton sometimes is more lucrative than picking the cotton itself. J. R. O. Lindsay, Richmond, Va., recently shipped 72,000 of the pests to the Florida State Agricultural College at $2.50 a thousand. At that rate a fast picker could earn $10 a day.

The Proven Antitoxin Remedy. Since asthma existed there has been no lack of men a heralded remedies, but they have proved short lived and worthless. The ever-growing reputation of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has given it a place in the field of medicine which no other can approach. It has never been pushed by sensational methods, but has simply gone on obtaining relief and making new converts.

The Wonder Of Dry Ice

New Product Evaporates Slowly and Leaves No Liquid

In a recent electrical exposition in New York, a castle was shown made of dry ice. One of the wonders of the new product is that it does not have any liquid as it slowly evaporates. It is solid carbon dioxide which has been frozen to a temperature of 109 degrees below zero.

The principal use of dry ice is for the refrigeration of perishable foods in transit. This may be a plan of ice cream which the housewife is carrying home from the store, or a refrigerator car of fruit speeding from the west coast of Ontario.

To carry home the ice cream, the plan package of the cream is placed in a slightly larger paper package which permits a piece of dry ice to lie against the package of cream. On arriving home the housewife can leave the package of cream standing on a table for six hours because the dry ice lasts that long.

Next summer on those hot days you can carry a piece around in your pocket and keep cool.

A Web For Lindbergh

The youth of a country might be more employed than in admiring the Lindbergh type of character. Canadians share with Americans the hope and prayer that Lindbergh may come safely to the end of his every aerial flight and live a happy, joy filled wealth, to die in bed at a great old age.

Plant At Trail, B.C., Pays $1,000 Per Hour In Wages

Some interesting figures in connection with the plant operated by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company at Trail, B.C. have been made public by W. F. Davis, secretary of the Vancouver Board of Trade following a recent visit to the interior.

Mr. Smelter has exported tons of refined metals per day, and is the largest metallurgical plant in the world.

The lead output is 110 tons per day, or one-tenth of the world's entire output.

The copper output amounts to 700 daily.

During the past year the plant has required 5,000 tons of coal from Coal Creek, 250,000 bricks, 1,000 tons of limestone, and a carload of coke every two days, 110,000 tons of coal per year and 62,000 tons of coke per year.

The freight bill last year was $3,000,000, or 1 per cent of the total freight paid in Canada.

Eight million dollars were paid out in wages or approximately $1,000 per hour. Added to this the cost of supplies would bring the expenditure to almost $3,000 per hour.

Last year the company earned profits of approximately $14,000,000

Wooden Railway Ties

It has been shown that all the deaths in the railway collision at Dockrill occurred in a wooden coach which was crushed between two others made of steel and there is a general opinion that the practice to haul lighter wooden coaches should not be used or they should not be swallowed with those made of heavier material. Recent accidents have shown that wooden coaches stand little chance in accidents.

A Daytime Frock Of Smart Taffeta

The discriminating miss or small woman will find this an unusually smart and becoming frock. Of taffeta interest is the retver, which may be of matching or contrasting material, and the set-in pocket above at the upper left and lower right side. The skirt has two box-plaits in front, and is joined to the bodice, while the back is in one piece, and the long sleeves have shaped cuffs trimmed with buttons. No. 1699 is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 (36 bust) requires 2½ yards 36-in or 2¼ yards 54-inch material. If the rever is made of contrasting material, ¼ yard additional 36-inch for reversing is required. Price 20 cents the pattern.

Many styles of smart appeal may be found in our new Fashion Book. Our designers originate their patterns in the heart of the style centres and their creations are those of tested popularity, brought within the means of the average woman. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

Some Tips For Inventors

Few of Things Needed Are Included in Law

How challenges to inventive genius are the most entries in the "What's Wanted" book maintained by the Institute of Patentees in London, in which suggestions for needed inventions submitted by the public are filed.

An unbreakable shoe lace, a "mechanical bricklayer," a folding umbrella that can be carried in the pocket of those are some of the devices Mayson want. Particularly in demand are inventions that will make a dwelling more comfortable to live in, and ease the housewife's tasks. These are some of them:

Vacuum cleaners for the chimney.

A way to prevent water in house pipes from freezing.

Apparatus to remove deadly carbon monoxide and unwanted carbon dioxide gas from living room air.

Another machine to fill the air with health-giving oxygen at low cost.

Windows of unbreakable, clear flexible glass.

A means of cleaning windows by machinery.

A better way of fastening carpets than by the use of tin tacks.

Non-slippery floor polish.

Ornamental paint for gas stoves.

A way to unscuff kitchen without shaking the earth by a cork screw.

Longevity Of Germs

Found Alive and Deadly After Being In Sealed Tube 38 years

Experiments carried out by Sir William Simpson, the expert on tropical diseases, to test the longevity of germs, have had remarkable results. Twenty-six years ago Sir William placed in a test tube some germs taken from a South African patient who was suffering from one of the most deadly of tropical diseases. The tube was sealed.

Recently Sir William opened the test tube. He was astonished to find that the germs were still alive and the deadly as ever.

A guinea pig which was inoculated with them died soon afterwards.

The chief control of the germs during their long imprisonment was kind of jelly called "Agar," which was put in the test tube with the germs 38 years ago.

JESUS AND CHILDREN

Golden Text: "He hath made all things well: He maketh even the deaf to hear, and the dumb to speak." Mark 7:37.

Lesson Mark 1 21-45.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 103:1-14.

Explanations and Comments

I. The Authority of Jesus (vs. 21-28). Capernaum (verse 21, R.V.) In New Testament times synagogues were the central meeting of the Jewish people, and many cities had one. In the synagogue the people assembled for worship, and the Scriptures were read and explained. Although the Jewish ritual was very elaborate, the synagogue service was simple. Teaching (verse 22). Jesus was not a professional teacher, as the scribes were. He was not trained in the schools of the rabbis, and he did not quote the opinions of other teachers. He spoke with authority, as one who knew the truth and had the right to declare it. Unclean spirit (verse 23). The Jews believed that evil spirits could enter into men and cause them to do wicked things. Let us alone (verse 24). The spirit knew that Jesus had come to destroy the power of evil. Hold thy peace (verse 25). Jesus did not want the testimony of evil spirits. Many of the people were looking for a political leader who would drive out the Romans and make Israel a great nation. They misunderstood the purpose of Jesus' coming, and he did not want to be misled by their false ideas. Amazed (verse 27). The people were astonished at the power of Jesus' words and deeds. They had never seen anything like it before.

II. The Healing of Many (vs. 29-34). Simon's wife's mother (verse 30). Peter was married, and his wife's mother lived with them. Ministered unto them (verse 31). She served them with food. All the city (verse 33). Many people came to Jesus for healing. Would not suffer the devils to speak (verse 34). Jesus did not want the testimony of evil spirits. Many of the people were looking for a political leader who would drive out the Romans and make Israel a great nation. They misunderstood the purpose of Jesus' coming, and he did not want to be misled by their false ideas.

III. Preaching in Galilee (vs. 35-39). A great while before day (verse 35). Jesus was accustomed to spend much time in prayer. Simon and they that were with him (verse 36). Peter and his companions. Sought him (verse 37). Wanted him to perform more miracles. Let us go (verse 38). Jesus knew that he had not yet finished his work. Preached in their synagogues (verse 39). Jesus went from place to place, preaching the good news of the kingdom of God.

Farmers Lose Money

Better Handling Of Cream Would Reduce Losses

Saskatchewan farmers last year probably more than $50,000 during the year ended October 31 as a result of cream being graded down for various causes, according to Percy E. Reed, dairy commissioner for Saskatchewan, in broadcasting a lecture under the auspices of the Saskatchewan Farmer Radio Farm School.

Better handling methods would have saved a good deal of this loss, Mr. Reed declared. During the period under review there were 83,053 cans of cream graded No. 2 or below because of high acidity or the presence of other undesirable foreign flavors. This, however, only provided for 12½ per cent. of the total output, the remaining 86.5 per cent. grading No. 1 or better.

Of the total amount graded down 15.6 per cent., or 12,944 cans, was put down because of bad flavors in the cream, such as garlic, or turnip or weed as it is more popularly known, was largely responsible for this.

Credit Goes To Egyptians

Solved Problem Of Measuring Earth's Surface In 1200 B.C.

Russian scientists have just completed the study of what is said to be one of the most remarkable Egyptian parchments in history.

The parchment has been decided after years of painstaking work by Professors B. B. Turaieff and Struve, noted orientalists. The document is said to shed new light on the mathematical studies of the ancient Egyptians, establishing the earth's surface as well as the globe was solved by the Egyptians in 1200 B.C., whereas the solution of this problem heretofore has been attributed to Archimedes, who lived in the third century, B.C.

MANY BRITISH SETTLERS COMING TO CANADA SOON

Ottawa.—The coming to Canada next month of Hon. L. C. Amery, Secretary of State for the British Government, probably will lead to a final determination of a large programme of British migration to Canada. It was plainly submitted to the British authorities some months ago and the decision was deferred until Mr. Amery had an opportunity of looking personally into the matter and of making a first hand investigation.

Under this scheme, which has received the approval of the Canadian Government, it is proposed to establish a number of training farms in Canada, at which British boys will be taught the principles of agriculture and then placed on farms in the Dominion. It is estimated that it will cost about $2,000 to establish each of these farms and that the annual cost of maintaining them will be about $1,000 each. It is proposed that the boys shall remain on the farms for a period of two years, during which time they will receive $100 per annum in addition to their board and lodging. At the end of this period it is expected that they will be able to take up farming on their own account.

Mr. Amery, it is understood, will be accompanied to Canada by Lord Lovat, who is known as the originator of the scheme. Lord Lovat has been a keen supporter of the movement for the settlement of ex-service men on the land, and has himself established a number of ex-service men on his own estate in Scotland.

COMMUNITY SUICIDE

One of the strangest phenomena witnessed in most towns is the apparent eagerness with which many otherwise good citizens contribute to the tendency to commit community suicide.

These citizens will often show uncommon zeal in boosting any movement to obtain civic improvements, to promote the location of new industries, to secure better educational facilities, and so on. Yet many of these same proud boosters will deliberately engage in a practice which nullifies all their laudable efforts—and then wonder why the town doesn't go ahead.

We refer to the suicidal habit of buying away from home, which is largely responsible for the failure of many communities to make the progress which their natural advantages should make possible. The money that ought to be kept at home for the expansion of local trade and industry is sent away to distant cities, never to return, through the indifference or thoughtlessness of the very persons who should set an example of local pride and loyalty.

A trifling saving here and there, usually more imaginary than real, is sufficient to cause the average citizen to forget his duty to his community and to himself, which if performed would mean more in the direction of local prosperity than all the shouting that can be put together.

Why boost in one direction, while committing community suicide in another?

A WISH

Oh, just to be in Canada,
'Neath a grey bedazzled sky.
In the splendor of the Canada,
Just as winter draweth nigh.

When the cold North-Wind is blowing,
And the lakes are frozen too,
Just to watch the men a-mowing,
As we children used to do.

Or to hear the sleigh bells ringing
On an evening cold and still.
Just to hear York Boy singing,
Would give me an honest thrill.

When the Northern Lights are gleam
They seem to be calling me. Yes,
They seem to be in my dreaming,
And this longing comes to me.

Then just to be in Canada,
In the dear old Winter time.
To live and work in Canada,
Would make happiness sublime.

A PROMISE MORE THAN KEPT

When the publishers of the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal two years ago announced that the owner of the paper wished them to reduce the subscription price from two dollars to one dollar a year, they promised that not a single feature of the publication would be eliminated, but one feature would be added and the paper made more valuable than ever. It is frankly admitted by their million readers that their promise has been more than fulfilled, and today the Family Herald and Weekly Star at one dollar a year is a marvel of the newspaper world. No home in Canada would regret this investment. Just think of a great 72 page publication at less than two cents per week, and every page of it alone worth the money. No wonder the Family Herald and Weekly Star has over a million readers. It deserves them all, and more too.

When this bridge collapsed beneath him as he was driving across, Fred Gelinas of Sherbrooke had an astonishing escape from death during the recent Quebec floods. Swept downstream by the muddy waters Mr. Gelinas struggled to shore after a fight that lasted a mile and a half. His Chevrolet, after being buried under fifteen feet of water for two days, was found as shown in the picture, practically undamaged, when the floods receded. Only a wet coil prevented the motorist from driving off, as after the car was hauled out a touch of the starter turned over the motor

Mrs. McMann looked at her and sighed. Helmi was too happy to yield to any life-saving suggestions.

Nothing dimmed the glory of the day for Helmi until they reached the top of the hill looking down at the little town of Hanna-man, where a cluster of houses were grouped around the station. Then Helmi suddenly caught Jack's arm.

"Oh, Jack, I no like!" she said. "Look at the little houses—they are like cats going to spring! It is not friendly."

Jack put his arm around her to show it was friendly. Helmi, nothing daunted, but my Finn girl!

His eyes were tender when he looked at her, but Helmi's were full of fears. "It is a bad place, this," she said shivering, as she pointed down into the valley; "it is full of bad words and bad thoughts for us."

The river wound its wide [illegible] below them, sultry and smooth, with no trace of haste or unrest. From where they stood they could see a smaller stream, which, coming down a wooded ravine, poured its waters into the larger stream with a musical murmur which came softly to their ears. They had stopped their horses at the top of the hill.

The arrival at the fateful spot and the solemnity of their mission gave eloquence to Jack's tongue. "We do not know each other very well, Finn-girl," he said, "but we love each other, and that's all that matters. Now, let us get one thing straight. We have to live each other—that's all there is to getting married and making it go. I think you, Helmi from the time I saw you first, because you have such a straight eye. I believe you are mature, and I am too. I've never had a girl and you, You are not afraid now, are you Helmi?"

Helmi wished she could tell him everything in her past life—Jack would understand—but it was no use to get always the right words in English.

Jack continued: "We are like two streams, Helmi dear, that join there and run together to the sea. We are going to join, just like that, and run together all the way. Once we join we cannot separate. It is a long way to the sea, too, for us, and there may be rocks and rapids and rough water; but we'll always be square, Helmi. You are not afraid now, are you dear?"

Helmi's eyes were misty with tears, but they were brimming with love and confidence and it's answer was [illegible]

Mrs. McMann looked at her and sighed. Helmi was too happy to yield to any life-saving suggestions.

Nothing dimmed the glory of the day for Helmi until they reached the top of the hill looking down at the little town of Hanna-man, where a cluster of houses were grouped around the station. Then Helmi suddenly caught Jack's arm.

"Oh, Jack, I no like!" she said. "Look at the little houses—they are like cats going to spring! It is not friendly."

Jack put his arm around her to show it was friendly. Helmi, nothing daunted, but my Finn girl!

His eyes were tender when he looked at her, but Helmi's were full of fears. "It is a bad place, this," she said shivering, as she pointed down into the valley; "it is full of bad words and bad thoughts for us."

The river wound its wide [illegible] below them, sultry and smooth, with no trace of haste or unrest. From where they stood they could see a smaller stream, which, coming down a wooded ravine, poured its waters into the larger stream with a musical murmur which came softly to their ears. They had stopped their horses at the top of the hill.

The arrival at the fateful spot and the solemnity of their mission gave eloquence to Jack's tongue. "We do not know each other very well, Finn-girl," he said, "but we love each other, and that's all that matters. Now, let us get one thing straight. We have to live each other—that's all there is to getting married and making it go. I think you, Helmi from the time I saw you first, because you have such a straight eye. I believe you are mature, and I am too. I've never had a girl and you, You are not afraid now, are you Helmi?"

Helmi wished she could tell him everything in her past life—Jack would understand—but it was no use to get always the right words in English.

Jack continued: "We are like two streams, Helmi dear, that join there and run together to the sea. We are going to join, just like that, and run together all the way. Once we join we cannot separate. It is a long way to the sea, too, for us, and there may be rocks and rapids and rough water; but we'll always be square, Helmi. You are not afraid now, are you dear?"

Helmi's eyes were misty with tears, but they were brimming with love and confidence and it's answer was [illegible]

[illegible] Helmi laughed her little laugh [illegible] Mrs. McMann's baleful people [illegible] Helmi [illegible] "Jack Ilsom is quite a boy," said Mrs. McMann, "and I believe he sailed you right out like that bogin' you'd refuse him, Helmi."

Helmi's eyes were pools of rapture. "I fooled him didn't I" that Jack Doreen! He'll know better next time than ask a Finn girl."

Mrs. McMann looked at her and sighed. Helmi was too happy to yield to any life-saving suggestions.

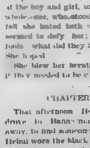
YOUNG WOMEN SUFFER MOST

These Two Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound



Ayer's Cliff, Quebec.—"I have been tending for three years, and [illegible] at the end of the year I always feel tired and have no appetite. I was awful sick each month too having pains in my back until sometimes I was obliged to stop working. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I heard many women telling how good it was so I thought it would help me. And it did. Now I take six bottles every year and recommend it to others."—DORALBA FAUTEUX, Ayer's Cliff, Quebec.

"Unable to Work"

Canning, Nova Scotia.—"I had irregular periods and great suffering at those times, the pains causing vomiting and fainting. I was teaching school and often for some hours I would be unable to attend to my work. Through an advertisement in the papers I knew of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has been of great benefit to me, the troubles being completely relieved."—Laura J. Eaton, Canning, King's County, Nova Scotia.

WAS SO NERVOUS and SHORT of BREATH COULD HARDLY SLEEP

Mrs. Louise Baglin, Golden Lake, Ont., writes:—"For several years I was greatly troubled with my heart. I was so nervous and short of breath I could hardly sleep at night, and I'd sleep for a while I had bad dreams.

"I managed to help at my work, however, until I began to have dizzy spells which got so bad I had to give up. I used many kinds of medicine, but found no help until I got a box of

After the first box I found a great change, and after two boxes I was as well as I could be.

Wireless Beacons For 'Planes

Machine Will Indicate Course By Strength Of Signals

Wireless lighthouses for aviators have been erected by Trinity House round the Brimish coast to assist vessels in taking bearings in foggy weather, but the United States is showing the way with an automatic system of wireless beacons for land and air traffic.

There are in the United States twelve primary aviation companies who have flown 7,000,000 miles in the last three months, regularly transporting mails and passengers over 5,000 miles of air routes. It is planned to establish a series of wireless beacons at intervals of 200 miles along these airways.

The directive properties of the frame aerial will be employed, and the transmitter will send out two signals of right-angled beam pattern, each radiating signals in its direction in which it pass.

An aeroplane flying along a course equal distance between [illegible] stations will receive audible signals of equal strength from each transmitter, but when turning away to the left or right it receives one signal of greater intensity than the other.

These signals can be received on an ordinary receiving set, no special direction-finding apparatus being necessary. The aeroplane will thereby [illegible] on a similar ray or directional wireless.

A World Famous Figure

Captain Gordon Campbell, V.C. Commanded "Mystery Ship" During War

It is understood that the negotiations now governing retirement will shortly lop off from active list of the Royal Navy several well-known captains who did distinguished service in the Great War. Among those it is reported, will be Captain Gordon Campbell, the famous Mystery Ship V.C. Captain Campbell was a distinguished officer in 1914. Before the war ended he had become a captain, V.C. and a world-famous figure. The Mystery Ship or "Q" ship as it was officially called, practically originated with him, and his fights and narrow escapes with submarines were irresistible romance and most thrilling.

The "Q" ship was a fighting vessel disguised to look like a tramp and carried a naval crew dressed in keeping with the supposed character of their ship. Captain Campbell usually sailed with having lost one ship in a scrap with a submarine and having been back at sea in another ship hunting U-boats before nightfall.

Fruits On the Prairies

Great Variety Of Home Grown Fruits Found On Prairie Farms

An inspection of 3,612 farms in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta made in 1927, showed that 3,411 had good vegetable gardens; 1,258 were growing small fruits; 270 had ornamental shrubs; 265 were testing standard apple trees and 213 were growing plums. Twenty years ago the number of prairie farms with' pretentious flower and vegetable gardens was small and little attempt was made to grow fruits. Now a great variety of home grown fruits is common to the prairie farm home menu. While vegetables of a wide variety grow to perfection, for two years in succession a Manitoba farmer has won the cauliflower championship at the American Vegetable Growers Association annual show.

A Scotch countryman entered a store with the view of purchasing something for his sweetheart. The salesman suggested an umbrella, a pair of stockings or possibly "something for her neck."

"The very thing," responded the countryman. "A cake of soap."

THIN, WATERY BLOOD ALWAYS DANGEROUS

If Not Corrected Serious Results Sure To Follow

In no trouble is delay neglected more dangerous than in anaemia or thin, watery blood. It is very common in young girls and in persons who are overworked or confined within doors. It makes its approach in so stealthy a manner that it is often well developed before the trouble is recognized.

But taken in time the toxic treatment through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, so enriches the blood that good health and strength is speedily regained. The correction of anaemic conditions by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is as certain as anything can be Miss Teresa Hendry Dunarven, Que., is one of the many anaemic sufferers who has found new health through the use of this medicine she says: "I cannot express too strongly my thanks for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. I was suffering from a badly run-down condition. I was very nervous, had little desire for food, and would feel tired out at the least exertion. In this condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before using them very long found my health gradually improving and under their continued use was completely restored. For this reason I earnestly advise all weak girls to take these pills, feeling sure that they will do for others what they did for me."

Send your name and address to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and they will mail you free a useful little book on "Building Up the Blood." The pills can be obtained through any druggist or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Sailors Preferred Jail

VERY HARD LARGE PIMPLES

Spread Over Face and Hands. Cuticura Heals.

"My trouble began with a few pimples on my face and hands and soon spread all over them. The pimples were very hard, large and red, and developed a scaly crust. They itched and burned so that I scratched them, which caused discomfort. My face was disfigured, and I could not go by people in water and could hardly do my work.

"A friend advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I purchased some, and in about two months I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Jennie Ducharme, 461 Ottawa St., Sherwood, Man.

JAPANESE IMPORTERS WANT ALBERTA WOOL

Inquiries have been received during the past week by the department of agriculture from an importing firm in Kobi, Japan, for quantities and shipments of large quantities of Alberta wool. Tribute is paid to the high quality of wool from western Canada and the hope is expressed that this product may be utilized in supplying large contracts for the Japanese government.

It will also be recalled that Captain Kawakami who recently visited Alberta from Japan made thorough investigations into the possibility of shipping dairy and beef cattle, horses and swine from this province to meet the steadily growing demand in the Oriental market.

LOCAL BRANCH CANADIAN LEGION ELECTS OFFICERS

The annual meeting of the Fort Saskatchewan branch of the Canadian Legion was held in the Memorial hall on Monday evening, president Harper in the chair. There was not a large attendance, the sectional and a lodge meeting being held at the same time depleting the ranks of the veterans. The business of nominating and electing officials was carried out in rapid fire style and the attention of the meeting turned to other matters, among which was the decision to hold the installation of officers early in February and to re-decorate the buffet room before that event, the artists and artisans to be recruited from the members of the organization.

The officers elected were:
President—Major G. J. Dawson.
1st. vice-president—J. S. Wright.
2nd. vice-president—A. Wootton.
Treasurer—D. Roberts.
Executive Committee—D. Guild, F. Stuckey, W. G. Shera, D. Harper, W. H. Thorne-Collinson.

1st. Vice-president—Mrs. A. S. O'Brien.
2nd. Vice-president—Mrs. W. T. Lane.
3rd. Vice-president—Mrs. Floyd Baker.
Secretary—Mrs. J. D. McLean.
Treasurer—Mrs. H. F. Kingsley.

A most gratifying year was reported by the various committees.

AUTOMOBILE LICENSES INCREASED IN 1927

An increase of 8,391 in the number of automobile licenses issued by Provincial government license officers throughout the province during the year 1927 is announced by the Provincial Secretary's department. During 1927 no less than 72,336 motor car and truck licenses were issued as compared with 64,129 issued in 1926.

HOCKEY

The Fort Tigers hockey team met the Edmonton Capitals on the local ice last Thursday and trimmed them 5—0. The game, the first for the local boys, was fast considering the soft condition of the ice. The boys put up a good game in which no strife occurred. D. E. R. Ewer handled the ball and his decisions were satisfactory to both teams. The Tiger line-up was: R. Pocock, goal; F. Favell, P. Kayras, defense; Bud Allard, G. Walker, V. Berg, forwards; A. Allard, I. Hutton, subs.

The Fort Tigers played a return game with the Capitals at the Arena, Edmonton, at the week end. The Capitals were stronger on their home ice than when visiting the Fort, having practically two teams to choose from. Nevertheless the Fort boys, though defeated 6—0, were the superior team, being on the small end of the score only through the magnificent display of the Capitals goalkeeper, who was unscrupulable.

A further return game is being arranged and fans should keep an eye opened for the announcement.

Apologizing to Sir Henry Thornton and Tommy Lane for mentioning the fact, the game between Vegreville and the Fort had to be called off Tuesday night owing to lateness of the train, due, it is said, to a wreck further east. The Lamont team kindly stepped into the breach and came up by auto for a friendly game. It was late in the evening before they arrived and the game did not go full time. It was a good practice game for both teams in which the Fort handily won by 8—3. It was very sporting of Lamont to come up with a team at such short notice and the boys should not forget it.

The Vegreville team were to have played here tonight (Wednesday) but were again prevented by unforeseen circumstances.

PROVINCIAL EXHIBIT AT BEER PARK

An interesting feature in connection with the Provincial Seed Fair which is to be held in Calgary from January 16 to 20, will be an exhibit of the agricultural products and other resources of the province display by the Publicity Branch of the Department of Agriculture. FORT CANADIAN GIRLS IN TRAINING STAGE CARNIVAL

The C.G.I.T. of Fort Saskatchewan held a successful skating carnival on Monday evening. There was a large attendance of dressed up folks and the dresses and costumes were pretty or amusing, whichever object being desired. The rink presented a gay sight with the crowd of fancy skaters; fancy in costume, if not in skating, and the younger element got quite a kick out of it. There was also a large number of skaters in ordinary clothing and of spectators. Hot dogs were served in the dressing room, the dispensers of which made a mistake in not barking their delicacies enough, leaving too much to be done by the said hot dogs. Music was provided by Frank Depo, proprietor of the Eden Palace theatre, who took over his new and powerful whatyoumaycallit electrophone.

Mrs. Walton, Mrs. Grumort and Mr. Ewer had the difficult task of sorting out the wheat from the chaff, their chief difficulty being still in finding the wheat but deciding which was the best of the wheat. As a result of their nerve-wracking cogitations the

THE WISE FRIEND

Once upon a time—and not very long ago—there was a brother and sister who had a friend. A very special friend he was, who told them stories about men who flew through the skies over far-flung spaces of the earth; of boys and girls who had thrilling and mysterious adventures; of others who had most unusual situations confront them, yet managed to come through their tests with steadfast and courageous hearts; of wild animals in deep jungles—how they lived, hunted, and died. Such a host of things did their good friend tell them of, and how interestingly he told them!

Came the time when their friend moved away to another town. Brother and sister were saddened by his going, for they knew they would miss his cheery smile and the wonderful stories and amusing anecdotes he was so fond of telling them. Then one day the postman brought them a letter from their friend, in which he told them he was sending The Youth's Companion so that they would not forget him, and that in it they would find just the sort of stories they had so much enjoyed hearing him tell.

And sure enough, a day or two later the magazine arrived, and brother and sister found that it truly did have just such wonderful stories of adventure and sport and mystery, and just such jokes as they loved so well. And every time that a new number of The Youth's Companion arrived, they wrote a note to their friend and told him how much pleasure the magazine gave them.

You, too, may have just that same pleasure, by means of a subscription to The Youth's Companion. Subscribers will receive:

1. The Youth's Companion—52 big monthly issues in 1928, and
2. Two extra numbers to new subscribers ordering within 30 days.

Canada In 1927

We are now well launched into the new year of 1928, and it is possible to enter into the completed story of Canada's progress and development in the year which has been ended.

It is the universally expressed opinion that the year which witnessed the Dominion's diamond jubilee was one of the best years in Canada's history. It was a year unmarred by any great national disasters or epidemics; it was a year of fairly general prosperity, it was a year of national growth and of development along lines making for national unity and a better conception of Canada's future possibilities.

The Dominion is never highly regarded by our own people, and has attained to a higher place in the eyes of the whole world. The new status which the Dominions within the Empire has been productive of greater national pride and confidence which made expansion in a still greater degree imminent to build stronger and better in the years to come. Not least among the factors adding to Canada's international position was the election of Hon. Ian Mackenzie to a seat on the Council of the League of Nations and the appointment of a Canadian Minister at Washington, and an American Minister at Ottawa.

Western Canada can justly claim credit for many of the things which have resulted in the improved position of the country as a whole. During the past five years it is conservatively estimated that the farmers of Western Canada have sold farm products to a value of $2,500,000,000 at country points, and with the return of prosperity to the West, there has been a rapid improvement in business everywhere. In a New Year's message, Sir Henry Drayton declared that the grain of the year must be largely credited to agriculture and the extension of Canadian mining, and pulp, and paper industries. Western people have long contended that a successful and prosperous agriculture meant prosperity for all. The past year has demonstrated this.

One of the most noteworthy developments of the year has been the rapid increase of wealth produced from the mineral resources of the Dominion. Practically every province has experienced important developments in this respect, and as a country in the world is more attractive to new capital or inviting larger investments in this field of human activity. It is everywhere apparent that Canada is entering upon a new era in mining, and one which gives promise of adding enormously to the wealth of the people and providing employment for many thousands of workmen, not alone in mining itself but in all the allied industries and businesses, including transportation, which such mining operations bring about.

The trade and commerce of Canada has continued at a high level, with the Dominion occupying a position in the front rank of nations, and with a per capita trade higher than any country except New Zealand.

In the world of finance, Canada has been blessed with cheaper money for productive purposes than any country, except the United States. Taxation has been reduced, revenues have expanded, and surprises in Governmental administration have taken the place of former deficits. Canada's ability to pay off over $50,000,000 of its national debt out of current income in 1927, is significant of the great change which has taken place in the last few years.

Western cities report a year of great building activity, a largely increased volume of bank clearings, growth in population, and many prosperous centres, profitable operation of public utilities, and good business in almost every branch of commercial activity. Towns and rural municipalities present the same favorable report, an ever increasing number of the latter having liquidated their entire debenture indebtedness and otherwise increased their healthiness and increased their assets.

Thus the old year closed with peace, contentment and prosperity prevailing throughout the Dominion, with a new confidence and courage manifesting itself throughout the Maritime Provinces, with activity general in the central eastern Provinces, and with optimism prevailing in the West, coupled with well organized efforts to steadily advance its agricultural interests and development and with entirely new opportunities on a large scale developing in the north. Canadians can and are facing the new year with pride and confidence.

Underground Railway In Tokio

The first underground railway in the Far East opened Tokio to the public. Running one and one-half miles underground, it is constructed on the pattern of the New York subway system and is said to be proof against earthquakes. It connects the railway terminus at Ueno with the Asakusa pleasure quarters.

Canada Has Long Missing Soul

Was Originally Attached To Charter Of William the Conqueror

A seal originally attached to the charter of William the Conqueror, which always was assumed to have been lost beyond hope of recovery, has been found at the Guildhall, London.

Among an old and miscellaneous collection of articles a red bag was discovered, container, parts of wax which when pieced together with the aid of British Museum experts proved to be the centre of the long missing seal.

TO THE MOTHERS OF ALL PALE GIRLS

If Your Daughter Shows Signs Of Anaemia - Tonic Is Needed

Anaemia is simply a lack of blood. It is one of the most common and at the same time most dangerous troubles from which growing girls suffer. It is common because the blood so often becomes impoverished during the period when girls often overwork and overstudy. It is dangerous because of the weakness of body it brings and because of the tendency to grow steadily worse. Every growing girl should occasionally take a tonic to ward off this insidious trouble. In the opinion of many a careful action in rebuilding the blood lies Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made a world-wide reputation in the case of Miss Claire Sullivan Pitcher Cove, Nfld., who strongly praises the use of this medicine. Miss Sullivan says: "During my growing years I was the greatest kind from this and watery blood. I was constantly weak and tired; my appetite was poor, my sleep unrefreshing and I was troubled with headaches. When I began taking medicine I was attacked with acute appendicitis and the operation left me in a very weakened state. My mother, who had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, had me take them and after using them for a time I found that my health was simply wonderful, as they completely restored my health, and now pale girls invariably recure I always recommend these pills to pale girls suffering as I did."

You can get the pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Switzerland Finds Ready Market For Cheese Constantly Improving

Switzerland hasn't coal copper or oil, and its iron deposits are not available. It has to go away from home for wood, cotton and foodstuffs, but it converts the raw material it buys into so many clever and ingeniously constructed devices that it never has any trouble to find ready market. Swiss watches, bandoleers, music boxes, sound boxes, and chocolates are known the world over.

The Swiss have harnessed the rivers that tumble from their mountains and have cheaper electricity and more to use of it than can be boasted of their neighbors. Through all the troublous times ensuing from the Great War, they kept their currency at par and sometimes at premium. Their standard of living is above the average and as good as any, and their school system is world renowned.

All of which goes to demonstrate that good sense and a peaceful disposition are worth more than wide territory and natural resources to a people.

Had More With American For Complete Collection Of Famous Prints

As a result of the neck-and-neck race between an American and an Englishman, neither of whom knows him so far been disclosed, a complete collection of famous prints, illustrating the street cries of London, is now on exhibition at the Ashurnam Galleries here for the first time in over a century.

The Englishman won by a few hours and the collection, valued at £35,000 (about $132,000), will remain in that country. Even the British Museum possesses only thirteen of these rare prints.

96. Dunstan's Annual Report Shows Amazing Results Attained

By Financial Times

Of all the various things that were set on foot following the close of the war to aid the wounded soldier, none perhaps attracted so much attention and sympathetic interest as that which is designed to help the blind soldier to overcome his great handicap. The reason for this interest lies in the fact that men and women are used to consider blindness the greatest tragedy that can befall mankind in the prime of life. It is remarkable therefore to read of the work that has been done with blinded soldiers at St. Dunstan's London. The twelfth annual report of this institution has just been issued. St. Dunstan's was founded by the late Sir Arthur Pearson, himself blind to all intents and purposes, who had been a sufferer between the age of 30 and 40 from detached retina with consequent hemorrhage in the vitreous humor and then it vanished entirely. The work of St. Dunstan's is the result of his own experience and of the skill or power to take up again his former occupation since its foundation 2 265 officers and men have come under the care of the organization. The pages of the report which is entitled, "While Memory Lives," provides moving and compelling reading concerning the manner in which those ex-service men have risen above the affliction. It seems almost incredible that men should have fought and overcome the struggle back to a new business life.

Children Arrested For Murder

Nine Hundred Homes on Wolfe Island Implicated In Slaying Of Italian Vice-Consul

Nine hundred Bourbon children have been arrested by police in Rigo in connection with the murder of the Count Italian vice-consul, Signor Sacco, who was beaten to death with a spade and robbed by children on a Grand Island estate according to the latest information pondered on the Daily Mail.

Kozzio's body was found December 26. He had been visiting a niece the night of the killing. At the time it was believed that bandits had killed and robbed him and children were not suspected. Outside gold, which the forth had been extracted the thumb ters.

According to the Riga correspondent of the Daily Mail, about twenty of the children entered the house and the rest cut off the eastern portion of the province, and the Chief Administrator in charge by the Chief Administrator in charge by the Russian Department of Agriculture.

British Editor Sums Up His Impressions Following A Recent Visit To Canada

Sir James Owen, of Exeter, England, who paid a lengthy visit last summer to Canada and the United States, has been telling the story of his journeys in the Exeter Times, of which he is editor. His final observations upon Canada, in summing up his impressions, are pointed and interesting. He writes:

The Canadians are developing along fine lines. They have been sometimes that they are being Americanized. There are no obvious signs of that. The Canadian does not like an American, nor does he think as an American. His outlook on life is less fashionable than that of his neighbors across the border. There is in the Canadian a subtlety a restraint, such as one would expect of a people with Celtic as largely from British ancestry.

The recent celebration of the Jubilee of Confederation has undoubtedly quickened the sense of Canadian nationality. It has inspired all classes with a new confidence. We people in England do not understand what a terrible Confederation was, and is. Physically Canada is sharply divided by immense barriers. The Laurentian and the rocks off the eastern province, desolate prairie provinces, and the vast Rocky Mountains separate the Pacific seaboard from the eastern provinces. The natural lines of development of the whole country run north and there is tremendous rivalry between Canada and the United States which is inevitable. Nevertheless however Canada has been developed east and west, and the result has been a tremendous national asset. It may be doubted whether the railways would have overcome the pull of the south if there had not been an intense national pride in Canada. I was warned that I should find the great cities of Canada essentially American. I found them essentially Canadian, looking over north, and east, and west for their development and wealth, not south.

"Whether Canada will indefinitely remain a member of the British Empire is for the Canadians to say. I think the chances are that, having achieved their independence for all practical purposes, being linked to Great Britain and the Empire by bonds intangible and up rigid rather than material, the connection will persist, and may well become stronger with the passage of time, and the inevitable development of a common Empire policy. But, whatever the future may have in store for us all, I am persuaded that Canadians will not surrender their independence, their nationhood, to become a mere appendix to the United States.

"The Canadians are not altogether happy about the exploitation of their resources by the Americans. The two nations are neighbors, and have many and increasing affiliations, but Canada is jealous of her independence and there is a sort of uneasy feeling amongst some thoughtful people that if it is true that trade follows the flag, the converse may be true, that the flag follows the dollars. There is no suggestion that American concentrates, or has even imagined, the conquest of Canada by arms. That is a proposition which would give even the most aggressive American pause. But where they have the whip-hand, United States finance and United States government which are much the same thing— are apt to be arbitrary, and uncomfortable neighbors, and if, and when, Wall Street has Canadian industry in its grip, demands may be made which will be resented by Canadian pride and self-respect.

"The next twenty-five or thirty years, then, must be critical for Canada in its relations with the United States. And in its relations towards the British Empire. If trouble can be avoided for that length of time, I believe it can be avoided altogether. Twenty years, thirty, forty years hence years are nothing in the life of a nation—Canada will have become, if reality what she is potentially today, one of the Great Powers of the world—territorial, economic, intellectual."

Canadian Hogs To New Zealand

Fare Bred Instar From Canadian Farms Go To Antipodes

A shipment of six hogs, type purebred swine from Canadian farms has recently been made to New Zealand, it is learned. The hogs were Canadian type Berkshires, which were owned by Duff Bros., Ridgetown, Ontario, and were pure winners at the 1927 Royal Winter Fair at Toronto. The other three were Tamworths, two sows and a boar, purchased from Ontario and Quebec breeders. This is the first year in which hogs have been imported into New Zealand from North America since 1918. The need of new blood and the fact that Canada now holds a leading place in the production of bacon hogs following an extended period of unsatisfactory effort in this direction both on the part of the pure bred breeders and farmers in general, prompted the New Zealand Department of Agriculture to follow the importation of Canadian hogs for breeding purposes. This is the second shipment of Canadian hogs to New Zealand this year and another order is said to be under consideration for the hogs for shipment to New Zealand.

DISCOVERY OF GREAT VALUE

Finding Of J. H. Craigie May Evolve Method Of Rust Control

Dr. H. M. Tory, chairman of the National Research Council, has informed the public that a discovery "of great scientific importance" had been made in the Dominion Rust Laboratory. The nature of this discovery he did not then reveal. Now a newspaper despatch from Winnipeg relates that the Canadian section of the American Phytopathological Society at a recent meeting received information concerning a discovery that has been made by Mr. J. H. Craigie, a member of the staff of the Rust Laboratory in Winnipeg. Mr. Craigie's discovery was described by the head of the Bureau of Plant Research at New Gardens, London England, as the most striking mycological discovery of the century. It is not asserted that Mr. Craigie has discovered a preventive of rust infection, but it is claimed that he has revealed facts concerning the behavior of rust spores that will be of immense value in the search for means to control rust.

Intensive investigation of the rust problem was organized rather more than two years ago since then facilities have been made into the nature of the parasite and its spores, sources of rust infection and the practicability of dusting crops with sulphur to prevent spread of the fungus disease. Much research work is necessary to secure a rust-resisting variety have also been carried on. If a wheat that is immune from rust infection has been found and if Mr. Craigie has found the road to a method of coping directly with the parasite, a cause of heavy crop losses will be eliminated and the farmers and the country at large will benefit financially. Organized scientific research to will have rendered a notable service to agriculture. Mail and Empire

Quebec Anticipates Big Sports Season

The outlook is for a record season of winter sports at Quebec, according to information from Jack Strathdee, newly-appointed sports director at the Chateau Frontenac, the winter sports centre of the Ancient Capital. The season will be in full swing about the end of February and will continue till March during which time thousands of tourists from all parts of the Continent will gather to take part in the various events. Quebec weather is consistent—not too cold and not subject to sudden thaws to put an end to winter activities.

In assuming the duties of Winter Sports Director, Mr. Strathdee brings with him a wealth of experience which will be of value to the work he is undertaking. For some years past he has been engaged in professional outdoor sports in vacation regions. More recently he has managed the French River Bungalow Camps and Canadian Pacific Railway where he made a reputation in this work.

An extensive and interesting program has been arranged for the Chateau Frontenac by Mr. Strathdee including several entirely new features. Among these is a novel game of "Indian Cold" which is played along the lines of the Royal and Ancient game, except that shells and numerals are used and bows and arrows substituted for clubs and balls. What with winds and heavy drifts there will be no lack of hazards in the new game.

The Eastern International Dog Sled Derby, an international event, will be run from Quebec February 20, 21 and 22.

Expresses The Belief That Reformed Calendar Will Go Into Effect In 1933

B.C. Sheep Breeders' Winnings

Two Farmers Won 100 Prizes For Sheep Exhibited South Of Sea Line

Two farmers of Huntingdon, B.C., A. C. Stewart and R. C. Harrison, recently won over 100 prizes with 50 head of sheep entered in agricultural shows held in the States of Washington and Oregon. Among the 100 prizes we held not later than the summer of 1930 if the reform is to be effected five years hence.

Briefly, the calendar which Mr. Cotsworth advocates, after years of study and consultation with authorities throughout the world, would provide a year of 13 months of 28 days each, every month starting on a Sunday and ending on a Saturday. Every date would fall on the same day every year. The extra day needed beyond the 13 months to fill the year would be dated December 29 and named "Year Day" and come between December 28 and January 1. In leap years a "leap day," a universal holiday, would be inserted at the end of June. The extra month would be known as "Sol" and come between June and July.

The calendar for 1933 is already in preparation at Cresswich, England, as it takes some six years to work out a calendar for any given year with the necessary working out of dates, moons, planet, star positions and other matters. The calendar which the calendar in 1933 must therefore be made in 1929 before this work has been completed. The year 1933 lends itself to the change because it commences on a Sunday and ends on a Sunday.

Mr. Cotsworth feels assured the reform is a certainty because he has endeavored to get capital, labor and women's organizations. At present the League of Nations has requested each nation to appoint an advisory council to investigate the project.

"Kapell master," Vierboetter replied without hesitation, when, recently in Paris, he was asked what he would do when he retired from active participation in swimming contests. The lack of money was the only cause of his delay in realizing his ambition.

"Didn't you bring back $30,000 from Toronto? That was the amount of the prize?"

"Do you know how much I brought back to Cologne? Six thousand gold marks. $1,500," replied Vierboetter. "Too much expense, too much expense," he wailed.

British Newspaper Man Writes Of Class Distinction In England

Mr Carey Lord, one of the British newspapermen's party, who toured Canada last summer, has recorded his impressions in a series of articles in the Advertiser and Times, of Chiswick, Lancashire. In one article he says:

"There are few or no class distinctions in Canada. A. B., after he has lived one call another 'Tom' in a most familiar way, and Tom who laughingly answered as a member of Parliament and the man who addressed him a menial in the hotel below the rank of waiter. At another city a gentleman on my right at dinner told me he could not live in England again because it still maintained its class distinctions. The gentleman on my left had only just told me my neighbor on the right was reputed to be worth twenty million dollars. Halve the 'reputed' figure and he was yet a millionaire twice over in sterling and he had only to return to England and give an odd hundred thousand to a hospital and he could command a peerage: a passport to the highest society. This is an object lesson to Britain, where traditions die hard. If the imaginary immolation in my country could forget their imaginary class superiority they would do more to check the present-day tendency toward Bolshevism than all the Bolshi agencies they have already up or are ever likely to set up."

JESUS AND SINNERS

Golden Text. "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners." Mark 2:17

Lesson Mark 2:1-17

Devotional Reading Psalm 32. 1, 2, 5-7, 10, 11.

Explanations and Comments

I. In Authority Of Personal Forgiveness (2:1-12). Jesus returned to Capernaum and it was soon known that he was at home. A crowd gathered at once. There was not room for more even about the door. Four men who had brought a palsied friend to Jesus, finding that they could not come near him, proceeded with their burden to the roof. They made an opening through the roof and let the man down before the Christ Physician.

If it was one of the better homes in Capernaum, there was a central courtyard in which the crowd gathered, and Jesus spoke to them from the balcony or veranda which extended around the wall of the house. In the case, it was the tiles of the roof over the veranda which were removed. If it was a poorer house, there was only one room, with an outside stairway leading to the roof, where in warm weather the family slept. The roof could be easily opened, or dug through, for it was almost flat, sloping only enough to let the rain run off, and was composed of mortar, tar, ashes, and sand rolled until hard. Sometimes the joists were covered with stone slabs, and if this was the case in Peter's home, the men had not only to dig through the earth but to pry up the slabs.

Then they let a mattress, padded quilt, or blanket, and as the roof was low the four men could hold on to the corners and by stooping could let down the sick man without the aid of ropes (and ropes are represented in most pictures of the event). Probably in bringing the man the bearers carried him and his "bed" upon a board, or stretcher.

The four men were persevering and they were inventive. Most men would have been discouraged by the crowd and satisfied that they had done all they could be done, would have carried the sick man home again. Could they be expected to do the impossible?

"If you find that one door is blocked, try another; and if no ordinary way is open, make a new and extraordinary way. Tear up the roof, make a new departure. Love is inventive, and enthusiasm is persistent." Samuel Chadwick.

British Convict Ship On Exhibition In U.S. Still Draws Crowds

More than a million have been taken from the old British convict ship Success, which was on exhibition in New York in 1921 and 1923, and since then has been on the American waterfront and rivers. Captain David Smith, one of the several custodians he sailed with in England on the White Squadron, estimates that his property would possibly keep drawing crowds until it rotted away. During the years it has been in the United States more than 20,000,000 people have paid to see it and the torture instruments it still carries. The ship, more than forty-seven years following its launch in 1790, convicts were punished and many of the instruments now considered too terrible to use Tudor days are in Toledo now

Every careful and observant mother knows when her child suffers from worms She also knows that if some remedy is not speedily applied much pain will result to the infant. An excellent preparation for this purpose is Miller's Worm Powders. They drive worms from the system and set up an insulating and soothing effect so that the child's progress thereafter is painless and satisfying.

BRITAIN WOULD FURTHER PLAN TO OUTLAW WAR

London. The British Foreign Office has intimated that it would give most favorable attention to any proposals for outlawing war. At the same time reports appearing in the London papers that the United States proposed treaty to that end has been received with considerable interest on this side, but official comment on a treaty which has been so variously reported in the press.

The Nicaraguan situation receives much more space in the London evening papers than the proposed treaty.

While the United States is leading Europe in pressing to the world a treaty renouncing war as an instrument policy," says The Evening Standard, "she is involved in a campaign which is not."

The Standard explains the attitude towards proposed anti-war pacts has been largely embodied in a Cabinet decision.

The case beside the Nicaraguan situation, the Standard says, "is the Kellogg proposal to France for a multilateral treaty "a shrewd stroke." It is liable to err, however, now the world's eyes are centered on the settlement of international disputes.

Mountain Climber Lost

Los Angeles Man Was Attempting To Scale Mount Whitney

Lone Pine, Calif. The wind-swept snow from the peak of Mount Whitney, highest in the country, enshrouded the tracks of Robert A. Evans of Los Angeles, mountain climber missing since he set out to scale the highest of the Sierras

A pre-arranged plan of reporting his progress by means of signal flares failed.

Signals flashed from the warm sleeping bags in the Eastern foot of the mountain brought no reply.

He had planned to be on the summit to hail the New Year. He had four days' food supply.

Curb Money Leaders

Cannot Solicit Customers In Britain Through the Mail

London. The Money Lenders Act which became effective January 1 forbids money lenders from soliciting customers through the mail but they are still permitted to advertise in newspapers. The end of 1927 witnessed a grand effort by the money lending fraternity to get customers out through the mail before the new law came into force, and they were plentiful in their appeals to the recipients of the circulars to "keep our reference with the business," and the use of "remittable" which may arise in your personal financial requirements."

Deprived of the use of the mail many money lenders are likely to attempting to obtain their publicity in the newspaper field With a few striking exceptions however prominent newspapers all refuse to insert such advertisements and they declare they will rigidly maintain this attitude.

Fin Flue Development

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company To Commence Operations

Winnipeg Preparations are to immediately made for the development of real work on the prospected development of the Flin Flon mine on the Saskatchewan boundary, it was announced here last night. At the same time, and along a certain period of receiving orders.

The construction of the two locomotives will be made in any case, it is stated that three years.

This statement was made in answer to some comments by the London paper, Truth, which, among other things, applied to the length of time to which construction of the vessels will take. By constructing the vessels in Canada either the financial delegation will be spread over a period of three years

"We make our own programme," was the comment of the department on the criticisms of the London paper, when read to one of the officials. Governor General Inspects Namesake

This two-year-old stallion has made a clean sweep of grand championships at Canadian fairs this fall, being grand champion at Toronto, Ottawa and Guelph. The horse has secured the enviable record of being the champion of Scotland, England and Canada. He was brought to Canada by Mr. McCallum, on the Bolingbroke, along with over 100 other pure-bred stallions which, with the exception of this stallion, will be disposed of throughout the West. "Lord Willingdon," however, will be shipped back to Scotland shortly on the Canadian Pacific freighter "Berwyn," to be used for breeding purposes until 1930.

MODIFICATIONS IN NEW LIQUOR BILL FOR MANITOBA

Winnipeg A number of modifications in the Manitoba Government's draft bill on liquor legislation were announced by Hon. W. J. Major, attorney-general. The proposed changes will eliminate certain objectionable clauses which raised a storm of criticism when the draft bill was announced.

Permission is to be given to druggists to deliver beer direct to permit holders, but to ensure full compliance with the existing laws, licensed inspectors will be assigned to every brewery operating in the province who will supervise all orders received.

The government also has decided to waive the regulation which provides for the production of permits at the time an order is placed.

The bar against beer is very encumbered hotels to be the primary beneficiation of this clause of the act, as it enable hotels in which meals are financially interested to operate beer parlors

The original draft of the bill prohibits establishment of beer parlors in such hotels as the proposed clause contained in the amendment clause which stipulates that licenses who have an interest in, or derive, a dividend from the firm from which the supply of beer or liquor is to be purchased.

Other modifications provide for reduction in the number of rooms in an hotel operated as a beer parlor This number is reduced from 25 to 24 The gallonage tax on beer is to be fixed at 12½ cents a gallon. Liquor vendors, who have been appointed by the Department of Justice, at Ottawa, to argue before the Supreme Court of Canada the eligibility of women for appointment to the senate of the Dominion The question hinges on whether a woman is a "person" within the meaning of the British North America Act.

FARMER HYDE AT WAR

While farming is apparently the most powerful of pursuits, in reality the farmer is overlastingly at war. Not with his fellowmen, but with the billions of insects and other animal life which menace his crops on every hand.

Without scientific aid in fighting insects, it is asserted by high authorities that in time human life would become extinct. The insects and parasites would completely overrun the earth.

It is a comfort to know, then, that under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture, earnest scientists are working diligently to find better means of controlling these pests, and are meeting with a fair degree of success.

TRAFFIC HEAVY BETWEEN CALGARY AND BANFF

Automobile traffic over the Banff Highway between Banff and Calgary, both ways, in 1927 up to November 30th, totalled 11,401 automobiles according to figures made public at the park. The figures show that westbound Canadian cars totalled 2,813 and west-bound American cars 1,366 while east-bound Canadian cars totalled 2,602 and American 1,496. While no complete record of passengers, both ways, has been kept it is estimated that the total was approximately 151,700.

PREMIER GOES EAST ON RAILWAY BUSINESS

Premier Brownlee and Hon. V. W. Smith, Minister of Railways, left on Friday for Montreal where they will confer with Sir Henry Thornton and E. W. Beatty, presidents respectively of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways, in connection with the possible sale of the railways owned by the Alberta government. Following a discussion of the Alberta railway situation with the heads of the two transcontinental lines, the Premier has arranged a conference at Ottawa where the natural resources and other problems affecting this province will be discussed.

In the meantime, preparations are going ahead for the opening of the Legislature at Edmonton on February 2nd.

HEAVY EXPORTS OF ALBERTA CATTLE

More than $600,000 worth of Alberta cattle were exported to the United States between July 1st and November 30th, 1927, according to the report of the U. S. Department consul at Calgary. The shipments include some 12,000 head comprising stockers, feeders and feeding cattle. According to Mr. Best, the American markets at the present time are very favorable to shipments to Western Canada and shipments have shown a steady activity during the past six months when in any similar period since the imposition of the Fordney-McCumber tariff in 1922.

TO WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Wilson's Experience a Guide to Women Passing through the Change of Life

Hamilton, Ontario.—"I have taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot speak too highly of it as I was at the Change of Life and was all run-down and had no appetite, I was very weak and sick, and the same in my back. I was so bad I could hardly move. I got very sad at times and thought I had not a friend on earth. I did not care if I lived or died. I was very poor, too, and did not get very much. A friend advised me to try a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I did. I am a farmer's wife, and always worked hard until lately, and was in bed for two months. I is can to feel like a new woman after the first bottle and I recommend it with great success, also Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills. When Pain Comes

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians and on the forty years its invention the spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Get a small bottle to-day.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting stomach acids. Each bottle contains full directions any druggist

PAINTED FIRES

COPYRIGHT, CANADA, 1925

"No easy on the Finns, "captain," said Jack, laughing; "I am about to marry one."

Mr. Blackwood gave Helmi a long inwelent stare, before which her eyes fell. Were all magistrates cross old men? Were they angry at her because she came from another country?

"You'll need to keep her in her place, young man; she has the eyes of a broncho. They are a high-tempered, murderous lot, the Finns, fighting, stabbing shooting."

We're in a hurry, Captain," said Jack, still mystified. "If you will get along with the business now we will be very glad. I have the license, here."

The old man put on a pair of smeared glasses and began to hunt through the incredible turmoil on his table, looking for the necessary papers, reaching as he drew out each handful that failed to reveal the proper forms. Someone had been interfering; he never could leave anything and find it again; they had been here yesterday or the day before. If people would only leave his things alone! he would not a trap among his papers, and he hoped it would cut their damned fingers off.

Mr. Blackwood went to the cupboard, took out a teacup, poured himself a drink from a brown bottle, and made another attempt. After a second drink he found what he wanted.

Helmi hung to Jack's arm, terrified. "I don't like it," she said, "but lack it will bring it is no amusing dirty and bad. He is duckers, come away we will go to another one—I wish we could get married nice way."

Jack tried to reassure her

"Show me the license," the magistrate said, swinging around in his chair

Jack unfolded it and put it in his hands.

The magistrate read the names aloud—John Ward Doran and Helmi Milander.

"Milander—Milander?" He looked up suddenly and regarded Helmi more closely.

Again her eyes fell.

Then he turned to Jack. "I would like to speak to you alone," he said. "If Miss Milander will step outside." Helmi went out, glad to be out of the foul air and away from the scrutiny of the old man's eyes, which reminded her uncomfortably of the only other magistrate she had ever seen.

"Mr. Doran, I take it you are a Canadian?"

Jack nodded.

"And an educated man a college man perhaps?"

"I put three years at Queen," Jack said.

"Now you propose to marry this Finnish girl?"

"I certainly do," said Jack.

"Now, Mr. Doran, I want to point out to you the folly of this course. The girl is pretty, I'll admit, of a certain type of barmaid beauty."

Jack interrupted—"Now, look here, I am not asking for advice from you or anyone. I asked you to marry me to this girl that's all. Will you do it?"

"Listen," said the magistrate, "and don't lose your temper. What I want to tell you is this. You don't need to marry this girl. These foreigners are not particular—This license will do her. They have great respect for a pa per, and a man of your standing will soon tire of a girl who has nothing but a pretty face"

"No your advice to me, when I ask you to marry me, is for me to feel the girl, to make her think she is married to me. That is about the rottenest thing I ever heard a man say!"

"Wait, now don't shout!" The magistrate was determined to be patient. "I wish to God someone had given me this advice when I was your age. Was this girl the waitress where you had your meals? I thought so—same old story. She took sanitine to you following you about. I know—the same thing happened to me, and now I live here, where the beldame can't find me."

"Why does she want to find you?" asked Jack, without any attempt to disguise his contempt.

"You'll know more of these things before you are done, if you marry this girl. Now, I've tried to warn you in general terms, but you won't take it. This is final, is it?"

"Yes, sir, I am going to marry Helmi Milander honestly and legally. If you do not want to do it we can go to someone else."

"I'll marry you, all right, but before that I want to show you something. You have been very impertinent to me, but nevertheless I want to be fair to you anyway—and I am doing for you what I would want someone to do for my boy if I had one. Perhaps you would be interested to look at this."

Without any difficulty at all he found what he wanted, he went to the wall, where, on a huge spike, pages of newspapers were impaled. He searched through them for a moment and then returned to Jack and placed in his hand a page of a Winnipeg paper. Jack took it, wondering.

"Read this," said the older man, triumphantly "and then tell me if you still want to go on. We keep a tab of public happenings and find them very interesting."

Helmi's face looked at him from the page.

Arrested in a Chinese den a young girl escaped yesterday from the Girls' Friendly Home." Jack read the words aloud before he was able to grasp their meaning. He read every word of it, though the words seemed to be made of fire that burned him. Even the Magistrate was sorry for him.

It's a damn lie," broke from his lips, "it's a horrible mistake! See, it's the same name, that's all. If it were my Helmi it wouldn't—it have changed her name when she came here. She wouldn't be fool enough to go on under the same name."

Jack knew that Helmi did not talk of her life in Winnipeg, though it came out one day that she had been there a year and the date of the escape recorded here corresponded with the time she came to Eagle Mines.

Jack's throat was dry and his soul sick within him, but he believed in Helmi. He couldn't—he wouldn't! There were no dark chapters in the girl's own life He had loved the clean, active life of a decent, fun-loving youth. He knew of the evils in the world, having worked with gangs of men who spoke of their exploits without shame, but he had always been repelled by the coarseness, the vulgarity of it all. It couldn't be Helmi was as sweet and pure as a prairie flower. If she was arrested it was some rotten mistake. No, he would not turn her down

"Is it her picture do you think?" asked the magistrate, coolly

"I am not sure," said Jack. "It's a young girl of Marsh type, dressed as they all dress. I never saw my girl wear these clothes"

Jack read the words again, and then handed the paper back. He had taken his resolve. "Now, you've done your duty," he said, trying to speak calmly. "I am going to marry Helmi Milander and if you ever show this paper to anyone and try to injure my wife, I will come back and deal with you—old man though you are. Now get your book, or whatever you go by, and come outside; the atmosphere of this house is hardly right for a wedding."

Jack had never felt such a need for fresh air another minute in this foul place would smother him.

Outside, with the afternoon sun shining on them and a wind from the pass blowing the leaves of paper the magistrate held in his hand, they made their vows according to the bald rites of civil marriage. Jack could not afterwards remember what he said. He only knew he had a great desire to take Helmi in his arms and protect her from every evil thing in the world.

When they began the drive home the sun had gone behind the mountains. As the early chill of evening came down upon them Helmi was silent and distressed. She knew there was something wrong. The magistrate was her enemy like the other one. Why were they all so cross to her? She determined to ask Jack.

"Why did he not want to marry me?" she asked when they had reached the top of the hill and stopped to look back at the little town, which would soon be blotted out by the purpling dusk.

No Danger Of White Race Being Diminished By Other Races

Dr. A. Herdicka, specialist in physical anthropology at National Museum in Washington, believes the white race should continue to hold its own with all other races.

"If some cataclysm of general epidemic should befall it," he said, "it would go the way of all races so afflicted and sink to a secondary position But unless this should occur, the white race, despite the howls of those who predict that the rising tide of color will sweep all before it, will stand well to the fore."

The great advance of evolution in the future, Dr. Herdicka asserted, will be in mentality

GIVE CONFIDENCE TO YOUNG MOTHERS

By Always Keeping Baby's Own Tablets In the Home

A simple and safe remedy for the common ills of babyhood and childhood should be kept in every home where there is either a baby or a young child. Often it is necessary to give little one something to break up a cold, allay fever, correct sour stomach and banish the irritability that accompanies the cutting of teeth.

Experienced mothers always keep Baby's Own Tablets in the home as a safeguard against the troubles that seize their little ones so suddenly and the young mother can feel reasonably safe with a box of these Tablets at hand and ready for emergencies.

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thoroughly laxative that act without griping and they are absolutely guaranteed free from opiates or other harmful drugs. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Novel Fire Alarms

Loud Speakers Have Been Installed in Streets Of Edinburgh

Novel loud speaker fire alarms have been installed in the streets of Edinburgh.

Any one wishing to report a fire breaks the glass and immediately the door opens disclosing two apertures. Above one is painted the words "Wait, Fireman will speak" and above the other, "Reply Here." The breaking of the glass also rings an alarm bell in a fire station duty room.

Although the firemen replies through an ordinary telephone transmitter his voice can be heard 12 feet from the alarm box. When the fireman answers the person reporting the fire gives the exact location

Police and ambulance calls also are sendable through the 'phone. One advantage of the new system, it is said is that it reduces temptation to send in false alarms.

Costly Binding For Books

London Firm Expending $75,000 On Fifteen Volumes

A London bookbinding firm is expending $25,000 in the design and construction of covers for 15 volumes of "The Lives and Times of the Popes," to the order of Thomas Madigan of New York.

Rubies sapphires, ivory, silk, scarlet leather, morocco and heavy gilding all go into the ornamentation of each volume.

A year's steady labor has produced only four volumes, of which only one has been forwarded to New York. The volumes include 30 of the original Papal bulls.

A Worthless Souvenir

Sir Robert Horne tells a good story of an author who was attending the first performance of his new play. It was not a success. In fact, to put it plainly, it was a dismal failure and it deserved to be.

At the end of the last act a lady seated immediately behind the unhappy playwright tapped him on the shoulder and, holding something in his hand, remarked:

"I recognized you when you came in and cut off a lock of your hair. You may have it back!"

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies a today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distaste-ful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhoea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's Other preparations may be just as pure. Just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

Here and There

Edmonton.—Northern Alberta's largest farm land deal this year was completed the other day when the well-known Trout Farm was sold to a colony of Mennonites for more than $150,000. The new owners, eight families, will take possession on New Year's Day. The farm, which is in the Tofield district, has 2,641 acres.

Passengers on the "Empress of Australia" now leaving the world had a memorable afternoon after they witnessed brilliant military manoeuvres near the Great Pyramid initiated by King Fuad of Egypt in honor of the visit of King Amanullah of Afghanistan. Some of the passengers were subsequently received at King Fuad's court.

Toronto.—An optimistic note with regard to the market for Canadian bacon was struck by A. J. Mills representative of the British Ministry of Food in conference with packers here. He expressed the conviction that if Canadian farmers would be very poorly advised to slacken in hog production at the present time, stating that an improvement in the British market was in sight, with many of the countries which had been feeding Britain with bacon during the war now taking practically out of the business.

With around a thousand guests seated in the Ball Room, the Main Dining Room and the Jacques Cartier Room of the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec City, that famous hotel presented a remarkable scene on the occasion of the New Year's Eve festivities. Among the guests were the Governor of New Jersey and officials of the state, while important parties came up from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago and other cities of the United States.

A handsome New Year's gift to the people of Canada is indicated in the announcement of reduction of rates charged by Express Companies of the Dominion for shipment of packages up to 15 lbs. in weight and not over 84 inches in length, width or depth, which has been issued and filed with the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada by C. H. Ham, Chairman, Express Traffic Association. The reduction went into effect January 1 and it includes a continuation of the arrangement under which the Express Companies give protection against loss and damage up to $100 without extra charge on packages carried.

Toronto.—The Exhibition at Toronto had all the fairs on the continent last summer with an attendance of 1,780,000, according to a report by E. L. Richardson, of Calgary, President of the International Association of Fairs and Expositions. He states that fairs each year are becoming more popular and more successful, educationally and financially. More than 20,000,000 persons attended the 2,363 fairs in the United States and Canada this year, and attendance has, in fact, increased each year since 1910 by about 2,000,000. Investments in buildings and grounds is put at $250,000,000 and prizes each year amount to $6,000,000.

LOCAL NEWS

Bill Cumming has been appointed a guard at the jail.

A mixed bonspiel commenced this evening at the local rink. There are fifteen competitions to be played.

The town is now without a dentist as Dr. Brown left last week for Toronto. He is not expected to return to the Fort.

The regular meeting of the W.M.S. of the First United church will be held in the class rooms of the church on Friday afternoon, January 16, at 3:00 p.m.

Two rinks of curlers from Lamont paid the local club a visit Tuesday night and played a friendly game. They were skipped by Dr. Love and Mr. Leon Mann.

The Tiger hockey club will hold a dance in the Memorial hall Friday, January 18, from 9 p.m. to 3 a.m. The Fort Five orchestra will be in attendance. Refreshments provided. $1.50 couple; extra lady, 50c. The Tigers are driven by those boys who very enjoyable. Don't miss this one. A hockey game is being arranged with a good team to take place before the dance.

The Women's Institute will meet in the Memorial hall on January 19 at 3 p.m. Mrs. Gibson will give a talk on "Glimpses of the Pacific Coast." There is to be a roll call answered by some good description of a most suitable and appreciated Christmas gift, which may be brought to the meeting if so desired. Also each member is to come prepared to give a suggestion for the Institute program for 1926. Begin the new year by paying your membership fee.

Ye editor received a letter last week from a young man in Massachusetts, U.S.A., who intends settling in Alberta in the spring. In that account he requests us to send the Record free till that time. A trifling request, of course. Paper manufacturers are pleased to give us the paper, our time, experience, investment and labor mean nothing and the postmaster lets us have stamps for the asking. We jumped at the opportunity to serve him and send his railroad fare in addition. He should do well in this land peopled by simple folk.

FORT CANADIAN GIRLS IN TRAINING STAGE CARNIVAL

Following were chosen as being most deserving of prizes in the various events:

Best dressed lady—Miss Elizabeth Jones—Gypsy.

Ladies Comic—Miss Hilda Berg—Clown.

Girls 14 years and under—Miss Dorothy Cullimore—Xmas Cracker.

Girls 14 years and under—Miss Margaret Kelterborn—Black Diamond.

It will be observed that two prizes were awarded to girls in the 14 years and under class. Both contestants were excellent costumes, making it difficult to judge between the two. Under the circumstances it was considered only fair that the two young ladies should share in equal prizes.

Girls' comic—Miss Gertrude Mess—Dutch Girl.

Best dressed man—No entries.

Men's comic—No entries.

Best dressed boy 14 years and under—Jack Rogers—British Admiral.

Boys' comic—John Olbson — Aunt Jemima.

As there were no entries in the men's classes the prizes were awarded to the winners of the following skating races:

Boys over 14 years—Irvin Hutton.

Boys under 14 years—Burt Long.

NOTICE

ANOTHER POPULAR CELEBRATION OF FIFTY YEARS OF MARRIED LIFE

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Magee, sr., presented a scene of goodwill, friendship and happiness upon the afternoon and evening of January 10, when a goodly number of old timers and friends of the old couple, augmented by a general gathering of the Magee clan, congregated to help the old boy and his better three-quarters to celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Mr. Magee, who is well known in these parts, may be rightfully classed as one of the pioneers of this country, coming from Ireland as a boy over 65 years ago, and after a voyage covering two months in a sailing vessel, he landed in Halifax when the total railway service of this country amounted to barely 600 miles, and candles performed the function of the electric light, while a letter every semi-occasionally was the nearest approach to a telephone or a radio in the way of communication. The early part of his life Mr. Magee got spent around Parry Sound, On-

HOCKEY

The Fort hockey team defeated the Edmonton All-Stars 5-1 in a game here last Friday.

The senior hockey team also went to Waskatenau by automobile Tuesday and defeated the village team 6 - 5. Only six players were able to get away and they had to play the whole of the time without subs. They proved to be real 60-minute men in a hard tussle with the villagers, who had nine subs. The Fort had lots of moral supporters from Radway, whose hockey team is a keen rival of Waskatenau's.

TOM MAGEE'S COW

The incident to be here related has nothing to do with the one mentioned in the Good Hope news of this week, though it is somewhat similar. It may be a coincidence or it may be a further example of the extreme domesticity of the animal life on the farms operated by the members of the family of Magee, showing particularly the pampered life led by the stock.

Preparing in a soundly sensible way for the golden wedding celebration, Mrs. Tom Magee transferred two pies from the oven to a window ledge to cool off. The only living thing in sight was a cow, placidly chewing its cud and eyeing speculatively the actions of the lady of the house. Time passing as it is wont to, Mrs. Magee went to place the pies in a more appropriate place, and discovered they were gone. The same cow was there, cudding its chew, still eyeing the pastress, but the speculative look was gone and in its place was one of satisfaction. But what of the pies? They are missing and cannot be found. Can it be that honey has the taste of an epicure and the appetite of an ostrich? Watson! The needle.

Good Hope

The whereabouts of that cake and the bar of white salmon and vinegar sandwiches which escaped or was abducted on the night of the golden wedding is still unknown.

The local Scotland Yard staff is sparing no effort to run culprits the malefactors on the sandwiches to earth.

One clue was furnished by Mr. Card, who stated that he saw one of Billy Magee's cows picking fish bones out of her teeth behind the straw stack; but on examination by our ablest sleuths, who looked down bossy's throat and smelt her breath, it was found to be groundless, and what Mr. Card mistook for fish bones was the remains of a roll of barbed wire upon which bossy has been chewing her cud for the past few days.

However, if anyone can throw any light upon the mysterious disappearance of the aforementioned "victims," any information on that score will be appreciated by our local Sherlocks.

The U.F.A. held their meeting on January 9. The men and boys put on a very good entertainment.

The Good Hope hockey club is holding a carnival next Wednesday. Prizes will be awarded for both best dressed and comic. Admission, adults 35c; under 14 years, 25c. A lunch will be served in the school afterwards.

I. S. Pomeroy has gone to Calgary as the U.F.A. delegate for Good Hope.

The next meeting of the Ladies' Aid will be held at the home of Mrs. Sidney Cranston on February 1.

Grain Crops In 1928

The prediction has been made from many sources, and with but few reservations, if any, that the year 1928 gives promise of being one of the greatest years of development in Canada's history, marked by unprecedented activity in mining, manufacturing, building, water-power development, transportation, and a rising tide of immigration. Authorities in banking and finance are a unit in declaring that Canada is now in a position to take a great step forward, and that apart from the financial ability and resources of Canada itself, both British and United States money will be available for sound development enterprises.

What of agriculture, the basic industry of Western Canada, and upon the prosperity of which much of the growth and prosperity of all Canadian industry depends?

It is generally recognized that agriculture occupies a stronger position today than it did a few years ago and that conditions have been steadily improving year by year. There is a feeling of hopefulness abroad that this improvement will continue. But if 1928 is to prove a successful year for our Western farmers they must themselves take time by the forelock and lay the foundations of that success. It is now when the snow is on the ground and the temperature hovers around the zero point that the first step towards assuring good crops in the fall of the year must be taken.

Later in the year everybody, and especially the farmers, with best assistance from adequate rainfalls at the right season, for bright sunshiny days, for an absence of frosts, hail, rust and other blighting agencies, and for good weather for harvest and threshing. But a combination of all these favorable conditions will not in themselves ensure the West a bumper crop. Something more is needed, and now is the time to provide it. The conditions noted above are not within the power of man to determine, but, fortunately, it is in his power absolutely to provide the first essential requirement, namely, good, clean seed, possessing a maximum of germinating power.

Unless the best of clean seed is sown, the best and cleanest crops cannot be obtained. If weed seed's are sown, weeds and not wheat, oats, or other saleable grain will result. This fact is so obvious that it would seem quite unnecessary to lay any stress upon it. But what is the situation?

All Western farmers can profit from the baneful learned from a seed drill survey conducted by the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture last year. In 25 townships samples of grain were taken from the seed drills of farmers and tested as to grade. Out of each ten samples submitted in wheat, three graded No. 1 or No. 2, four graded No. 3, and three graded rejected.

The oats being sown did not make so good a showing.—16 per cent. graded No. 1 or No. 2, 15 per cent. graded No. 3, and 69 per cent. rejected. As in the case of wheat, the oats rejected was caused chiefly by the presence of noxious weeds. In other words, only three out of every ten farmers were sowing good, clean seed wheat, and only 16 out of every 100 farmers were sowing good, clean seed oats. Under such conditions, how can Western farmers expect to obtain large yields and a highly profitable return from their labor?

Ninety-seven per cent. of the farmers in these townships were using cleaning machinery of some kind, while 92 per cent. were using one or another of the recognized methods of treating grain for smut. It was established that the screen, or semi-screen, in the operation of most cleaning machines did not be so much in the make of the machine used as it did in the man operating it. Another factor, of course, was the extent of the pollution of the land stock. His summit is that farmers should thoroughly overhaul their seed cleaning machines and make a close study of the best methods of operation. Of major importance is the obtaining of the cleanest possible seed to put through these machines.

There is a lot of truth in the claim of the Canadian Seed Trade Association that an investment too often overlooked in these days of mining and oil speculation, is the one of better seed. The assertion is made that one dollar invested in better seed during the spring should return at least six or seven dollars in the fall, and with right conditions and care it may return as high as ten or fifteen dollars.

Good, clean seed will not in itself ensure a heavy and profitable crop. there are many other factors involved,—but unless good, clean seed is sown it is certain that such a crop can never be harvested. It is necessary to begin at the beginning, and the seed sown is the beginning. whether it be of a crop of hard wheat or noxious weeds.

OUR WINTER WEATHER

A Trying Time For People With Weak Watery Blood

Canadian winter weather is a trying time for debilitated, run-down people. The chill air of sleet-up streets, the bracing, bitter exercise, the restricted diet of the season, all tell their tale on the unfortified system. There is always in such cases the danger of a severe attack of influenza, or the still more dreaded pneumonia. There is no other time of year, when a healthy supply of rich, red blood is so necessary; and the one way to get it is to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It, unfortunately, you have fallen a victim to influenza, or other winter troubles, this same medicine will restore your health and strength. Among those who have proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mrs. Wilfrid Lemieux, R.R. No. 3, Chateauguay. Miss Pearson of Ormstown, Que., is a daughter-in-law of influenza and says: "It left me so weak I could not get out of bed, and scarcely walk. Anaemia set in and I almost seemed as if I would not pull through. The doctor I have me was that the least exertion would bring on fainting spells. I was treated medical treatment, but it did not help me. One day in our local paper I read an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and decided to try them. By the time I had used three boxes I felt much better, and continued the use of them for about two months before I felt better than I had been since the influenza attacked me. My rapid recovery surprised my friends, and when asked "What did you do?" I would promptly say, "Not my doing, but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." To me, at least, the pills have been worth their weight in gold."

As a precaution against winter ills take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now. Sold by all medicine dealers, or sent by mail at 50c a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

War Weapons Used To Aid Humanity

Airplanes and Army Tanks Carry Relief To Needy People

Another dream of the novelist has been realized. Airplanes have been used in England to carry food to starving people in villages isolated by storms and ordinary means of communication with the outside world. The aviators were unable to find any landing-place, so the food was placed in bags and dropped by way of parachutes. The manifold uses to which the aeroplane can be put in time of peace are increasing in number everyday. It ought to be a tremendous satisfaction to those who have striven for years to perfect control of the air that their efforts are being utilized in the cause of humanity.

The past year has afforded many dramatic incidents similar to that recorded from England. The traditional and symbolic beating of swords into ploughshares is more than a figure of speech compared to the literal and practical use of army tanks to crush a path through roads rendered impassable by snow and then carry relief to those in need. It would be a great day for the civilized world if all the war aeroplanes and all the army tanks of the Powers could be converted into small carriers and road rollers. —Montreal Star.

A remarkable dog is owned by a farmer of Barjeg, Agraitre. He is a black and white collie and answers to the name of "Laddie." Recently he was witnessed catching a rabbit; but he evidently was sensitive as to the spilling of blood and refused to every the rabbit to death. Instead of that he hauled his captive to a barn, where he held his head under water till it was drowned. He was never, the farmer says, done other than drown his rabbits.

Biplane Built For Experimental Purposes

How British Machine To Take "Soundings" Of Upper Air

A new biplane, specially designed for stunning high altitudes, is now at the Royal Aircraft Establishment Farnborough, England. In this machine it is hoped to ascend to a great height and obtain "soundings" of the upper air. One theory is to install in it, at 10 or 12 miles above the earth there are constantly moving currents of air travelling at 200 miles an hour and more. Scientists believe that these might have a considerable influence on long-distance flying. The British machine which is to carry out this test is a fighter biplane with an air-cooled Jupiter engine specially equipped for maintaining its power in rarified air.

It will probably be piloted by Flight-Lieutenant J. A. Gray, one of the most expert of the Government test pilots. For these high altitude flights pilots are being provided with special air suits and helmets like those of diving suits, the airmen peering out through small circular windows. In case they should the airmen will be enclosed in a glass-windowed cabin, which will be automatically supplied with oxygen.

Five Eclipses This Year

Three Will Be Of Sun, and Two Of Moon

For those whose interests centre to the heavens, 1928 is a notable year. The world, the new year will satisfy them in that five eclipses are scheduled. Three will be of the sun, and two of the moon, the new year bringing the same number as in 1927. On May 19 there will be a total eclipse of the sun but the powers that be say it will not be visible in Canada. June 2 is a total eclipse of the moon to forecast which will be visible in some parts of the West. Two weeks later the sun will go into a partial eclipse and on November 12 the performance is repeated. Western Canadians will have to take the word of the scientist for these because they will not be visible in the West. The last eclipse of the year will be on November 27 when the moon will be completely hidden. The eclipse will be visible throughout the North American continent.

The usual legal and national holidays will be on the calendar for the year with any additional ones the authorities might permit. To round off the twelve months the year 1928 is the 19th year of the reign of King George V. and the 62nd year of Confederation will commence on July 1.

Steady Development Is Seen In Petroleum and Natural Gas Resources Of Western Canada

The year 1927 has seen steady progress in the development of the petroleum and natural gas resources of Western Canada according to a statement issued by the Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior. A review of the operations carried on in the various fields in the prairie provinces indicates that several of the earlier prospected fields have already proved their worth, while investigations have uncovered new and promising oil-bearing areas. The year's operations were marked by great drilling activity and although the actual footage drilled was not as great as 1926, the decrease is accounted for by the fact that it is deep drilling and consequently slower. There was a marked increase in the gas and oil production of the eastern fields, the output of oil reaching 320,000 barrels, while the production of gas for consumption totalled nearly eleven and a half billion cubic feet. The 1926 figures for oil were 219,000 barrels and for gas nine and a half billion cubic feet.

Drilling operations were carried on in Manitoba and over a wide area in Saskatchewan with indications of favorable results in the near future. The fields in Alberta, however, include the main producers today. The famous Turner Valley Field, from which the greater part of the output of oil and gas is secured, continued to attract great attention during the year and made and the producing areas were further extended so that it may be conservatively stated that the field is proved for over nine miles in length and one mile in width. Beneath this area both the high grade crudes of the upper formations and the naphthenden gas of the Royalite dolomite occur. The high grade crude area now extends to the north of the Sexsmith well located on Section 34, Township 30, Range 3, west of the fifth meridian, and probably there is no reason for supposing that these wells mark the limits of the high grade crude area in either direction. The Dominion Government is pursuing productive in all cases where it has most tapped, thus clearly showing that the Turner Valley field is not the only oil-producing, rhomantic and sciatic pains, treating sore throats and chests, coughs, burns, scalds, cuts, bruises and sprains.

Saving the Antelope

200 Animals Now Thriving In Enclosed Area In Alberta

The history of Nemiskam National Park, Alberta, Canada, is an interesting chapter in the story of wild life conservation. Overcrowning what appeared to be insurmountable difficulties, forty-two antelope were enclosed in a fenced-in area in southwestern Alberta in 1918, and, in contrast to previous experiments, continued to thrive in captivity. Their welfare and propagation, which at first was a matter of speculation, now seems to be definitely assured, as officials of the Department of the Interior report that the herd now totals 200. This indicates a natural increase of 66⅔ since the original herd was enclosed in the present park in 1918.

Last Year's Coal Output

Increased Over Million Tons During Same Period In 1926

Up until the end of October, 1927, Canadian coal mines had produced 13,783,783 tons of coal and Nova Scotia's share was 5,879,986 tons or 42.7 per cent. This is shown in a report issued by the Department of Trade and Commerce. Alberta was a close second with 5,238,144 tons, or 38 per cent. Saskatchewan, Colorado and Manitoba 1,000,000 tons, or 7.3 per cent. with 2,204,558 tons The total amount is an increase of slightly over a million tons in comparison with the ten-month period of 1926.

Crop Revenue

Two Hundred and Twenty-Five Million In Cash For the Prairie Farmers

The movement of 294 million bushels of wheat from the Prairie Provinces up to December 13, of which 260½ million came down via the Great Lakes ports, indicates the railways upheld their standards of handling capacity in the brief four months, August 15 to December 15. The volume of 600 million bushels of wheat from the prairies in a year of the size of the shipments of 396 million, plus 30 million in line elevators and 23 million in storage at the head of the lakes. The returns to farmers' hands for disposal is offset by the grain which was in store at the start of the crop movement for this season.

On an estimate of $1.05 average per bushel, less 20 cents a bushel for threshing, freight, handling charges and commission, the crop movement therefore represents approximately $220,000,000 for the prairie farmers. In addition to that the crop means a substantial revenue to threshers, railway and shipping interests, and stimulus to all the grain trade to keep things moving. The circulation of the money by the grain growers means over $1 all Canada, as well as to the prairie districts. —Montreal Star

British Soldiers Come To Canada

Army Reservists To Be Placed On the Land In the Spring

A plan formulated after that of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and other American revolutionary chiefs of 1783, to populate the great west with members of the disbanded revolutionary army, is the latest proposal of the Overseas Settlement Committee revealed on the departure for Canada of E. T. Critchley, financial adviser of the committee.

The overseas committee discloses that soldiers now in their last few months of service are being trained at Chiseldon, Wiltshire, in modern methods of farming and will be sent to Canada in the spring to take up cultivable large areas of fertile land.

They will be considered army reservists and for the next five years are guaranteed constant work. The soldiers will not be scattered at random, but will be grouped in blocks at Calgary, Prince Albert, Regina, Toronto, Edmonton, Saskatoon and Winnipeg None, however, will be sent to British Columbia, where the mild Pacific coast climate already has attracted a vast number of settlers.

Official List Of Seed Names

An Excellent Guide For Those Who Use Vegetable Seeds

A pamphlet which will be of value to purchasers of seed of corn, peas, beans and vegetables, has been published by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. It is an official list of established variety names of these crops. These standard names, 365 in number, were compiled from a list of 2,135 variety names advertised in Canadian seed catalogues in 1928. In making up the list a large number of synonymous names were eliminated and only the varieties of special merit were retained. None of these standard varieties of seed can now be sold under any other than its established name. The names of the varieties of each kind of seed are arranged in the list in order of earliness of maturity and those of outstanding merit for Canadian conditions are especially marked, making the pamphlet an excellent guide for truck gardeners and all others who use vegetable seeds. The pamphlet, which is a supplement to regulations under the Seeds Act, is available at the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

C. P. R. Has Good Year on Lakes

Upper—C. P. R. Steamers at Port McNicoll. Lower—Canadian Pacific Coast Liners Duchess.

A successful season was experienced this year by the Great Lakes Shipping service of the Canadian Pacific Railway, according to a recent statement made by M. McD. Dow, manager of the service for the Company.

One feature of the Company's developments on the inland waters was in the additional grain elevator capacity acquired at Port McNicoll and Midland which doubled the Company's storage capacity on the Georgian Bay. A two-million bushel capacity addition was constructed at Port McNicoll, while interest in a new two-million bushel house was acquired at Midland. The greatly facilitated grain handling on the lakes. From the present indications the Canadian Pacific will be able to take care of approximately 9,000,000 bushels in storage during the winter.

Passenger and general freight service followed an increase of about five per cent. which is regarded as satisfactory. During the season the Company's vessels handled 230,000 tons of general freight, exclusive of grain, and over 12,000 passengers. It was pointed out that the Great Lakes route was becoming more popular with persons travelling across the Dominion.

Wonderful New Device Is Invention Of Electrical Engineer

A new system of supervision and control by which operator-less machinery can be called on the telephone and asked questions and given instructions, was demonstrated recently in New York City, U.S.A., at the offices of the W. Stringfellow Electric and Manufacturing Company.

"This system, which is called the Televocal system, represents the latest step in the automatic operations of distant machinery," said Mr. R. J. Wensley, Westinghouse engineer, in explaining the device of which he is the inventor

"By means of it, not only can a loud dispatcher of an electric power company or street railway call up on any telephone unattended power plants or sub-stations, receive reports on the status of every machine in the station and start or stop machines, open and close breakers, and perform other operations at will, but even the dispatcher could direct the operation of her home from the club or what party

Mr Wensley demonstrated the device by speaking and receiving telephone messages, varnum clearney, and other devices by means of musical notes transmitted by telephone.

JANUARY 22

JESUS AND THE LAW

Golden Text: Think not that I came to destroy the law or the prophets: I came not to destroy, but to fulfil.—Matthew 5:17.

Lesson Mark 2:18-22 3:1-6

Devotional Reading, Psalms 119. 33-40

Explanations and Comments

I. The Higher Law Which Jesus Taught (a) Regard To Fasting (2:18-22).

The law prescribed one day in the year, a day of Atonement for fasting, but two fast days a week were observed by the Pharisees (Luke 18:12) and the disciples of John the Baptist. John's disciples although professed followers of Jesus, were somewhat greater than their master (John 3: 26), and therefore willing to do as the Pharisees, came one day with the latter to Jesus and asked: Why do the Pharisees fast but thy disciples fast not?" Their question was like that of many modern who: "We hate evil deeds thine and we why don't you do it?" The true question should be sought from Jesus' religious standpoint. Pharisees and John's disciples fasted were deeds of his disciples did not do so that an outward fast could be called for. John the Baptist by pointing Jesus, for they did not think it necessary for Jesus to do so. (b) Regard to Sabbath (2:23-3:6).

The disciples of John went to Jesus with their complaint because the disciples and criticized His disciples because of guilty of gluttony and wine bibbing, and a sinner.

Jesus avoided the difficulty and actually he did in the famous question about the tribute money. Instead, should be the expression of inward rather than the observance of ritual. He told the man to Her and Can-sons of the bridle chamber just what His disciples were doing. The sons of the bride chamber were the friends of the bridegroom who escorted the bride and her companions to the home of the bridegroom and remained with them for the wedding feasts, which often lasted a week. As Jesus uses the phrase, it refers to His disciples. The disciples of John must have remembered that it was their master who had called Jesus the bridegroom, John 3:29. Dr. George A. Barton refers to the fact that the prophets Hosea and Ezekiel had spoken of God's covenant with Israel as a marriage covenant, and thinks that Jesus may have meant to suggest that he had come to establish a new covenant, and so figuratively claimed for himself the privileges of a wedding.

Jesus desires cheerful followers, who rejoice because of His presence with them. "The true child of God is a joyful creature of divine grace, who worships God with a face radiant with happiness."

New Engine For Airplanes

Made On Novel Principle By Inventor Of Gyroscope Compass

Elmer A. Sperry, inventor of the gyroscope compass, announces that he has perfected an aeroplane engine on a new principle.

He said that within a year he expected to have a motor of 1,000 horsepower developing two pounds per horsepower and consuming one pint of fuel instead of gasoline with a higher power development per gallon at one-fifth the present cost.

Adoption of the Diesel engine to aircraft, considered one of the surest ways to huge air liners, has been the problem of aeronautical engineers throughout the world.

The fuel used in his engine, said Dr. Sperry, is so non-inflammable that in experiments it even has proved a good fire extinguisher.

WOULD DISPOSE OF TWO ROADS IN PEACE RIVER

Montreal Possibilities of increased development in the Peace River District, and prospective prosperity to be derived by new settlers in that area were pointed out by Hon. John E. Brownlee, K.C., Premier of Alberta, in an interview.

Premier Brownlee explained he had come to Montreal for discussion on the Alberta railway question with Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National, and F. W. Heaps, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The provincial government, operated two roads, the Edmonton Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway, and the Alberta and Great Waterways Railways, both of which, in the Premier's opinion, should be disposed of. The first question the cabinet had to consider was one of the two transcontinental systems. He was prepared to discuss terms for the disposal the two government-owned lines, being convinced both the province and the shortening company will derive benefits from the amalgamation

The Edmonton-Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway serves the Peace River district, which Mr Brownlee explained was one of the most fertile portions of Alberta. Settlers were being opened up rapidly and had a tremendous future as a grain producing country. In order that it might be developed to the greatest advantage, the provincial government thought the railway should be extended through to the Rocky Mountain passes to obtain a direct outlet on the Pacific Coast for its products. As a provincially-owned concern, the Premier said this could not be undertaken by his government, as it would encroach on the territory of another province.

At the present time there were 300,000 acres under cultivation in the Peace River District, between eight and nine million bushels of wheat being harvested in 1927 from this area, and it was estimated that 2,000,000 acres could be placed under cultivation in that domain.

Discuss Canadian Navy

London Paper Comments On Canadian Government Proposals

London, Returning to its discussion of the Canadian government's proposal to replace its two present destroyers, the Patriot and Patrician, with new vessels, the Daily Telegraph reprints a statement which is described as "officially inspired from Ottawa." Nothing definite is said as to first of the new ships will be laid down immediately the Canadian parliament approves the necessary estimates. It adds that the Patrician is still serviceable, as the second destroyer will be ordered for later delivery, thus spreading the total outlay over two years.

The Weekly says: "A point to which the message makes no reference is that the Canadian Department of Defence has asked the British Government to lend two destroyers to replace the old ones, while the proposed vessels are under construction. I confess that if I were a Canadian I should ask, "Why build warships at all so long as you can borrow them?"

London Man Finds Use For Old Chesterfield Suite

London.—The rides which Canada is reported destined to give the people of the Irish Free State are merely surplus stock which are to be disposed of to help pay their public funds.

A report in Ottawa was that 1,900 rides had been purchased for the Canadian Mounted Police reserve at a cost of 67 each, but it is stated at Belfast that the negotiations are not yet concluded.

Banishing His Blemishes

London.—Russian dispatches to The Daily Mail from Riga, Latvia, say that semi-official information there is that Joseph Stalin, secretary-general of the Communist party, has disposed of his political enemies by giving some of them minor posts to remote villages and others by summary banishment to the Caucasus, Russian Turkestan, and even distant Siberia cities.

Death Of Noted English Writer

Thomas Hardy, Dean of English Literature, Passes In 88th Year

Dorchester, Eng. (Reuters).—Hard ardy, dean of English literature, died at his home here after a prolonged illness.

The famous 87-year-old novelist had a chill December 12 and thereafter his condition was alternately hopeful and then critical, but his age militated against his ultimate recovery.

With Hardy's death one of the greatest of the Victorians passes and one of the most distinguished links in his beloved Wessex where he lived most of his years, passed from the internal scene.

Hardy died in surroundings which he, no doubt, would have chosen for himself. The historic country side of his home was to him the most beloved of spots. More than 40 years ago it, he had planned and built a fine old brick and stone country house which has been his home and sanctum ever since. It was in this house that he wrote the greater part of the prodigious mass of modern times

Involves Big Revenue

Validity Of Alberta Coal Tax Is To Be Tested

Edmonton.—The validity of the provincial coal tax, which represents a revenue of some $300 000 annually to the provincial treasury, is to be tested before the Supreme Court of Canada at the forthcoming session, it was announced recently. The Province is "ready" to go ahead with the case.

The case against the original defendants, the Caledonian Collieries have been set down for hearing, in place of pushing the more recent action in which the C.P.R. was cited as defendant.

The question is one of the right of the province to collect a tax on every ton of coal mined in the province and the decision hinges on whether or not such tax is a direct or an indirect one If it is held to be a direct tax, then the province has no power to collect it, and will be compelled to refund the $300,000 per annum collections; if the reverse, the province loses $300,000 per annum.

Irish President Is Coming To America

Visit Is Purely One Of Courtesy Says W. T. Cosgrave

Southampton.—President William T. Cosgrave of the Irish Free State and his party, sailed for a visit to Canada and the United States aboard the steamship Homeric.

The president plans to spend about 10 days in North America, including a side trip to Canada. The visit has been described in Dublin as purely one of courtesy.

"The is't visit that we have looked forward to for many years," said President Cosgrave said just before sailing. "I firmly believe that the visit will result in still further the relations between Ireland and America."

Leads World in Shipbuilding

British Yards Being More Than Half Says Lloyd's

New York.—More than half the world's shipbuilding is being carried on in British yards, according to facts disclosed by Lloyd's Register of shipping

Ships now under construction in all countries amount to a tonnage of 2,118,000, an increase of 1,000,000 tons over the preceding quarter year. Of this amount Great Britain has 1,378,713 tons. The United States with 97,370 tons dropped from fourth to eighth place during the quarter and is eclipsed by Germany, Italy, Holland, France Sweden and Denmark, as well as by Great Britain

World Grain Records Created by C.P.R.

World records in grain marketing during the past of the movement were created this fall by the Canadian Pacific Railway. A recent statement issued by A. Hutton, General Superintendent of Transportation of the Company, shows that in the last working days, from October 29-31, 66,674 000 bushels of grain were marketed. November 30, saw the greatest single day's marketing with 23,500,000 bushels, and 2,266 cars loaded October 26. These figures have never been even closely approached in the history of the Canadian Pacific. The total amount of grain handled between August 1 to the end of navigation on the Great Lakes were 172,639,000 bushels in 1925 and cars. It is estimated to the end of December approximately 190,000,000 bushels were moved over C.P.R. lines.

Growth of the export business via Vancouver in grain is shown by the fact that in the period mentioned above, 6,250 cars of grain were handled by the Canadian Pacific to that port against 7,389 cars in the same period of 1926. Similar growth is shown in the opposite end of the Dominion. In the winter months of 1926-26, there were moved 13,561,000 bushels through the port of West Saint John against 19,761,000 bushels during the same period of 1926-27.

Future Of Sheep Industry

Experts Say There Is No Danger That It Can Be Overdone

Edmonton That the future of the sheep industry in Canada is assured, that there is no danger that it can be overdone and that it will pay well the investments of those who go into it with even modest capital and moderate skill and knowledge were the expressed views of experts and of the principal producers who addressed the annual meeting of the Alberta Sheep Breeders' Association here. The speakers included F. S. Freeborn, Dominion livestock commissioner; J. G. Rutherford, livestock commissioner for Saskatchewan, and Prof. I. P. Rackham, of the University of Alberta.

Wheat Exports Drop

Increase In Stocks Of Grain In Canada Is Shown

Port William, Ont.—A decided decrease in the export demand for Canadian grain, with a consequent increase in the stocks all over the country, is reported by E. A. Ursell, statistician to the Board of Grain Commissioners.

Export of the new Argentine crop is under way, said Mr. Ursell points out that this may account for the falling off of export demand for Canadian wheat.

No Announcement

Ottawa. Premier MacKenzie King declined to make any announcement with respect to the report of the national advisory committee on St. Lawrence waterways. The Prime Minister stated merely that the report had been received. As the subjects treated in it were matters of international negotiation, it seems likely that no public statement will be forthcoming until the total is 28.

WORLD PEACE IS GREAT AIM OF BRITISH PEOPLE

Washington. Senator Raoul Dandurand's words to the League of Nations' Assembly in 1925 that "peace is the greatest of British interest," were quoted by Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador, in an address before the American Engineering Council here.

The Senator's statement that governments would all have to conform to the principle of peace or "their existence would be shortlived indeed" would be unhesitatingly endorsed by the vast majority of British people Sir Esme said

His Majesty will receive the Canadian party at the Buckingham Palace at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, February 4

Referring to occasional criticism of Britain for holding back a little as at the time of the rejection, with full approval of the Dominion governments of the famous protocol, for specific settlement of international disputes, Sir Esme said Senator Dandurand had stated there had been a suggestion that the Empire was not in earnest in these great causes. Nothing could be more foolish and nothing more unjust.

Ambassador Howard concluded

"Believe me, gentlemen, if there is one country in the world which, both from inclination and interest we desire peace, it is the United States of America.

Seeking Discipline System For Lawyers

Sir James Aikins Giving Whole Time To Question

Toronto. The problem of a Dominion-wide system of discipline for erring members of the legal profession became of immediate interest to contractor with the arrival in Toronto of Sir James Aikins, a former lieutenant-governor and former chief justice of Manitoba.

The question is engaging the whole of Sir James' energies at the present time and is being given first place at all the Canadian provinces. He conferred in Toronto with the benchers of the law society and the Ontario aspect of the proposal.

The question of discipline has been recognized by the legal profession for some time and the whole demand forced but it has been left for Sir James Aikins, since his retirement from the premiership of the Canadian Bar Association to endeavor to work it out.

At the present time the only penalty which can be evoked against a lawyer who is guilty of unprofessional conduct is to have his name struck off the roll of the Bar. This penalty is so drastic since it deprives the offender of his livelihood as to be rarely involved.

taria; at that time pretty much of a wilderness, and where life wasn't all hard and oblidious, not by a jugful, as we know from historians fact. The old folks have seen times there when flour was considered a luxury, and corn meal was the next best substitute for the staff of life. They have also witnessed the forest removal being transformed into the productive farms and beautiful orchards which are now Ontario's boast.

It was while in Parry Sound that our "Wild Colonial Boy" betook unto himself a wife, the same one that he has at present, "Prairie bel". Mrs. Magee is Canadian born. They came out West nearly thirty years ago, to encounter pioneering again in this part of the world, where wheat would never be grown, according to the general opinion at that time. Major Strange and Herman Trelle came a long hair and thought differ-ber.

Since coming to the West the greater part of Mr. and Mrs. Magee's time has been spent around the Good Hope district where Mrs. Magee has charge of the post office. They have both witnessed many changes since their coming here and have played their part in the development and improvement of conditions in general in this district.

The wedding celebration was well attended and enjoyed by all. Mr. Gus Dean, M.C. opened the festivities with a short, well worded address, followed by Alex. Macdonald, who said a few words prior to making the presentation of the beautiful gifts which were awaiting the aged young couple. The respective donors of the gifts were as follows:

Sons and daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Magee—Pair of Chesterfield chairs.

Mrs. Ed. Magee and family—Set of dinner knives and forks.

Messrs. Dalzell, Jones, Graham & O'Brien, A. M. Sutherland, E. A. Wilmorth—Elderdown comforter.

Mr. J. T. Lalonde—Five dollar gold piece.

Mr. and Mrs. James Graham—Tea tray.

Mr. Dan Whitson and family—Five dollar gold piece.

Miss Lilly Calvert—Table cloth.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reid—Centre piece for table.

Mrs. Fisher—Antique silver spoon.

Mr. Dave Magee—Five dollar gold piece.

A purse by subscription was given by the following:

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Pomeroy, W. Ashton, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Ashton, Mrs. W. C. Cranston, Mrs. R. Johnston, Fred Simmons, Mrs. A. W. Cook, Mr. Johnston, Mrs. A. Burnett, Mrs. Dave Cranston, Mr. and Mrs. Conford, Mrs. J. C. Cripps and family, Mr. T. H. Magee, jr., and family, Mr. Gordon Millenbecker, Mr. and Mrs. A. Macdonald, Mr. W. C. Calvert and family.

After the presentations, congratulations were showered upon the bride and groom, some of the ladies getting quite enthusiastic in the process with "Old Time" who tried to blush, but as his whiskers were in the way, he told them to behave. (meaning his whiskers) Mr. Amos Magee in a short but able speech combining humor and pathos, gave a return of thanks on behalf of the young people, describing some of the past scenes and conditions which Mr. Magee and himself had passed through together in their young days down East.

Toasts were then given and after singing "They are Jolly Fellows" the guests proceeded to do justice to the generous banquet which had been provided. Some comic songs were given to add digestion with a good laugh and the floor was then

Jack kissed her again. "Forget him, Helmi." he said. "he is a poor, dirty, miserable old soak, and he ought to be in our lives."

Helmi knew that weddings should be stately and dignified ceremonies, was deeply distressed. Jack's instinct feel that we are married by a most little no-good words—no prayers; no good wishes; no solemn words at all. It's a wicked way to get like it."

"I don't like it, either," Jack replied, "but it is legal."

"I'll tell you, Jack," She was recovering her good spirits now. "I know what we will do—we'll make it good. When we come to little patch what you call creek—on the way home, we'll stand one on each side and say good words across the running water, and then we will be married sure. I will feel better then."

"All right. Any thing you say."

They stopped beside a little brook that found its way down to the river, following one of the windings in the mauve's edge, and there, with the heroes looking wonderingly on, they held each other's hands across the running water and pledged their vows:

"I take you, Helmi, to be my wife," said Jack, "and I will love you all ways." And Helmi said, "I take you, dear Jack Doran, for my man, forever."

And then, still holding each other's hands across the little stream, they repeated the words that Helmi had learned that night so long ago now at the Girl's Club.

"Those are good words, Jack. I learned them in God's house. They are religious words that God understands and I think He hears them."

"Don't health sock truth know God, says others."

Jack repeated the words after her and then they kissed each other and stood silent for a moment. And for the witnesses besides the angels in the heaven, the sweet were looking down, they had two honest bay livery horses that bore upon their shoulders the honorable scars of patient service.

And in the woods near by a robin, which really had retired for the night, opened one sleepy eye and sang it—a single note it sang, for it was the Spring-time and he, too, had a pleasant dream.

CHAPTER XVII.

The tops of the mountains still held the glow of sunset although the valley was filled with mountain darkness. The lights in the curtainless windows of the little houses made bright holes in the platinum curtain of night. Helmi lifted her eyes to the hill-tops for some sign of encouragement. The hills had never failed her and, flinty-hearted, stern and rock-ribbed though they were, they smiled back as even mountains smile at young lovers. The sky above them was clear and blue, with every cloud taken away for the night.

As Helmi and Jack drove into the one little street of Eagle Mines they came to them the heartsome smell of Peggy Bacon.

"Good luck, Helmi," said Jack, "it's good luck to smell bacon frying when you're hungry, isn't it?" He lifted up his head after Finnish supper-times.

Helmi breathed deeply. It seemed to her that the magic hour of love would last forever, and that each night of her life would come to meet her as this one was coming; on wings of summer and gold.

Helmi and Jack together took the team to the stable, and while Jack paid the bill Helmi patted the horses' heads and talked to them in Finnish.

"Come on, Helmi," Jack called, starting to walk toward their house.

"Wait a minute," she replied, running after him. "Can't I pay thank you" and good-night to my two mostpitiless—what do you call them?—companions—they do you call them?"

When Helmi entered the little house all her fears fell away. Here was her home, and the gules of hell could not prevail against it. The lamp was lighted on the table, her new, shining kettle was boiling on the stove. These little attentions had been shown them by old Sim, the night watchman. Old Sim had had a checkered career unstrictionally, but some old memory, which unfortunately he was not able to catalogue accurately, stirred in him when he saw Jack and Helmi drive away, and in a sudden rush of sentiment he had thrown after them his one gaiter for good luck. All the afternoon he had thought of them in his waking moments, and just before he went on duty he went over and lighted their lamp and fire, just to remind them that someone was wishing them well. As he settled down for his long night vigil at the mine Sim tried to decide once and for all whether it was of Maime, Lucy or Min that the Finn girl always reminded him.

Helmi pulled a chintz apron over her black dress and began to get the supper ready. Jack had gone to the post office to get their mail and was talking to the postmaster when Helmi slipped her slippers and put on her shoes. Then she combed her hair and put on her hat. Jack was still talking to the postmaster when she came in, and he had not noticed that she had gone out. Helmi looked at herself in the little mirror that hung over the kitchen sink and laughed. Then she went to the door and looked out. It was a wonderful night. The stars were shining and the moon was rising. Helmi looked at the moon and thought of the night when she had first seen it rising over the mountains. She had been sitting on the step of the Girls' Club with Jack, and he had said that the moon was a golden ship sailing in the sky. Helmi looked at the moon and thought of that night. Then she looked at the stars and thought of the night when she had first seen them. She had been sitting on the step of the Girls' Club with Jack, and he had said that the stars were golden lamps hung in the sky by the angels to light the way for lovers. Helmi looked at the stars and thought of that night. Then she looked at the mountains and thought of the night when she had first seen them. She had been sitting on the step of the Girls' Club with Jack, and he had said that the mountains were the walls of heaven. Helmi looked at the mountains and thought of that night. Then she looked at the road that led to the mine and thought of the night when she had first seen it. She had been sitting on the step of the Girls' Club with Jack, and he had said that the road was the road to happiness. Helmi looked at the road and thought of that night. Then she looked at the mine and thought of the night when she had first seen it. She had been sitting on the step of the Girls' Club with Jack, and he had said that the mine was the mine of love. Helmi looked at the mine and thought of that night. Then she looked at the mountains and thought of that night. Then she looked at the road that led to the mine and thought of that night. Then she looked at the stars and thought of that night. Then she looked at the moon and thought of that night. Then she looked at the mountains and thought of that night. ANNUAL MEETING OF FORT CANADIAN CLUB

The second annual meeting of the Canadian Club of Fort Saskatchewan was held in the town hall January 18. A representative gathering turned out to the meeting and the business was then proceeded with.

The club as a body only meet once a year at the annual meeting and that to elect officers and discuss the general work of the club. The natural work of securing lecturers and making all necessary arrangements for their visits, etc. is done by the executive during the year. It is therefore incumbent on all members to make a point of attending the annual meeting to express their views and discuss the proposed work for the coming year.

The president gave an address outlining the work performed during the past year. It being the first year of existence perhaps not so much had been done as could have been. However, what had been done had no doubt left its impression on the town. The visit of Lord and Lady Willingdon and party and the luncheon given them by the club members was an event that will always be remembered. We then had E. J. Pratt, an eminent Canadian poet lecturer and give reading from his own handiwork. This visitor was most interesting and instructive and a pleasant memory of him remains. His Herbert Ames then came here and gave his famous lecture on the cause and effect of the League of Nations. Anybody, from a student of the subject to the casual newspaper reader, could not fail to have been vitally interested in the able and simple manner in which this subject was presented. The visits of these prominent persons to Fort Saskatchewan was due entirely to the work of the Canadian club, so there was no doubt the club had accomplished something by its formation.

A vote of thanks was moved and tendered to the ladies of the club for their almost superhuman efforts put forward and thereby making the luncheon to the Governor-General such a decided success. A vote of thanks was also moved and tendered to the president for the time and labor he has put into the club affairs and for the providing of transportation for our visitors.

The election of officers for the coming year was then proceeds with with the following result:

President—A. H. Gibson. (re-elected)
Vice-president—R. H. Rogers.
Treasurer—D. E. R. Ewer.
Secretary—Mrs. T. W. E. Henry.
Editor—S. Warrier.
Executive Committee—J. Doss, Mrs. G. J. Dawson, J. D. McLean, Mrs. A. M. Carscadden, Wm. H. Thorne-Coleson, L. J. Devereux.

The meeting was then closed with the prospect of an eventful coming year. All members and persons interested in the work of the club are advised to watch for announcements of lectures, addresses, etc., and are advised that the time will be well spent in attending them.

CURLING

The mixed bonspiel is well advanced, the finals being held up until after the Vegreville bonspiel.

A party of Edmonton lady curlers were here last Thursday to play a friendly game with the local ladies. They were from the Thistle and Scona clubs. The Fort rinks were Mrs. Mort Wright, skip, Mrs. E. Flinloff, Mrs. Hallam, Mrs. Geo. Mohr. Mrs. Taylor, skip, Mrs. Grubb, Mrs. McLellan, Mrs. Geo. Becker. After the game, of which one was won and one lost, the ladies adjourned to Mrs. A. M. Carscadden's for refreshments.

The Fort-Edmonton highway is in a slippery condition and automobile drivers need to drive carefully. Several Fort cars have skidded into the ditch recently and an Edmonton couple had the hair-raising experience of turning a double somersault in their sedan. Rescuers soon came to their aid and disentangled them from steering post, clutch, etc., and found that apart from shock they were unhurt.

CLOVER BAR COUPLE HONORED BY FRIENDS

A large number of friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. Hecke, of Clover Bar, on Tuesday evening, the occasion being the anniversary of their silver wedding.

The Rev. J. P. Berry was in charge and was asked to make the presentation speech. Other short speeches followed which brought out clearly the varied activities of Mr. Hecke in the community since his arrival as an immigrant from Sweden thirty years ago.

Government vs. Private Ownership

If there are call for the vision of a seer, or the wisdom of a seventh son of a seventh son, to realize that a battle royal is looming up on the horizon of Canada's national life in varying acceptance of one or the other of the two positions noted in the heading of the article. It will be a battle of giants, with not merely millions or tens of millions, but hundreds of millions of dollars at stake.

The initial stages of this gigantic financial battle are now being waged over the subject of control and development of vast water-powers in various parts of the Dominion. In more than one instance these are linked up with schemes of canalization, as, for example, the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterways scheme, and the long discussed Georgian Bay Canal project. Although both of these undertakings must be carried out in the East, they are matters of vital interest to Western Canada.

Financial, commercial and industrial interests in Montreal and Toronto may be interested, and more or less directly affected by the deepening of the channels of navigation between the present head of ocean navigation at Montreal, and the head of the Lakes ports of Port Arthur and Fort William, but the more vital concern of these financial magnates is centered in and upon the development of the huge water-powers which will be made available as part of the canal construction.

The West, on the other hand, is more concerned about the greater waterways feature and the effect which the deepening of the major channels between the head of the Great Lakes and the Atlantic seaboard will have on freight rates, both by water and rail, on the huge exportable surplus of Western products.

So far as the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence project is concerned, it is not wholly a domestic matter for Canada. It is an international matter, inasmuch as a portion of the St. Lawrence belongs jointly to Canada and the United States, and the construction of the proposed deep canal system will affect approximately forty million of the people of the neighboring republic.

Eastern financial interests, whose real concern is to secure private control of the vast water-powers to be developed, are busy raising the bogeies of United States interference in Canadian affairs, United States control of Canadian resources, and are urging all the possible dangers of entangling alliances. The old, worn-out stock arguments used at the time of the Reciprocity campaign are beginning to be trotted out once more, the Old Flag is to be waved, and all and sundry who do not see eye to eye with the financial magnates backing with a covetous eye of the wealth of water-powers are to be classified as traitors to the Dominion.

There is some evidence, too, that, as on former occasions when questions of great national moment were up for discussion and decision, attempts will be made to cloud the real issue by again raising despicable cries of race and creed, and seeking to set one section of the Dominion against another.

Too frequently in the past, with great national policies at stake, the people of Canada have allowed themselves to be swayed by these cries and have been made the victims of their own shortsightedness and foolishness in giving head to such unworthy appeals. Now that Canada has largely put these things into the background and is moving forward to a development and prosperity unsurpassed in its past history, it is to be sincerely hoped that any and all such ignoble attempts will receive no quarter from the overwhelming mass of the Canadian people; that, as a people, they will put their foot down, and put it down hard, upon any such campaign, the originators of which are the real enemies of and traitors to Canada.

We are not proposing to discuss the respective merits of public and private ownership. But we would most earnestly ask the people of Western Canada to be on their guard, and in the discussions which are bound to take place within the next few years, to keep their minds persistently on the facts of the case, and not be influenced one way or the other by catch cries, sectional, sectarian, or partisan appeals. It is the national good of all Canada, present and future, that is at stake.

Another Victory For Science

Danger Of Collapse After Pneumonia Crisis May Soon Be Overcome

Foremost of an imminent announcement that medical science had achieved another great victory was made before the Canadian Club at Toronto by Prof. J. C. McLennan, of Toronto University.

Danger of collapse following a pneumonia crisis, caused by inability of the body to attain requisite temperature, may be overcome as a result of recent observations in the General Electric laboratory in Schenectady, N.Y.

It was recently observed that operations experimenting with a long metre wave apparatus built for radio suddenly had a tremendous rise in temperature. It soon became apparent that if these waves could be controlled and applied to sodium chloride in the blood there was a marked absorption and the temperature was increased to a given point. It is now believed by application of these waves any known temperature required to destroy dafferent diseases-forming organisms can be produced without danger to the patient.

The Experience of Mrs. Ray Brown is Well Worth Reading

Peterboro, Ont.— "I was in a miserable state of health, my nerves gave way completely, I could not sleep, had backaches and was completely exhausted, I was so weak and sleepy and tired that I was compelled to give up and take to my bed. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, so nothing I had used helped me. By the time I had taken one bottle I was able to be up and around, I kept on taking it and was completely restored to health. I cannot say enough in praise of the 'Favorite Prescription,' for the wonderful help it gave me."—Mrs. Ray Brown, 322 King St.

Manitoba Agricultural College Re-Union

600 Ex-Students To Celebrate the Coming Of Age Of the College

Friends and ex-students of the Manitoba Agricultural College are preparing to celebrate the coming of age of that institution at a re-union to be held February 16 and 17, for it is twenty-one years ago since the charter class foregathered.

Re-unions come with unfailing regularity in M.A.C. circles, but this one, on account of its historic significance, is to be the daddy of them all. A big committee under the energetic leadership of J. H. Grisdale, deputy minister of agriculture, is making a special drive to get in all ex-students, particularly those who went through the mill on the old site at Tuxedo, now the military barracks. The first evening of the re-union will be given over to a banquet. Efforts are being made to secure the attendance of Dr. W. J. Black, Montreal, President Reynolds, of C.N.R., and Sir John Aitchen, the three ex-presidents of the college. Mr. Evans estimates that at least 600 ex-Aggies and Dairy School graduates will be on hand, every one of them a booster for the old college and all its doings.

The afternoon of the second day will be spent in visiting the classrooms and laboratories at the M.A.C. Students now in attendance at the college stand prepared to take the contest out of graduates' athletes who may be harboring any notion that they can still cart or play basketball. A dance at the college will wind up proceedings.

Headaches may be swiftly and safely relieved by an Aspirin tablet. A most efficient remedy, and there's no after effect; its use avoids much needless suffering. Try it next time; see how soon its soothing influence is felt. Just as helpful when you have a cold; neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism, lumbago. Just be certain you get real Aspirin—the genuine has Bayer on the box, and on every tablet. All druggists, with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid, for the public benefit the Bayer Company will be identified with the word "Bayer" on Aspirin tablets.

NO BETTER MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Is What Thousands Of Mothers Say Of Baby's Own Tablets

A medicine for the baby or growing child—one that the mother can feel assured is absolutely safe as well as efficient—is found in Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are praised by thousands of mothers throughout the country. No medicine have found by actual experience that there is no other medicine for little ones and them. These a mother has used them her own children who will use nothing else. Concerning them Mrs. Charles Hoit, Thamesford, Ont., writes: "I have two children the baby being but six months old. I have used Baby's Own Tablets for them the past 20 years and can truthfully say that I know of no better medicine for little ones. I always keep a box of the Tablets in the house and would advise all other mothers to do so."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or will be mailed upon receipt of price, 25 cents per box, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Recipe For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

Cardinal Golaine Salad

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin.
1½ cups boiling water.
½ cup creamed tuna, juice.
1 cup celery, shredded.
1 cup beets, diced.
¼ cup Spanish onions, cut fine.
1 green pepper, shredded.
½ teaspoon salt.

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add beet juice. When cool, add celery, beets, onions, green pepper and salt. Pour into individual moulds. Turn out on lettuce, serve with Mayonnaise dressing. Serves eight.

Fifteen-Dollar Pie

2 tablespoons flour.
1½ tablespoons melted butter.
Juice 1 lemon.
1 egg yolk.
½ cup milk.
1 egg white.
Few grains salt.

Mix sugar and flour, add melted butter, lemon juice, egg yolk slightly beaten, milk, egg white stiffly beaten, and salt. Bake in one crust, and cover with meringue or not, as desired.

A phenomenal medicine for children is Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, and it is excellent for driving worms from the system.

Millions Spent On Roads

Canada Has Built 7,686 Miles In Last Few Years

Out of a total of 8,415 miles of road provided for under agreement authorized by the Canada Highways Act of 1919, 7,686 miles has been completed at the end of the fiscal year ending March 31, 1927. This is shown in the annual report of the Commissioner of Highways.

The millions was constructed under the provisions governing the Federal subsidy whereby the Dominion Government undertook to furnish 40 per cent. of the cost, the province taking care of the remainder.

The estimated subsidiable cost of the highways was $18,900,972.

Experimental Farm For North

Establishment In Meadow Lake District Has Been Approved

Of interest to the settlers in the far north of the North Battleford federal constituency is the news that the federal department of agriculture has sanctioned the establishment of an experimental station at Meadow Lake. The farm will be selected, and will be put in operation during the coming summer. The telegraph line built this year, linking up the 55 mile stretch between Meadow Lake and Loon Lake is now in operation, and is already proving a boon to the people in this remote part of the province. With better farming facilities and improved conditions for the settler, a development of the agricultural possibilities is expected, resulting ultimately in improved railway and highway service.

Fur Farming In Alberta

The growing importance of the fur farming industry in Alberta is indicated by the importation recently of a shipment of 27 pairs of silver foxes from ranches in the Maritime Provinces. These animals, valued at $35,000, were consigned to the National Silver Fox Club at Medicine, a newly organized firm which plans to engage in fox breeding on a large scale.

Sale Of Forest Products Is Big Factor In Keeping Trade Balance With U. S.

Canada's far flung line of forest industries stands out as perhaps the most striking feature of the Dominion industrial landscape.

Only when one realizes what an enormous volume of commerce these forest industries support, and what a dominant role they play in keeping Canada's trade with the United States on a fairly even keel, can one clearly appreciate what a huge stake the Canadian people have in forest protection.

Three hundreds of mills together form the main supporting pillar of Canada's export trade with her neighbors to the south. The mounting sales of forest products alone have enabled the Dominion in recent years to keep her trade with the United States from becoming altogether lopsided. Last year Canada sold to the United States roughly $343,000,000 worth of wood and paper products, this class of goods representing more than half of the total value of our exports to that country.

How long Canada can continue to export forest products at such a rate is a question which few persons would care to try to answer, for there is a pretty unanimous agreement that the Dominion's forest resources are being steadily and rapidly depleted. In the light of this situation, efficient forest protection and management must take rank as one of Canada's commanding problems. It is a question which commands the active concern not merely of those who find employment in forest industry, or of those whose capital is invested in that field but of every individual and institution interested in seeing that the Dominion's commercial position is maintained on an even keel.

Television and Radio

Now Perfected Device Makes It Possible To Both See and Hear Performers

The magic wand of science passing over the factory of the General Electric Company, at Schenectady, N.Y., disclosed to a small group of radio engineers, scientists and newspapermen, a vision of the future of radio broadcasting a future designed to bring to broadcast fans the sight as well as the sound of the radio performers sitting in comfortable chairs in their own homes, thousands of miles from the company's broadcasting studio, the visitors were enabled both to hear and see the studio program.

Simple twists of the dials on the home television set brought to these men the minute reproduction of the characters who appeared before the microphone, even to the curl of cigarette smoke from their lips and the blinking of their eyes.

The sound of their voices was heard in the usual way through a loud-speaker supplementing the visual apparatus.

Canadians Are Urged To Turn Their Gaze Northwards For Great Future Developments

The map of Canada is gradually being unrolled Northwards, and bit by bit the secrets that have hitherto been hidden as that vast empire to the north of the 60th parallel are yielding themselves up to investigation and research.

It is only within the last few years that Canadians have definitely turned towards the great possibilities for expansion of the Northland and have satisfied themselves that the popular belief that the Northern areas of their country are barren and unhabitable is, like most popular beliefs, utterly erroneous. With a quiet determination they have tackled the problems of exploring and exploiting the territories beyond the 60th degree of latitude, and have within the past year committed themselves to spending many millions of dollars to development work in that part of the continent.

The establishment of post offices, police posts and customs houses in the Northern islands off the Canadian mainland has been standing purpose; and the most Northerly administrative post in the world is that of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Bache Bay, on Ellesmere island, 700 miles south of the North Pole. There is no end to the surveys that are being carried out among the islands themselves and to the investigations connected into every feature, geographical and biological that these islands contain.

Coming nearer to civilization, Canadians are soon creating for themselves new transportation routes and new outlets to the ocean. At the moment an "all-Canadian highway" of flying men are operating in the Hudson Straits, that spacious channel which connects the inland ocean, Hudson's Bay with the Atlantic.

This force has for its duty the making of observations in daily flights over vast expanses of water in order to note the tidal conditions, currents, prevailing winds, ice and all other elements that enter into navigation. Three air stations are located in the straits, one at Port Burwell at the extreme point of the Labrador Peninsula; the second, at Wakaham Bay on the south shore and midway up the straits, and the third at Nottingham Island, in Hudson's Bay itself, at its western entrance.

Day after day flights are made and reports transmitted by wireless to the Canadian government.

The whole idea behind this is that the government should possess all information as to how navigation can be lengthened, for although the Hudson Straits have been navigated for three hundred years and at one time were the main highway to the Canadian West in the days of the old fur-trading companies, the development of the southern lanes of traffic left that route far behind.

Linked up with these investigations is the definite effort now being carried out to finish the Hudson's Bay railway—a line which will when completed, run from a point in Saskatchewan, near the Manitoba boundary, to Fort Churchill on Hudson's Bay.

As originally planned the road was to end at Port Nelson, but an extensive investigation into the merits of the two terminals resulted in Port Churchill being decided on. It will mean the railway by nearly 100 miles, but the report of engineers who made a study of the situation informed that Churchill has many natural advantages not enjoyed by Nelson and that, despite the 100 miles of railway building, the expenditure in the end will be smaller.

The line goes right into the heart of the Canadian West, bringing it only a few hundred miles from the sea coast.

Exploration is being pushed forward. At the beginning of this year a small expedition will start out from Ottawa to study the fauna of 15,000 square miles of territory which the government in 1927 set aside as a game sanctuary. This region lies between the Great Slave Lake and Churchill Inlet, near the junction of Hanbury and Thelon Rivers. It has been traversed by many exploring parties, but has region in vast that much remains to be told of it."

Canadian statesmen are urging their people to turn their gaze northwards, and the next few years should witness some great development in that portion of the American continent.

Plan Industries Fair

Everything Made In Great Britain Will Be Exhibited

Almost everything Great Britain makes, from heavy electrical equipment for a power house down to the daintiest jewelry, will be seen at the British Industries Fair, which is to be held simultaneously in London and Birmingham from Feb. 20 to March 2, 1928.

The aim of the organizers is to make each section thoroughly representative of its own branch of British industry and to establish the fair more firmly as an annual commercial event of first class importance—the manufacturer's means of launching new products and establishing new contracts, the trade buyer's means of keeping in touch with the latest developments in British production and of taking a complete survey of that section of it which interests him most without having to make a tour of the country.

When a Sparrow Falls

Save the Birds and Destroy the Insect Pests

According to scientists, we are now on the verge of a struggle between the insect world and mankind. If such is not born until its natural death, it would not be long before fields and woods would be bare and our source of food gone.

One bird devours hundreds of insects in a day, and millions in a lifetime. Millions of birds devour millions of millions of insects daily, but at any rate, they enable us to overcome the insects that remain.

Let us remember, then, that it is particularly when the ribs of the small boy is pointed toward one of our feathered friends.

German Subs Discovered

Bank in the Baltic, off Windau Harbor, when they came into collision during the war, two German submarines, from which there were only three survivors, have been discovered by fishermen. The latter have recently hauled in their nets portions of the wreckage and six skulls and other bones. Divers have been sent down and have reported 18 seamarines to be apparently little damaged.

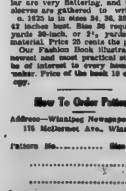
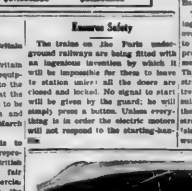
Eastern Safety

The trains on the Paris underground railways are being fitted with an ingenious invention by which it will be impossible for them to leave the station unless all the doors are closed and locked. No signal to start will be given by the guard; he will simply press a button. Unless everything is in order the electric motors will not respond to the starting-button.





West Pays Visit to East

More and more every year Canadians are exploring Canada. From the East — Montreal and Toronto — the Canadian Pacific Railway sends special trains right across the Dominion to Victoria, returning by routes different on the home by which the outward journey was taken and thus giving easterners a more thorough idea of the land and cities of the west. In the other direction, from west to east, the flow is almost equally great by reason of the large number of westerners who travel across Canada to take their overseas for the Christmas holidays. But the "Barrvistance Francaise" is something different to this. In this case, some hundreds of French-Canadian settlers in the west make the trip back for a week or two to the land of their origin, the Province of Quebec. They arrive at the Windsor Street Station of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Montreal, and from there went to Shawinigan, Sherbrooke and Quebec City, where they were entertainingly feted by local organizations, municipal, government and ecclesiastical bodies. Photograph shows this season's party assembled in the Windsor Station just after their arrival in Montreal recently. The lads in white uniforms of the old French regime were a guard of honor drawn up to greet the party and come from local Montreal school.

Ship Live Cattle To Japan

Forty Head Obtained In Alberta Were In Prime Condition

Shipments of dressed beef in the half or quarter carcass have been exported to Japan from Vancouver for several years past and consignments of pure-bred and dairy cattle have also been made But what is believed to be the first shipment of live beef cattle was made from Vancouver recently on the steamer Errikon by the Vancouver Livestock Exchange. The shipment consisted of 40 heifers, averaging 1200 lbs. each, which were obtained in Alberta, it being found impossible to get them in British Columbia. The animals, which will be slaughtered on arrival at Kobe, were in prime condition, but, never having had a rope on them since they were branded; the shipment proved a lively time getting them on board and tied up in their stalls.

Company Leases Big Area In Mackenzie River Territory

Reindeer meat may find its way to the dining rooms of Western Canada if the plans of the Canadian Reindeer Company are successful. This organization, which is now actively engaged in the reindeer business in Alaska, is moving 4,000 farther in the spring to a lease of 300,000 acres in the Mackenzie River territory, which is being granted by the Federal Government. It is estimated that sales of reindeer meat in 1930 will be 30,000, increasing to $40,000 in the following year.

Foresees Atlantic Air Service

Dominion Secretary Predicts Edmonton Will Be Northern Depot

The Rt. Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery, British secretary of state for Dominion Affairs, foresees the day when Edmonton will be the northern depot for a great British air line service across the Atlantic, north through the Peace River Country and across the Rockies to Vancouver.

"It is not generally realized," he said, "and only the development of an airline across the Atlantic will show it, that Churchill is as near to London as to Montreal; that Edmonton is as near to London as is Toronto, and that practically all of Canada is nearer to London than is New York."

Experimental air line service will be recommenced in the summer stated Col. Amery, but it will be three or four years yet before there is a regular air line service across the Atlantic and there is not to be much assistance in measuring air distances for such a comparison of distances as the flog, the feasibility of an all year air crossing of the dangerous and forbidding territories of Iceland and Greenland.

Passenger and mail service will first be developed, followed by the carrying of precious cargoes such as gold, grain, and the like on which insurance charges are extremely heavy for such hour of transportation.

One large airship is being built by the British air ministry for commercial and military tests and another for passenger and criminal work is being built by Col. Burney for a private company.

London-Dublin Air Service

Would Cut Journey From Ten To Four Hours

An air service between London and Dublin is the subject of negotiations now in progress between Imperial Airways, Limited, and the Air Department of the Irish Free State. Passengers would fly from London to Liverpool in air expressed. At Liverpool they would change planes and proceed by passenger flying boat. The actual journey should be accomplished in about four hours, compared with ten hours by boat and train.

WOMEN WHO ARE WEAK

Gain New Vitality By Building Up the Blood

There are many women who pass their days in a constant state of weariness. They have barely sufficient energy to enable them to perform their manifold duties. Often they have an aching back, a miserable pain in the back, and limbs that feel as heavy as lead. The whole trouble is due to blondlessness. No woman need suffer in this way. It is easy to obtain a new vitality by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The new blood created by these pills quickly builds up the system, heartens and invigorates, and every function is given the joy of living. Mrs. Anthony Gaudet, Cape Tormentine, N.B., tells how she was restored to health by Mrs. Ed. Lanson, Bonny River, Ont., who says: "For a long time I had been in a very miserable condition, always feeling tired out, sleepy and weak. The least work would tax me beyond my strength and I did not seem to give relief. Believing that a rest might do me good, we moved to Ontario, but the change did me no good. Instead of getting better I was growing steadily weaker. One day while talking to a neighbor, she urged my taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, telling me that her daughter had been in a condition much like mine. That persuaded me to try this medicine and I have much reason to be grateful that I followed her advice. After using a few boxes of the pills, there could be no doubt that they were helping me, and so I continued their use my health and strength came back to me, and I can doing all my own work and feeling in the best of health. For this splendid condition I must give my thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

The pills are sold by all druggists or you can get them by mail at 50c a box from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JANUARY 29

THE BEGINNING OF JESUS MINISTRY

Golden Text: "The common people heard him gladly." Mark 12:37.

Lesson Mark 3:7-12 6:53-56

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 61:1-3, 8.

Suggestions and Comments

I. Why the Crowd Followed Jesus, 3:7-12. Because of the hostility of Scribes and Pharisees. Jesus withdrawn with his disciples to the Sea of Galilee. The opposition of the Christian authorities was growing and at the same time Jesus was becoming increasingly popular with the masses. Great crowds followed him for his fame had gone throughout the land. Crowds came from Galilee and from Jerusalem, from Idumea and beyond Jordan from the region of Tyre and Sidon. On one day when there were so many in the throng was pressing upon him his disciples secured a little boat which he could take refuge. It was the fame of Jesus as a worker of miracles drew them. They had also heard his wonderful words and deeds. All sick were pressed upon him to touch him. Those afflicted with unclean spirits fell down before him crying, "Thou art the Son of God." Hastily they cried them not to make him known. Apparently the authorities were dangerous for Jesus, it might lead to an outbreak.

What attracted the crowds? His power to heal. His sympathy with their woe so easily understood. You but these all in Him. Himself. It was His personality. It was the Christ that attracted the people. And isn't it the fact that where Christ is held up to the people there we do find the crowd and there we do find the Church taking her part in the life of the people.

A CANADIAN RIVER THAT LOSES ITSELF

Maligne River, In Jasper National Park, Has Interesting Feature

A river that loses itself in an underground lake and re-issues at a distance to be found for several miles, is one of the interesting features of Jasper National Park, Alberta, which, with an area of more than 5,000 square miles, is the largest national playground in the world. The name of this river is the Maligne French for "bad" and given to it because where it joins the Athabaska there was a ford which was much feared by the trappers and voyageurs of early days in western history.

The Maligne River finds its source in Maligne Lake, almost thirty-five miles from its confluence with the Athabaska. Maligne Lake is about eight miles long, more than a mile wide and the largest glacial fed body of water in the Canadian Rockies. From the lake the Maligne River flows swiftly down-hill for about four-teen miles to empty into Medicine Lake, a body of water four miles long and from a half to a mile wide. This lake, in some places, reaches a depth of 150 feet.

Out of this lake there is no known outlet. At the foot of it and for a mile or so below there is the dry course of what was once a river, but this bed is dry and there is neither sight nor sound of water in or near it. After about a mile, a trickle of water marks its appearance and within a comparatively short distance a river is once more flowing through the valley.

This is again the Maligne River, although from this point to the Athabaska, the volume of water is never as great as that which flows into Medicine Lake. A mile above the Athabaska River, the Maligne hurls itself down into a great canyon, hundreds of feet deep and, in places, less than a yard wide at the top.

Air Route Via Yukon

Great Northern Airway Is Predicted By Dr. Thompson

The Yukon will some day be one of the main air routes of the world, providing a line of travel from Asia and Europe, if the prediction of Dr. Alfred Thompson, former minister of parliament for the Yukon, comes true.

"The airway will be routed through the Northern part of British Columbia or the Yukon to the Aleutian Islands," said Dr. Thompson, "over the Aleutians, the North and China, Japan and the Philippine Islands to the South, the route will be free from fog, wind or snow. Airships will probably be the main means of travel, and stations will be established in the summer months in the Yukon when the rivers are open.

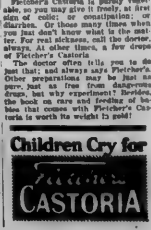
The BABY



Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infants ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night? If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence sees to it that through the day system. Not even a distaste-ful dose of castor oil does as much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhoea; for those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

GRADING SYSTEM FOR WHEAT IS UNDER REVIEW

Calgary.—Following a debate during which every phase of the question of grain grading was explored, the United Farmers of Alberta, in convention here, by an overwhelming vote declared their opposition to the introduction of no-names which might result in the lowering of the standard of Canadian wheat on the markets of the world.

Two resolutions were presented on grain grading. One advocated a division of grades to provide for increased moisture content, "tough A" testing from 14.4 to 15.5, and "tough B" from 15.5 to 17 per cent. It was suggested the grades would be experimental. The other resolution asking the convention to petition the Government to empower the Board of Grain Commissioners to allow a certain amount of damaged grain to go into contract grades two and three. Northern, both resolutions were rejected.

Before consideration of these recommendations, the subject of the grain inspection and grading now in vogue in Canada were explained in exhaustive detail by J. D. Fraser, chief of the cereal chemistry division, and James Robinson, member of the Board of Grain Commissioners.

For nearly three hours the two officials were bombarded with questions from the floor of the convention. They were requested to show how grain standards were set, why grain from the same field produced wheat of varying grades, the qualities of drying, results of re-inspections, the effect of mixing on the reputation of the Canadian product, and answer a barrage of queries bearing upon the movement of wheat from the time it is shipped to the country elevator until it reaches the export market."

Claims were made that the important task of inspecting the wheat of the country was being placed in the hands of incompetent men who often proved to be "green guessers." To overcome this objection it was urged inspectors be drawn exclusively from the agricultural population and not from the cities.

Replying, Mr. Fraser declared all inspectors were required to pass a rigid examination before appointment. Illustrating the difficulty in obtaining suitable men, he pointed out that from a recent list of 95 applicants only 12 had survived the test.

"Trading," Mr. Fraser added, "is primarily a matter of judgment. Naturally every man's judgment is not the same and wherever the human element enters, there is always the possibility of mistakes. In reaching classification of grain inspected, we are solely guided by the terms of the Canada Grain Act and our efforts at all times have been to reach some basis of uniformity.

Mr. Fraser deplored the increasing number of varieties of wheat being produced in the country. Fifteen years ago, he said, when the varieties were fewer, the grade of wheat had been considerably higher than at present. He expressed the opinion that half a dozen varieties would be quite sufficient.

Television Established

London.—Television already has been successfully established between London and New York, according to L. G. Hutchinson, director of the Baird Television Company. Spies Are Convicted

Two Men Are Sentenced In Britain For Espionage

London. An 1dd Bailey jury convicted two men of trafficking in British official military secrets in the interests of Soviet Russia and dealt a body blow to what the prosecution termed "a dangerous spy organization operating against the safety of Great Britain."

Whitrid Thomas McCartney was variously described as an Englishman and as an Irish American, and George Hanna, a youthful German, were sentenced to ten years' penal servitude each on their conviction.

McCartney was accused of being the chief spy and Hanson his aide in obtaining and communicating information useful to opponents of Great Britain in warfare. While admitting that not all those engaged in the espionage organization had been trapped, Attorney-General Hogg declared the activities of the arrested men had been halted before material damage could be done to the British Empire.

Summing up the Lord Chief Justice said the accused had been convicted of "a most serious crime" and pronounced them for trafficking in official secrets for gain, unimpaired by any thought of serving their own countries.

Liverpool Grows Canadian Farmers

Miss Lura Hind Replied To Address For Visitors

Liverpool.—The touring Canadian farmers spent 48-hours visiting Liverpool, Birkenhead and other points on the Mersey River, and their civil reception considerable interest here.

One Liverpool paper says of them: "They are dressed like Englishmen in their Sabbath best, except for a few who give distinction to the party by wearing fur coats."

The farmers were welcomed on the corn exchange by President Harker, who assured them that Canada's wheat graded as reliably as a bank note.

Miss Lura E. Hind, Winnipeg, replied for the visitors in an address that was replete with information about the Dominion's resources, industries and progress.

The visitors were received at the city hall by the Lord Mayor, Miss Margaret Bamford. Short speeches were made by many of the leaders in Liverpool's great commodity handling industries. Conferences were held in the trade and general produce exchanges.

The party visited the Liverpool Cathedral, of which, after 50 years building, only a part has been completed and the complete construction of which may occupy a century.

George, Pelkirk, Man.; Arthur Fargey, La Riviere, Man.; George Bathe, special representative of The Nor-West Farmer, Winnipeg; Robert Johnson, Winnipeg; John Strachan, Canadian National Railways' agricultural agent, Winnipeg; and J. S. McGowan, manager of the railways' department of agriculture and colonization. Absent from the photograph because they were in advance of the party, are, among others: Hon. George Langley, former president of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers, and member of the Saskatchewan Government; and D. W. Warner, ex-M.P. of Edmonton. Eastern men making the tour include H. S. Arbell, Dominion Live-stock Commissioner and Hon. Walter Lee, minister of agriculture, Prince Edward Island. The tourists will visit Denmark as well as England and Scotland.

MANY WESTERN MATTERS ARE TO BE DEALT WITH

Ottawa. — Western matters will have considerable prominence in the debates of the forthcoming session of parliament. There will be a large additional vote for the Minister's Buy Western Canada and if the undertaking agreement is reached regarding the policing of Saskatchewan, legislation may be required, although it may be effected by order-in-council. In any event, the subject will be before the House.

Alberta and British Columbia also figure in the sessional program and in legislation declaring the boundaries of national parks in Alberta. An agreement on long standing points of dispute will be sought.

The re-survey of boundaries made in the last few years will also come up. The fundamental interest in the parks which the Dominion proposes to retain will be in the game bounty, leasing to the province the water powers and minerals to a large degree. The Dominion Government is willing to exclude spray lakes and other powers from the parks, along with the principal coal fields, providing it is protected against future claims by the province respecting any mineral deposits which may be incidental to the essentially scenic functions of the domain. In other words, it is proposed to establish a new boundary and exclude the spray lakes water powers and the known mineral deposits, providing the title to the remainder is left inviolate in the Dominion. An agreement on these terms is probable. The resources to be excluded would be held by the Government until such time as the resources generally are returned.

Meanwhile, in regard to the better settlement of the west, new developments. Conferences on the subject last week between Premiers King and Brownlee are expected to result in announcements one way or the other, when the latter has consulted his colleagues. The Dominion Government is desirous of settling additional vacant lands if practicable. The Canadian National Railways is also concentrated in getting the case before the Privy Council without some new intervenant. The ultimate decision of the unusual procedure of the federal government appealing a judgment in its own favor.

In regard to British Columbia's case for better terms a report from Mr. Justice Martin is awaited. The boundary dispute with Ontario and if the lands sought are returned it will not be in recognition of a legal claim but as a matter of equity.

Duke Of Richmond Dies At Home In England

London.—Charles Henry Gordon-Lennox, Duke of Richmond and Gordon, and aide-de-camp to King George, died at the Goodwood House, Chichester, after a brief illness. He was 82 years old.

The Duke of Richmond and Gordon served as aide-de-camp to Queen Victoria, King Edward and King George. He was a former member of parliament and was colonel in the Sussex regiment. He was Lord Lieutenant of Elgin and Banff, and has been chancellor of Aberdeen University since 1917.

He served in the South African War and was mentioned in despatches.

Re-Elected To Presidency

Calgary. — Unanimous demonstration of loyalty was accorded Henry Wise Wood in his re-election to the presidency of the United Farmers of Alberta for the third consecutive term. The candidature of the veteran leader was not opposed. Similarly the United Farmer Women of Alberta expressed their confidence in Mrs. R. B. Gunn, who despite protestations, was persuaded to accept the presidency of the U.F.W.A. for another year.

Beer By the Glass

Toronto.—The Ontario Legislature will open to three weeks, and, according to The Toronto Star, it is possible the question of sale of beer by the glass may be a live issue at the session.

The regular monthly meeting of St. George's W.A. will be held in the rectory on Thursday, February 2, at 2 p.m. Hostesses: Mrs. Meagre and Mrs. Hollins.

A rink skipped by Joe Macdonald left Tuesday morning to attend the Vegreville bonspiel. The other members of the rink are E. Pitstaff, Karl Graham and Ed. LaBelle.

Nicholas Hider's sedan turned over near the Gorman church Tuesday. Beyond a few scratches and a shaking up the occupants escaped injury.

The regular meeting of the Vegreville hockey team was again presented in their desire to meet the local boys in a return game here next Friday. The train was an hour and twenty minutes late, making it too late to allow them to return the same night.

PROVINCIAL SEED FAIR SUCCESSFUL

In both number and quality of exhibits the Alberta Seed Fair held in Calgary during the past week was the most successful in the history of the province. All grains, seeds and vegetables were well represented, competition for the awards was keen, and in addition to many of the vet erans exhibitors, the list of prizewinners includes a number of new growers who were on hand with splendid entries. Interesting features at the show were a number of samples of the grain which won prizes at the Chicago International in 1927. The Commercial Life trophy for the highest aggregate score for any two farm crops was again won by Herman Trenke with H. G. L. Strange a very close second.

At the annual meeting of the Alberta Seed Growers' association plans were made to promote a campaign advocating the use of better seed grain throughout the province in order to combat the spread of noxious weeds and to maintain the high standard of Alberta's grain production. A suggestion was made that the number of wheat-growing "zones" in the province be increased and that definite information be made available to farmers as to the most suitable variety of wheat for particular localities.

Emphasis was laid on the advisability of using good Marquis seed in districts where the length of growing season permits this variety to mature, and farmers were advised not to abandon this wheat of recognized quality for newer untried varieties unless under very exceptional circumstances. Tribute was paid to the work of the provincial seed cleaning and grading plant in assuring a supply of high class seed grain for the farmers of the province.

CHAPTER XVII

Helmi's eyes were two deep pools of wonder and delight. Then over them swept fear, like a rue rast wind.

But Jack, have you to go? Will you have to have me and go away in the north? I don't want gold, dear Jack, I just want you and no money makes only trouble."

Jack kissed her and laughed. "Oh Hi-lmi, you will not mind my going This man I am going with knows the North like he has lived in it for fourteen years, and he has the dogs and all and it's a great thing for me that he is taking me with him. There's him and Mike and Pete and Bill, all of there in my place if they knea. But it is just the two of me and a half-breed Linde We have to keep in dark, because the old syndicate are watching him. They know that he knows where the oil springs are. Mike, he told me of a hot spring valley there where the rocks are always warm, and tropical plants grow, and the creeks come tumbling out of the mountains. He is a wonder, this man and to think he asked me to go with him, and he will let me stake my claim with him and give me a share in everything."

Helmi looked at him with deep trouble in her eyes. "I wish you had never seen gold in the sand, and never, until this man," she said, "Now all our good times will be spoiled by thinking you have to go. Jack, I have no money, plumes on hat, and big rings and trip to Finland now I just want you and my little house to work in and make nice. Don't go, Jack—just stay with me."

"Hush little Lal," Jack said, "I know how you feel. That was the reason I did not say anything about getting married when I came at Christmas, thought we would wait until I came back from the north, but its better that we did get married, dear, I am glad now, even if you are pretty cross at me leaving you so soon."

"Not cross, Jack, but just sad. My heart is cold and heavy, just like a stone."

"Now cheer up, Helmi, and listen. I want to tell you what sort of a dress we will buy first when we get our money. The color for you, with that top-knot of yours, is green and you shall have a clinging dress of green satin, with jade ear-rings and necklace, and a cloak of sea-foam green, lined with a sort of flame color that will show a little when you walk. Now, what's the matter?"

Helmi was looking at him in horror. "You could not breed in Mrs. St. John's room before the glass. 'Don't do it,' she cried excitedly, 'that dress belongs bad luck.'"

"Gowlnight!" cried Jack, "what shall I do? Blanish superstition have I spurned long now."

"No, no, not Finnish—but I will never wear a green dress Jack, not even to please you."

Jack could see he had awakened a very poignant memory and again he wondered, wishing the magistrate had not told him. As he always is he is haunted by these evil spirits of the past?

If Jack had not been told anything he would no doubt have asked Helmi more about her past. As it was he avoided the subject. He hoped she would tell him everything, and to this end he told her all there was to tell about himself his father and mother, had died when he was five, and his sister, ten years his senior, and himself, were brought up in Toronto by his mother's sister. His sister had been very kind to him, and he adored her. When she was old enough she trained for a private secretary and got a position with a very wealthy woman, and travelled with her in Europe for several years.

"And then I seemed to lose her," continued Jack, "for when she came back she had such extravagant tastes my aunt was not keen to keep her and she stayed with her. She hated our way of living and all our little economies. She made no secret of the fact that she was going to marry a man with money -and she did, a very decent old scout, too, who worships her, I can understand that, too, for she has a way with her, I can tell you. She is good to look at, and she is as cheerfully selfish. She loves beauty more than anything on earth, and would sacrifice principle for it. Now, she may love this husband of hers—I hope she does—but I know this that if he had been poor she would not have looked at him.

"I must tell her about you, Helmi, and send her some snaps of you. She would love you for your beauty and I would love you more for your pluck. I am going to write to her right now."

This was Sunday afternoon, a dull, gray day, with a high wind and low clinging clouds. There was no plowing ure in going out, so they stayed beside their own cheerful fire all day. The mountain tops were hidden in the clouds, which seemed to be slipping lower and lower down their rugged sides.

Jack was writing his letter on the table. "I will read it for you when I am done," he said, "and I want you to write too. It is rather nice to have a relative to write to in case of marriage," he said musing. "I want to show pictures of my lovely Finn girl to someone."

Helmi smiled back at him. Her mind was concerned with the one overwhelming thought that he would have to leave her some day soon. She could not think clearly because of this. Away in the North where there were whirling rapids, deep crevices in the mountains, and horrible roaring canyons; where there were bears and wolves, the possibility of starvation, and blinding storms and lost men got mad with loneliness!

Helmi cursed the men this prospector who had put this wild scheme before her Jack. She wished the lightning had struck him dead. She interrupted Jack's writing: "What is the name of this man you will go with?"

"His name is Keith Tom Keith. He has his home in Winnipeg but is seldom there His wife and family live on the Cleveport."

Helmi's eyes blazed with sudden Finnish anger Keith a prospector—gold on the Peliminki! Again she could hear Minnie, poor little Minnie, broken and ashamed telling her pitiful story. "He said he would stake a claim for me if I would marry her!"

He's a devil he's a devil and a liar' Helmi screamed "I know about Master Tom Keith!" and she poured out curses in Finnish Jack shudder, even though he understood not a word

Helmi Helmi What is wrong? How do you know this man where could you know him?"

I knew Minnie," she said, quite off her guard in her excitement," the poor little girl he fooled. He's a devil, I tell you and you are not to go with him"

"Come here, little wildcat," Jack laughed, "calm down and tell me what you know Don't scream like that, Mrs. McManus will think I am beating you. I may have to yet, too I can see that"

Helmi stood looking at him she would tell him everything she must tell him She has grown never to tell, but surely when she is married it is different. Jack would keep an oath made by her—it would still be binding on it would be such a relief to tell her dear Jack! He would be sorry for her and suffered. Then she would tell him everything Her anger was all gone now, and the happy light had come back to her eyes. It would be so good to tell him.

She came over to him and put her arms around him Forgive me, Jack, I am a wildcat; but it's all for love of you. Have you finished your letter? No? Well, I will wait."

Jack was just writing the address

Mrs. (Dr.) H. John,
Chestnut Street,
Winnipeg.

"I forget the number," he said, but everybody knows the Doctor. Now, come, Helmi, and tell me who Minnie is, and where you met her; in fact I want to know a lot of things."

Helmi, stood staring at the name, pale with emotion. She chosed back a sob by biting her lip until it bled. "Oh, there is not much to tell," she said, as carelessly as she could with her heart beating so wildly. "Minnie was a girl who lived in the same house in Winnipeg, and she said this man had said he would do big things for her, and he was just lying. He broke Minnie's heart he is a bad man Jack- that is all." She did not look at him when she spoke; she was afraid he would read in her face what she must not tell.

EXPECTANT MOTHERS

Read Mrs. Menard's Letter. Her Experience May Help

Chatham, Ontario. — "I want to tell you how much good your medicine has done me. Before my baby came I felt so weak and run-down that I could hardly do my work. My appetite failed me and I was discouraged that I would cry from morning till night. I had another baby last one year and a half old and it gave me a hot to do. So I thought I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as I had read so much about it in the little books. I found a difference right away as my head was relieved and my tired feelings gone. My sister had been doing my washing and she continued doing it. So she said it might set me back if I started to do it again. I sure did help me and I had taken just two bottles when my baby came. He is a fine big boy, now nearly five months old. I am taking your medicine again and I am able to do my work all by myself now. I always recommend the Vegetable Compound to women, and especially to expectant mothers, as I believe they need help at those times."—Mrs. OLIVER MENARD, 24 Harvey St., Chatham, Ontario.

Miller's Worm Powders not only exterminate intestinal and other worms, but they are a remedy for many other ailments of children. They strengthen the young stomach against biliousness and are tonical in their effects where the child suffers from loss of appetite. In feverish conditions they will be found useful and they will serve to allay pain and griping in the stomach, from which children so often suffer.

Student (to Professor): "What's that you wrote on my paper?"

Indigestion

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are absolutely, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn now—why this method is superior.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggist.

RAILWAY EQUIPMENT COSTS MUCH MONEY

One Sleeping Car In Worth Price Of Five Average City Dwellings

Canada's first railway was sixteen miles long. It was called the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railroad and it was between Laprairie on the St. Lawrence River and St. Johns on the Richelieu River. It began operation in 1836. The tracks were made of wood and the carriages were pulled by horses. The following year a steam locomotive was built to pull the train and the wooden tracks were covered with an iron surface.

Railroading in Canada has progressed somewhat since then. In 1926 almost thirty-five million passengers were carried by the railways of Canada and it is safe to assume that almost every citizen in the Dominion has been on board, or at least has seen, a modern railroad train.

If, however, the average traveller were asked to hazard a guess as to the cost of building a modern sleeping car, the chances are he would be many thousands of dollars short of the correct figure. There are few who know that one sleeping car is worth almost as much as five average dwellings and that it takes as long to build one as it does to erect a modern six-room house.

Some information on this subject was given by the Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, when he tabled the equipment order of the Canadian National Railways in the House of Commons during the 1926-27 session. Some of the figures quoted by him at that time are as follows:

A mountain type locomotive, such as is used in passenger service by the Canadian National Railways between Montreal and Chicago, costs $95,000; a mikado type locomotive used in freight handling on various parts of the system costs $75,000; a first class coach, $34,000; a baggage cars, $25,000; a dining car, $47,800; a compartment-observation car, $50,000; a sleeping car, $47,083; an express refrigerator car, $10,000; an automobile car, $2,800; a box car, $2,700; a caboose, $3,000; a steel snowplow, $64,000; and a wing snowplow, $10,000.

The Irish harp was originally quadrangular instead of triangular, as at present.

The buffet room of the Memorial hall has been painted and renovated by some of the members of the Canadian Legion. A wonderful difference has been made in the appearance of the room and the boys deserve the compliments they have received. It is also the intention to cover the floor with linoleum, which will, with the other improvements, make a remarkably bright place of a formerly dingy one.

Taking advantage of the fact that Monday evening, January 25, was the commencing point of twenty-five years residence in the town of Fort Saskatchewan by Mr. James Graham, a number of the "boys" showed their sympathy by dropping in on Jim for an evening. The "dropping" was done casually, so that the patient should not be unduly alarmed. When the visitors had gathered, a real old time evening was spent. Jim recalled some of the early days, and many old forgotten incidents were greeted with laughter. Songs and step dances were in order, and even Jim's piccolo, reminiscent of the glorious twelfth, was in demand. Some splendid choruses were also sung, which goes to show what local talent can do with the proper teacher. Yes, ha! It was a glorious evening, like unto the days gone by. With the singing of "For he's a jolly good fellow" the party broke up shortly after—midnight, these present quietly wending their way homewards to where their respective loves lay dreaming.

VEGREVILLE BONSPIELERS AWARE FORT RINK PRESENT

A rink from the Fort made their presence felt at the Vegreville bonspiel held last week. They won the Merchants' cup and the Consolation, two of the events out of four, and were well up in the others before being knocked out. The nearly-all-conquering rink comprised Joe Macdonald, skip, E. Flintoff, Earl Graham and Ed. LeRiche and each of them returned after four days of arduous curling with a pearl inlaid boudoir lamp and a handsome sweater.

The boys were full of praise for the hospitality showered upon them by their Vegreville hosts and were mightily pleased with their holiday.

The local mixed bonspiel came to a conclusion this week, considerable interest having been taken throughout The results of the finals were: Grand Challenge—A. H. Carswedden defeated Joe Macdonald; Secretary Event —D. E. R. Ewer defeated E. Flintoff; Consolation—J. S. Wright defeated A. M. Sutherland.

Two rinks of lady curlers from the Edmonton Granite club played local rinks on Tuesday, winning both games by good margins. Refreshments were afterwards served at the home of Mrs. Mort Wright. Fort ladies playing were Mrs. Harper, skip, Mrs. Lane, Mrs. Hallam, Mrs. Edgar; Mrs. Taylor, skip, Mrs. Henry, Miss Dahlbash, Mrs. Stanley.

ALBERTA COAL PRODUCTION SETS NEW RECORD IN 1927

Coal production in Alberta during 1927 established a record reaching a total for all grades of 6,936,785 tons according to figures compiled recently by the Mines Branch. This production exceeds that of the best previous year, 1926, by some 87,232 tons and sets a new high mark in the history of the development of Alberta's wealth of coal.

EARL HANG DIED SUDDENLY LAST SUNDAY NIGHT

Field Marshal Earl Haig, commander-in-chief of the British forces in France during the world war, died suddenly on Sunday night at his home in London. His death, entirely unexpected, has thrown Britain into mourning, for he was beloved by all throughout the length and breadth of the island.

Devoted to his work as head of the British Empire Service League and of the Boy Scouts, it is said his end was hastened by over-taxation of his strength and by the strain of the years of leadership of the British armies in France.

Peace and Agriculture

Every country in the world is still staggering under the enormous burden of the war debts which each and everyone is carrying. Even countries that were not actually engaged in the Great War were thus the less put to by expense and sustained huge losses as a result of that titanic struggle. The people of Canada know what it is costing them. They have been called upon to pay income taxes, excess profits and business profits taxes, sales taxes, stamp taxes, special receipts taxes, increased postage rates, etc., etc. And all together from loss of life and in maimed and suffering humanity, together with monetary loss of war is every day being brought home to the people of the world.

Only recently announcement was made that fourteen shillings of every twenty paid to the British income tax collector goes to pay for past wars and preparations for future wars. And never the Secretary of the United States Treasury explains in his annual report how approximately eighty-two cents of every dollar paid into the Treasury is expended for past, present or future military purposes, leaving slightly less than eighteen cents for financing the ordinary civil functions of government.

In other words, as one paper puts it, while eighty-two cents of every dollar collected from the tax payer is devoted to war purposes, only eighteen cents is spent by the Government for the purposes of peace, agricultural research, erection of public buildings, scientific investigation, the maintenance of relations abroad, the making and enforcement of laws, and all the multitudinous forms of ordinary civil functions added together.

These figures would seem almost incredible even for a country in war-ravaged Europe, but stated officially by a member of the United States Government as applying to that country enjoying such a large measure of detachment from the entanglements forced on many European nations, and intact practically unscathed from attack, the facts and the thoughts to which they give rise are appalling.

Faced with such a situation it is small wonder that the masses of the people of the world are crying desperately for international agreements and tribunals outlawing all war, and that the more thoughtful statesmen in all countries are anxiously striving to find some formula, some basis, of compromise.

But human nature continues to be very much what it always has been and so, while the world is crying for peace, and the United States hands the silverstone Shell as the great agents of peace, its people are nevertheless being lashed into a flag-waving campaign, and in the name of one hundred per cent. Americanism, to sanction the inauguration of a "one greatest navy" policy and the expenditure of billions of dollars upon battleships, and more battleships, which will be obsolete and placed upon the scrap heap before the babies of today reach middle age, unless indeed, the very existence of such a navy does not invite a struggle in which some or the ships will be destroyed in battle amid the fire and roar of their own guns.

And while this madness continues, and debt is piled upon debt for the people to bear, civilization is demanding better schools, better roads, better housing, more of the joy and happiness of life. The cost of one modern battleship devoted to agricultural research would work a reformation in food production, and every dollar so expended would add hundreds to the wealth of the world, as contrasted with every dollar expended in war preparations being for the avowed purpose of destroying both life and wealth.

Among all classes of people, agriculturists should be the foremost in their insistence upon peace and in setting their faces with determination against war and preparations for war.

Wealth Of Kootenay District

Kootenay's production of wealth during 1927 is estimated by the Nelson "Daily News" at $36,894,962. In this total, metal produced by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada were valued at $7,847,362; coal and its products are placed at $6,453,795; forest products at $8,715,776; and agricultural products at $1,680,180.

Raising Polo Ponies

The raising of polo ponies is being taken up as a side-line on the Eldorado ranch in the Okanagan Valley. Satisfied that the climate and range conditions of the area are suited to the breeding and raising of the type of horse required, stallions have been imported from the Old Country, the increasing market in the United States is the one in view.

Reduce the Acid

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach burns are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Almost bite acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It neutralizes harmless. Delicious, pleasant to take. Its unequalled for this purpose. Leading physicians everywhere recommend it. Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acid. Each bottle contains full directions—say druggists.

Commercial Aviation

Attracts Very Little Attention But Is Steadily Increasing

While our attention has been centred on the spectacular growth of aviation, with its thrills, hazards, casualties and triumphs, we have overlooked the less eventful but more important aspect of commercial aviation. This phase of air travel has been steadily progressing. The year has given us day and night transcontinental mail service and the air express. The regular passenger business through from Montreal, attending these services continuously, record in many respects more remarkable than the more sensational transcontinental and transoceanic flights. But they are taken, largely for granted, because they lack the dramatic appeal of stunt flying. Statistics available show that (omissis) passengers were carried between January 1 and July 1, 1927, at an average rate of 12 cents per mile. In about five years it is estimated, this rate will be reduced to 6 cents per mile. Air manufacturers during the same period carried 320,217 pounds of mail over a distance of 1,280,720 miles with a loss of mail happily small as to be negligible. Dry figures, perhaps. All aspects are dry but they indicate that the time is near at hand when air travel will be the safest form of transportation, and everything considered one of the most economical.

Aviator's Adventure In North

Squadron Leader T. G. Lawrence Makes Report To Ottawa

Forced down by darkness at a lonely trading post, with the temperature hovering around 30 degrees below zero, insulted by snow storms and gales, Squadron-Leader T. A. Lawrence, Ottawa, in charge of the R.C.A.F. detachment assigned to survey the Hudson Straits, was the principal in a thrilling adventure in the frozen North.

Rumors reached the capital that the leader of the Government's survey and patrol flight had been lost. Later officials of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, who are in touch with the Hudson Straits posts by radio, reported Major Lawrence safe.

After being forced down January 10, the aviator reported, he was weatherbound until January 14, when a companion flier, Carr Harris, sent to search for him, arrived. High winds which accompanied the extreme cold made hoisting of the plane's motor impossible, and subsequently Squadron-Leader Lawrence was stranded back of the Hudson Bay sub-post at Little Sugluk.

With the coming of milder weather January 17, the airmen dug their machine out of the snow and took off, finally reaching Wakeham Bay despite poor visibility.

Substitute For Human Tendons

German Doctor Has Had Great Success With Silk

According to a reliable Munich medical weekly, Prof. Fritz Lange, of the University of Munich, has found a successful way of using silk as support and even replace tendons.

In a Munich orthopedic clinic silk with grafts has been attempted by the Lange method with 37 per cent of the cases successful. Of considerable information that attends this graft ing is a natural tendon growth around the silk substitute, lasts practically it from six to ten years, the time silk is also used successfully in attaching bone muscle bands.

A REMEDY THAT INSPIRES FAITH

People Who Have Used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Speak Of Them With Praise

"Going into a decline" is an expression that has come to be known as one of the most difficult conditions with which physicians have to deal. It often describes an alarming condition that is done not justice to by ordinary treatment and the debility continues with loss of flesh and strength until the patient feels hopeless. In the majority of such cases the victim suffers from lack of good red blood, and if the blood can be restored to normal no other medical treatment is necessary. Proper food and sunshine will do the rest.

Every man, woman and child who lacks health and strength should at once take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to build up their blood supply. The mission of this medicine is to make new, rich red blood, which speedily restores health and strength. "I am writing to tell you what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me," says Mrs. J. H. Oulton, Pinkie Man. "A few years ago I was in a badly run-down condition so much so that I was subject to fainting spells which would leave me in such a condition that I could hardly go about. Then I was stricken with influenza and this further weakened me, and throughout the winter I remained in this condition. I was taking doctor's medicine, but as it did not seem to help me, my mother advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got a couple of boxes to start on. When these were done I seemed to feel an improvement and I got a further supply to continue the treatment I took in all about a dozen boxes, and by that time I was in the best of health, and had gained in weight. My faith in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is now unbounded, and I keep a supply on hand and take them occasionally if I am not feeling quite well. I often recommend them to others, and cannot praise them enough for restoring my health."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Using the Telephone

The telephone cannot overcome failure to use it properly. It works best when a person talks directly into the mouthpiece with the lips not more than an inch away. If the person at the other end of the line fails to understand clearly, use a full natural tone and take extra care to pronounce each word clearly and distinctly.

Additional Post Offices Opened in Manitoba

Two Have Been Established to Gold Fields Of North

Inspector J. W. T. Dickson, of the Winnipeg postal service recently visited the gold fields of Northern Manitoba to oversee establishment of two new post offices, one at Narrow Lake, and the other at Wekusko Lake.

The post office at the latter place is known as Jackson Manitou Mail to this district will now be carried by plane, eliminating the dog team mail which has served the inhabitants for the past two years. Once a week a plane of the Western Canada Aviation Company will bring mail to the miners. The service was inaugurated Jan. 23.

Juice of 1 orange.
Juice of ½ lemon.
¼ cup of crushed ice.

Beat, whilst of egg until stiff, add, gradually, one-half the sugar and salt, then one-half the orange juice. Whip cream until thick. Put ice in glass; pour in first mixture; then gently fold in second mixture and serve.

In all infantile complaints that are the result of the depredations of worms in the stomach and intestines, Miller's Worm Powders will be found an effective remedy. They attack the cause of these troubles, and by expelling the worms from the organs insure an orderly working of the system, without which the child cannot maintain its strength or thrive. Worm powders mean health and improvement.

Purveyors To Royalty

It takes twelve tailors to dress the Prince of Wales. It became known on publication in the London Gazette of a list of tradesmen entitled to attention that they sell to the royal family. There are six milliners to royalty, twelve coal dealers, thirty-nine bootpurveyors, fourteen fish dealers and eleven bakers.

An estimated acreage of 104,500 was sown to fodder corn in Western Canada in 1927.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FEBRUARY 5

JESUS MISUNDERSTOOD AND OPPOSED

Golden Text: He came unto His own and His own received Him not. But as many as received Him to them gave He power to become children of God, even to them that believe on His name.—John 1 11, 12.

Lesson: Mark 3:19b-35; 6:1-6.

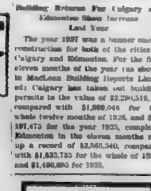
Devotional Reading: Isaiah 53:1-9.

Explanations and Comments

I. Jesus At Home (3:19b-21). The Family Having Got Out His Mind, 3:19b-21. So great was the crowd when it found Jesus and hear Jesus at his home in Capernaum that He and His disciples could find no opportunity to eat. His friends became alarmed and tried to have him put under restraint. "Amazed from right to left," in the Revised Version. Jesus declares in Matthew 12:36, Herod John 7:5, "For even His brethren did not believe in him."

"He is beside Himself." He is out of His mind. His mind is unbalanced, they said. So Festus said of Paul, "Paul, thou art mad, thy much learning is turning thee mad" (Acts 26:24). This is one of the earliest things which Jesus had to bear. His own friends, who should have spared Him every shortcoming possible and shown him every kindness in their power, turned upon their brothers and sisters with him to the heart with their unbelief and cruel explanation of his power.

"What cracked-brain fanatics" was the remark the gentlemen of the eighteenth century made about Wesley and Whitfield. When Christian and Hopeful refused even to look at the wares of Vanity Fair, but turned their eyes to heaven, what could the shrewd men of the Fair, who regarded themselves as the only things worth having, think of them but that they were Hedlams and outlandish men? And when poor Mr. Henry Martin in modern times let themselves "turn out" for God, to him they evidently appeared every hope of worldly wealth and fame, and think only of the soul and heaven and the unseen. "Great souls" can men who regard worldly wealth and pleasure as the only good, the only things worth living for think of them, because that they are beside themselves" ".—D. Jones.



No mother in the enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly wholesome, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's upset stomach and end almost any little ill. Prettily soon and fever, too, it seems to clear up until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil does, but is sweet without sugar, and the system. Without the evil taste, it's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic, constipation; diarrhea or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just say Castoria. If a genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test their luckies, the best on care and feeding of babies that have Fletcher's Castoria is always its weight in gold.

Seventy-Year-Old Mail Man

North Dakota Postman Still Keeps On With Work

Representative-at-large, North Dakota, figures he has covered a mile miles as a postman on the last thirty-five years, and at seventy he is as actively on the job as ever. Those years of employment with the government he has lost but one day because of illness.

Colby delivers mail twice a day in an average of 15 miles. He climbs thirty-six sets of stairs twice daily and carries some 600 pounds of mail each week.

In the last thirty-five years he estimates he has delivered 10,500,000 Christmas cards, and says he will never write on penalon as long as he can walk.

Best Treated Externally

That's why modern mothers prefer Vicks—it's gentle on delicate stomachs. Rubbed on throat and chest, it acts two ways at once:

(1) Its healing vapors, released by the body heat, are inhaled direct to the air passages.

(2) It "drawsout" the soreness like an old-fashioned poultice.

OUR HOME TOWN

O little town nestle Western skies,
O Fort so small yet fair,
O town that reid the splendor lies,
Beside the river there.

Thy sons and daughters far and wide,
Proclaim their love for thee.
We love the place where men abide,
Who are both strong and free.

When day is done, the sun is down,
And men go on their ways,
We think of thee, O little town,
Our home of childhood days.

We think of thee and heave a sigh:
We long to be back home.
We gaze upon the Western sky
And think of thee alone.

Go on and on, O little town,
This is our wish for you.
Until the end, be our home town,
We always will be true.

THRESHERS ASKED TO COMPLETE RETURNS FOR 1927

Progress is being made in completing a compilation of the total yield of various grain crops raised in the province during 1927 from the returns sent in by threshermen throughout the province. In a number of cases, however, returns have been delayed by the fact that a portion of the 1927 crop still must be threshed till the spring of 1928. Threshermen are asked to send in their reports on their operations completed in the fall of 1927 and a supplementary report where this is necessary on the completion of 1927 threshing in the spring. Threshermen who secured a 1927 license will be able to complete any necessary spring threshing under this registration, securing a new report as usual before beginning operations on the 1928 crop.

A FARMERS' COMPANY COMES OF AGE

The Record has received a book printed in connection with the twenty-first birthday of the Canadian Grocers Limited. It is a beautiful example of the art preservative and its pages are full of information dealing with the vast scope of its enterprises. An introductory tells of the humble beginnings of the institution many prophesied for it by its failure. Other parts of the book contain explanations and illustrations of the wonderful growth and expansion of the company and a balance sheet as at June, 1927, and another for the year ending August, 1927. There is an enormous difference in the two statements.

YOUNG ORATORS PREPARING FOR CONTEST

Keen interest is being taken by High School students throughout the province in the national oratorical contest which is being organized in Alberta by the Calgary Herald and the Edmonton Journal. Schools are now organizing elimination contests and the winners of which will meet in district contests, and the victors in these, in turn, will hold their own competitions at Calgary and Edmonton to decide the Alberta champions, the winner in the final event between these two contestants to compete with representatives of the other provinces of the Dominion for the Canadian championship. Handsome prizes are to be awarded the winners in the various stages of the contest. The subject chosen for the speeches is "Canada's Future."

FARM SHORT COURSES AT UNIVERSITY POPULAR

One hundred and twenty-six farmers representing all sections of the province are in attendance at the agricultural short courses which opened on Tuesday at the University of Alberta. In addition to lectures from the staff of the College of Agriculture on animal husbandry, field husbandry, soil management, agricultural engineering, and other phases of farming, those in attendance at the courses have listened to addresses by a number of members of the government and officials of the Department of Agriculture. Appreciation is expressed by Dean Howes, head of the College of Agriculture, of the type of interest which this course has attracted among farmers throughout the province.

HAIL DAMAGE HEAVY IN 1927

Hail insurance claims to the total of $2,515,000 representing a loss of 17 per cent of the total risk involved were paid in 1927 by the Mutual Hail Insurance Board of Alberta, it is announced by A. E. Tovell, chief inspector of the board. This amount, Mr. Tovell declared, was the heaviest hail damage in a disaster area ever recorded on the North American continent. Out of a total of 10,604 applications for insurance more than 4,000 claims had been rendered involving approximately 600,000 acres of the 1,11,000 underwritten. Mr. Tovell in his report pointed out that the past year in this respect had been an abnormal one, a number of grain growing areas in the province having been visited by storms of exceptional severity.

Here and There

Evidence of reconstruction work in Yokohama is seen through the fact that a fine clamyard steel and reinforced concrete hotel was officially opened recently. The building, known as the Hotel New Grand, is of fireproof and earthquake-proof construction and is modelled after the style of the best American hotels.

Toronto.—The Province of Ontario is at the close of the greatest gold producing year in its history, according to Affidavits of the Department of Mines, who forecast an increase in gold production this year of $2,000,000 as compared with last year's output. In addition, the total mineral production is expected to be more than $91,000,000—a gain of $6,000,000 over 1926.

Holstein—Boys' and Girls' Swine Clubs are now well established here, 247 members having been added to the list this year. It is expected that in 1928 the latter will attain the same number in the province as the former. Judging clubs are also being organized and much good work is expected this season. There should prove a valuable aid to the poultry industry.

Preparations for the Banff Winter Carnival, to be held February 8-11, are well under way. Canadian members are training and he used to make a strong effort to bring back Canada's "Strong-heart Trophy" which was carried to the United States by Western Canada Univ. of Ashton, Idaho. It is anticipated that there will be several teams from the United States competing again this year.

Saint John—An epoch in the transportation of cargo between Canada and the United Kingdom was fixed recently when W. D. MacInnes, vice-president in charge of traffic of the Canadian Pacific Railway; W. A. Wainwright, assistant to the chairman, with other officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway, C.P. fast cargo liner "Beaverburn," which recently docked here, completing her maiden voyage.

According to a report covering the activities during the year of the Canada Colonization Association, a subsidiary of the Canadian Pacific Railway, 626 families, representing of 3,443 persons, were settled on 102,382 acres of land by the association. The value of these transactions is in excess of $2,850,000. Nearly 300,000 acres of land are ready for settlement, and prospects for the current year are very bright.

Vancouver—In an address before the Board of Trade upon the services rendered the Dominion by the late Sir William Van Horne, founder of the city of Vancouver and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, C. A. Cotterell, general superintendent of the railway's British Columbia district, said: "The Canadian Pacific Railway is the largest taxpayer and the largest purchaser in the province; it spent last year $20,000,000 in stores and supplies, taxes, wages, etc."

LEAP YEAR HINTS FOR SHY GIRLS

(Contributed)

I've been thinking of it lately,
And I know it is a fact.
That the girls around this district
Will not try the Leap Year act.

Now dear girls, there's Albert Untermann
With the light brown wavy hair,
Says he'll take most any woman,
Dark or fair he doesn't care.

Val Berg is a real fellow,
Let me give you a hint.
Any girl who gets this fellow,
Sure will get a honey bunch.

There's Gordon Wallner, a handsome fellow,
Girls, you must look out for him.
If you mention life's long friendship,
He will surely rope you in.

And then there is Cliff Magee,
Who has long been in the strife.
Says he would sure be happy
With most any kind of wife.

Tim Moore has been watching,
Looking forward for this year.
And if you should ask him
It would fill him with good cheer.

If you are not very bashful,
And haven't any fear,
Your better turn to Freddy Simmons,
And whisper sweet things in his ear.

Then there is Jimmie Pierce,
And his heart with joy would burst,
If you calculate to ask him,
You'd better get there first.

Frank Kulak is on the market,
Says he wants a chosen mate.
Nail him, girls, this very moment,
Before it gets too late.

Then there is Gavin Breckenridge,
Who has been now for yea.
Hurry now, young girls, and ask him,
For I know he will be true.

Now, dear girls, do not be bashful,
For I know the road is clear.
And remember what I told you,
It's quite a time till next leap year.

"High Rigger" Knocked Out By Extremely Painful Back

Gin Pills Saved Him Pain and Money

Mr. J. F. Miller's letter contains priceless advice to people who suffer from backaches, and shows clearly the value of Gin Pills as a prompt relief for ailing kidneys:

"The few words that I can't endorse to the skin for days. Cold got me in the body. I was in bad like—could not even stand to send me to the city for medical treatment. One of the boys advised Gin Pills. In four days I was back on the job. Recently all of the boys carry Gin Pills in their pocket."

Neglect of kidney trouble is very dangerous. Backache is not the only symptom—dizziness, brick dust in urine, specks before the eyes, headaches, swollen joints, painful, scanty or too frequent urination are others. Take Gin Pills immediately and prevent Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, acute Bladder trouble. All druggists carry Gin Pills. 50c a box. Would Like Patrol System

Force Patterned After R.C.M.P. Wanted in Alaska

Agitation for a patrol system like unto that of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police has grown out of the recent disappearance of two old-time prospectors in Alaska.

Eric Kline, one of the missing men, was trained in a detective agency in Chicago before he went to Alaska. Fifteen years ago he was prospecting with Tallerday in the Iditarod district. Of the miles Both are said to have vanished.

It developed that regulations do not permit a marshal or deputy marshal to leave the beaten highways to investigate alleged crimes or to give aid to men in matters unless so ordered by the district attorney. It proved the old saying that "one cannot serve two masters."

A force, patterned after the Canadian organization, it is pointed out, would be the most useful service to perform in this territory, searching out lost men and running down crimes.

CHAPTER XVIII

Jack had told Helmi that his partner had stayed in Edmonton to raise money to buy their outfit, which they would ship to Peace River. People were investing their money gladly at paying five hundred dollars for a share. Helmi tried to reconcile herself to Jack's going, though she had no faith in the project. In her simple code of ethics, a man who would fool Minnie, taking advantage of her innocence and her poverty, would fool Jack and all the other people who paid him money. He was a bad man, this Keith, and there was no health in him. It was not possible that he could find gold. Why should God let a bad man find gold? But she knew she could not turn Jack aside from his purpose; he would go. That he would be disappointed she feared, and in that she was only sorry for him; but he would come back then and settle down at the mines, and they would be happy yet.

Charles Doran

Lib Doran

Jack looked at her and laughed. "Now, look here, Pina," he said, "we do not want either Charles or Lib for some time yet. Wait till I get the claim and then we will go to live in Edmonton, and buy a big house in Glenora, and have a fine automobile to do the work, and two maids and a car, and we can have a whole flock, all with fiery gold hair just like yours—Lib and Charlie and Enoil and Anna, and we will put up a high board fence around the whole place, so they cannot run away and fall into the river. Do you remember what you said when we were putting in the windows?"

Helmi looked up at him, laughing with something in her face which made him kiss her very tenderly. With her head turned on his shoulder, he did not see the fear in her eyes, the cold, gaunt fear—for the face that she saw was Aunt Lilli's white with death, her great eyes burning, and Aunt Lilli was saying was: "Men don't want kids—and settle down like we do—they may they do—but they don't—kids are trouble, men are all for self."

Two days after this the message came for Jack to go. Now that the time had come Helmi was cheerful and brave. She helped him to get ready, squeezing back the tears which were disposed to gather. He was going to leave quietly, letting people think he was just going to the Crossing. The plan was to go by boat on creepings, rustlings and whisperings around them. It was a night of sweet odors and hushed bird voices.

"It may be a long summer, dear, but it will come to an end, and I think I can safely promise I will be home for Christmas. I don't expect me till you see me. Home for Christmas, with a gold mine for a present! How will that be?"

I just want you, Jack," Helmi said, holding him in a close embrace.

Mrs. McMann welcomed Helmi's return to the boarding house. The Chinaman's way of muttering under his breath was disquieting to her peace of mind. She believed he was uttering Chinese curses. Helmi baked bread and biscuits, opened windows scrubbed floors and polished glasses. She worked in a frenzy of energy which soon brought improvement to the disordered boarding house.

Mrs. McMann regarded her curiously. "Helmi is sorrier now Sunday," she said, "maybe they haven't got along just as well as she thought! Good lookin men are notoriously hard to live with. Actors, musicians and artists are perfect pills when you come to live with them. Mebbe you can't say I didn't warn her. I am thankful for that!

Mrs. McMann prided herself on her faculty for eliciting information painlessly and, as method one, used the familiar device of pretending to know all about the gold find.

Aint it wonderful the wealth of this country all hid away? Who says that pay, and yet revealed when people go to the right spot. My! you must be proud of Jack, he's a lucky boy."

Pleased With Experiment

Compulsory Motor Car Insurance in Massachusetts is Beneficial

Massachusetts seems to be pleased with her experiment in compulsory automobile insurance. It is rather surprising that the radical an experiment should have been made in so conservative a state and perhaps still more so that the driving public seems to be satisfied with it.

Jack was rolling in blankets as he talked. Helmi had to [illegible] to get him to stop talking and go to sleep. She had stopped [illegible] under the responsibility leaving all the blame on her. Still she was glad to have had only relatives, and besides she had sworn by the good words she had learned in God's house not to tell—the same words she had heard Minnie, taking advantage of her innocence and her poverty, would fool Jack and all the other people who paid him money. He was a bad man, this Keith, and there was no health in him. It was not possible that he could find gold. Why should God let a bad man find gold? But she knew she could not turn Jack aside from his purpose; he would go. That he would be disappointed she feared, and in that she was only sorry for him; but he would come back then and settle down at the mines, and they would be happy yet.

"I don't want you to work for her, for for anyone, Helmi. Just make your garden and do what you like. You have plenty to live on, even without the money at the mine."

"Sure," agreed Helmi. "It will be company for me that's all. I like to work; but every night I will be home here, and I will say my words, and God bless Jack and keep him safe' prayers help a good bit."

"You've a good kid, Helmi," Jack said giving her a hurried caress. The excitement of the chase was on him. Helmi went with him that night over the hill and a mile beyond. Then he insisted on her returning. "It is just as easy to say good-bye here as anywhere," he said.

It was a mellow evening at the end of April, in a pond near by the frogs were making the night hideous with nature's awakening. There were strange

CANADIAN LEGION DANCE LIKE FAMILY GATHERING

It has been said, and there is a great deal of truth in it, that the people of the Fort are like a huge family. They quarrel amongst themselves, bicker, scrap, and slam each other, but if calamity overtakes one, the others gather round with their sympathy and assistance, and on other momentous occasions they drop all animosities and behoob together like brothers and sisters and have a real good time. Such was the feeling one had at the dance provided by the members and associate members of the Fort Saskatchewan branch of the Canadian Legion last Friday night. The folks were out for a good time and they certainly had one.

The room was decorated and furbished up and the buffet room, where supper was served, was a prodigious surprise to anyone seeing it for the first time since its re-decoration by some of the boys. Its brightness and cheerfulness was a contrast to its former dinginess.

In view of the and death of Earl Haig, chief of the British Empire Service League, with which the Canadian Legion is affiliated, it had been questioned in some quarters whether the dance should be held or postponed. Enquiries made at Ottawa elicited the information that no curtailment of social activities was being made there and the objection to the dance was overruled. In the midst of the festivities, however, President Major Jayeson addressed the gathering briefly and requested a minute of silence as a mark of respect to the late General and it was remarkable that so gay a crowd could be so utterly quiet and reverential.

HOCKEY

The Fort team secured the highest score in what has been described as a cross between a free-for-all fight and a hockey match which took place on the local ice on Tuesday evening. Brenner was the opposing team.

CURLING

Two rinks of Fort lady curlers challenged the Vegreville ladies, present holders of the Price cup, donated by the jeweler of that name in Vegreville for competition among ladies in towns between Edmonton and Vermilion. Games were arranged for Tuesday and the following were chosen to represent the Fort: Mrs. Taylor, skip, Miss Olive Wallace, Mrs. Lane, Mrs. Henry. Mrs. Harper, skip, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Grubb, Mrs. E. Pinnell.

The ice was heavy and the ladies found it difficult to reach their objective and were finally defeated, though one rink tied the score twice and the other rink once, and up to the eighth end in a ten end game play-off was decided by Fred Atkinson.

Councillor Dubuc, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee, presented his report containing an inventory of the fire fighting apparatus, expenditure in the fire department, and receipts and expenditure in the electric light department, the latter showing a substantial surplus for the year's operation. The report was adopted on motion by councillor Dubuc.

ANNUAL MEETING FORT SASKATCHEWAN RATEPAYERS

The annual meeting of the electors of the town of Fort Saskatchewan was held in the town hall on Friday, January 27. A representative gathering was present to receive the auditor's report of the finances of the town up to the preceding 31st December and the reports of the chairmen of the various committees of the council.

On motion by R. H. Jones, His Worship the Mayor occupied the chair and called the meeting to order.

The minutes of the previous annual meeting held on Friday, January 30, 1925, were called for, read, and adopted without any business arising from same on motion by S. G. Jones, seconded by Fred Atkinson.

Councillor Dubuc, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee, presented his report containing an inventory of the fire fighting apparatus, expenditure in the fire department, and receipts and expenditure in the electric light department, the latter showing a substantial surplus for the year's operation. The report was adopted on motion by councillor Dubuc,

Canada To The Fore

Canada's amazing progress in the last few years is challenging the attention of the world. That progress is based not only on the great variety, extent and richness of this country's natural resources, but is founded in the energy and faith of Canadians in their Dominion and in the confidence they have in themselves, a faith and confidence born largely of the really tremendous achievements of Canada during the years of the Great War. In that titanic struggle the people of Canada showed wonderful energy, displayed great initiative unsurpassed organizing ability, and hitherto undreamed of powers and strength. Thrown to a large extent upon its own resources, financial and otherwise, the Dominion courageously faced all problems and did so with marked success.

Few countries, if any, weathered the stormy days and difficult conditions of the after-the-war and reconstruction years as successfully as did the Dominion. Canadians became conscious for the first time of their national strength, the people discovered their national soul. Their former doubts and timidities, their self-deprecation, and what has commonly been termed their inferiority complex, disappeared, and has been replaced by courage, confidence and superb faith.

In former years it is true, Canadians had successfully grappled with large and difficult domestic problems, but, in these more recent years, the Dominion has boldly taken its place in the world arena. Its position today is in the Councils of the League of Nations is an outstanding one. Its place in the Commonwealth of British Nations is strong and assured. The score or more nations constituting the Pan-American Union, including the United States and the countries of Central and South America, are anxious that the Dominion should join them and give added strength and prestige to the Union, while other nations are encouraging the establishment of direct diplomatic representation with this country.

But even yet it is doubtful if many Canadians fully realize the rapid growth and steadily increasing power of their own country, because, as a rule, the average citi zen pays little attention to so-called dry statistics in which the growth of a country is set forth. In a recent speech at Winnipeg, Mr. E. W. Beatty, president of the C.P.R., succinctly and convincingly set forth a few facts, which will bear repeating. He noted, for example, the following:

Every working day last year Canadians took from their forests, products valued at $1,500 000.

From mines they took $280,000 daily.

Every working day they increased their capacity for manufacturing pulp and paper by 1,000 tons. Canada now manufactures one-third of the world's requirements of newsprint.

Every working day they added 700 horsepower in hydro-electric energy, to the power already installed, and at the same time began work that will add 1,000 h.p. every day in the first six months of 1923.

Canada's export trade last year, with less than 10,000,000 people, was equal to the export trade of the United States, when the latter country had a population of 75,000,000.

Commenting on these and other statements in Mr. Beatty's striking survey, a Winnipeg paper asks: "Is it any wonder that in the past two years the Canadian people have been putting $200,000 into the savings banks every banking day, increasing deposits in other financial institutions correspondingly, investing in life insurance at the same relative rate, buying back millions in securities formerly held in Great Britain and Europe, providing almost unlimited capital for sound industrial enterprises, and have acquired a spirit of solid confidence and self-reliance?"

Nor is it surprising that more people are emigrating from the British Isles to Canada than to any other country, many thousands more than to Australia.

Speaking at the opening of the great 5,500,000 bushel terminal elevator just completed by the United Grain Growers at Port Arthur, President T. A. Crerar predicted that, while Canada was now producing approximately 500,000,000 bushels of wheat annually, and in today the world's greatest wheat exporting country, production would be further increased until this Dominion would be producing one billion bushels of wheat annually.

And the thoughts for Canadians to keep ever in their minds, and to profit by, is that Canada is only just beginning to get into its stride.

World Wheat Pool Conference

Will Be Held In Regina On June 5, 6 and 7

Preliminary arrangements for the third international wheat pool conference were discussed at a meeting of the international conference committee held here in Winnipeg recently.

The conference will be held in Regina, June 5, 6 and 7, and it is expected all the important wheat exporting countries of the world will be represented.

No statement was made concerning the preliminary plans discussed recently, but it was announced the committee would meet again in May to arrange final details

Radio Telephone Links Winnipeg and London

Conversation Carried On Between Western City and Mother Country

Linking up the gateway of Western Canada with the mother country, a trans-Atlantic radio telephone conversation between Winnipeg and London, England, has been successfully carried out For 15 minutes an official of the Manitoba Government talked from Winnipeg to Sir Evelyn Wrench, of the London postal telephone service. It was the reception that the London official complained of the fading of the telegraph ticker in the Atlantic cable.

"For heaven's sake stop that ticker," he cried, "I can't hear a word you say."

FOUND A HEALTH BUILDING TONIC

A Nova Scotia Lady Was In An Anaemic Condition

Men and women who do not sleep well and are run down, enfeebled and strengthened by a night's rest, are generally suffering from thin, watery blood. The nerves fail to get the nourishment they may demand and headaches and a worn-out feeling is the result. Building up the blood in the one sure step to improved health and strength, and for this purpose nothing else can equal Dr Williams' Pink Pills. From first dose to last they enrich and purify the blood, and in this way promote better appetite, better rest at night and renewed strength

Mrs. Mary E. Ullman, Williamsdale, N.S., says: "I was in a very bad state indeed. I was so much benefit from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, that I would feel myself ungrateful if I did not let you know

"I was in a very poor state of health and reached the stage where I had to remain in bed. A doctor was called in and he said I was run down in an organic trouble, but was simply run down in every way. I had been left with a family to support which I did by dressmaking. The doctor said my blood had almost turned to water and advised a rest, cure, and if he could see how it was possible for me to take a very long rest, as I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I soon found my strength returning and before very long I was able to go about my duties as usual again. This was a few years ago, and my health remained good until about a year ago, when I took cold with horror of the blood. Again I consulted the doctor, who said my blood was in the same state that it had really poisoned itself. I told him I had bought several boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and he let me go on taking them as he thought they were just what I needed. I took eight boxes and again was in good health I cannot too highly recommend these pills to all in a weak or run-down condition."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or will be sent by mail, post paid, on receipt of price, 50 cents a box. Try them today.

Two Trophies For Aviation

Awards For Greatest Feat Of 1927 Is Announced

Two important aviation trophies for the airmen considered to have done the greatest feat of the year 1927, exclusive of stunting, are to be awarded.

One is being given by the Department of National Defence and the other by the International League of Aviators. The latter trophy is accompanied by a cash award to the pilot or winner to take part in international aeronautic events. The aviation Leagues of Canada is charged with the choice of the winner.

The name of Captain F. Stevenson, former pilot of the Western Canada airways who attained the record of 806 hours flying last year is mentioned in connection with the government trophy. Captain Stevenson was killed recently near The Pas, Man., but it is believed a posthumous award would be in order.

Good Market For Milk Products

It is estimated that the production of milk and milk products in Canada is worth $350,000,000 per annum at the present time. The prospects of two markets for Canadian producers, the old established one in Europe and the new one in the United States, have been described by the industry decidedly rosy in the opinion of the Dominion Dairy Commissioner.

Negro Becomes Wealthy

Tom Johnson, 54, a negro plasterer, of Mayfield, has been informed by an attorney from Tulsa, Okla., that he is owner of a quarter-section of land there upon which are located forty or more producing oil wells, and thus his wealth ranges somewhere between ten and twenty millions.

Millers Worry Farmers

The old complaint that millers are greedy and children and underpaid farmers suffer from it, can no longer be truly levied against the Canadian milling industry. Millers have been hard hit during the past year by the fall in the price of flour, thanks largely to the cheap prices prevailing for wheat in the United States, and painful suffering is to be distributed. They are an excellent remedy for after colds.

53,000 New Colonists Added To Canada's Population In 1927 Through C.N.R.

Approximately 53,000 new colonists were directly added to Canadian population in 1927 through the instrumentality of the Department of Colonization and Development, Canadian Pacific Railway. Of these roughly 25,000 moved directly through channels created by the Department into agricultural or domestic service, farm training or farm ownership. Settlers moved from the United States by the Department's organizations totalled 11,000, practically all of which are established on farms.

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If the name Bayer appears, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Aspirin—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) indicating Bayer Manufacture. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assure the public against fraud, we state that Bayer will be identified with their trade mark "Bayer Cross" hereafter.

Suggests Cure For Criminals

Physician Would Combat Crime By Use Of X-Ray

A sentence of "under the ray" instead of the gallows or a drab jail would be meted out to criminals if a group of Wheeling physicians made practical their theory of combatting crime through the medium of the X-ray.

The experimenters, headed by Dr. R. J. Hersey, have revealed that for some time they have studied a method consisting of disrobing the thyroid gland with the X-ray.

Dr. Hersey said their work tended to show there is a certain gland near the throat of small children which should retain as the child grows up, but they found it in many criminals and insane persons. It is their theory that this ductless gland causes such persons to be abnormal and that the trouble can be eradicated with the X-ray.

After studying the faces of Nathan Leopold, Richard Loeb and others, Dr. Hersey said he found in all of them the tell-tale characteristics of gland cases.

Alberta Cattle For U.S.

One Result Of The Immense Tourist Traffic In Canada Is A Revival of Home Industries

One extraordinary result of the immense tourist traffic to Canada in the revival of home industries which in some cases have not been practised to any great extent for many years. Thus along the St. Lawrence River, in Quebec, in Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, and New Brunswick, rug-weaving is again flourishing. The visitors to Canada naturally desire to take home with them something of unique design or individual charm which cannot be obtained at home. They desire also something which has an attachment to and is representative of the country they have toured. Rugs especially are much appreciated, and in scores of homes outside Canada are executing the designs of 50 or 100 years ago while there is great rivalry in the creation of new and artistic patterns representative of the country and atmosphere in which the workers live.

The age of machine production has meant a decline of individuality and for certain purposes the home-made article, rough though it may be, is preferred to the regularity of design and the precision of the machine made counterpart. While home handicraft is likely to flourish from now on in Canada, says the Department of the Interior, through its Natural Resources Intelligence Service, it is unlikely that established factories will suffer thereby because the home-fabricated article will be sold to a customer who would not buy from a factory. In many cases tourists carry away with them things which they had no intention of buying when entering into their fancy and are bought on the spur of the moment.

There are instances in Nova Scotia where in small villages as much as $2,000 was realized last summer from the sale of home-woven rugs. Everyone who has travelled along the St. Lawrence Valley has seen plentiful exhibits of the work of the French-Canadian housewife and her family. Along sections of the road from Montreal to Quebec, hooked and woven rugs, homespun blankets and coverlets are being over almost every habitable in midsummer. In Prince Edward Island there has been a pronounced revival of home handicraft work in which the Women's Institutes have engaged by organizing the work for the benefit of the women country-folk.

In one section of the island woven rag work is becoming a specialty and in parts of Nova Scotia, the art of spinning from flax is as much alive as it was a generation ago. In some instances as fine is grown, open and woven into linen sheets or towelling or rugs without leaving the farm.

In wool, wherever it is the habitant of Quebec, the Acadian of Nova Scotia or the Scotch of Cape Breton Island, there is equal facility in taking the fleece from the sheep's back and putting it on the man's back or into rugs. Incidentally it may be remarked that many of the dyes being used in rug manufactures in Eastern Canada are home-produced. Onion skins, berries and bark are among the ready sources of coloring matter and it is said that the brew concocted by steeping the skins of onions imparts a delicate rose coloring to the material which is dyed with it.

The spinning wheel is to use in Canada are of many patterns and they are to be found from coast to coast, in styles originating in the highlands of Scotland, in England, in Brittany and even in Czecho-Slovakia. A MacLeod, near Baddeck, in Cape Breton, has been weaving all his life and his homespuns would pass for Harris tweed, except, as someone has remarked, for the absence of the peat smell, which reminds one that is Alberta, the Hebridean crofters of the Glen Donald Colony and other parts of the province, have recently launched into the weaving of Harris homespun. It is anticipated that head hound will be available for use this winter, and that the industry, which will be encouraged through the setting up of a carding mill by the Scottish Immigrant Aid Society, will be benefited in securing contracts for the manufacture on the land as well as offering opportunity to their women in Saskatchewan and Manitoba the opportunity of adding to their incomes.

Apple Orchards in North

Fruit Successfully Grown Near Highland Park In Canadian Rockies

Apple orchards exist "North of Fifty-three" may be pooh-poohed by many but the raising of apples in such latitudes has been accomplished and British Columbia has the honor of having the most Northerly orchards in the British Empire, if not in the world.

These orchards are located in central British Columbia, along the line of the old Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, a district that recently demonstrated that it can raise alfalfa, clover and grain, despite the fact that the temperature sometimes goes down to 50 degrees below zero.

One of the most interesting achievements in apple growing is that of Richard Walsh, whose orchard is at Legrand, North of McBride, less than 100 miles from Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies. The elevation there is 2,370 feet. Last season Walsh shipped 90 boxes of apples from the hardy trees in his orchard.

Trade With Latin America

Possibilities Of Canada Extending Trade With Central and South American Countries Are Favorable

In an effort to extend Canada trade with the Latin-American countries, the Department of Trade and Commerce has in view the possibility of inaugurating steamship services between this country and the countries of Central and South America. A Canadian Trade Commissioner's office will be established at Lima, with jurisdiction over Peru, Bolivia, and Ecuador, and the Department will furnish the newspapers of South and Central America with full particulars of news from Canada. These announcements were made by F. C. T. O'Hara, Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce, who has just completed a 14,000 mile trip through South and Central America, Mexico and Cuba.

Wheat Rust Problem

Varieties Of Wheat Possessing Rust Resistance Have Been Developed By Crossing

Real progress has been made in the solution of the wheat rust problem of Western Canada, Dr. J. H. Harrington, of the University of Saskatchewan, told the Saskatchewan Agricultural Societies' Association Convention, at Regina. He said varieties of wheat possessing rust resistance in varying degrees have been produced by crossing. Again it has been found that the effects of rust can be counteracted by treatment with soda, which is 100 times as effective as a fungicide than ordinary sulphur.

The revival of an old industry is one in part to the festivals promoted by the Canadian Pacific Railway, where exhibitions of the art are shown and greatly appreciated by interested spectators. Another revival of this kind would be given soon at Montreal, while others will be held in Banff and Vancouver.

Irresponsible Public Utterances Produce Conditions That Cause Nations To Drift Into War

It seems rather hopeless sometimes to hold faith that the forces of good-will and good sense in this world can make headway against some sorts of madness which seem to flourish in it. We see not very rare, to take but one instance in the news, that Senator Borah can do very much by his protest against what he calls the "sheer madness" of these American roar editorials who have lately been beating the patriotic tom-toms of the United States in behalf of a big, bigger and biggest navy. But the senator is right in his description of the business, and he is right to do what he can to prevent it. And it is everybody else's business unless they are mad, too; and no matter how hopeless it seems —to support the hand of any public man who is trying to keep his head amid the senseless rumors of war which now agitate our world

Rear Admiral Plunkett has been telling the National Republican Club in New York City that the United States is nearer to war than ever it was before, and that that war is inevitable because "war is the penalty of commercial and industrial efficiency." So, says the rear admiral, the thing for the United States to do is to build the greatest navy in the world in the shortest possible time. And he is backed up by his senior officer, Admiral Hughes, who says the thing to do is to build a billion-dollar navy.

Senator Borah is not too emphatic in his protest. He says that there is better calculated to bring about war between two great nations than competitive naval-building policies, coupled with statements like those of the rear admirals, that war is inevitable.

"These statements," says Senator Borah, "put out by naval officers are notice to all the world, and particularly to Great Britain, to get ready for war. They are being so interpreted throughout the world."

Senator Borah is quite right. There is no place in all the world where such talk as that of Rear Admiral Plunkett's is more irresponsible or more dangerous. It would be bad enough if that "commercial and industrial efficiency" he speaks of as the possession of big countries were in any degree of serious challenge in any quarter. But the obvious fact in the world now is the Great War in that the United States has enjoyed the greatest economic expansion and commercial prosperity ever known in history. There is nothing the United States has any real use for that it could gain by war There is nothing it could not gain much easier by peace. War talk in the United States is indeed "sheer madness."

Nevertheless, and this is very relevant to the question of madness, we think Senator Borah is wrong when he says: "All this is part of a well-organized plan to prepare the public mind for an invasion. If this means as it seems to mean, that war measures are actively planning war, we think it is not very much to the point. The danger at this war talk is its very irresponsibility. We do not think the roar editorials are meeting in back rooms to cook up schemes for bringing on a war. The fact is that nations drift into war. And they drift into war, not knowing why or how, on a current of idle talk and windy rumor, which might never have been anything at all, if it had been dammed — and dammed—as it should be, at its source.—Vancouver Province.

Britain Is Following Hurrumone Plan

Have Decided To Abandon 10,000 Ton Vessels For the Present

The British Government, it was announced at London, has decided to go still further in the policy of naval disarmament indicated after the failure of the tri-partite conference.

The building program passed in 1925 provides for the laying down of the 10,000-ton cruiser and two 8,000-ton cruisers in each of the three years, 1927, 1928 and 1929. The First Lord of the Admiralty, Right Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, recently announced that it had been decided to abandon all the 10,000-ton vessels for the present and that one of the projected 8,000-ton ships might be carried over until 1928-29. Now it has been determined to abandon the latter vessel altogether.

The net result is that in the two years in question only three 8,000-ton vessels will be laid down, instead of four in this class, as originally proposed. Together with the elimination of the 10,000-ton ships, this will mean the saving of about £5,500,000 ($27,500,000). It is understood that the program for destroyers and submarines will remain unchanged and that construction of nine destroyers and six submarines will be included in next year's program.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FEBRUARY 21

JESUS PICTURES THE KINGDOM OF GOD

Golden Text: "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done as in heaven so on earth." Matthew 6:10.

Lesson Mark 4:14, 15, 4:1-34

Devotional Reading: Psalm 10: 7-15

Explanations and Comments

I. The Growth (Mark 4:14-20). God Is Sure. It Depends Upon Seed (vs. 26-28). A reminder of the phrase the Kingdom of God, can only be gained by studying the stories which Jesus told. Jesus was a born storyteller, with many a spiritual message. Parables, his master like Wordsworth's, fine it as the fragrant flower in the hearts of men. The Kingdom of God is within you and I.

There is no geography in the Kingdom of God. On an ancient globe, fragment the famous words of Psalm 1:23 read, "and to His Kingdom there shall be no frontier." It is of the world and for every citizen. There is no chronology in the Kingdom of God it is both present and future. A Quaker Meeting waited for the present whatever will be to God, it is future as to complete realization is known from where it comes and to which it is. His Kingdom is to be in men on earth. In the earthly experience of the Kingdom, its objects are fighting the good fight in the heavenly province they have gained their true purpose or fulfillment.

A parable is a story told for the purpose of illustrating a truth. The parable of "The Seed Growing Secretly," or of "The Blade, the Ear, the Full Corn," as it is also sometimes called, portrays the slow but sure growth of the Kingdom of God in the hearts of men. "So [illegible] of God," that Jesus begins his parable. That is, what you see to be the method of working in nature is also the method of working in the spiritual realm. So is the Kingdom of God. As if man should cast seed upon the earth (as Jesus and the Apostles and His later followers have implanted the word of God in men's hearts), and should sleep and rise night and day, that is, lead his customary life, leaving the result of the sowing with God, and the seed should spring up and grow, he knoweth not how. "The Kingdom of God cometh not with observation," Jesus told the Pharisees.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

LEMON JUNKET BAVARIAN

1 pa-kage lemon junket.
1 tablespoon powdered sugar
½ cup chopped walnuts.
½ teaspoon almond extract.
1 pint milk.
½ pint cream.
Marshmallows.
Tart jelly or cherries.

Cut marshmallows in quarters with shears and place in bottom of dessert glasses. Whip cream, almond extract and sugar together until stiff, add chopped walnuts. Warm milk slightly, in separate dish, dissolve in it the junket powder, quickly pour this into the cream mixture, stir a moment carefully. Pour at once into the glasses. The nuts and marshmallows will rise to the top. Let set until firm. Then chill. Top with bits of tart jelly.

Scalloped Ham and Potatoes

Into a well-buttered pan put slices of raw peeled potatoes and a little pepper. Then a layer of uncooked, sliced ham. Add another layer of potatoes and ham and pour on this sauce (1 tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon butter, to 1 cup milk). Sprinkle bread crumbs on top and bake in a moderate oven until brown and potatoes are well done. Serve hot. Just enough ham can be used to give the desired flavor, which has the advantage of making a little ham go a long way. For picnics this can be baked at home in a heavy tin dish with a cover and reheated over hot water on a camp fire.

MANITOBA'S NEW LIQUOR BILL IS FINALLY ADOPTED

Winnipeg Wills but brief debate, Manitoba's new liquor bill, which provides for the sale of beer by the glass in hotel parlors and clubs, and the purchase of hard liquor under a personal permit system from government commission stores, was adopted in the Legislature.

The act probably will be proclaimed February 15, Hon. W. J. Major Attorney-General, stated recently. Preparations for opening beer parlors are well under way in hotels here in city and rural districts, and extensive alterations have been made by some in fitting their premises in accordance with the new act.

Under the act, provision is made for taking a local option vote in the 24 "dry" constituencies at the present time.

The Manitoba Liquor Commission given wide powers in regard to sales and severe penalties for infractions are provided. The Government will take all liquor profits, instead of allowing them with the clubs and hotels as heretofore at present, and has the right to purchase or build a brewery to combine warrant.

Another barometer of the state of Western Canada's agricultural prosperity is the sale of school lands in the Prairie Provinces which in 1927 were the best on record. In all 486,000 acres were disposed of for a total of $6,953,957, representing an average of $16.70 per acre. The largest price obtained was $7 per acre and the highest $70.

Appointment was announced recently of R. F. Angus to the assistant superintendency of the C.P.R. Montreal Terminals. Mr. Angus, who joined the Canadian Pacific Railway as a clerk in 1915, is the grandson of R. B. Angus, one of the organizers of the system, and nephew of Sir Edward Beatty, chairman of the Bank of Montreal.

Two-year-old John Wyllie Buchanan travelled recently alone from Seattle to Los Angeles to join his father in Glasgow, a distance of 1,500 miles. Dressed in a tag, in care of C.P.R. train and boat officials from Chicago on, John thought the climate here was little different to California and was even overcoat-less but left it packed in his trunk, but he changed his mind at Montreal where he struck sub-zero weather. He arrived safe and sound, and will travel back in the spring.

A paradise for the suicide camper will be ready next summer when the government finishes the new camp ground in the Rocky Mountains Park within half a mile of Banff, on Tunnel Mountain. The camp, which as its old site last July accommodated 11,000 persons, is specially popular among prairie farmers between seeding time and harvest. Charge is only a dollar for a party for three weeks, and running water, sewage removal, dinner shelters, electric light and even pay telephones are provided for campers.

Around ten thousand members and their friends will visit Montreal on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Canadian Northern Railway which will be held in Montreal February 5-6. The convention of international is scope since it takes in the American Railway Association and the Canadian Railway Association in the states of New Hampshire and Massachusetts. While there are also representatives from the Manitoba Snowshoers' Association and local bodies from all over the province of Quebec.

Making his second visit to Canada in 3 years, Seymour Hicks, noted British actor, with his wife, the equally well-known English stage favorite, Ellaline Terriss, and their daughter Betty, are in company of the arrived at Halifax this month, played a week there and then left for Saint John at the opening phase of a four months' tour that will embrace the whole Dominion to Victoria and back. Mr. Hicks journeys on C.P.R. and will conclude his tour May 5.

The increased buying power of the Canadian people and the marginal funds in their possession for investment in the last few years is accounted for by the increased production of the Dominion, substantial increments having been recorded since 1922 and a new record made, according to estimates, in 1927. The value of gross production in Canada in 1922 was $4,940,000,000; in 1924 it was $5,363,000,000; in 1925 $5,-889,000,000; in 1926 $4,856,341,934; and in 1927, according to the estimate of the "Financial Post," $5,-756,756,760. Production in 1927 exceeded that of 1926 by approximately $100,000,000 and that of 1922 by $800,000,000. Agriculture accounted for $1,606,267,100; forestry, $489,-405,000; fishing $50,291,000; trapping $16,788,800; mining $362,766,-000; electric power, $136,136,000; construction $230,300,000, and manufactures $2,760,760,000.

seconded by Mrs. Pust.

Councillor Graham, chairman of the Works and Property committee submitted his report showing receipts from rentals of town property and expenditure in connection with same together with a statement showing the valuation of all town property, and moved its adoption, seconded by S. O. Jones.

Councillor Cranston, chairman of the Public Works committee, presented an itemized statement of the work undertaken during the year together with the expenditure in connection with same, the main feature being the installation of a surface drainage system necessitating the laying of 1200 feet of 8" tile from Rose street, along Dennis avenue and Government street to an outlet in the river bank, with catch basins at various points. This report was adopted on motion by councillor Cranston, seconded by Fred Atkinson.

Councillor Hagerr, chairman of the Library and Police committee, in reporting on the work of his department showed a surplus of revenue both actual and expenditure over that estimated. Two prosecutions had been conducted by the town police under the provisions of the Liquor Act, convictions being obtained in both cases, the fines imposed being returnable to the town from the attorney-general's department. The report was adopted on motion by councillor Magor, seconded by S. O. Jones.

Councillor Robertson, chairman of the Health and Relief committee, reported a small debit balance of actual expenditure over that estimated due to the increased demand for sanitary supplies.

The health of the town had been good with the exception of one case of smallpox and one case of infantile paralysis, successfully suppressed by the stringent measures employed in the enforcement of quarantine regulations. One prosecution for the enforcement of said regulations had been conducted, the party in question being convicted and fined.

Five gravels had been cleared and ploughed around the nuisance ground preparatory to burning off in the spring.

The report was adopted on motion by councillor Robertson, seconded by Mrs. Paul.

Councillor O'Brien, chairman of the Finance committee, submitted a detailed statement of the financial report as published in the Fort Saskatchewan Record under date January 25, 1928, and moved its adoption, being seconded by S. O. Jones.

A hearty vote of thanks was expressed to the council by S. O. Jones, seconded by Fred Atkinson, for the capable, efficient and economical manner in which they had conducted the municipal business during the past year.

Reply by His Worship the Mayor contained his appreciation of the vote, together with his thanks to the individual members of the council for their efficient and loyal support.

Note—The foregoing reports are open for inspection at the town office at any time during business hours.

They were in the kitchen Mrs. McMann peeling a tub of potatoes, for the evening's slaughter, and Helen dampening clothes for the next day's ironing. The latter lifted her dreamy eyes from the basket of clothes. "Ain't clean clothes beautiful?" she said—all full of new starch—a special air and sun I like clean clothes like flowers."

Mrs McMann regarded her with a puzzled look. "Sometimes I wonder about you, Helen, dear," she said kindly, "you seem so queer, and hardly all there. You don't seem to hear what people are saying to you with your dreamy looks and the queer things you say."

Were you speaking to me, Mrs McMann?" Helen asked politely. "I am sorry if I did not answer right. What was it you wanted me to tell you?"

Though outwardly pleased to have Helen back again, Mrs. McMann's secret dread that the girl became more of the fervent expression of joy her return brought from the men. Devout thanksgiving was expressed the first day she was there to wash on the Bible.

"Helmi at the heim again?" one little Jew cried out, when it came Helen's turn. "You missed you no! Don't leave us even if you did get married; we're willing to forgive you anything but desertion. "Gosh, I'm glad to see you," said the time-keeper, a man who seldom spoke.

"See here!" Mrs. McMann broke in, "what's the matter with you all? Didn't I tell you? Don't you Dads that I sling grub here every day and hire a Chinaman to cook?"

"It's just we're glad to see her back, she's a pretty young thing, and we like to look at her, Mrs. McMann," said the naive boss, whose special duty it was to keep peace in the camp. Helen had gone East and he was taking his meals at the boarding house. "The boys don't mean no harm to you."

Mrs. McMann's eyes narrowed. Helmi's facile movements, her boyishly slim figure, her perfectly rounded face, and the brilliancy of her coloring gave her the same shock of delight as the old artisan feels when he first strikes with sight on a fine piece of sculpture. Mrs McMann in a waking days had quenched in many a camp where the youngest woman at the camp travels next the pole. Now, in contrast with Helmi, she was merely a shrivelled, dried old woman, whose soiled and battered by time seemed worn out and she knew it. And with the thought came a smouldering hatred of the unconscious cause of it.

One day when Helmi came in Mrs. McMann noticed the color of her cheeks was not so brilliant, and her eyes looked heavy and red.

"Frettin', are you Helmy?" she said; married three months and fretting already! That's not good—no man is worth fretting over. By Gosh! I'll bet Jack's not frettin.' If there's a pretty girl in sight, Jack will be spraykin' up to her and makin' her think she's the only girl he ever looked at. Men are all the same don't I know them? I should, I've had three men already. But I'm done—I wouldn't marry the richest man in the world, not if he went on his bended knees to me.'

Mrs. McMann, with her hair in flaring curl papers, dressed in a faded and shrunken old wrapper which had lost the sense of its bottoms in the course of its career, with shoes unlaced and the tongues hanging out, did not look much like the lady who would command object homage.

Some such thought as this must have shown in Helmi's face, for Mrs. McMann went on. "I was good enough lookin' when I was your age, too, and had lots of fellows crazy about me. I made my first substitute when I got married and began to raise a family. Then I lost my looks and my figure. Land! ain't the world hard on women. It's just like the potatoes that are planted in the ground the old man has to die to make a new plant. The old one rots, while the new one springs."

Helmi shuddered.

"That's bad talk," she said hesitatingly. She wished she could have said it in her own language. "God made the world this way. It can't be so bad as you say. Lots of good men there are, and happy women, too, and it's all right for women to have families."

"Oh, you don't say so?" snapped Mrs. McMann! "I suppose the next thing we hear ..."

Here the conversation was interrupted by old Sim's arrival. Having slept all day, he had come in for his evening meal, blinking at the light like a bear in the Spring.

Eustace Mankowitz was a long, lanky man of uncertain age. His gray beard was tangled and knotted, but his eyes were young still, and, although generally half closed, as if the light hurt them, capable of seeing all that was happening. Simeon had the appearance of a flower that has grown stringy and pale for lack of light, or a potato that has lain in a forgotten corner of the cellar. He fell at once talking, not wishing to lose any of the precious hours of conversation, remembering that the long night was coming wherein no man would be found to whom he could talk.

"Speakin' o' false teeth," he began, although no one had been speaking of them, "I lost my job with the C.P.R. over mine. I was engineer on the line when it happened, and happenin' to assume, out they flew into the grass. Just snitchety I stopped the train — Stars! I would have done as much for anyone no man could do less than stop! and I hops down, for I had marked the place, and I walks right to them, dusted them off on my elbow, and puts them in. It didn't take no time. But the company was sore. The chief heard of it and calls me in. I'm in such I thinks I'm a goner and say I quit. I says he has I no. No man can talk that way to me and get by with it.' I spake easy as I spake I simply do be to get on to him to the heart. He just couldn't stand it from me. When I was a man and hard up, I thought I had it him call. I never turned down I thought so. I don't know.

"Sim, I'll admit I was doing all right since you left us and Mr. McMann. testify.

So have I, Mrs. McMann, said sim, gently, beautiful days and of work always a plenty for old Sim. I've left to preach a little sometimes and at queer points, generally associating with odd characters, and there I find the most interesting of all. I've had a time I can tell you. I've had some adventures, Mrs. McMann, or dear, dead days, though I never gave a thought to them and I can't see that anything worth while happened to me. Now here is Jack Frettin' Happy over there, he has to endure some real hardships before he becomes an old man like me. Tell your story, don't you, Mrs. McMann, of how the frogs was cooked to go in for one day to the pond, and promised they would sure get out immediate?"

"Oh shut up Sim, and eat your supper! I can't be bothered to listen to you."

Helmi hushed up. I like Sim's talk," she said, in very good words."

"He's just an old gabber. Helmi still smiled rather late than eat if he can get anyone to listen to him. He's the canal-boat type. Once the engine always had to stop when the whistle blew—that's Sim."

"But I like it," Helmi said again: "He talks kind. Tell me about the frogs, Sim."

"Some day I'll come to see you, sir! I'll tell you, Helmi," Sim spoke with dignity now. He had been insulted professionally and could not recover all at once.

"He's trying to bum a meal, Helmy," said Mrs. McMann brutally; "I know him."

"Come on Sunday for dinner with me, Sim, and then you can tell me" from nodded great-fully.

"It is the long back nights, Helmi, black without a star, silent, empty, not a voice, not even a dog-bark, I have been a night-watchman for ten years no wonder I have a cravin' for voice and friends. Yes, I will come, Helmi, and thank you for being so kind."

Helmi's heart grew tender as she thought of the lonely old man sitting alone in the long dark night, star's with silence; for although she had been only two weeks alone, she knew what loneliness and fear a night can hold when one lies open-eyed, staring into the black unanswering night, wondering, wondering. One can imagine such terrible things of lost men in trackless wilderness. And Christmas seemed far away!

YOUNG WOMEN SUFFER MOST

These Two Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ayre's Cliff, Quebec.—"I have been teaching for three years, and at the end of the year I always feel tired and have no appetite. I was awful sick each month too having pains in my back until sometimes I was obliged to stop working. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I heard many women telling how good it was so I thought it would help me. And it did. Now I take six bottles every year and recommend it to others."—DORALBA FAUTEUX, Ayre's Cliff, Quebec.

"Unable to Work"

Canning, Nova Scotia.—"I had irregular periods and great suffering at time times, the pains causing vomiting and fainting. I was teaching school and often for some hours I would be unable to attend to my work. Through an advertisement in the papers I knew of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has been of great benefit to me, the troubles being completely relieved."—LAURA J. EATON, Canning, King's County, Nova Scotia.

Under Patronage Of Prince

His Royal Highness Sponsored Publication Of Canadian Birdland Poems

His Excellency Viscount Willingdon has accepted a copy of W. Hardwick Robb's volume of Canadian birdland poems, "The Quill and the Candle" which appeared just before Christmas under the patronage of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales.

The Prince has acknowledged the arrival at St. James Palace of the volume of poems, the original command for which he gave last June.

The "Command" copy was an example of the Canadian binders art. It was done in green suede, gold and red with silk inside the covers and the presentation inscription inside was in gold lettering on suede.

Scottish Doctor Invents Spectacles As Protection Against Glaring Headlights

Soon you may be able to drive at night undisturbed by the glare of oncoming headlights. A new kind of "spect" made especially to protect motorists eyes, from blazing lights, has been invented by Dr. Carl G. Erstrom chief medical officer of the Swedish navy. The spectacles are a clever combination of a German type of glass, greenish-yellow-gray in color, that shades into clear glass at the bottom of the lenses. The upper part shields the eyes from irritation, the lower permits unobstructed vision on the road for driving.

Alberta's Coal Production

Coal production in Alberta last year was the largest ever recording a total for all grades of 6,956,755 tons. Figures compiled by the mines branch show that 1927 went 27,833 tons ahead of the best previous year, 1926, thus establishing a record.

Life's current coin is made of plain common sense.

When Food Sours

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been overstimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless dose in water. It is pleasant, efficient, and harmless. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggist.

Toronto's Population

Toronto's population is estimated at 569,890 in the report of the city assessors, just issued. This is an increase of almost 13,000 for the year.

GREAT PRAISE FOR BABY'S OWN TABLETS

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. have received the following letter from Mrs. Griffith, of 21 Merchants Ave., East Hamilton, Ont., concerning her experience with Baby's Own Tablets.

Dear Mrs. I wish to thank you for the handy little booklet you sent me on the Care of Children. My baby was six weeks old when I first used Baby's Own Tablets, being new to Canada, but since the first period of their many uses in bringing up a family, I have never been without them, for they are worth their weight in gold. There is no trouble in getting the little ones to take them as they often prevent an illness if taken in time. My first baby is now, at the age of four and a half years a picture of health and my second who is old baby is also well and happy. They are both a real good sample of what Baby's own Tablets can do, for I have never yet needed a doctor for either of them.

The booklet to which Mrs. Griffith refers is entitled "Care of the Baby," and treats with what a mother ought to know for baby's sake. A copy of the booklet will be sent free to anyone requesting same from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

VOTERS OUT IN FULL FORCE AT ELECTION ON MONDAY

With a total number of 548 votes cast for three candidates for councillors and 759 votes for three school trustees, 12 ballots being spoiled in each contest, a most interesting election was held Monday, said to have had the greatest number of voters of any election held in Fort Saskatchewan.

Almost every Tom, Dick and Harry and Jane and Mary registered a vote for the sake of their choice.

Those elected for councillors were Messrs. A. S. O'Brien, W. A. Graham and P. Morel, and for school trustees Dr. Henry, T. Charlton and F. S. Truby.

The election was quiet and orderly, no one exhibiting any great excitement until after all was over, when one or two lost their tempers and said some nawty things to each other. No blows were exchanged, however, and a night's sleep dissipated what little ill feeling there was.

In the results here shown it is noticeable that there is little difference in the number of votes polled for those elected and those who lost out.

WASKATENAU FARMER'S WIFE MURDERED WITH AXE

Mrs. W. Pendleton, wife of a farmer in the Waskatenau district, well known in Edmonton musical circles and at one time a stenographer at the government buildings, was slain by a blow from the blunt side of an axe while sitting at work in her home on Tuesday afternoon. It is alleged the deed was done by an employee named George Edward Jackson, a friend of Mr. and Mrs. Pendleton, who was known to be mentally defective. The suspected man left hurriedly on the premises three hours before the victim was discovered by her husband, who had been cutting brush some distance from the house. Jackson made his way to Waskatenau where he hired a livery car and went to Edmonton, where he was apprehended about five o'clock today (Wednesday) in one of the theatres.

Eight Years Of World Service

With the conclusion of the Great War and the assembling of the Peace Conference, a new chapter was written in the history of this old world when the League of Nations was formed and the Covenant of the League was written. By that act a new conception, a new ideal of international relationships and obligations came into being.

On January 4th last, the League of Nations observed its eighth anniversary, and although eight years is but as a fleeting second in the life of the world, there is interest and value in glancing back over that brief period and seeking to measure the usefulness of the League and in endeavoring to find an answer to the question whether it is worth while, and whether there is life to be found in its brief history the seeds of permanence.

The general opinion of the press of the world is that, while the League has not accomplished all that was hoped for it, now realized the extravagant hopes of its most enthusiastic supporters neither have the doleful prophecies of the skeptics of 1920 been fulfilled.

The League has not yet succeeded in making the world safe from the menacing shadow of future wars, although it has been instrumental in mediating at least six disputes, any one of which might have developed into world war. On the other hand, it has condemned all the dire prophecies that it would quickly collapse in a welter of quarrels and recriminations. Instead, it stands stronger today than at any previous period in its short history.

From its inception, the programme of the League has had two main objects, two great principles which, from the first, it has sought to establish—the extension of international law, and the settlement of international disputes by arbitration. It has done much to secure acceptance by all nations of these principles. But that is not the sum total of its accomplishments. To quote Lord Cecil:

"Improved international intercourse, it has struck some effective blows at grave social evils, it has rescued some hundreds of thousands of men, women and children from captivity or starvation, it has done something to improve the economic situation in Europe, it has succoured states floundering in a financial morass."

The League has yet to achieve its highest purpose, its greatest task, the attainment of a position which ought to destroy war. If it has, as yet, failed in that, if disarmament is still a dream and war still a dreadful possibility, the reason is not far to seek. The London Daily Herald, Labor, states the position when it says:

"The character of any association is derived from and determined by the character of its members. A thousand Quakers will not make an effective infantry battalion, nor a thousand bookmakers an effective spiritgambling society. The impossibility of gathering grapes from thistles is not altered even by dubbing a thistle field a vineyard. And since the League is a collection of governments, its character and its work depend inevitably upon the nature of those governments. Its collective will is formed by their individual wills. It must in practice be an instrument of their policies."

Or, to quote Lord Cecil again:

"The task of the League is to destroy war—a task of enormous difficulty. It certainly cannot be accomplished at a single stroke or in a few years. It will need all our energies, all our courage, and all our faith. The first step is to get rid of the notion that it is lawful for one nation to make war on another at its own will and pleasure. That step has been taken so far as all members of the League of Nations are concerned. It is implied in the Covenant, and has been definitely expressed more than once in resolutions of the Assembly to the effect that 'aggressive' war is an international crime."

The League of Nations' membership of forty or fifty nations includes all the great nations of the world with the exception of Russia and the United States. For eight years the leading statesmen of these nations have been assembling around the conference table and exchanging views with the utmost frankness. They are learning each others' viewpoint. They have striven to find common ground of agreement, and to develop formulae acceptable to all and upon which common action may be taken. In this sense, new many old prejudices and suspicions have been wiped away, and a spirit of goodwill and a readiness to co-operate engendered.

The League of Nations is, above all, a powerful educational influence sending the peoples of all races, colors and creeds to think along lines of peace rather than of war. And that, after all, is the main essential,—the development of a peace consciousness, a real desire for peace on the part of the masses of the people, everywhere. Only so will war be utterly destroyed.

Observations Of Hudson Strait

Aerial Work To Be Continued During Spring Break-Up

Terminal facilities at Port Churchill should be completed by 1930, Alex. Johnson, Deputy Minister of Marine, stated in Montreal. Aerial observations of ice conditions in Hudson Strait are being continued. Mr. Johnson said, and particular attention will be given to the movement of ice during the spring break-up, to determine the earliest date it will be possible to sail a ship through the battle-pack passage between Hudson Bay and the Atlantic.

ARE YOU RUN DOWN?

All That Is Needed Is a Tonic To Build Up the Blood

There are many people who have been semi-invalids for years, who accept their condition as a life burden. They have endured nervousness, broken sleep and a generally rundown feeling so long that they have given up hope of ever enjoying good health. In most of the cases a well known doctor, Dr. Pink pills are a tonic to build up the blood would do wonders. And as a matter of fact there is no other medicine can compare with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are a specialty a spot in Canada where you will not find some formerly ailing person who has found new health and joy in the use of this medicine. The experience of Mrs. Thomas Lapointe, St. Malo, Que., bears out these statements. She says: "I have the greatest reason to be thankful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. I was in a very weak and nervous condition. Frequently I would faint and my legs would shake badly. It was almost impossible to do any housework. It seemed as if my blood had turned to water. In fact, I was in a miserable condition. I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A few boxes proved they were helping me, but I continued taking the pills until I had used a dozen boxes. By that time I found myself a completely restored woman. I was able to do my work without fatigue, a better appetite and a sense of cheerfulness where before I had been despondent. For all this, thanks to the health-giving qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

If you are feeling run-down, give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and new health will be yours. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Empire Marketing Board

Campaign in Old Country To Create Demand For Empire Products

The Empire Marketing Board is carrying on a most useful work in endeavoring to educate the purchasing public of the Old Land in products of the Empire. One of the striking methods used is a series of illustrated advertisements depicting typical scenes in connection with marketing and transportation of various products from distant parts of the Empire.

Two striking advertisements recently issued deal with apples from Canada, and are calculated to bring very forcefully to one's attention the excellent qualities of this imported Canadian fruit. No better method could be desired for creating a demand for this product of Canadian orchards, and should materially assist in stimulating trade within the Empire.

Support Canadian Literature

Canadian Books, By Canadian Authors, Printed In Canada

The Carillon Book Club of Canada, have inaugurated a plan to furnish the reading public of Canada with books by Canadian authors, printed by Canadian workmen on paper made in Canada. They have received an option on the output of a Canadian publishing house, and as soon as each book comes from the press they will be sent postpaid to members of the book club. The annual subscription rate is $10 per year, and this pays for six new books, which will be sent to members as soon as printed and at intervals of two months. This is not a money making proposition, the main object being to provide the people of Canada with good, wholesome books by well-known Canadian writers. Mr. C. C. Knight, Exchange Building, Ottawa, is the president of the club, and by writing to him, full particulars of the plan will be gladly furnished.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

GERMAN SOUR BEEF

2 cups water
½ cup brown juice
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 large onion
1 carrot
2 pounds cheap cut of beef

Cut onion in thin slices, cut carrot in strips, add water, lemon juice, salt and pepper, and pour over the beef and leave over night. Heat fat in pan, in small agate pan, stir in flour, and put in hot oven until flour is brown. Add one cup of the water in which meat was soaked, and cook slowly. Bake slowly, and when beef done add vegetables, drained from water, and continue the cooking adding more liquid, as needed. When tender, remove to serving dish and thicken gravy of which there should be one cup, with two tablespoons flour, mixed with two tablespoons cold liquid. Add, if desired, one-fourth cup sour cream. Put vegetables around the beef, and serve gravy in a sauceboat.

The lemon juice helps very much to make tough meats tender.

Asbestos, Link Between Vegetable And Mineral Kingdom, Is The Only Rock That Can Be Woven

Asbestos is one of the most remarkable substances in nature. This strange mineral, of which 80 to 90 per cent. of the world's supply comes from the province of Quebec, has been referred to as the link between the vegetable and mineral kingdoms, a mineralogical curiosity because of the curious properties found in both. It is the only rock which can be woven into fireproof garments and moulded into instruments impervious to flame. It is sometimes referred to as "mineral cotton" or "mountain flax."

But let an American periodical tell the rest of the story of asbestos, says the Department of the Interior, through its Natural Resources Intelligence Service, adding that it is particularly appropriate to quote an American article in view of the fact that the principal outlet for Canadian asbestos is in the United States, that country importing almost $7,000,000 worth out of a total production amounting to $10,674,000 in last fiscal year. The writer of the article referred to, Orville E. Keenen, talks the history of asbestos and its manifold uses. With asbestos armor and tools, he says, man can defy the fiery forces of nature. That is why, when oil-wells have flared, asbestos clothes and shoes have been rushed by air mail to the oil fields. That is why, when forest fires menace the sawmills and logging camps, the messenger dogs of forest rangers in California are clad in asbestos coats to defy the timber flames. He [illegible]

Some have thought the three who survived Nebuchadnezzar's fiery furnace were clad in asbestos. Another writers tell of a "stone which is carried and known to form handkerchiefs for emperors, the fabrics being made by casting them into the fire." Corpses of royal Romans were swaddled in wrappings of asbestos that their ashes might be preserved after cremation.

"An ancient Greek writer tells of a lamp of gold for the statues of Athene with a wick of unburnable 'harpasian flax.' The Greek word asbestos means unextinguishable. Rabinus, finding asbestos in Labrador, have long used it for lamp-wicks.

"Marco Polo's countrymen only laughed when he brought tales, in 1295 A.D., of Tartars who had clothes made from the skin or hair of a mythical salamander, which lived only in fire. Polo learned that the material was really 'earth-flax,' mined in the Ural Mountains, as it is today, dried, powdered and woven. Magicians, he said, cleansed it in fire. Four centuries before, the Emperor Charlemagne performed the same 'miracle' for his guest with his table-cloth.

"The mystical material, 'fibrous and crystalline, elastic and brittle, heavy as rock in its crude estate, yet as light as thistledown when treated mechanically,' has withstood the heat and enormous pressure of volcanic fires and earth adjustment, apparently without alteration. Changes in temperature do not make it expand or contract. Since the earth was in its infancy, these veins of silky fibres have seemingly survived when the hardest rock has worn or melted away.

"'You are,' a well-known asbestos man told me, 'almost surrounded with asbestos. Modern comfort and convenience would be inconceivable without this mineral curiosity. Of course, iron holders, mats and stands, gas burners and gas logs are commonly known, but now many are aware that asbestos compositions floors also are being laid, unburnable and everwearing.

"Your stoves and ovens are an efficient because of the same heat-proof resistant. If you started to uncover all the asbestos in your home you would have to take apart the electric wires, all your electric appliances, phonograph records, radio parts, even your telephone mouthpiece. Few common materials are fire, or even heat-proof. Only asbestos stands between us and the fire demon.

"Heat pipes in modern houses are covered with asbestos mixed with magnesia, or a similar substance, saving as much as 180 pounds of coal per square foot of boiler surface. Because the majority of houses are still trying to "heat all outdoors," however, [illegible]

East Broughton Canadian asbestos, which is chrysotile, or serpentine variety, is of the finest quality, soft, silky and of great tensile strength, consequently it is in great demand for all kinds of asbestos products, but particularly for asbestos textiles it is mixed in open pits and the finest long-fibred material sorted by hand or "hand combed," while to recover the asbestos from the smaller veins the rock is crushed and separated mechanically by elaborate processes. A wide variety of grades are produced from the valuable long-fibred "crude" which occurs in relatively small quantities but sufficient for one or more per ton, to the shortest mill fibre and asbestic sand used for wall plaster, worth but a small fraction of that amount.

Asbestos production in Canada in 1927 according to recent preliminary estimates amounted to 272,923 tons valued at $10,425,539. That represents one twenty-third of the entire value of Canada's mineral production, not a bad showing for one comparatively small section in one province

New Apples Receive Recognition

Malba Apple Is Said To Possess Excellent Qualities

Varieties of apples originated at the Experimental Farms received unusual recognition during the past year. To a collection shown by the Horticultural Division at the International Horticultural Exhibition at Paris, there was awarded the silver gilt medal diploma. The Malba apple, a fine summer variety with quality as good as the McIntosh was given high recognition on both sides of the Atlantic. The American Pomological Society awarded it its highest award in the form of the silver Wilder medal At the International Horticultural Exhibition at Brussels, in Belgium, it was given the gold medal diploma. This variety is one of the first of the Farms' productions, and is now listed in nursery catalogues

Fifty-five thousand odd miles in twenty-two days! That will be the record of Lieut.-Colonel the Right Honorable L. C. M. S. Amery, M.P., Secretary of State for the Dominions, when he returns to England after his present tour of the Dominions on February 11. During this period Colonel Amery has visited South Africa, Australia, New Zealand and Canada, and has delivered upwards of 300 speeches on the way.

His speeches have covered a wide range and have been enthusiastically received by member audiences throughout. He has been particularly happy in his references to the interests of the British Empire and in his remarks concerning the economic position of the component parts of the British Empire, while in speeches to the Empire Marketing Board he has broken new ground with most satisfactory results.

In every speech delivered by Colonel Amery in Canada he referred to the findings of the Imperial Conference in 1926, which made known explicitly to the world, stated that every one of the Dominions was an equal in new ground with most satisfactory results.

Colonel Amery landed in Canada from the S.S. "Aorangi" at Victoria on January 6, and sailed from Saint John, N.B., on February 3, on the Canadian Pacific liner, the "Montclare," for Liverpool. For the journey across Canada, where stops were made at 15 important centres, the Canadian Pacific Railway Company placed a special train at the disposal of the distinguished visitor and staff. On arrival at Banff, Alberta, the capital city of the Canadian Pacific Rockies, Colonel Amery threw all official cares to the winds, spent all the days of January 18 enjoying winter sports. The Colonel is an expert ski-er and took great pleasure in overcoming the difficulties of Tunnel Mountain. Throughout the tour Mrs. Amery, herself a Canadian girl, accompanied her gifted husband. Others to make the trip were Capt. W. Bruce, M.P. for the Clitheroe Division of Lancashire and Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Health; G. G. Whidden, Assistant Secretary at the Dominions office, and G. Hamley, of the Empire Marketing Board.

Canadian People Demanding That Dominion Nationality Be Recognized In Census Reports

Indications have been given that during the present session of parliament, legislative assent will be given to the almost unanimous demand of the Canadian people that Dominion nationality be recognized in census reports and vital statistics.

It is difficult to understand why such a measure has been delayed so long as it has.

Except for the assertion of a much longer period of years, Canadian nationality is just as definite a thing as English nationality. And even the most rancorous-revised Jingo would hardly propose to classify Englishmen as Trojans, Romans, Danes, Gauls, Belgian, Angles, Saxons, Britons, Greeks, Phoenecians and Normans in the modern English census. And yet all these races had a share in the blending of English character.

It is absurd and vicious to insist on classifying Canadians by their parent race name when a mere matter of national unity and national consciousness are the vital conceptions that Canada needs most.

And, aside from the sense of it, there is a parliamentary precedent which should be sufficient warrant for the use of the term "Canadian" in official documents.

The Immigration act makes use of the term "Canadian" as distinctive of nationality. If the word suits the purposes of the Immigration act, it should suit the purposes of the census and the vital statistics.

To refuse to recognize Canadian nationality is to submit to the Jingoes. To recognize Canadian nationality is to put this nation on a higher plane of dignity and self-respect.—Vancouver Sun

Liquor Treaty Ineffective

Unable To Prevent Smuggling Of Liquor Into U.S. From Canada

The treaty between Canada and the United States for the suppression of smuggling is ineffective in its present form to prevent the smuggling of liquor into the United States from the Dominion. This was the declaration made to the Royal Customs Commission, of which Mr. Justice J. T. Brown, Regina, was chairman, in the course of a conference between the commission and officers of the United States Government in Washington in August last. Minutes of the conference were tabled in the House of Commons by the prime minister.

Statistics concerning the quantity of liquor being smuggled into the United States from Canada, show, the Canadian Commission was informed, conclusively that the treaty in its present form is ineffective to prevent the smuggling of liquor into the United States from Canada even though the letter and spirit of the treaty and of the regulations issued thereunder are faithfully observed by the American and Canadian authorities concerned."

Explanations and Comments

1. The Mount. 4:35-37. On the day that Jesus spoke many things to the last lesson, he said to his disciples: Let us go over to the other side. For he would escape the multitudes and rest. They took him with them in the boat, even as he was. What is needful unto be done now? As for that little place, even, he was given up! The day had scarcely taxed the physical strength of him. He was tired out! He needed rest even as do we. The best had been his portion, and when his long curls rippled on the silk pillow and rested on the sheet he took a step in the dream and fell asleep.

The BABY

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and cure almost any little ill. Purely vegetable and sweet, too; it seems no time until everything is gone.

That's the beauty of Castoria: its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste, it's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it to babies as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea, or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: It is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to try them! Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

Intense Pains in the Back

This remedy gave great relief

Recommends it to hundreds of people

Wm. Hollis, Birmingham, England, learned of Gin Pills in Montreal, ten years ago. He had had intense pains in the back, caused by deranged kidneys. Gin Pills were recommended to him. He writes:

"I had great relief from kidney trouble after the first few Gin Pills. I recommended them to hundreds of people in England and Scotland. I have given many Gin Pills to people in Canada, and they have written me to say how much these pills relieved them."

"A friend of mine, Wm. Colmal, of Birmingham, suffered a long time with rheumatism and kidney trouble. I gave him twelve Gin Pills and for the first time in years he was free from pain.

"Thinking you and Gin Pills for the benefit they have been to me and others that I recommend them to."

If you have pains in the back, swollen feet or hands, brick dust deposits, constant headaches, failing appetite, suppressed or too frequent urination or foul diary, look to your kidneys. Deranged kidneys lead to sciatica, rheumatism, lumbago and other painful ailments. KELLOGG HAS A KIND MESSAGE FOR CANADIANS

OTTAWA. With no imperial designs, with no wish for the territory of any other country, with a common history, common hopes and aspirations, we have in the past ever lived in the future alike, and as ties by peaceful means. If we has neutral acquaintance with each other's institutions, respect for each other's rights, tolerance and patience, there is no question which cannot and will not be adjusted by reason.

In these words Hon. Frank B. Kellogg, Secretary of State for the United States, expressed to the Canadian people the feelings of Americans towards this and other countries in a banquet here, tendered in his honor by the Prime Minister of Canada, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King.

Pronouncing the toast to Mr. Kellogg the Prime Minister expressed the appreciation of Canadians at the honor done the country when Hon. Mr. Phillips was selected as right man for to Canada.

Mr. Kellogg, in his turn, said Mr. Mackenzie King, knowing his career at Washington and abroad that we had every reason to expect to him a most welcome and valued he in turn coming to for some months. We could not extend to distinguished guest the same welcome, due to the representation which Mr. Phillips has given us of the Canadian people.

Replying to the toast, Mr. Kellogg declared President Coolidge had desires only of friendship and good will to the Government and the people of Canada when he sent his wishes and message regards and also to express his thanks for the cordial reception accorded him, as the representative of the United States, by the people of Canada with the Governor-General and the Prime Minister. He expressed thanks for the

MEMORIES

I'm sitting in my room tonight,
Around me books piled high.
But in the glimmers of the light,
I think of days gone by.

The happy days, the sunny days,
The days of love and joy.
The days at home, the old school days
When I was but a boy.

The many friends with cheery smiles,
The pals so dear and true;
My mem'ry travels many miles,
Those friendships to renew.

My mem'ry travels back once more,
Back to the old home town;
I see the sights I saw before,
Then I begin to frown.

I cherish now those days of old,
Those days of my delight.
When mem'ry doth them all unfold
At coming of the night.

Here and There

Winnipeg.—The British bay immigration scheme has been adopted by the Manitoba Provincial Government, and about fifty lads will be brought here this year for placement on farms in the province, Hon. A. Prefontaine, Minister of Immigration, announced. First, the boys will be given at the Manitoba Agriculture College for preliminary training in farm work.

Calgary.—Two commercial airplane passenger services are being developed in Calgary. One calls for the use of planes carrying twelve persons each, to be used principally by passenger, freight and mail traffic between Calgary and Edmonton, the other calls for lighter machines, two or three passengers, for Calgary-Edmonton and mountain flight purposes.

All the way from Canmore, Alta., to Glasgow, Scotland, is a distance of approximately 6,000 miles to the record of Donald Ross, daughter, who, two years of age, took the All-Red route of the C.P.R. steamships Dominion to Saint John, where he embarked on the liner Montclare bound for Glasgow. He is visiting his aunt, who lives in Scaby, Glasgow.

All previous records in connection with the transportation of grain to Vancouver over Canadian Pacific Railway lines were shattered during the first two weeks in January, according to E. Cotterell, assistant general freight agent, western lines of the company. Deliveries at Vancouver by the Canadian Pacific during the fortnight in question totalled approximately 22,500,000 bushels of grain.

Calgary.—Farm land values in Southern Alberta are beginning to come from the effects of the series of good crops, and more inquiries for farm sales are being received since the last few months, according to real estate men, than in any similar period in the past five or six years. Farms offered for sale have ranged at $16 per acre and bringing as of late as selling now for from $20 to $30 per acre, with a demand for farms both for purchase and rental is decidedly strong.

In recognition of the fine work by officers of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National during the last summer hour of the Seventh Pacific Railway and Steamship Congress, presentations of gold and enamel cuff links were made recently to fifteen employees of both companies, at a dinner held in Montreal. Sir Henry Beatty, president of the C.P.R. and Sir Henry Thornton of the C.N.R. were both present.

Snowshoe week in Quebec got away to a good start when several thousand members of the Canadian Clubs paraded the streets of the old city and later some 1,200 snowshoers in full winter festival costume made an attack on the walls defended by the garrison and illuminated by a brilliant fireworks display. The chief center of interest there is the International Dog Derby, which is to be staged shortly and for this, visitors from the entire Dominion and the United States are flocking to Quebec, taking the Chateau Frontenac to its fullest capacity. SNAPPY STUFF

A manufacturer of Birmingham, England, recently gave honeymoon presents to twenty-seven men, all of whom had been employed by the firm for fifty years or more.

Five Paris nurses were discharged for giving patients ink instead of beef tea by mistake.

Edwin Cohn, a Birmingham, Eng., baker, won a cake offered in a bakery contest.

Hospital nurses of Edmonton and Enfield hospitals, near London, have been granted the privilege of smoking.

When she slipped on an icy railroad track, Miss Ruth Cuzen of Evanston, Ill., key that between the rails while a train passed over without injuring her.

Miss Phyllis Seal of Brighton, England, won $2,500 in the Irish sweepstake sold, but refused the money, saying she only wanted vindication.

Before being admitted to the almshouse in Manchester, England, for lodgings, tramps must agree to take a bath.

Miss Charlotte Leitch of Dundee, Scotland, was given a jail sentence of two months because she told a falsehood in court.

FARMER'S ACCOUNT BOOK

Farm surveys have shown that very few farmers follow a systematic method of farm accounting. This may, in the past, have been due to a lack of suitable simple forms or account books for the purpose. There are today a number of simple books issued which are a great help to the farmer in this important matter. Farming is a business, and if it does not pay the farmer should know why; it doesn't pay. Some record of receipts and expenses, together with an inventory (a list with values of live stock, feed, implements, etc., on hand) taken at the beginning and the end of the farmers' year, must be kept if he is to find out why it doesn't pay. Keep a record of each department of your farm business. Find out how much you are making from each, and if any are not paying.

A simple and yet useful little account book for farmers has been issued by the Dominion Experimental Farms. This may be procured from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, for the nominal charge of ten cents. This little book, while simple, is a great step in advance of keeping no accounts at all. Now is a good time to take an inventory and start keeping accounts.

Obituary

(Published by request)

The sudden death of Rectory Clifford Burnett occurred on Monday, December 19, at the Lamont hospital, aged 16 years and 4 months. He became ill on Thursday, the 15th, and was taken to the hospital and operated on for appendicitis on the 16th. The operation was successful and the doctors held out good hopes for him till within six hours of his death, but his heart was weak and gave out. Everything was done for him that loving hands could do. The funeral service was held at the home of his parents on Wednesday afternoon and was very largely attended. The service was conducted by the Rev. W. Jackson. Interment took place in the Good Hope cemetery. The pallbearers were Dan Flannery, Ralph Pomeroy, Ernest Johnston, Wesley Johnston, Albert Cripps and Norman Whitten. Great sympathy was shown by the neighbors and surrounding district by the abundance of flowers and wreaths that were sent.

He leaves to mourn his loss a sorrowing father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Burnett, two sisters, Mrs. Les Golden, of Lawton, Alberta, and Miss Blanche, of Good Hope, and three brothers, Lloyd, Willie, and David, of Good Hope.

Over Twenty-Nine Millions Spent On Road Improvement Last Year

George W. Yates, Acting Federal Commissioner of Highways, reports that for the year ending March 31 1927, the mileage completed under the Canada Highways Act was 7,506, with 872 under improvement.

In addition to the work Federally subsidized, the nine provinces have carried on extensive programs of highway construction and improvement, with the result that a total of 5,736 miles of road were improved during the season of 1926 at an outlay of $29,561,000 made up of Federal, Provincial and Municipal appropriations. The total amount spent on improvement and maintenance of roads in that year was $40,000,000 or approximately $7 per capita.

There were 21,500 miles of highway opened up to the end of 1926, and with 10,000 on the provincial Federal highway system only 50 far of this amount has 17,000 has been put to use to the motor.

This year will complete the Federal subsidy. It is unlikely there will be further Federal grants.

CHAPTER XIV

One day in August, while in the train came in the conductor ran into the station and shouted to the operator, "Say Ted, there's a war in Europe! What do you know about that?"

Ted took his pipe from his mouth and spat at the red stove. "Quit your kidding," he said briefly.

The conductor handed him the paper. "What do you make of that?" he said as he pointed to the staring headlines. "Maybe you'll believe me when you read that?"

The operator grudgingly admitted that there seemed to be more in it than he had at first believed. "Well, what's it all about?" he asked the conductor, "where res is it anyway."

The conductor tried to explain. "Tain't any of our business, is it, if someone shoots an arch-duke," said the operator. "Isn't it after all some of these arch-dukes is good for? Are they scarce of them?"

He was chasing off his desk with a large handkerchief as he spoke, and that was a sure sign of mental activity.

"It looks bad, Ted," the conductor said gravely; "there's lots of excitement in town, fellows joining up, bands playing and all. I know some of the boys that are just itching to go, but I assure you it isn't me. Well, s-long, Ted. I guess we should worry — it's a long way from Northern Alberta."

Old Sim, the night watchman, took it more seriously than anyone in Eagle Mines. "Wars," he said to Helmi and Mrs. McMann when he came in for his supper that night "is inevitable. That's a big word, Helmi, and means can't be helped. They come over so often, and kill a lot of people and make and hurt a lot, make a lot of debt and trouble. Everyone in the war loses on the wins every one blames someone else. No one knows for sure what it is about, but just while it be on one cause. To those have fightin' men any war is better than no war. Then it gets done when everyone is dead, or lame, or blind, or tired enough to talk sense, and the world tries to pay the debts, builds up the burnt cities, gets the sick fellows well, buys crutches for the one-legged men and glass eyes for the blind and provides for the widows and orphans. And then there's several councils and meetin's to find out who started the darn thing, and maybe they find out who was most to blame, that no one ever knew was there at the time."

"The war I was in," Sam continued, "was started by the sinkin' of a big boat called the Maine' and we was told to keep on saying 'Remember the Maine,' if ever we got chicken-hearted or soft toward the enemy, or tired, or homesick, or down in the mouth. That was to be what they called our slogan, and we stuck to it pretty well. It shook me up quite a lot the day I got my leg — my best one it was, too — but ain't that always the way? I didn't do much remembering of the Maine that day. I'm quick at it still; didn't they find out after that it wasn't the Spaniards at all that sunk the ship? There was great explanation and beggyous pardons and excuses and afterpous-ale, but no legs handed back, at least, not as cause as far down as the Privates. But that's war, Helmi."

"Do men have to go?" asked Helmi, with a sudden whitening of her face — "men like Jack, I mean — good men who don't want to kill?"

Helmi was getting the tables ready for the morning. Old Sim was always the last occupant of the dining-room, so they do and they don't," replied the old man, cautiously. "The law don't make them, but you just can't stay when everyone is lookin' at you as if you ought to be there. I wasn't fussy about war — there's too much killin' in it for me. If it could be done by arguing I'd like it fine, but this thing o' contradictin' a man by gunpain' a spear into him looks coarse and clumsy. Now that young Jack of yours, he wouldn't like killin' any better than I would, but I know how he'd feel. They got great mentin's and crowds and play bands, and by Gosh! when the bands played 'Dixie Land' or 'Marchin' through Georgia,' I never cared whether I got killed or not, and Spaniards was just like place bugs to me — that was just while the band was playin', though I always came to when it stopped."

"It is all wicked bad to me," said Helmi, as she held the dustpan with one hand and swept with the other; "I wish Jack would come home. I am afraid, Sim."

"War is hell on women," said the old man; "but it don't do no good to worry, Helmi."

"But it is far away, Sim — miles and miles of water — all gray and far! Oh, it's a long way! Why should we send

PIMPLES BROKE OUT ON FACE
Lasted Nearly a Year. Healed by Cuticura.
"My skin trouble began with pimples breaking out on my face. They gradually grew worse and spread to my body. They were red and itched very much, and when I scratched them it caused more pain. Scratching caused eruptions which disfigured my face. At night I could not sleep on account of the irritation. The trouble lasted nearly a year.

The Englishman had been a resident of the Argentine for over fifteen years. Long before the opening of the mines he had come and squatted on a piece of land in another fertile valley, about eight miles further up the river, going in on foot with all his possessions, a gun on his back and a dog at his heels. Beside the crooked little stream recalled English River, in compliment to him he built a shelter of boughs and began to cultivate a piece of land for his garden with a wooden hoe of his own making. He had told the people at Hacienderas, which was the nearest settlement, that any man should be safe to wrest a living from the soil if he had a dog for company, an axe, gun and a few seeds

Freedom From Asthma.

Asthma is one of the most distressing troubles, sudden in its attacks and prolonged in its agonies. Frequently many things are tried, but nothing seems to give hope or relief. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is the one help which can be depended upon. If you have tried other remedies without success, do not fail to get at once a package of this uniformly successful preparation

Cases ended in death! So a recent Canadian investigation showed. Those were the victims of tuberculosis — of consumption — of typhoid! They were cases where a mere cut had contained some slight injury — a cut, a burn, a wire prick — and where the wound, being thought not serious enough for special treatment, had been neglected. Blood poisoning and death resulted.
When you get any children or even any injury, ensure against infection by applying Zam-Buk. This balm soothes the pain, stops bleeding, and by destroying all germs prevents blood-poisoning, etc. Hence no time need be lost from work or pleasure by the use of Zam-Buk. All dealers, 60c. box.

GIVE CONFIDENCE TO YOUNG MOTHERS

By Always Keeping Baby's Own Tablets in the Home

A simple and safe remedy for the common ills of babyhood and childhood should be in every home where there is either a baby or a young child. Often it is necessary to give the little ones something to break up a cold, allay fever, correct sour stomach and banish the irritability that accompanies the cutting of teeth.

Experienced mothers always keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house as a safeguard against the troubles that arise. They know how quickly and surely the young mother can feel reasonably safe with a box of these Tablets at hand and ready for instant use.

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative that is, with all gripping and they are absolutely guaranteed free from opiates or other harmful drugs. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr Williams' Medicine Co Brockville Ont.

A 32-cent piece dated 1870 a year ago sold for 75 cents.

A Remedy For Earache. To relieve the earache or toothache due to cold in the ear is a delicate organ and requires to deal with it, remembering it needs to be warmed. Dr Thomas's Eclectric Oil offers a simple remedy. A few drops upon a piece of lint or cotton wool and placed in the ear will do much in relieving pain.

TO WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Wilson's Experience a Guide to Women Passing through the Change of Life

Hamilton, Ontario.—"I have taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot speak too highly of it as I was at the Change of Life and was all run down and had no appetite. I was very weak and the pains in my back never had left me. I could hardly rise in the morning and thought I had not a friend on earth. I did not care if I lived or died. I was very nervous, too, and did not go out very much. A friend advised me to try a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I did. I am a farmer's wife, and always worked hard until lately, and was in bed for two months. I began to feel like a new woman after the first bottle and I recommend it with great success, also Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about your medicines, as I cannot speak too highly of them." Mrs. EMMA WILSON, 471 Wilson Street, Hamilton, Ontario.

Social and Personal

Miss Gibson, Lacombe, is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Gibson.

Miss Madge Simmons, Wetaskiwin, formerly of the Fort, left on Friday to assume duties in Lamont hospital as a nurse-in-training.

Owing to the crowded condition of the Lamont hospital the staff has had to be increased and Miss Violet Stuchbry, R.N., left last Friday to resume duties as night superintendent for two weeks.

The Women's Institute met in the Memorial hall on Thursday, February 17, under the auspices of the Girls' A.A.A. Dancing from 9 p.m. to 3 a.m. Fort Five orchestra. Admission: $1.50 couple; extra lady 50c. Refreshments included.

A dramatic recital consisting of one-act plays and character sketches will be given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the First United church in the Memorial hall on Monday evening, February 27, at 8 o'clock, by Miss Elsie McLahan, one of Canada's foremost artists.

The council has had applications from two different firms recently to supply light and power to the town. The firms were the Calgary Power Co., and the Mid-West Power Co.

The Fort Saskatchewan Red Cross Society will hold the monthly meeting on Wednesday, February 26, at 3 o'clock in the ladies' room of the Memorial hall. All subscribers are invited.

The speaker for the afternoon was Miss Warrier in the absence of Father Gernier. Her book review "The Vicar of Wakefield," and the story of the life of Oliver Goldsmith was thoroughly appreciated by all present. Dainty refreshments were served by Mesdames Hunter, Wilmarth, O'Brien, McLean and Sutherland, hostesses for the afternoon.

TAKE HEED!

Just lately it appeared to me
That we should advertise
That fairyland, blue-eyed girl, Puppie,
Who tried to paddle

Since Leap Year comes but once in four,
When maidens have a chance;
You men on wives take heed once more,
Lest you be caught perchance.

There's Albert, Val, and Cliff Magee,
Tim Moore and Brackenridge;
No doubt they all know dear Puppie,
Who lives down by the bridge.

This Puppie kid is far too cute
To live with one alone.
She's full of Pep and runs but! but!
She wants an auto home.

But listen, men, who stand in awe,
You need not fear sweet Pup.
Though'st at your heart-strings she may draw,
She's always out of step.

This Leap Year too, will soon pass by;
No Leap Year ever stayed.
And Pup will may until she die,
A cute but staid old maid.

LARGE CROWD AT CATHOLIC LADIES' WHIST DRIVE

There was a large attendance at the Catholic Ladies' whist drive held in the Memorial hall last Wednesday evening, nineteen tables competing for the prizes. The winners were: ladies' first, Miss Bunyan; consolation Mrs. Grubb. Gents' first, Mr. Joe Normandeau; consolation, Emile Normandeau.

With ticket number 16 Mrs. P. A. Morel won the gramophone raffled off during the evening.

HOCKEY

The Fort Senior hockey team played their best on Wednesday night to defend the McQueen cup against the challengers, Bruderheim. They defeated them by 5-3 in a fast game and showed their superiority not only in the actual goal-getting, but in skating and stick handling. Had the ice been in good condition the victory would have been even more decisive. The result was a surprise to Bruderheim, if reports are true, they being confident the cup was going back with them.

NEW MINISTER FOR UNITED CHURCH AT FORT SASKATCHEWAN

Rev. C. E. A. Pocock has resigned from the Fort Saskatchewan United church and will withdraw from active pastoral work for a time because of ill health. The congregation has called Rev. D. C. M.D. CLOVER BAR ANNUAL RATEPAYERS MEETING

The annual meeting of the ratepayers of the Municipal District of Clover Bar, No. 51, was held in the Memorial hall, Fort Saskatchewan, last Saturday.

Mr. W. F. Wilkinson, Clover Bar, was unanimously chosen as chairman for the meeting, which was the best attended for some years.

While the discussion on matters pertaining to the administration of the district were many and varied, that which came in for the most prominence was the discussion on noxious weeds, this taking up the major portion of the time. While the meeting commended the action taken by the council in the past in dealing with this serious problem, it felt that they had not really gone far enough, and a motion recommending that the council increase their activities along these lines to the extent of appointing an additional inspector, directly answerable to the council, was passed. Another motion which was passed recommended that the council continue their efforts along the lines adopted in the past. A resolution recommending that each councillor appoint a weed inspector for his own division was rejected.

Dr. H. E. Smith, superintendent of the Royal Alexandra hospital, was present at the request of the council, and gave a brief but very interesting talk on "The Payment of Indigents' Hospital Accounts." At the conclusion of his address a motion was made and carried recommending that the council pay all outstanding accounts due to the Royal Alexandra hospital by indigent residents of the district, and that any future accounts be paid as may be mutually agreed upon. The meeting also endorsed the principle of a poll tax, the revenue of which is to go to meeting hospital accounts of transient and indigent patients.

The Returning Officer announced nominations for the office of councillor for Divisions 4 and 5. Messrs. Wm. Cobaldenton and Wm. Thomas were nominated for Division four and Messrs. R. Berg, S. Cholowski and T. W. Moore were nominated for Division five. Polling will take place on Saturday, February 28, between nine o'clock a.m. and five o'clock p.m. The polls will be held in Good Hope school house for Division four and Castle school house for Division five.

HOCKEY

The Fort Timmi hockey team defeated the Capitals, Edmonton, at the Edmonton Arena in a game at the week end, the scores being 5-1. It was a snappy game in which the Fort was a little faster than the city team. The fast and the sterling defense put up by Rene Tarrier in goal enabled the local boys to come out on top.

USE ONLY THOROUGHLY CLEANED AND GRADED SEED

(Experimental Farms Note)

There could be no better proof that thoroughness in cleaning and grading seed grain is worth while than that which lies in the fact that the use of high quality seed is becoming more and more a general practice among growers.

The principle of cleaning and grading seed has many times been shown to be sound. The practice of cleaning and grading entails little labor and relatively little expense in equipment. The use of good seed then is a matter which the good farmer cannot

GIRLS' A.A.A. VALENTINE DANCE GREAT SUCCESS

The Girls' A.A.A. held their annual St. Valentine dance last Friday night in the Memorial hall and as it was with the popular dances the girls arrange, the attendance was good. In addition to the popularity the dances enjoy with the young folk there was an encouraging patronage by the married people, all of whom seemed to be having the good time they deserve once in a while, poor things.

The hall was decorated nicely in the A.A.A. colors and the programme of dances was a little more varied than on ordinary occasions. The "specials" before supper supplied some novelties to enhance the fun.

The home town orchestra supplied the excellent music.

Supper was served in the buffet room, the catering for which being done in a satisfactory manner by the ladies of St. Emmanuel W.A.

A Forward Step

The development and growth of Canada politically, economically in commerce and finance, in production from its natural resources of the field, the forest, the mine, and the waters of the Dominion has, during the first sixty years of Confederation, been most gratifying. This is now fairly generally recognized. It is also the general belief that Canada is just entering upon a still greater era of expansion and development in many directions, leading to a greater growth and larger prosperity.

The question, however which, to an increasing extent, is calling for serious consideration is: What policies should be adopted and steps taken to insure that this future development shall proceed along lines that will result in building up a strong nation, and in such a way that maximum benefits from such development shall accrue to the whole people of the Dominion?

During the pioneer stage in any country's development it is inevitable that its people devote their energies largely to the production of primary articles, largely raw materials. But with increase in population, the provision of adequate transportation, and the accumulation of means or wealth, a country should move forward in the work of not only producing such raw materials in increasing quantities but in utilizing them in the manufacture of finished articles.

It is important that crude methods in production of raw materials be discarded for those best calculated to give larger quantities, better qualities, and at lower costs; that all possible waste be eliminated, that as many byproducts as possible be reclaimed, and that use be made of low-grade and off-grade materials. It is perhaps of even greater importance to ascertain the nature of pests and other agencies which now operate to destroy our raw materials at their sources, and to discover effective means for their eradication.

The discovery of all these things can best be brought about through the painstaking effort of the expert in scientific research. Such work may require years of study, investigation and experiment. In many, perhaps most, cases it will call for laboratory and other expensive equipment. In the past Canadians have not fully appreciated the importance of such work, and as a consequence have not been prepared to provide the necessary public funds to carry it on. As a people we have been so busy attending to our own particular problems, and demanding immediate results, that we have not always been impatient of ideas based on long and expensive scientific research. As a result, Canada today lags behind other nations in this respect, nations which have not by the wealth of natural resources calling for development which Canada possesses.

It is, therefore, highly gratifying to learn of the action of the House of Commons in unanimously adopting a resolution favoring the establishment of a National Research Institute by the Dominion Government, and of announcement by the Government of its intention to proceed with the erection of the first wing of a National Research Institute building on a ten acre plot at the central experimental farm at Ottawa.

Last year, it is stated, Canada spent $350,000 for research as compared with $50,000,000 by the United States, and $25,000,000 by Great Britain. This year the Government will, on the recommendation of the Research Council, increase the vote for research work to $750,000, and the Minister estimated that three million dollars would be required during the next five or ten years to construct and develop laboratories.

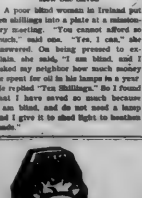
In this way the splendid work initiated by many of our Canadian universities, assisted by private capital, will be supplemented, and the whole work of research in Canada co-ordinated and developed. When it is realized that Canada is estimated to be losing at least twenty million dollars a year through grain rust alone, the possibilities of gigantic gain through research work can be grasped. A few millions a year spent in research work may easily mean a gain of ten times as many millions through discoveries made.

How She Saved

A poor blind woman in Ireland put ten shillings into a plate at a missionary meeting. "You cannot afford so much," said one. "Yes, I can," she answered. On being pressed to explain, she said, "I am blind, and I asked my neighbor how much money he spent for oil in his lamps in a year. He replied "Ten Shillings." So I found that I have saved so much because I am blind, and do not need a lamp, and I give it to shed light to heathen lands."

A Courteous Hint

Michael Angelo in the here of the following story. Some time ago he was invited to spend four days at a beautiful old-world castle in the south of England. Mr. Arlen was so charmed with the place that he remained for a week. One morning the butler presented himself with "——'s bill, sir." "Bill!" he would you like a book?" The servalist promptly replied that he would. The book arrived with almost equal promptitude. It was a railway time table!



Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and heartburn about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its introduction.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and pleasant to take. Its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods after you have tried it. When you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this product settles sour stomach, you will always keep it on hand. Get a few cents' worth at any drug store.

Bizzare Coal Subsidy

Subsidy To Railways For Transporting Coal Should Come From Dominion Government

Any subsidy to the railways for transporting Alberta coal to Ontario should come from the Dominion Government and not from Ontario, said Premier G. H. Ferguson in the Ontario legislature, in reply to a question of J. G. Lethbridge, Progressive leader.

Mr. Lethbridge asked what the attitude of the government was in view of recent suggestions made in the press Mr. Ferguson pointed out that the railways wanted $9 a ton whereas the actual cost as determined by the railway board was $7. The real cost he thought, was nearer $6.75. There was a suggestion, said the premier, that if the Canadian Government could contribute a subsidy of $1 a ton, the province of Ontario and Quebec should join in providing another dollar.

HOW DELICATE GIRLS ARE MADE STRONG

Rich, Red Blood Needed To Keep Up Their Vitality

It should be borne in mind that pale, sickly girls are starved simply of nourishment, plenty of sleep and regular, out-of-doors exercise. But a lack of appetite and tired, aching bodies tend to hinder progress. To cure the weak, blue-blooded sufferer, she must have new, rich blood, and nothing a cure of this kind so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These not only enrich and increase the blood supply, they help the appetite and digestion, relieve the weary back and limbs, thus bringing new health and strength and transforming sickly girls and women into cheerful, happy people.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the cure of anaemic girls is proved by the case of Miss Lucy Sinclair, Marguerite, N.S., who says: "From the age of 12 to 15, I was in an anaemic condition. I was very thin and nervous, had no appetite and had no desire to take part in the doings of those of my age. My mother got tonic after tonic for me, but they did me very little good. Then Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended and almost from the first box I noticed the good they were doing needed to restore my strength. After taking the pills for a time I felt an altogether different girl. I got up in the morning feeling bright and active, and ready for work or play. Since then I have always taken a couple of boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the spring as a tonic and have found them just the kind of medicine."

Every weak girl should promptly follow the example of Miss Sinclair, feeling sure that the pills will renew her health. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

LAMB MENAGERE
(Thrifty Housewife's Lamb Ragout)

½ cup sweetened condensed milk.
3 eggs cold lamb, minced
1 teaspoon salt (scant).
¼ teaspoon white pepper.
2 tablespoons chopped green peppers.
1 tablespoon chopped onions.
3 tablespoons hot water.
2 tablespoons bread crumbs.
1 tablespoon butter.

Mix sweetened condensed milk with water and stir into minced lamb. Add salt, pepper, chopped onion and green peppers. Put into buttered ramekins. Melt butter; mix with bread crumbs and sprinkle over meat. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 20 minutes, or until well browned.

CUSTARD SOUFFLE

3 tablespoons butter.
¼ cup flour.
¼ cup sugar.
1 cup scalded milk.
4 eggs.
½ teaspoon salt.

Melt butter, add flour, and gradually hot milk. Bring to boiling point and pour on to yolks of eggs beaten until thick and foamy, mixed with sugar and salt. Cool. Fold in whips of eggs beaten stiff. Turn into buttered dish, and bake from 30 to 35 minutes in slow oven. Take from oven and serve at once. Serve with hard sauce, whipped or plain cream.

What's between Indoors and Outdoors?

The world is divided into two sections, outdoors and indoors. Between the two lies a problem. The answer lies a vital question. Keep out the weather.

If wind and dampness can be kept outdoors, naturally inmates will be comfortable and healthful to the occupants.

Flying Comes Here To Stay And Conquest Of The Air Goes On Apace In Canada

Canadian fliers who may be anxious to attempt a transatlantic flight this summer will have much difficulty in securing permission from the federal government, because transoceanic hops are frowned upon by the Dominion on account of the aerial tragedies of 1927

Legislation will be passed at the present session whereby licenses will have to be secured by pilots desiring to fly across the Atlantic. It will be extremely difficult to secure such a license.

Flying in the Dominion last year was many costly in dollars and lessons into them over before, no fewer than eleven pilots having been killed in flying accidents and yet no records were attempted or set by Canadians.

Flying has come to Canada to stay. It was born of the war when Col. William Avery Bishop, V.C., was every decoration possible for conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in shooting down seventy-two enemy planes.

In these days of peace the conquest of the air goes on apace in the Dominion. The young men who reaped the whirlwind in the war returned to Canada to earn their living as civilians. But the spirit of war work survived, and in a small but resourceful organization called the Canadian Air Force the traditions of aerial navigation were carried on.

The young airmen, trained in war days, looked to the civil department of government for employment. They were needed and within two or three years of the close of the war many of them were in the Royal Canadian Air Force, detecting forest fires, locating smugglers on the boundaries, and mapping out by photography the vast area of the hinterlands

Canada was quick to establish the necessary code of law for navigation of the air, and today the Dominion is safeguarded by a set of strict regulations governing the licensing of all mechanics, pilots, air harbors, international flying signals and the inspection of aircraft.

The most conspicuous work done during the recent crowded years of flying history has been the survey work in which Canada has led the world. Last year more than 400,000 square miles of Canadian territory were photographed and mapped with an accuracy which would have required years and millions of dollars if done in the old way.

Parliament acknowledged Canada's fliers in the air war assessed by providing $3,000,000 last year for air development. Cities are being encouraged to provide future air harbors, technical advisers from Great Britain have visited the Dominion to make recommendations for the future linking of the Empire by air-ways, and the postoffice department is taking the initial steps toward what will be an Atlantic-to-Pacific air route.

Fisheries Of Alberta

Smaller Catch Is Reported For 1927 Over Previous Year

The fisheries of Alberta were not as active last year as in 1926, when a catch of 7½ million pounds netted the fishermen $740,000, an increase over 1925 of $200,000. Estimates of the total 1927 catch are placed at about six million pounds, with prices running about the level of 1926. The Alberta fishing activity depended largely on the production of the Manitoba lakes. The chief markets for the fish are New York and Chicago, and the Manitoba fishing companies fill those needs. If the Manitoba catch fails off, greater activity is necessary in Alberta, but if the Manitoba fisheries are active, Alberta is left with a smaller demand to fill.

During the past year a whitefish hatchery was built on Lesser Slave Lake, which, with Lake Athabasca, are the chief sources of supply.

Co-Operation Between Railways

Two Transcontinental Systems Will Stand Together In Promoting Welfare Of Dominion

Whole-hearted co-operation between the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railways is assured in everything that will make the greatness of Canada, E. W. Beatty, president of the C.P.R., and Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C.N.R., declared at Engineer's Club, Montreal.

The occasion was a presentation dinner to the staffs of both roads, who contributed to the success of the second (triennial) Empire Mining and Metallurgical congress, held last year in Canada.

"Something has been said of the co-operation between the two railways during the mining congress," said Mr Beatty, "and it has been talked of so much it was something to marvel about. It is not. In anything that is of common interest to the country and the railways you will find that both the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific Railways joining in support of that effort, whatever it may be."

On the question of co-operation, Sir Henry Thornton had the following to say "Let me say that we in Canada are too few in numbers to quarrel, and too poor in capital to fight each other The progress of our country will be best assured by the co-operation of all institutions within our bounds and by the joining of each section of our country in promoting the welfare of the Dominion. We shall stand shoulder to shoulder with the Canadian Pacific Railway in the protection that is necessary to preserve the revenues of our great transportation systems."

Benefit Of Inoculation

Effect Of Inoculation Shown On the Yield Of Lagoons Crops

At several of the Experimental Farms in Canada tests have been made on the effect of inoculating the legume crop yield where legume bacteria were absent from the soil or present in insufficient numbers, and the results are summed up in a pamphlet on "Legume Inoculation" written by the Dominion Agricultural Bacteriologist. In some cases the increases in yield resulting from inoculation were comparatively slight, but in many instances they were strikingly large. At the Kapuskasing Experimental Station two years after seeding, the inoculated alfalfa seed produced 2 tons, 1,440 pounds of dry matter against 3 tons 927 pounds produced from untreated seed. Results at the Beaverlodge, Alberta, Station were much more striking. On areas cropped in the year of seeding on that station the aggregate crop of two years from inoculated red clover seed was 4,162 pounds per acre as compared with only 236 pounds from uninoculated seed. For alsike the comparison was 4,302 pounds with 644 pounds and for sweet clover 5,000 pounds with 1,520 pounds per acre. The pamphlet may be obtained from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Ten Thousand Snowshoers Meet

1—Snowshoers in full costume. 2—A little diversion—the bonfire.
3—Notre Dame Church at Montreal.

Around ten thousand snowshoers and their friends visited Montreal on the occasion of the 300th anniversary of the founding of the Canadian Snowshoers' Association, which was feted in that city February 3-6. The ensemble takes on an international character by the fact that the American Snowshoers' Association, with over 1,200 members in the state of New Hampshire and Massachusetts, also attended the convention. In addition there were representatives from the Manitoba Snowshoers' Association and a large contingent from the St. Henri Canadian Club, which was celebrating at the same time its fiftieth anniversary, while unattended meetings were from all parts of Canada and the United States went to Montreal for the function.

The convention was held under the auspices of the United Snowshoers' Clubs of Montreal and was featured by a carnival, during which the grand snowshoe championship of the world was decided. His Worship Mayor Martin was the patron of the convention, and in its celebration a banquet was given at the City Hall, at which the snowshoers were the guests of the city, on Sunday evening, February 5.

A number of snowshoers travelled distances up to 300 miles on foot to Montreal, but the majority took advantage of the special facilities offered in excursions at reduced rates by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

With 130,000 more sheep in Canada than a year ago, George Gordon, of Oak Lake, Manitoba, president of the Canadian Sheep Breeders' Association, at the annual meeting in Toronto, viewed the future with every confidence for a greater increase in sheep population during the year. He spoke particularly of the conditions in Manitoba, where 40 years of steady raising had resulted in very sturdy land, which required the use of sheep to clean it up. For this reason, 130,000 more sheep than the present number could be successfully employed in Manitoba at this work. A committee had been appointed to interview the board of trade and the land and mortgage companies in Winnipeg with a view to soliciting their support to encourage the leasing of sheep on their farms to help clean the land. He outlined the good results of the four sheep sales in Manitoba. The districts in which they were held at one time supplied the worst grades of sheep to be found in the country. Now conditions were entirely changed and each year the best sheep were to be seen offered for sale in one place. The highest price paid per pound for a lamb was 50 cents, and a Manitoba bred ram sold for $300. The prize pen of 15 lambs sold for 39½ cents a pound and 300 grade ewes for $13.50 each.

Mr. Gordon urged every sheep breeder to obtain a copy in the Canada Co-operative. It was very encouraging to hear the big sheep men from the ranches of Southern Alberta say that the rancher with sheep shipped his wool every year to the organization had done much better than the man who shipped one year and sold to the private trade the next. Sheep men should not hesitate to patronize their own organization when they know they do so much to find markets for our wool. He said that the last shipment of 900,000 pounds of wool in Canada showed a great deal in opening up new markets and advertising Canadian wool. Last season approximately 2,000,000 pounds of wool, worth in the neighborhood of one million dollars, was handled, and the prospects for 1928 prices were good.

Cecil Stobbs, of McCreary, stated that the Dominion Government has removed some of the restrictions for importation of sheep from the United States owing to the prevalence of the foot and mouth disease in England.

Reports submitted by the representatives from the several provinces were all of a gratifying character, particularly that from the Maritime, where a total of 29,329 lambs sold for a total of $180,164. Pure bred ram lambs sold for $30 to $35; shearing pure bred for $25 to $35, ewes, $30 to $50 and grades from $10 up.

The receipts for the year were $21,370 and expenditure of $15,149. There is a balance of $6,176. The record of registration showed 1,200 sheep of which 3,377 are Shropshires, with 3,743 Oxford Downs as the next in popularity. The total membership is 1,174 of whom 499 are in Ontario, 235 in Quebec, 61 in Manitoba, 53 in Saskatchewan, 164 in Alberta, and 11 in the United States. Among the total importations during the year of 338, there were 126 Shropshires, 69 Southdowns, 39 Hampshires, 33 Ramsey, 3 Cheviots, 13 Black Face, 5 Leicester, 10 Rambouillet, 14 Merino.

The following officers were elected: President, Victor Sylvester, Ste. Hyacinthe, Quebec; vice-president, John Wilson, Innisfail, Alberta, secretary-treasurer, R. W. Wade.

It was decided to hold the next meeting in Quebec.

Protecting B.C. Fruit Crop

Counter-Parasites Are Being Import of Into Orchard Regions

Bug will fight bug this season to protect the Okanagan fruit crop from destruction. Counter-parasites are being imported into the orchard regions in a campaign to destroy the codling moth and scurvy.

The counter parasites, according to R. H. Buchle, provincial entomologist at Vernon, will be obtained from Wenatchee, Wash., the United States government having offered to cooperate fully with the British Columbia authorities. Parasites inimical to the codling moth and scurvy have done effective work in the past, although they have to be handled with a great deal more care because of the danger of introducing secondary pests with them.

Unless the codling moth is suppressed, growers fear that it will bring about destruction as extensive as in the state of Washington, where losses due to the activity of this pest were $5,000,000 last year. Eight hundred carloads of apples were classified as culls in the Yakima district for same reason.

Its Quality Sells It. The fact that, so many thousands of intelligent people continue to use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil speaks volumes for its healing efficiency. Ever since it was first introduced it has grown steadily in popular favor, entirely in its manifold usefulness in relieving and healing sickness. As a specific for cuts, burns, scalds, and various inflammatory pains its record is beyond reproach.

Youth About Cancer

"Neither X-rays nor radium has ever cured, or will ever prove of service, as a cure of cancer. For of both of these appliances I have had ample experience.

It is no use superimposing upon a dog and unless we find in all these something of its natural history and the general presence or opinion of amongst dangerous, then they have no hesitation in concluding, is that the cause of cancer is not known. Yet they continue to treat it by methods which, though they may relieve pain which, much to my regret, I was guilty of doing for a number of years before my eyes were opened to the folly of it.

The fact remains that operative treatment for cancer has been practically free from recurrence, and from my knowledge of the disease I affirm that the knife has never carried cancer in a single instance; but, on the contrary, I have seen in many cases the aggravating the disease and adding to the suffering of the poor patient; and also shortening his or her life, which latter, perhaps, might be humanely considered in the circumstances."

"Now cancer is a blood disease and there is no gainsaying this the blood poisoning and the cachexia and the outcrop of the malady, the cause being prolonged toxic condition of the blood."

Love of humanity and truth impelled Professor Lane, the celebrated British cancer surgeon, Dr. Robert Bell, D.S., F.R.C.S. Ed., to abandon his lucrative surgical practice and, after the unvarying results of his above quoted statements this eminent authority's experience, to refuse to have recourse to the modern orthodox methods of treating the dreadful known disease.

Before passing at an advanced age in 1926, Professor Lane wrote of the condition of cancer sufferers in Canada and the United States, Dr. Robert Bell kindly authorized the writer to use his private letters and personal letters in humanity's service and a book of valuable information concerning prevention and treatment of cancer without surgical operation, radium or X-rays. Such a book at once can be obtained, without charge, on application to Charles Marks, P. 51, Brunswick Avenue, Toronto, 4, Ontario, Canada.

FORT SASKATCHEWAN, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY, FEB. 29, 1928

SIZE OF EGG— A FACTOR IN BREEDING

(Experimental Farms Note)

Careful breeders have realized that size of egg is a factor that must be duly considered in breeding for increased egg production.

It has, however, been more forcibly brought to the attention of these interested by the adoption of the point system in estimating positions in egg laying contests and by the inauguration of registration, where the size of egg is one of the requisites.

Investigation and study of the breeding records at the Central Experimental Farm indicate that the factor for egg size is one that is very readily transmitted and that a strain may be very quickly improved or lowered according to the care, or lack of care exercised in the selection of the breeders.

In a mating between the Barred Rock Male No. 256 (his dam laid a 2-ounce egg, but he was of a small egg line) and a group of females, 25 daughters were produced, 17 of which laid eggs smaller than their dams, 4 laid eggs of the same size as their dams, and only 4 laid eggs larger than their dams which showed that the male influenced very strongly the size of eggs of his daughters.

In a mating of the Barred Rock Male No. 256 (large egg line) to a group of females, 17 daughters recorded, showed 12 laying eggs larger than their dams, 4 laying eggs of equal size to their dams and only one of the group laying eggs of smaller size than its dam, again showing the size of eggs of the daughters to be very strongly influenced by the male.

The records also show that there is a decided tendency to a reduction in the size of eggs when attention has been centred on an increase in the number of eggs produced.

From the above it may be inferred that the factor for size of egg may be readily transmitted and it therefore behoves breeders to avoid as far as possible using birds that either lay small eggs or are bred from small egg lines.

Especially is it advisable to avoid using males bred from small egg lines. The Directions supplied in Make No. 256 and No. 256 show clearly how quickly a flock may be affected either for good or ill by the kind of male used.

overlook as a means of producing larger and better crops.

The Summerfallow, which you must referred to by some one as the farmers' plant breeder; helps to maintain the high quality of a crop as well as to offer a means of keeping down weeds.

The work ordinarily done by a farming mill consists first of removing the light kernels and some trash with a blast of air from the fan, second with a complete set of sieves the grain could be separated out, as well as smaller material consisting of grain of other cereal crops, if such be present.

With the coming of central cleaning plants, many farmers are able to take their grain to be cleaned and graded at comparatively small cost. There will be fortunate enough to live within hauling distance and do not care to purchase equipment of their own, can make use of the central plant. These plants of course, are necessarily somewhat better equipped to handle large quantities of seed in a short space of time and also to make a more thorough job, particularly of removing mixtures of different kinds of grain.

None of the cereal crops require cleaning and grading as much as do oats. The nature of the crop, containing as it does large numbers of small kernels and in unfavorable seasons many light, poorly filled kernels, makes it all the more important to use the farming mill very generously with this grain.

Dirty grain which may give the appearance of being very marketable for seed may either be cleaned and graded into an excellent seed sample. It is quite often better economy to clean up a dirty lot of home grown than to purchase seed elsewhere. There is always the danger of introducing other undesirable as well as "desirable" when the need is brought in from another source unless it is bought with care.

Too much care cannot be taken nor too much attention given when it comes to preparing seed for spring sowing.

R. A. Derick,
Central Experimental Farm,
Ottawa, Ontario.

His house of branches was replaced by a little log shanty with a home-made fireplace built of stones from the river and into it he moved before winter in the spring he returned to civilization with his season's catch of furs. After that his victory was assured, and if he had been more sociable and friendly he would have received the admiration of the settlement at Bannerman. As it was he did his trading almost silently, volunteering no explanation of his strange ways; and no man can gain the confidence of his fellow men unless he is willing to explain himself.

The year before the war, the Englishman had built a shingled bungalow, with glassed-in verandah, and barns and outbuildings. He had built-in cupboards and furnished it in such a manner that many a man living in the settlement was subject to drastic questioning by the wife of his home, who drew pointed comparisons between the house she was forced to live in and this one. Why was it that a crazy Englishman who lived alone but for his dogs, could afford such luxuries as these, while whole families were still living in congested quarters? Matters grew still more unpleasant when it was rumored that he was going to pipe the water from a lake in the mountains to his house.

The only explanation the harrassed husbands could think of, and it did not entirely satisfy, was that the man must be receiving money from home No man could do all this on his fur catches.

It was Bill Larsen, the Swede, who conceived the idea of visiting this new house, and to this and organized a fishing party one Sunday morning in the spring of the year. English River abounded in mountain trout and it was easy to get a party together to go out. They could make perfect use of a bottle and in that way get in to see the house.

The party came back late that night registering complete success. He had not only asked them to come in, but had cooked a meal for them — great chicken, canned figs for dessert, white cloth and everything.

"Did he ask you all to come again when you couldn't stay so long, or anything like that?" asked Jim Simpson, incredulously. Jim had opposed the fishing party.

"He doesn't need to ask us back when he fed us that well. We'll go all right—oh, boys!" replied Bill; "without that hash squeak for themselves—we're goin' next Sunday again. Cheb. Jim, you better come—he's tickled to death to have us. He's not quite all there—anyone can see that, he's so polite and kindly—and we might as well punch a meal ticket on him as not."

The parties continued for several weeks, growing in number, and never did the hospitality fail. Fried hash trout, home-made bread and butter, eggs, and wild fruit were plentifully supplied and eagerly consumed.

"Gee! that fellow is easy," Bill Larsen was often heard to say; "he seems pleased to do it, and never seems to mind that more and more to help him clean up or anything. Well, some people like work, and I'm not the one to try to deny their fun. He don't even know when we're laughing at him!"

The last Sunday their host was as generous as ever, but when the meal was half over, apologized for his haste in clearing the table. Usually he waited until his guests were gone, but today he was going out and if they would be so kind as to excuse him he would proceed to wash up while they were eating their dessert, which on this day was wild strawberry pie. The visitors wished at each other behind his back. Think of any human being asking leave to wash his own dishes! "Oh, sure they would excuse him providing he didn't rattle the dishes too much and disturb the speakers." This was from the barber, who was the humorist of the party.

Even at that their host politely replied that he would be most careful. He then gathered up the plates and laid them in a row on the sun porch, his visitors watching him with interest. They were in radiant mood. This fellow grew funnier all the time. What funny work was he up to now?

The Englishman opened the verandah door and called. Four collie dogs came bounding in. He motioned to them to begin operations on the plates, which they did with eagerness. When they had made a thorough job of cleaning them he gathered up the pile deliberately and dropped them in one of his many cupboards.

"They save me a lot of work," he said, more to himself than to his guests, on whom a silence had fallen; "and they polish the plates very well indeed, and the pots and pans as well."

There was an understanding on the way home that no reason would be given for discontinuing the visits.

Now, boys, said the barber that s what might be called fact He didn't tell us we had worn out our welcome just intimated it I kinda wish he had waited until we had finished that pie! Wild strawberry pie! I never thought anything could turn me from wild strawberry pie That fellow is not such a fool, after all.

"Well, I am going," said the Englishman to Jim Simpson, "I am going today My only regret is that I did not know sooner. Will you buy my horses — the whole outfit as it stands "

"What did you do with your fine house and all that furniture" asked Mr Simpson, cautiously

"Left it left it locked the door and came out. Gave one dog away — she lives What will you give me for the horses? Be quick now! He had no time to argue he was going on the train that day.

One hundred dollars for the whole thing," said one of the man

"Very well," said the Englishman I'll take it Be good to them"

He went to the boarding house for dinner, where he was the centre of curious eyes, for the story of his wild intention was known. When he had eaten a hasty meal he stood up suddenly and broke into speech

"Boys, you are wrong," he began, in going on mining coal and thinking you do not need to hear the call your country has sent out. The British Empire is threatened, her enemies are at the gates Belgium, a little country, has been violated. While you sit here, villages are burning, women are screaming—and the Germans are marching triumphantly on. Have you no pride, no manhood? . . . I know the Germans . . . they have been getting ready for years. Lord Roberts told the Empire to get ready but it was coming—but they went on like you—business as usual!"

He broke down, overcome with emotion. One or two of the men laughed, the others regarded him stolidly. Crazy Englishman! Crazier than ever!

"Well, say, looka here," began Bill Larsen, "what are you gettin' so hot up for we I'd like to know" Bill, although the proprietor of the "Grande Pacific," a hostel licensed to sell malt and spirituous liquor, and purporting a place of refreshment for man and beast, made no pretence of supplying meals even for himself, but took the meekly rake from Mrs. McMann. "What's bitin' you?' Go yourself if you want to—who's holdin' you back?—but what's the call for aimin' us because we don't want to stand up and stop bullets. My old grandad fought in the American war, and he got his fill of it, I'll say! —lost an eye and a leg, and got four dollars a month of a pension from his grateful country! It don't look like a safe proposition. How do you know who's right? Your British Empire aren't no danced right when she had the little run-in with the United States. How do you know she's right this time?"

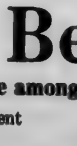
Letter Tells of Wonderful Relief After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound



Conleton, Ontario.—"After a severe operation and a three weeks' stay in a hospital I returned home so weak that I was unable to move a chair. For four months I was almost frantic with pains and suffering until I thought more than ever I could not be any help for me. I had very severe pains in my left side and suffered agony every month. One day when I was not able to get up my mother begged me to try your medicine. My husband got me a bottle of Vegetable Compound at once and I took it. I started a second bottle, and to my surprise and joy the pain in my side left me completely and I am able to do all my work without help. I am a farmer's wife, so you see I can't be idle long. In all, I have taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, five boxes of the Compound Tablets, two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Purifier, and have also used the Sanative Wash."—Mrs. L. Letourneau, Box 108, Conleton, Ontario.

Goodwill Tours To Europe

Members Of Parties Will Take Own Cars and Motor Through Europe

A friendlier feeling between Canadians, American and European motorists which, in turn, will be transmitted to a much wider circle of people on the two continents will, it is hoped, be engendered as a result of two personally conducted "goodwill" tours to Europe this summer organized by the White Star Line under the official auspices of the Montreal Motorists' League, it is stated in an official announcement by the White Star Line.

A novel feature of the tours will be that those going to Europe with these parties will take their own cars and motor through Europe and Great Britain

Wherever they go receptions will be arranged in the principal cities and it is anticipated that the Touring Club of France, and the Automobile Association of Great Britain with which the Montreal Motorists' League is affiliated, will tender official receptions to the parties and, in this way play their part in promoting goodwill between Europe and the North American continent.

Already there have been inquiries from Winnipeg, Vancouver, Toronto and several cities in the province of Quebec. Ontario and Manitoba, and with the announcement of these tours in the United States it is expected that there will be a regular string of requests from American motorists.

One of the principal ideas underlying these parties is to persuade Canadian and American motorists, who already have much in common, to travel across the ocean together and, by personal contact with motorists in Great Britain and in Europe, build up a firmer feeling of friendship between the people on the two continents.

The first party, with their own cars, will sail from Montreal on the White Star liner "Albertic" on September 6, and return from Southampton on the same steamer on October 20.

Both these parties will follow practically the same itinerary, landing at Havre and motoring thence to Rouen, through the Canadian battlefields by way of Neuve Chappelle, Amiens, Doullens, Arras, Vimy Ridge, the Somme, Lille, Tournay, Mons, Camberai, St. Quentin, Compiegne to Paris where several days will be spent, then by way of Chateau Thierry to Rheims, Verdun, Luxembourg and Treves, Cologne, Aix la Chappelle, Brussels, Antwerp, Amsterdam, The Hague, Rotterdam, and then by steamer to Harwich from where the party will make a circular tour of England and Scotland.

Children suffering from worms soon show the symptoms, and any mother can detect the presence of these parasites by the writhings and fretting of the child. The "Flu"
LEFT HER WITH A VERY WEAK HEART

Mrs. Beulah Demens, Pleasant River, N.S., writes:—"I have suffered with the 'flu' a few years ago, I was left with a very weak heart.

"I was unable to go about, and could not do my housework.

"I would get dizzy spells and would have to go and lie down.

"I could not sleep at night as the least little noise would wake me up.

"I tried different kinds of medicine, but they seemed to do me no good.

I have used five boxes and am much better; do not get these dizzy spells, and can do my own work as well as ever."

Quebec City was on hte better part of a week on the return to his native city of His Excellency Raymond Earle Bentzen, newly created Cardinal. Enthusiastic, prolonged, mental, civic, military and lay tendency of the assembly joined in welcoming this patron of the church.

Four hundred thousand motorcars from the United States will be tourists the highroads of the provinces of Quebec this year, according to the vice-president of the Royal Automobile Club of Canada, interviewed at the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec, this month. It is estimated they will spend over sixty million dollars in the province this coming summer.

Edmonton.—Sale of the Lacombe and Northwestern Railway to the Canadian Northern Railway is announced by the Provincial Premier. The C.P.R. agrees to indemnify the province against future liability on outstanding bonds of new road, bonds for $270,- 700 and, in addition, pay $1,500,000 in cash, at the same time undertaking to construct a 50-mile extension within the next three years.

Calgary. — The Province of Alberta exported goods to the value of $9,139,305 to the United States during the year 1927, according to the annual report of S. C. Mead, United States Consul for Calgary district. The total exports show an increase of $764,000 or 17 per cent. over 1926. Cattle and hogs held a conspicuous place in these exports, the former amounting to $1,216,000 and the latter to 1962,048.

Winnipeg. — Homestead entries made in the three western provinces in the calendar year 1927 totalled 6,647, as compared with 8,012 the year before, an increase in 1927 of 626. Entries by provinces — 1926 figures being in brackets — were: Manitoba 719 (942); Saskatchewan 2,819 (3,700); Alberta 2,706 (3,240); and British Columbia 113 (124). December filings totalled 626, an increase of 69 with Manitoba 66 (56); Saskatchewan 231 (219); Alberta 216 (139) and British Columbia 6 (7).

Thirteen new ocean liners, at least, of a total of 123,000 gross tons, are expected in Montreal during the coming season. Of this total Canadian Pacific vessels make up more than half, or 70,000 gross tons. These are the "Duchess of Athol" and the "Duchess of Richmond", of 20,000 gross tons each, and the five Canadian Pacific liners, the "Beaverbrae", "Beaverburn", "Beaverdale", "Beaverford", "Beaverhill" and "Beaverlodge", each of 10,000 gross tons.

Saint John.—The Harbor Improvements here were drawn up a $10,- 000,000 project of port development, to extend over a 5-year period, subject to the approval of the Board of Harbor. The general scheme includes the construction of one grain conveyor gallery at pier No. 7; a grain jetty, 1,350 feet long; a pier, 1,350 feet long and equipped with four ore-unloaders, fireproof shed, and shipping office; one grain elevator of 1,000,000 bushels capacity with grain conveyor galleries for the present at pier No. 7 and the necessary railway tracks, railways, roads, additions and water supply in connection with same.

WEDDING

LAMOUREUX—YANCH

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Lamoureux Catholic church, when Marguerite Matilda, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Yanch became the bride of Mr. Wilfred Lamoureux.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, her cousin, Miss Myrtle Lalonde being bridesmaid. Mr. T. J. Colman of Edmonton was best man.

The bride entered the church to the strains of the wedding march, played by Father Zephyrin. She looked charming in a white beaded georgette dress with wedding veil, and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. The bridesmaid was dressed in a pale green, beaded dress with picture hat to match.

Father Garnier performed the ceremony.

Those present at the wedding dinner were: Father Garnier, Miss Garnier and Father Zephyrin, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Lalonde, Mrs. John Lachappelle, son Gordon and daughter Leola, Mr. and Mrs. Luke McDonough Mr. Jimmie Trotter, Mr. and Mrs. R. Noel, Mr. Frank Yanch and family, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lamoureux and son Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Lamoureux, Mr. Cassinau, Mrs. Barett, Mr. Pete Forrest and Miss Gladys Bunham of Edmonton.

A wedding dance was given in the Memorial hall, Fort Saskatchewan, in honor of the couple. Al Forrest's orchestra was in attendance.

FARMERS ADVISED TO TEST SEED GRAIN

Warning is being issued to farmers at the present time in connection with the germinating quality of the grain which they propose to use for seed. Where grain has been exposed to the weather over winter as has happened this year in some parts of the province, it is particularly advisable to secure a germination test on this grain before it is used for seed.

A one-pound sample of grain should be sent to the Dominion Seed Laboratory, Calgary, where the test will be made free of charge for farmers. Satisfactory germination tests can also be made at home by planting two lots of 100 seeds each about one inch deep in boxes of soil or sand. The tests should be kept fairly moist and

Two rinks drafted from the ranks of the wage slaves of the Edmonton Journal skimmed down to the Fort in their Velie sedan this evening and showed the locals they are no good at curling as they are at their profession. It may be said in extenuation of the failure of the locals to shine that they had been particularly requested not to make the rinks too strong, and in order to comply with the request the editor of the p.f.l. (great family journal, stupid) was invited to curl, and that left seven, as the rhyme has it. The editor may be alright, with the accent on the way, but he cannot curl; seems

The Water Powers Of Canada

In the "forward look" which is now almost universally characteristic of the Canadian people regarding their Dominion, and which offers such a sharp contrast to the less optimistic, in fact the realistic, attitude entertained a comparatively few short years ago, the subject of power, and power development schemes, looms very large, coupled with the question of improved and cheaper means of transportation which has always battled largely in the national policies of the country.

The development of power through the generation and application of steam made the nineteenth century noteworthy, and introduced the age of machinery in the work of production as contrasted with the old methods of handwork and manual labor. The closing years of the last century saw the beginnings of the development of power through electrical energy, largely developed through the primary utilization of steam. The internal combustion gasoline and oil engines also had their beginning.

During the first quarter of the present century development of electrical energy, and of internal combustion engines, proceeded with amazing rapidity, particular attention being paid to the harnessing of water-powers throughout the world for the production of electrical energy in its cheapest form and in enormous quantities, until it is now recognized that these constitute paramount ample water-powers, and those within reasonable distance of the basic requirements in manufactures, are, and will to an ever increasing extent be, the great industrial nations of the world.

In extent, variety, and wealth of natural resources required in manufactures, and in the magnitude of its available water-powers within reasonable distance of such resources, Canada is probably the richest country in the known world, and the development of its water-powers for use, and the consequent utilization of his natural resources, is going ahead by leaps and bounds. The value of these water-powers and resources are only beginning to be fully realized by the people as a whole, and what they may be made to mean in the future of the Dominion.

Men of wealth, captains of industry, financial magnates, are alive to the importance of these great sources of potential wealth. They realize they are the foundations upon which great enterprises and an abounding prosperity can be built. As a result a scramble, a struggle, for possession and control of water-powers is in progress, and it behooves the people of Canada to give close attention and obey study to the many issues involved.

Naturally two schools of thought have arisen as to the policy which should be followed in relation to possession, development and control of water-powers, one advocating retention by the Government, whether Federal or Provincial, and development and ownership by such authority as a matter of public policy, the other strongly urging private ownership, development and control. It is argued, probably with truth, that development will be more rapid through the investment of private capital than can possibly be expected if left solely to Governments. It is further argued that, through the retention of a large measure of Government control over operations and rates, the interests of the public and the country at large can be protected.

Advocates of complete Government ownership, on the other hand, contend that these water-powers are the property of and an asset to the whole country, and should not be alienated; that these water-powers will run on forever and not be dissipated or exhausted as other resources may be; that, even granting that development might be more rapid under private ownership and greater initiative shown through the incentive of profit, eventually the Canadian people will be well advised to take the longer look into the future of their country and protect that future by retaining complete possession and direct control of those sources of industrial greatness and national wealth and prosperity.

Ontario is practically committed to the policy of public ownership; Quebec, on the other hand, has followed the policy of development through private investment. Manitoba has both public and private development schemes under way. Saskatchewan has a Power Commission studying the whole subject. Manitoba and Alberta are both striving to obtain control of certain water-powers, idle to which now rests with the Federal authorities. And looming over all is the great issue of development and control of the huge powers along the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Rivers.

This whole subject is so vitally important to the future of Canada it is well that all citizens should give earnest and careful consideration to it, and not be stampeded by private interests or by political catch-cries into either approval or condemnation of any policy now presented until it has been thoroughly thoroughly examined and demonstrated to be sound and wise, on the other hand, inimical to the country's best interests.

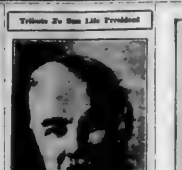
Tribute To Sun Life President



Mr. T. B. Macaulay, president of the Sun Life Assurance Co., who recently celebrated his fiftieth year of continuous service.

Extraordinary Expansion Of Sun Life Assurance

Business Has Doubled On An Average Every Five Years

The extraordinary expansion of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada during the last few years has caused its annual report to be awaited with unusual interest, not only by the policyholders of the Company, but by a large section of the general public.

Perhaps a sentimental interest attached to this expectation this year, because the President, Mr. T. B. Macaulay, in October celebrated his fiftieth year of continuous service, and it was known that the world-wide organization of the Sun Life Company had determined to specially honor its leader with an outstanding tribute in the form of increased business.

Having in view the fact that the Company's business has doubled on an average every five years since it was organized, it would appear rather difficult to smile previous records. But the annual report which the President has just presented, and which appears in this issue, must have surpassed the expectations of the most sanguine. The total amount of assurances in force with the Company now approaches the billion and a half figure, $1,487,000,000, an increase for the year of over $221,500,000. The total net income for the year exceeded $40,000,000—five times what it was ten years ago, and more than $23,000,000 in excess of the income for the previous year.

The outstanding position of the Sun Life Assurance Company in the assurance world is not confined to Canada. Such statistics as are available for 1927 indicate that the aggregate new business of all the companies operating in North America last year barely exceeds the total new business of the Company for the year. The increase in the new business of the Sun Life of Canada, on the other hand, was twenty-three per cent. Assurances in force on the policy books of the Company have doubled in four years—new business has trebled in that period.

This wonderful expansion has been paralleled by a great increase in the already proverbial strength and resources of the Company. The assets have been increased by over $56,000,000, and now reach the impressive total of over $400,000,000. The Company's assets approximate the amount of the total assurances in force only eight years ago.

Writing in miniature on threepenny pieces is the hobby of a Harrow engraver. He has just completed engraving the Lord's Prayer twelve times on one of the small coins. Canada Indebted To The Mother Country For Vast Sums Spent On Protection

No more formidable business confronts Canada than the preparation and completion of a proper cadastral survey of the Dominion on the lines of the famous Ordnance Survey of the Motherland. The extent of the undertaking can be gauged from the remark passed by President Cautley at the convention of National Surveyors in Toronto the other day, that a vast proportion of Canada remains to be explored and surveyed. Practically only one-quarter of the area of the country has been anything like properly mapped.

Even in districts where mapping is supposed to have been done, much of it is conjectural and depends merely on discounted journeys, trappers' and trappers' reports, information obtained from natives, and the like. When the time taken to map the comparatively limited area of the British Isles is considered, some idea can be obtained of the magnitude of the job ahead of Canada, even with all the resources at command of modern discovery and invention. How should the wonderful resources that, in all probability, lie hidden in them unknown and unexplored regions be forgotten.

President Cautley's statement has suggested another train of thought to the Kingston Whig-Standard and prompts it to ask: How much do Canadians, or some of them, remember of the part that the Motherland had in obtaining this great Canada of ours? Do we lose sight of this in the prosperity of the present? We remember, the Kingston paper says, that some few years ago this question cropped up in the Dominion House, and our present writer went so far as to say, "I say this claim of our honorable friend opposite that we are greatly indebted to Great Britain is a fallacy which cannot be supported by fact. As a Canadian, I wish to say that in a material sense we are not indebted to Great Britain for anything, and in no sense is Canada indebted to her for more than goodwill and filial affection."

The next speaker, however, was better informed and said: "We have always had the protection of the greatest sea power on the earth. Between 1853 and 1902 Great Britain spent $35,000,000 on military expenditure in this country. Go back 100 years and you will find that she spent $170,000,000 in addition, making a total of $205,000,000 in 120 years. Then she spent $35,000,000 in the citadel and public works in the city of Quebec, and $61,000,000 on our canals. Again she spent $95,000,000 on all kinds of works in all parts of this country. And I want you to remember that I am not taking into consideration the war of 1775, or the public works in the Maritime provinces were spent in 1778, at Montreal, Toronto, Halifax, St. John, Kingston, St. Lawrence and many other places. I am not taking into consideration the war of 1812, which lasted, so far as the British taxpayer is concerned, from 1811 to 1815, and I could go on as to what she expended on roads and bridges in this country. The expenditure of the Treasury of Great Britain on her military and public works in this country from 1763 to 1867 was $205,000,000.

Therefore, when I hear the honorable member say that we do not owe Great Britain anything, I cannot be allowed to let one vestige of a statement so utterly unfounded on facts."

Perhaps the Motherland is entitled to some little praise in "This Great Canada of Ours."

British Comment On Budget

"When an Englishman reads the Canadian budget which provides for a reduction in taxation of nearly $4,000,000 including a ten per cent. cut in the income tax, he smiles, as one says, on the wrong side of his face," comments The Winnipeg Manitoban. "Not that he grudges Canadians their good fortune, though he may perhaps envy their Finance Minister, but because he sees here a principle practiced in every country but his own. The principle is simply that public expenditure is to be kept within the strictest limits the country's needs allow."

Turnips For Beef Cattle

More Suitable For Fattening Purposes Than Mangles

When roots are fed to beef cattle turnips should be used as, according to a new Dominion Experimental Farms bulletin on "Growing and Feeding Field Roots," they are more suitable for fattening purposes than mangels. The latter are better suited for milk production. Results of tests at different experimental stations show that turnips have a high value when fed to beef cattle, especially where no other succulent food, such as silage, is available. When pulped and mixed with cut or chaffed straw or poor quality hay they very much improve the palatability and quality of these coarse roughages. The bulletin, which gives a great deal of information on the cultivation of roots, may be obtained from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Death Haig's Visit To Jasper

Officially Opened Golf Course Two Years Ago

The news of Earl Haig's death, which was heard with sorrow throughout the British Empire, recalls to Canadians the visit the famous soldier paid to Canada two years ago. And this brings to mind the fact that it was Earl Haig who, on July 17, 1926, officially opened the Jasper Park golf course. Accompanied by Lady Haig, Brigadier-General J. A. Hair, Brigadier-General A. F. Home, Mr Walter Prink, General Manager, Canadian National Railways' Hotels, Mr Stanley Thompson, the architect who laid out the course, and Col. Maynard Rogers, who was then superintendent of Jasper National Park, the Field Marshal inspected a group of mountain guides and park rangers and the crew manning the dining car of his train and then strolled on to the course and drove off the first ball.

The inspection, which took place on the road leading into Jasper Park Lodge, was unique in that most of the rangers and guides had ridden from 50 to 100 miles to meet the Field Marshal, and they were picturesque in the colorful frontier costumes They were headed by Major Fred Brewster, M.C. The great soldier addressed the men, who were all veterans, and told them how he was much touched that they considered it worth while to ride so far to meet him. He was presented with a pair of buffalo-hair chaps, and Lady Haig received a beautiful pair of Indian worked buckskin gauntlets.

Earl Haig, as might be expected since he was at one time President of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, proved himself an enthusiastic golf player. His drives were long and always straight down the fairway and his work on the greens steady, with the result that he and Mr. Thompson, partner, were three up against Brigadier-Generals Hair and Home. At the conclusion of the game, the Field Marshal expressed to Mr. Thompson his surprise at the manner in which the course had been hewed out of the mountainside and put in good shape in such a short time. He was delighted with the beauty of the mountain surroundings and he gave it as his opinion that the Jasper course would rank among the best in the world.

Many Factors Responsible For High Level Of Prosperity Enjoyed By Canada To-Day

Seldom has Canada's business outlook shown such a volte-face as has occurred in the last few years. Six years ago the Dominion struggled in the depths of depression. Today prosperity is at a high level, and the year 1927 has been authoritatively labelled as "the most expansive year in business enterprise that this country has ever known."

Many factors have had a hand in this about-turn—the improvement of world conditions; the series of good crop years; the re-adjustment of the capacity shown by the Canadian people in the face of adversity.

But, back of all these, the Dominion's business recovery has had the inestimable benefit of one special advantage. The Canadian people have had in the fortunate position of possessing a country with great undeveloped resources. They have not, in the main degree as the people of older countries, been compelled to wait and rely upon the revival of old-established industry and trade, but have been able to turn to undeveloped resources and to speed up the natural process of prosperity by the creation of new industries, new production and new trade.

Month has been said of the extent of Canada's resources but it has probably been their variety, as distinct from their sheer extent, that has stood the country in greatest stead. How development has been versatile and widely diffused, not confined in one or two lines. And Canadian business has enjoyed a great, consistive stream of fresh strength drawn from many different sources—from growth in forest industry; in water-power development, in mining, and in tourist trade which is largely attributable to the Dominion's scenic and other recreational resources.

While the comparative figures, for 1922 and 1927, of mining output, installed water-power, newsprint production and tourist revenue cover only four fields, they serve at least to suggest what a general and versatile impetus Canadian business has derived in the last few years from the extension of natural resources development.

Four Million Fish Eggs To Stock Lakes Of Western Canada

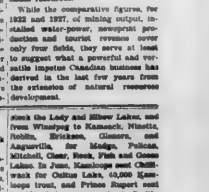
Last year, between June and September, the fish culture branch of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, shipped, over Canadian National Railway lines, a total of nearly four million fish fry or eggs. The exact figure was 3,857,000. The greatest number went from Fort Qu'Appelle to Biggar, Sask., where the Lizard and Wilson Lakes were stocked with pickerel, nearly 1,000,000 of them. The month of June was the heaviest and the species most commonly distributed was pickerel. In addition to those which went to Biggar, pickerel was sent from Fort Qu'Appelle to Ryan, to Nesk the Lady and Silver Lakes, one from Winnipeg to Kamsack, Nanette, Robilla, Erickson, Glenora, and Agassville, for Medige, Pelican, Mitchell, Clear, Nesk, Fish and Cooes Lakes. In June, Kamloops sent Chilliwack for Cultus Lake, 40,000 Kamloops trout, and Prince Rupert sent 100,000 of the same species to Smithers for Lake Kathlyn. Rainbow trout went from Calgary to Penna, for distribution in the waters of Sundance, Hornback, Trout, Wolf and Elbow Lakes. Fort Qu'Appelle sent into the tributaries of salmon trout to North Kettleford, a total of more than 300,000 eggs. Brown trout and cut throat trout were shipped to Jasper, Milner Landing and Cotwood, from Calgary and Cowichan Lake. In July the only shipment of trout was 15,000 rainbow trout, from Calgary to Peers for Cascot Creek. August was given over entirely to perch and with one exception (Regina), the eggs were sent from Fort u'Appelle. The odd thing was that while some of the Qu'Appelle shipments went to Regina, the one Regina shipment was for Fort Qu' Appelle. Most of the perch were for Saskatchewan lakes. In September, fort the Appelle sent 3,125 perch fry to Saskatoon and Fora Lakes. One only shipment in that month.

Beautifying of Station Gardens

Buried under the white shroud of winter at its depth, the station grounds, right-of-way and surroundings of Canadian Pacific Railway lines give no promise at this time of year of the beauty of color, perfume and flower adornment that will feature them in a few months.

The horticultural department of the railroad, will during the next few weeks, distribute to its agents, section foremen and others for planting, several thousand seeds. All selected points special prizes will be paid for growth under plans now governing an earlier display. Additions are to be made this spring as usual, to the stock of trees, shrubs and perennial plants which form the permanent beds of C.P.R. gardens.

In the territory north of Lake Superior, where a particularly hardy plant is desirable, the bulk of the display will be made by pansies. By far the greater part of the garden work is done in the spare time of the station agents, from the native fer love of gardening, pride in their surroundings and in competition for the numerous prizes offered for display. Approximately 1,300 gardens are now entered.



After having given more than 40 years of her life to agriculture, a French woman was awarded the Cross of the Legion.

ORIGIN OF TERM "ORANGE PEKOE"

Thousands of people every day[illegible] of and ask for "Orange Pekoe" tea, yet rarely know what this term means. Mr. Spalding Black, of the Salada Tea Co., gives the following information on the subject.

"At one time China produced practically all the tea used in the world. There the tip leaves of the tea bush looked silvery in color and when cured were very in shape These tip leaves were called by the Chinese 'Ipak-ho' (meaning silver hair). In the latter part of the nineteenth century, when tea growing had spread enormously to Ceylon and India, tea growers discovered that the color of the tip leaves on the Ceylon and Indian tea bushes was changed by the climate in a slightly more orange shade, so the Ceylon and Indian tip leaves came to be called "Orange Pak-ho." This was soon Anglicized to the term we now have—"Orange Pekoe," which should be pronounced "Peek-o."

The ordinary buyer of tea, when asking for "Orange Pekoe" expects to receive a Ceylon or Indian black Tea. However, there are no many qualities of "Orange Pekoe" offered to the public, and frequently at bargain prices, that a word of warning is necessary.

Everyone is familiar with the merchant who has perishable fruit and who sells for very low prices the last of the shipment which has lost its freshness, which the merchant wants to be rid of to avoid loss. The same thing applies to tea, which also is very perishable if exposed to the air. When you see cheap tea, it is either very poor quality or else it has lost its freshness and most of its strength, whether this tea is called "Orange Pekoe" or not.

In this age of well-edited newspapers, radios, automobiles and fast trains, accurate knowledge on a great host of subjects is transmitted rapidly. The advance of science has nowhere been more valuable to mankind, except perhaps in preventive medicine, than in the means of protecting the purity and goodness of food stuffs.

Today, in accord with enlightened knowledge, the best tea is always sold in sealed air-tight packages, preserving it from deterioration in flavor and contamination from any outside source Canadian tea-drinkers are today getting Salada teas purer tea than ever before. The seas of well-blended and carefully packed package teas are constantly increasing as a result of the purity and superiority of these teas being advertised to the public."

Air Record Broken

All commercial air speed records between London and Paris were broken recently when an Imperial Airways liner covered the 250-mile flight into the French capital in 80 minutes. This is an average under the fastest flight previously made in 1921.

WHY TORTURE THE LITTLE ONES

Mothers, do you think it fair to torture your little ones by forcing them to take ill-tasting nasty when they need a laxative? Don't you find that the child's dread of these medicines often do more harm than good?

Baby's Own Tablets are the modern substitute for these nauseous doses. They are fruity candy the child requires and are so pleasant to take that they are as easy to administer as a glass of water. They are the perfect remedy for all the minor ailments of little ones, being absolutely guaranteed free from injurious drugs.

Baby's Own Tablets accomplish all that castor oil and other old fashioned remedies can do in a far more pleasant way as they do not leave the child exhausted from the struggle against taking medicine. They relieve bowel troubles, indigestion, colds and constipation break up colds and simple fevers and promote healthful, refreshing sleep. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

Life's greatest illness is that money brings contentment and fidelity. Nothing of the kind It brings responsibilities and worries.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MARCH 4

JESUS AND THE TWELVE

Golden Text: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation." Mark 16:15.

Lesson Mark 1:16-20; 2:13-14; 3:7-19, 6:7-13, 30

Devotional Reading: Romans 12:1-8.

Explanations and Comments

I. The Choice Of the Twelve, 3:13, 14. One day Jesus went up the mountain to pray; he continued there all night in prayer. Luke tells us. Then as companions for Himself and as messengers to the people he chose from among all His followers a little company of twelve men. The number is significant and symbolical, referring alike to the tribes of Israel and to the twelve months of the year. And by that choice of twelve Christ did two things. (1) He made definite claim to be Messiah. Men who were known as a company were the twelve chosen by Jesus. (2) He created that which was the fundamental and all essential Missionary. It meant that he saw the realization of unseen purposes. And (2) it provided the disciples themselves with a centre of unity in devotion and support of each. It carried their minds back to the twelve tribes." J. D. Jones.

They were ordinary men, these twelve, men from the ordinary ranks of life. Each of them was independent. He was a fisherman, a tax collector, a doctor, and like every other man of his station, he had his faults and failings. But Jesus took ordinary men and made of them apostles, missionaries, martyrs.

Jesus found people ordinary men and discovered extraordinary men in them. He found men who were selfish. He found men who were superstitious and simple lovers of the present future. He judged them as they sold by making decisions by men and He said, Follow Me. He called men there, and then He gave them something to do. He knew that only when faith and moral life actually do it can they become real. He made them leaders of the Kingdom and they grew in stature even as they announced its coming. Lyna H. Hough

ANSWERS GIVEN TO QUESTIONS ON IMMIGRATION

Ottawa.—A number of questions dealing with immigration were answered in the House of Commons, their range extending from the admission of Asiatics to the cost of transportation from Europe to Canada

It is shown that from 1921 to 1927 there were 767,408 immigrants arrived in Canada from Great Britain the continent of Europe and the United States Of these 361,824 came from the United Kingdom 249,524 from the continent, and 176,05.3 from south of the international boundary The cost to the country for bringing in those immigrants was $7,294 906 of which over 50 per cent was spent in connection with British immigration.

The figures disclose that the banner year in immigration from the Old Country was that which began on March 31, 1921 when 74,262 newcomers came to Canada In the next year, ended March, 1923, the number of persons coming into this country from European continental parts was 71,873, a figure that exceeded by 370 the combined totals of British and American immigrants during that period.

Since 1923, the year in which the system of assisted passage was adopted, to December 31, 1927, there were 63,367 new settlers brought in at a cost of $3,353,593

The answers stated that provision was made under the Canadian Farm Loan Act of 1927 for the assistance desirous of settling on the vacant lands of the country

In the year 1877 there were 94 Chinese admitted to Canada under permit, and of these 40 entered as actors and actresses; four were interpreters and three were teachers Thirty-five of the 94 had already left the country.

In the same year 493 Japanese entered Canada, distributed in 116 adult males, 277 adult females, and 96 children. The tonning class accounted for 154 of both sexes, while farmers totalled 118 both sexes.

China Hopes For Improvement

People Looking For Better Times During This Year

Canton.—Thankful that the "year of the rabbit" had come to behind them, the people of China today are hoping for better times under the fiery sign of the reptile dragon now presiding over the current year.

The "year of the rabbit" ended in the midst of crippled domestic trade, curtailed shipments abroad and in general a dreary commercial outlook and Canton and South China ushered in the New Year hopeful but with grave commercial misgivings.

The new lunar year means much to China and her more than four hundred millions of persons. In addition to being practically her only holiday of the year, it is the chief commercial setting day when all accounts of the dying year are "reckoned up and paid."

Wins Quebec Dog Derby

Emile St. Goddard Beats Nearest Competitor By Two Minutes

Quebec.—Emile St. Goddard, musher of The Pas, Man., won the annual international dog derby here by defeating Lionel Seppala, in the third day's beat by 2 minutes and 33 seconds.

St. Goddard's time for the 41-mile run was 3:30:07, while Seppala was second in 3:41:40, and Earl Brydges, The Pas, Man., third in 3:42.50.

The total time for the races for the three days was: 1, St. Goddard, 11:14:37; 2, Seppala, 11:17:30; 3, Brydges, 11:26:23.

Lindbergh Homestead As Memorial

Washington.—A bill to authorize the purchase of the Lindbergh homestead at Little Falls, Minn., as a suitable memorial to the achievements of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, through the sale of medals, has been introduced by Senator Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota. A similar measure has been introduced in the house.

C.P.R Traffic Chief Dead

C. P. R. Under Head Here With Rail way For 41 Years

Montreal C. B. R. Cooper, general passenger traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, died suddenly at his residence in Westmount He was 71 years of age

Mr. Cooper was born at Chrysler's farm, Chippewa, Ont., Dec. 28, 1857. He joined the C.P.R. as No. 1 pass ne chief ticket clerk in the passenger department at Montreal

His rise to executive office was rapid, culminating in his appointment as general passenger traffic manager of the company on Sept. 1, 1922, with jurisdiction over passenger and freight matters covering rail and steam ships on the Atlantic and Pacific and also gave him charge of the entire hotel chain of the company

Mr Cooper originally intended to go in for a musical career but making a force of circumstances entered railroading instead

He joined the Canadian Pacific Railway when the transcontinental artery was inaugurated and was therefore contemporary with the extension of that railway across the continent He had seen it grow to a world-wide organization since beginning through the Dominion and encircling the globe.

World Cataclysm Predicted

Date Of Cosmic Judgment Set At May 19 This Year

Ottawa. If the symbolism of the great pyramid of Egypt are reliable they foreshadow a great cataclysm to commence at midnight of May 19 this year, according to T. B. Hanson, Toronto, organizing secretary for the British Israel Federation of Canada.

Addressing a gathering of Ottawans, Mr. Hanscome made it clear that he was uncertain just what form the cataclysm would take, "but if the prophecies of the Bible were indeed the true word of God, and current history was a guide" then he was afraid it was the "war to the end."

New Jail For Manitoba

Will Be Located Where Farming Operations May Be Carried On

Winnipeg. Manitoba is to have a new provincial jail and prisoners who are sent to it will have to work at farming operations, according to an announcement made by Hon. W. J. Major, Attorney-General, in the Legislature.

The site of the new institution to cost $300,000, has not been selected yet, but the Attorney-General stated that it would be located at a place where farming operations could be carried on in combination with the ordinary prison routine.

Wireless Invention For Planes

Illinois Engineer Has Secured Patents For Canadian Turbine Meter

Chicago—Assured that three nations including Canada will grant him patents to his transcontinental aeroplane motor, H. E. Lavlery, engineer of Libertyville, Ill., is going forward with plans to test his invention on a trans-Atlantic flight. France and the United States already have recognized the patent.

Mr. Lavlery said his engine will have a third greater cruising radius for the amount of fuel used than any existing aeroplane engine.

Ready To Sail Earlier

Canadian Destroyers May Be Finished Before March 20

Ottawa.—The Canadian destroyers Vancouver and Champlain, which are being recondemned at Portsmouth for service in Canadian waters, will probably be ready to sail earlier than March 20 as was originally planned.

This was declared by officials of the department of national defence The destroyers, formerly the Torbay and the Torrender are replacing the obsolete Patricia on the Pacific coast and the Patriot, Halifax

Federal Aid Cancelled

Contributions To Unemployment Relief In Provinces Was War-Time

Ottawa. Withdrawal of Federal contributions to the provinces for unemployment relief is announced in a letter from Premier King to Premier Hawkey of Manitoba, dated February 29

The Prime Minister in part says that the policy of the government as set out at the Dominion-Provincial conference was "that such assistance as had been given from the Federal treasury had justification as a wartime measure to meet conditions arising out of the war and the re-establishment of returned men in civil life."

Mr. King continues

It was stated at the conference that the justification for Federal assistance in the matter of unemployment on this ground no longer exists In our opinion other circumstances have not arisen which at the present time justify contributions from the Federal treasury to either the provinces or to municipalities as an assistance in dealing with the problem of unemployment."

The letter was in answer to inquiries from the Manitoba government as to what aid could be expected this year

London Chimes Travel Nearly Around World

Broadcast In Australia Are Heard in Buffalo, N.Y.

Buffalo, N.Y.—Chimes of Big Ben in London, rebroadcast by Station 2-BY in Sydney, Australia, went on the air over a radio station here

The evening programme of the Australian station was broadcast by the local stations. After the usual musical programme, the Sydney station picked up the London broadcast and in what is believed to be the first instance of its kind in the history of radio, chimes in London were heard in Buffalo, after travelling nearly around the world. At one point in the broadcast the Sydney announcer called "Hello, America," and sent greetings from Australia to the people of Western New York.

Some difficulty was had with heavy atmospheric conditions, but after preliminary tests, signals were picked up very clearly

In Paper Exports

Ottawa.—Canada's total export of newsprint for the 12 months ending January 31, was $124,168,000, as compared with $115,013,124 for the corresponding previous 12 months The returns were made public by the Dominion bureau of statistics. The total exports of paper and manufactures of paper were $130,520,729 for the last 12 months, and $122,233,320 for the year before

CONDITIONS MORE FAVORABLE IN LIVESTOCK TRADE

Vancouver.—Conditions now in all branches of the livestock industry are more favorable than at any time in the last seven years, declared R. A. Wright, president of the Western Canada Livestock Union, at the opening session here, of the fifteenth annual convention of the organization. More than 100 delegates from the western provinces were in attendance at the three-day convention. All branches of the industry were represented, as well as the Dominion and Provincial Governments

It would appear as though our farmers and ranchers were in for a considerable period of short receipts and better prices," declared Mr. Wright. "Livestock prices compare more favorably with the purchasing power of non-agricultural products than at any time since 1920, which means the purchasing power of livestock during 1927 has improved almost its pre-war relation to other industries."

Referring to a ten million dollars merger of packing interests last year, the president urged the necessity of co-operation of producers to meet the competition of collective buying by selling collectively. During his term as head of the union, Mr. Wright said, he has become more and more convinced of the necessity of the organization to the livestock industry and it has been responsible for provincial and federal authorities as the main object of livestock interests

Established New Air Records

British Aviator Reaches Australia From England In Fifteen Days

Port Darwin, Australia, Feb 22, is acclaimed in London as having performed one of the most remarkable feats of flying skill and endurance that has yet been accomplished

Claims are made that the 15-day flight established five new records, being the fastest flight between England and Australia; the longest flight without stop; the longest non-stop flight in any kind of an aeroplane; the fastest journey between England and India, and the first non-stop flight between London and Port Darwin.

It developed that Hinkler was poorer by about $10,000 than he would have been if he had completed arrangements for a policy with Lloyds which he previously was stated to have taken out. Underwriters said that Hinkler had arranged for a policy of about £2,000 against reaching Australia within 16 days, but for some reason left without completing the negotiations

The Daily Mail said that the real object of Bert Hinkler's flight to Australia was to test a new undercarriage This is the British flier invented himself and to it he attributed his success in his present flight.

The plane he uses is fitted with folding wings and an undercarriage which swings back when the wings are folded, enabling the flier to house the machine in a garage and making it easy for one man to handle.

Hinkler sent a message to London saying he never had the least assistance in nursing the machine since he started

Auto Racer Near Death

Had Miraculous Escape In Attempt To Set New Speed Record

Daytona Beach, Fla.—Frank Lockhart, internationally famous race driver of Indianapolis, narrowly escaped instant death when he lost control of his powerful Stutz Blackhawk Special during an attempt to set a new world's automobile speed record and hurtled with it into the surf while travelling at 225 miles an hour. A superficial examination revealed no obviously serious hurts.

The 25-year-old racer suffered a severe shock but otherwise was not seriously hurt. This was the pronouncement of physicians at the hospital to which he was taken.

A complete examination, the doctors said, showed no broken bones, no internal injuries, and that aside from a few lacerations on his face, Lockhart was suffering principally from shock.

to lack the ability to put the rocks where they will be of some use. There is even a suspicion in some quarters that he deliberately favored the members of his fraternity to the exclusion of his fellow-townsmen, but we scarcely think he has sunk so low as that. But you never can say! This is getting too personal.

The Journal boys gained the advantage very early and maintained it. Skip Macdonald put up unstrong opposition but little quirks of ill luck would interfere with his efforts. Skipper Thoms, carrying a deadhead, didn't stand a chance, and though his prayers were frequent and loud they failed to revive the brilliancy of his previous crumbled performance with which to work wonders.

So the Journal won out with both rinks, 13—10 and 10—5, but as they have promised a return game, there is still a chance for the Fort to be featured in the headlines of the Edmonton Journal.

After the game adjournalment was made to the Royal cafe, situated on the Fort's Broadway, (have you noticed the profusion of electric signs, by the way) and having sampled the toothpicks and water, the visitors returned to duty.

success whenever possible. They do not realize that the local paper is just as much a part of the community as the schools, churches or anything else. The newspaper is different from any other business, it is a community affair. It exists to serve the people and not any selfish object. You may not like the editor and the editor may not love you any too well — but the paper he is responsible for does just as much for you as the services rendered others. There is nothing personal with it; it is here for a purpose and that purpose is to do what good it can in every way it can and the greater the support of those it undertakes to serve, the better the service can render. It takes the people to make a good newspaper and without the help of the people no one can run a successful newspaper. A business loses in money, any kind of business, even the churches and the papers are no exception and for the reason they must have the financial support of the business interests as well as the good will. For newspaper publishers make more than a comfortable living and scarcely one is reported wealthy from money made in the publishing business. They deserve to be trusted and to be understood by the people—it is the editor and not the plant that makes a newspaper useful in a community, though a liberal patronage is necessary if the paper is to be a credit to the town. Keeping Physically Fit in Mid-Ocean

A gymnasium on board an ocean liner is no longer a novelty. The floating palaces of today which ply between the mighty centres between Canada and the Orient and Canada and Europe have gone one better than the best hotels. There are hotels in this country that main-tain their guests in luxury in private swimming-pools; but how many of them can offer the luxury man or woman the use of a gymnasium?

"How to keep fit at sea!" Board one of the famous "White Empresses", bound for the Orient from Vancouver, or cross from Quebec to Southampton by an "Empress of the Atlantic". These luxurious gymnasiums are so heard, and you will have no reason to fear the consequences of a period of enforced inaction. On the Pacific the "Empress of Canada", "Empress of Asia" and "Empress of Russia", have gymnasiums which are in all respects like those of the three Atlantic Empresses. Spacious rooms, with excellent ventilation, and fitted with the latest equipment for almost every phase of athletic exercise. In addition, the Empress of Canada and the Empress of Australia have swimming pools, which are in the first rank of those to be found on board sea-going ships.

The apparatus with which the gymnasiums of the ships of the Canadian Pacific fleet are fitted is varied and diverting. The "horse" and the "camel" are perhaps the most popular among the machines. When travelling on the "Empress of Australia" and the "Empress of Scotland" to and from Canada, the summer the Prince of Wales rode many imaginary miles on the comfortable back of the "horse" and also on the "camel's" hump. These beasts are electrically controlled, and when the current is switched on the "horse" is frequently saddled and has stopped and stirrups, proceeds to emulate the movement of a horse in motion, and gives the rider a real and pleasant sensation of the back exercise. The speed can be increased from a walk to a trot, from a trot to a canter, and from a canter to a gallop; but the "horse" is always a gentle beast and never throws his rider.

The "camel" machine is as popular as the "horse". The "camel" functions in a similar manner to the horse, but performs the rolling motion peculiar to the "ships of the Sahara". The "camel" usually works overtime when the Round the World and Mediterranean Cruise Empresses are nearing Egypt, the ladies especially being anxious to accustom themselves to riding on the hump of a camel.

There are bicycle machines in the gymnasium of the Empresses. These are fitted with dials which record distances travelled up to 500 metres. Bicycles are placed side by side, which offers the possibilities of racing competitions.

Rowing machines, pulley-machines, which test the strength and develop the muscle, are amongst the apparatus with which the gymnasiums are equipped, and boxing-gloves, medicine-balls, punch-balls, foils, single-sticks, and indian clubs, provide boxers, fencers, and indoor-club artists amongst the passengers with every opportunity of indulging in their favorite pastimes.

The gymnasiums themselves are spacious rooms, well ventilated, and fitted with electric fans which help to keep the air always fresh. During certain hours the rooms are reserved for the exclusive use of the lady passengers.

A physical instructor is on duty in the gymnasiums during the regular hours. He instructs passengers in the use of the machines, and during the longer voyages and winter cruises made by the Empresses, classes for physical exercises are frequently held.

300,000 in London County Have Ceilings At Street Level

A recent census in one London borough alone reveals the existence of 7,000 basement rooms, of which 1,500 have ceilings at street level and are death-traps, therefore, if floods come. It is estimated that there are 250,000 basement rooms in the County of London.

Of course, not all are used as sleeping apartments, but the majority are habitations for day use and are let to people who cannot get fixed other homes. One can scarcely call this condition of things "shameful." It is an unavoidable legacy of the war, and neighbourhood authorities, in sheer mercy, are compelled to turn a blind eye to the low until arrears of building-plan regulations of workmen's cottages have been wiped out. They cannot turn the people into the street.

The Englishman stretched out his arms dramatically. His voice quivered like a violin string. "The British Empire is my country," he said. "I was born beneath the Union Jack, and no one in my people for generations back. I love it. The British Empire is in trouble and has called. I do not resent, I go. It's like your game of golf or calling would you call it quits over if your partner's ankle? If you were your partner and hacked by a bully would you hand back to see first if she had hurt to blame in any way? would you? My mother couldn't be wrong got to me. That's what I mean."

Helmi was coming in from the kitchen with the dessert on her tray. She paused, arrested by the strange voice speaking with such terrific earnestness.

Bill Larsen had not stopped eating. Empires might rise or fall, but Bill believed in getting his "vittles" while they were here. "Speak me," he said, "I can't my as I feel that stay toward any country. It's a case of show me —I'm from Missouri, first, last and all the time."

Helmi watched the Englishman's face. He was staring helplessly at the complacent big giant before him, who serenely buttered a slice of bread on his bronad palm as he spoke.

"I said, I would not resent to be lay limp and bleeding, his eyes closed, one arm hanging lifeless.

"He'll never make a soldier if he folds up like that with one knock," said Mrs. McMann scornfully.

"Say Bill bite too hard," said Helmi, bathing the pallid face. "Mr. English only hit a little slap."

The men had gone back to the table, helping themselves from the blue coffee pot on the stove outside. They were satisfied that the Englishman's hurt not seriously hurt. Fights were too common to attract very much attention, particularly at meal-time.

"Well, here's a pretty how-do-you-do, I'll say," said Mrs. McMann, as she began to carry out the dishes. "Let the police hear of this and it gives the house a bad name. And who's to look after the fellow now, suppose? Bill has knocked him into next! I guess maybe he didn't have far to go, but that won't make it easier for Bill."

Bill had come back to the scene of his triumph and now stood leaning against the kitchen door, smoking a tranquil pipe. "Mrs?" he queried. "Don't worry about me—I always bury my dead!" Bill laughed a little nervously, not feeling quite so unconcerned as he appeared. The face of the Englishman was so corpse-like.

"Well, he can't stay here," said Mrs. McMann, decidedly; "I am providin' meals and beds, but only for well people. This is no 'capital.'"

"He can come to my house," said Helmi. "he is a brave man, ready to fight for Canada, and I will take care of him and be glad to do it. He is not a coward, like Big Bill Larsen, who hits like a kicking mule."

"You church that gab, Helmy," said Mrs. McMann severely; "it ain't your place to interfere in gentlemen's politics, anyway."

Big Bill regarded Helmi with an angry eye. "Turning against your own country, eh, Helmi," he said in hot tone. Then turned me down for Jack Dunn, that duke! Take long to get tired of you and quit and now I see you're tickled to get your own country.

"Canada is my country," Helmi replied with flashing eyes, and I would fight for it if I could. I wouldn't hang back like a big coward!

Artists Warner was not able to leave on the 10:30 train next day during which time he was carefully nursed by Helmi and old Mrs. the night watchman.

Mrs. McMann had caused the interior of its modest parlor with her boarders. "Helmi is a queer girl, but she's goin' to be married to a man like that Dunn takin' a stranger man into her home when her own man is away. I told her—I've warned her all along, but you think she'd listen? Her and Old Sim are hand in glove, and no one can tell them anything. She has says ..." had an attack of acute rheumatism so bad that I could not walk a hundred yards without so much suffering that I would feel faint. I could not do the least work, and my nervousness caused great pain. I was under the care of a doctor but got no relief. Seeing Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advertised in a newspaper I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. By the time I had used three boxes, there was no doubt they were helping me. I took altogether about a dozen boxes when I was entirely relieved of the trouble. Able to walk four miles to my work, chop wood all day, and then work home again. No anyone suffering from rheumatism I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Trail Riding In the Rockies

There is no place in the Canadian Rockies where trail riding is more enjoyable than in Waterton Lakes National Park, in southern Alberta. Over 100 miles of trails, broad, well-graded and so safe that not even the most nervous may feel alarm, are open to the visitor. Nearly a score of camps can be arranged from the townsite of Waterton Park.

One of the most effective vermifuges on the market is Miller's Worm Powders. They will not only clear the stomach and bowels of worms, but will prove a very serviceable tonic for children by regulating the infantile systems and maintaining it in a healthy condition. There is nothing like a proprietary combination that will injure the most delicate stomach when directions are followed, and they can be given to children in the full assurance that they will utterly destroy all worms.

Shipbuilding In Canada

A total of 295 ships were built in Canada during 1926, according to a report of the Department of Marine and Fisheries. These vessels had an aggregate gross tonnage of 48,255 and a net tonnage of 27,806. British Columbia led in the shipbuilding with 253 vessels to her credit

Why is Red Rose Tea so fresh and flavory? The answer is that it is a blend of the choicest, juiciest leaves, picked when only ten days old—and sold by your grocer in clean, bright aluminums. No tea can be expected to retain its richness and strength unless packed in this modern metal container—the only package worthy of Red Rose quality.

A Blessing to People of Advanced Years

Gin Pills relieve sufferers from kidney and bladder trouble

"I wonder if you really know what a blessing Gin Pills are to people of advanced years.

"I am 72 years of age, and suffered for a considerable time from kidney and bladder trouble. My rest was broken through having to get up in the night time and four times. Later I suffered with pains in the kidneys, and my son, who had used Gin Pills for pains in the back and kidneys, bought me a box. Before I had finished it I was relieved of the pain, in fact, trouble and had to get up less frequently. At my age I am naturally subject to be troublesome, but from troubles of this kind, but if Gin Pills will give others the relief they have given me, they will be a blessing indeed."

(Name on request.)

Prompt and lasting relief has been found in Gin Pills by thousands of people of advanced years who have had kidney or bladder trouble. If even slightly troubled in this way, get a box today at your druggist's—50c. National Drug & Chemical Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto, Canada. 119

ECZEMA ITCHED AND BURNED

On Arms and Legs Six Years. Cuticura Heals.

"When I was a small boy eczema broke out on my arms and legs in small pimples. As I grew older the eczema became wet and turned very red, and my clothing aggravated it. It itched and burned so that many a night I could not sleep. The trouble continued for six years.

"A friend advised Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I sent for a free sample. I found great relief after using it so purchased a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment which healed me." (Signed) Louis W. Flens, 7130 Jasper Ave., Edmonton, Alta.

RHEUMATIC PEOPLE CAN OBTAIN RELIEF

By Enriching Their Blood With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Rheumatism is a disorder of the blood. It attacks people when the blood is thin and impure, thus setting up inflammation of the muscles and joints. Wet or cold weather also causes the pains of rheumatism, but is not the cause. The cause is in the blood. Hot applications or rubbing with liniments may ease the pain, but do not reach the cause and the pains are soon back again. To get rid of this painful ailment you must treat it through the blood and for this purpose there is no medicine like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which from first dose to last actually make new, rich blood, thus driving the rheumatic poisons from the system. Mr. Henry Lavoie, Lac-a-la-Tortue, Que., tells what these pills did for him. He says: "I had an attack of acute rheumatism so bad that I could not walk a hundred yards without so much suffering that I would feel faint. I could not do the least work, and my nervousness caused great pain. I was under the care of a doctor but got no relief. Seeing Pink Pills advertised in a newspaper I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. By the time I had used three boxes, there was no doubt they were helping me. I took altogether about a dozen boxes when I was entirely relieved of the trouble. Able to walk four miles to my work, chop wood all day, and then work home again. To anyone suffering from rheumatism I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The BABY

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria: Its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhoea or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: It is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all deleterious drugs, but no child of any writer's is going to test them! Possess the bliss on rare and feeling of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

AN APPRECIATION

To editor: was agreeably surprised on Monday to receive a present from the "women of the Presbyterian church" for kindness shown. Would you believe it! Why, we have not served them a tenth of what we have some other persons and organizations and not even heard a thank you for it. Not that we are looking for it; if we get all our rewards now we have nothing to look forward to in the hereafter. It was nevertheless a refreshing and encouraging experience and we are grateful. Ladies, we thank you.

BETTER YIELDS—BETTER GRADES—BETTER PRICES

A special committee appointed by the Minister of Agriculture, with the co-operation of numerous organizations in the province, is urging the use this spring by farmers throughout the province of—high quality, clean, treated.. seed grain, in order to reduce the heavy annual losses sustained by sowing inferior seed.

Farmers can co-operate by

1. Using registered seed wherever available.
2. Using at least high quality commercial seed.
3. Having seed tested for germination and purity.
4. Treating seed for smut.
5. Thoroughly cleaning all grain intended for seed.
6. Sending only varieties of recognized quality and worthwhile adaptable to the district.

Good seed will be in demand this spring. Secure your requirements early—before the supply is exhausted.

CAPT. DANCEY TO SPEAK HERE; AUSPICES CAN. LEGION

Fort Saskatchewan and district will have the opportunity, on Wednesday, March 21, of hearing one of the best known and most popular men on the public platform in the person of Captain S. N. Dancey. Fort Saskatchewan branch of the Canadian Legion is bringing Captain Dancey to this community.

Capt. Dancey has been on a speaking tour of Alberta, under the joint auspices of the Canadian Legion and B.P.O. Elks, and, everywhere, he has been greeted with almost unprecedented enthusiasm. Canadianism and Community Service form the background of his talks and his message is one that every citizen should hear and he puts it over in such a way that it holds and thrills.

Word comes through from other communities where Captain Dancey has already spoken to the effect that Fort Saskatchewan has a real treat in store. Capt. Dancey is a speaker who believes in driving home a truth with a shaft of humor and his talks are always entertaining no well as instructive.

UNITED CHURCH W.M.S. NOTES

The error in last week's issue is corrected as follows: The "Missionary Monthly" secretary, Mrs. Walker; the Strangers' secretary, Mrs. Fenter. The Mission Band secretary, is not elected, will be appointed at the next regular meeting.

The W.M.S. met on Monday afternoon and proceeded to the Manse, where they presented Mrs. Pocock with a gold pin, the life membership pin of the society. In this way they showed their appreciation of her work and interest in building up this auxiliary. Mrs. Pocock in a few words expressed her surprise and pleasure at receiving this memento of work among them.

Where Is The Money To Come From?

With the Dominion Parliament and practically all the Provincial Legislatures now in session, the people of Canada are having their attention directed to questions of public policy, public finance, and public administration. The budget speech at Ottawa, and the annual financial statements of the several Provincial Treasurers, with the debates which arise thereon, are of outstanding interest and value in focusing attention upon, and compelling consideration of, the vital subjects of revenue versus expenditure, and their effect upon taxation and public debt.

Prior to the opening of Parliament and the Legislatures, members of the various Governments were busy receiving deputations from organizations of all kinds, including financial, industrial and commercial institutions, organized farmers, and numerous social reform and benevolent societies. In the vast majority of cases these deputations advocated certain changes in existing laws calculated to advance the interests or cause in which they were more especially interested. Also in the majority of cases, representations were made in support of reductions in existing taxation, and, coupled with such representations, Governments were urged to embark upon additional services, or provide new institutions, all of which entailed for large increases in public expenditure and the creation of new administrative agencies.

The problem with which all Governments are thus confronted, and which is presented to them every year, in most complete, and it is to be feared that many of these deputations do not give serious enough consideration to it. Many reasons for these deputations going to Ottawa and the Provincial Capitals—a fairly general one—that Governments have ample means of finding money without raising it by means of taxation.

For example, in all Provinces there is a prosperous and growing demand that very much larger amounts be spent in the construction of good, all-weather, highways. Once built such roads must be maintained, then for every mile constructed there is an increased annual charge for upkeep. But compelled with these insistent demands there is the further complaint that automobile licence fees are too high and should be reduced, while municipalities are ever demanding that, while the Provincial Government should hand over to them the entire taxation of roads, the auto licence fees should be divided with the municipalities. In other words, the Government should spend more and collect less.

Note another example. The people of Canada demand the establishment of a system of Old Age Pensions. The Federal Government agrees, and undertakes to pay fifty per cent. of such pensions, provided the Provincial Governments pay the other fifty per cent. British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Manitoba agree to enter the scheme. All parties in the Legislatures are in favor of doing so. Then, in Manitoba, the Government proposes the imposition of an additional tax in order to raise the money wherewith to pay such pensions, and immediately objections are raised.

In Saskatchewan within recent months the Government has been asked to provide for a free consolidated clinic, for a school for the blind and the deaf, for an institution for the care of juvenile delinquents, larger facilities for the training of teachers, extension of the educational system, anesthetic constants to combat tuberculosis, a large extension of the rural building programme, lessening the graveling of roads, etc. The Government has proceeds to some extent to give effect to a number of these requests and to submit in securing the necessary funds proposes a tax on gasoline. This meets with opposition, but immediately a demand is made that the auto licence fee be substantially reduced, the effect of which would be to largely offset the increase in revenue to be derived from the gasoline tax, and leaving the Government without the means to provide those very things the people had demanded.

Referring to this all in fair general attitude on the part of people, and the increasing demand for "free" services of one kind and another, the Hon. Premier of Saskatchewan took occasion in his budget speech to point out that "there ain't no such animal" as a "free" service. Any service if not paid for by the individual must be paid for by the state, and if the state pays, then the money with which to feed the state's bills must be secured from individuals in the mass by way of taxes.

The responsible heads of all our Canadian institutions and organizations should devote a portion of their time in training for such responsible posts by taking a course in economics.

Too Much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, by tests, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips Milk of Magnesia. It has been endorsed for 70 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water relieves sour stomach. Two doses relieve stubborn acidity and at once. The genuine bears Caggart in five colors.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy antidote. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 70 years in correcting disordered acids. Each bottle carries full directions—say Dyspepsia.

Three New Planes Are Under Construction In Winnipeg

Application for a charter has been made by the Canadian Aircraft Company of Winnipeg incorporated at $50,000. This company which has already three of its new Mallard type planes under construction in its Lombard Street shops, expects to find a growing market for airplanes in Western Canada. The machines are 3-passenger single-bay biplanes with Rolls Royce engines, costing $3,250. Commercial aviation is making progress at Winnipeg. The Western Canada Airways has placed an order for six more Fokker aeroplanes and when delivery is made will have a fleet of twelve planes.

MISTAKES MOTHERS MAKE IN CARE OF LITTLE ONES

Many mothers give their children medicine at too early an age and may proudly that their babies "eat everything that grown up people do." Such a course is almost certain to bring on indigestion and lay the foundation of much ill-health for the little one.

Other mothers administer harsh, nauseating purgatives which in reality weaken and injure the delicate stomach and bowels and at the same time cause the children to dread all medicine.

Absolutely no must should be given to a child until it reaches the age of 15 months, and then only if approved by the doctor. For medicine, all strong, disagreeable oils and powders should be abandoned and Baby's Own Tablets given instead.

Baby's Own Tablets are especially made for little ones. They are pleasant to take and can be given with absolute safety to even the new-born babe. They quickly banish constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers and make the cutting of teeth easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE ART OF MAKING TEA

What To Do and What Not To Do To Get the Best Results

Mr. Spalding Black on the staff of the Salada Tea Company recently prepared an interesting leaflet entitled "The Art Of Correct Tea Making." Approximately 26,000,000 cups of tea are consumed every day in Canada, and yet it is doubtful if one-tenth of this number is prepared with the necessary care to bring out the full flavor of the tea leaf so that this stimulating and refreshing drink may be thoroughly enjoyed. The following is from "The Art Of Correct Tea Making."

"Tea is one of the smallest blessings of Nature in its comforting, indulgence one can lose the worries of the day and forget the effort.

"The full joy of a cup of this gracious beverage can only be reached when fine quality tea is used and correct care exercised in its preparation to draw from each tiny leaf the essence of flavor and refreshment with which it has been endowed by Nature.

"In the countries of the Xilst, where the drinking of tea has been enjoyed for a thousand years or more, the subject of preparing the leaf for consumption has become a fine art and a ceremony, but the full delicious refreshment and healthful stimulation may be extracted from the fragrant tea-leaves if the following rules are followed exactly:—

"Rule No. 1: The best quality of tea must be used. The tea also must be fresh, to yield the full goodness.

"Rule No. 2:—The quality of the water used in making tea greatly affects the beverage in the cup. Draw fresh cold water and bring it to a hard "boiling" boil. Never use water that has been boiled before. Sometimes chlorine put in water to purify it will completely change the flavor of the tea. The water is to be bluish, however, and not the tea.

"Rule No.3:—It is proper that only a crockery or china teapot be used, never one of metal or any other substance, if the pure and delicious flavor of the tea leaf is to be had. Pots like these should never be enclosed in a metal tea-ball.

"Rule No. 4:—The teapot must be scalded out with boiling water and while it is warm place in it one level teaspoonful of tea for each cup required.

"Rule No. 5:—Now pour the boiling water on the leaves. Allow to steep in a warm place for five minutes. Stir just sufficiently to diffuse the full strength of the tea. Then pour the liquid off the leaves into another heated vessel, unless served immediately. If poured off in this way, the tea will not take on a bitter taste which even the finest tea will do unless prevented from over-steeping. Tea made according to these rules will be fragrant, delicious and completely satisfying."

Annual Honey Production In Western Provinces Shown To Be Rapidly Increasing

That Canada is a wonderful country for beekeeping is now an undisputed fact, due chiefly to her wide range of flora and high average of favorable weather for the secretion and ripening of nectar. Moreover, the greater part of the honey produced in Canada is of high quality, both in flavor and body or density, being white in color, is most suitable for table use.

Until quite recently, beekeeping was practically confined to the older provinces in Eastern Canada, especially Ontario and Quebec, and to British Columbia; the surplus produced by them was absorbed by the Prairie Provinces. During the past five years, however, not only has beekeeping increased in the East but it has made a rapid advance in the Middle West, and because of this growth, Canadian honey is now being exported to European markets where it is most favorably regarded. The total crop for Canada for 1926 was estimated at well over 19,000,000 pounds. Of this, Ontario produced 10,000,000 pounds; Quebec and Maritime Provinces, over 4,000,000 pounds; British Columbia, 630,919 pounds; and Saskatchewan, Alberta, and New Brunswick, each over 100,000 pounds. No record of actual production is available from Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, but from the total crop estimates given above it will be seen that the production from these provinces is relatively small. The amount of honey produced throughout the Dominion, of course, varies from year to year, according to weather conditions. For instance, 1925 was a most favorable year in this respect for Eastern Canada, but not so good for the West; while 1926 was just the reverse, 1927 was good for the West and not so favorable for the East, as the following crop figures for 1927 show: Prince Edward Island, 100,000 pounds; Ontario, 8,000,000 pounds; Manitoba, 3,333,313 pounds; Saskatchewan, 170,387 pounds; Alberta, 815,000 pounds; British Columbia, 630,257 pounds. The Quebec figure for 1926 has not yet been available. In comparing 1926 figures with those of 1925, it will be seen that, with the exception of Manitoba, the crops of the western provinces were much larger in the former year. Reports of the 1927 crop so far received indicate that in western Canada the past season was even more favorable than 1926. Manitoba reports a crop of 7,366,875 pounds, Saskatchewan, 980,719 pounds, and Saskatchewan, 998,594 pounds. Crop reports from the other provinces for 1927 are not yet available.

While honey production is steadily increasing throughout the Dominion, there are large areas in which practically no honey is produced; this is especially true of western provinces. The clearing forests, conditions in many settled parts of the Prairie Provinces, the opening up of new territory, and the introduction of irrigation into semi-arid areas are having an effect on beekeeping possibilities. For instance, the introduction of sweet clover into Manitoba and Saskatchewan is largely responsible for the increase in beekeeping in these two provinces. In the Peace River district where beekeeping is a comparatively new industry, an experimental apiary at Beaverlodge, Alberta, gave a wonderful crop during the summer of 1926. A colony on scales registered a gain of 20 pounds per 24 hours on more than one occasion and at the end of the season this colony gave 321.5 pounds of surplus honey, and in addition gave one swarm; however. Other pioneer apiaries reported equally good results. In the irrigated areas, where alfalfa and sweet clover are grown extensively, good crops of honey are assured. In British Columbia, the fertile valleys offer splendid opportunities for beekeeping, especially in the central part of the province. In Ontario and Quebec the same parts of the province are fairly well stocked with bees but the newer parts of the provinces offer what is practically an undeveloped field.

Herring flour is used quite extensively in Norway.

Farm Land Values Increase

Going To Good Crops In Alberta Prices Advance Ten Per Cent.

Farm land values in Alberta have advanced in the past year by reason of the excellent crops produced. Since June 1927 it is estimated land values in the better districts have increased on an average by ten per cent., while in districts where crops have been exceptionally good and the number of new settlers large, the increase has amounted to 20 per cent. This is particularly true of the Peace River district where the value of good farms, reasonably close to transportation, has increased more than any part of the province.

For each farm in the province the average production during 1927 was $4,585 according to the Provincial Minister of Agriculture. Against this he gives average production for some of the States of the Union for 1923: Montana, $2,944; South Dakota, $2,855; Iowa, $2,362; Minnesota, $1,977; Kansas, $1,980. Average production per farm in Alberta in 1926 was $2,184.

Screenings Classified

Reclaimed Elevator Screenings the Most Important Grade

Screenings is a by-product of the grain industry and is now available commercially to Canadian stockmen. It consists of the broken and shrunken grains, weed seeds, including wild buckwheat and wild oats, chaff, etc., removed from the grain delivered to the terminal elevators and constitutes about 1¼ to 2¼ per cent. of the total grain received. This by-product is reclaimed and classified into reclaimed elevator screenings, cut screenings, and refuse screenings, a classification which although still unofficial is recognized by the Grain Inspection Department and compiled with by most of the elevators. A new Dominion Department of Agriculture pamphlet on "Screenings As a Feed For Live Stock," gives the composition of the grades. By far the most important grade is the one named reclaimed elevator screenings. It contains about 50 to 70 per cent. of wild buckwheat, 30 to 40 per cent of broken or shrunken wheat, some wild oats, and not over 5 per cent. of small weed seeds. When finely ground it has been proved by experiment to be a very valuable feed for growing and fattening cattle and for fattening sheep. The second grade, cut screenings, contains about 75 per cent. of wild oats, 15 per cent. of broken grain, a small percentage of barley and an occasional wheat kernel. It has a high nutritive value and is fair to that of reclaimed elevator screenings. The third grade, refuse screenings, consists of small weed seeds, chaff, and the dust and dirt accumulating from reclaiming. It has been found to be of little or no feeding value and is the refuse of some of these three grades, a fourth grade, called elevator screenings, is used. It is the combustible material resulting into the first three classifications ,provided the required minimum percentage of wild buckwheat and oats are not put into this class. The pamphlet which gives an account of the Experimental Farm's experiments in reclaiming the feeding value of the different grades of screenings, may be obtained from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Farm Lands At Premium

Few Farms Are Available For Rental on Broadacre Principle

Farm lands are almost impossible to rent around Evesden, according to real estate men, who state that there are few farms available that in western lands are held by many agents in the city, but there are no farm lands available. Where there is a shortage of land, leasing for rent nearby farmers have availed themselves of the opportunity of acquiring more land. There is a fairly optimistic outlook here.

PLANNING TRIPS TO EUROPE

Personally Conducted Tour Has An Interesting Itinerary

With winter on its last legs (why not in epidiaskit?) and summer vacations in the offing, Canadians are beginning to plan trips to Europe and the railways and steamship companies are making their preparations. Arrangements have been completed between the Canadian National Railways and the White Star line for the third annual personally conducted tour of Europe, which will commence on July 7, when the Laurentic sails from Montreal. A great many western Canadians, including school teachers, who are always good customer travellers, are already paying some attention to their bank accounts, and are making inquiries about the itinerary. It is an interesting one. After eight days on the ocean, the motor coach trip through out England and Scotland will commence. The English Lakes, Chester, Stratford-on-Avon, Warwick Castle and some of the other historic spots of the old world are visited on the first day; a trip through the Burns country, and an occasional wheat kernel. It will be a day's sightseeing in Edinburgh after a journey through the Trossachs. From Edinburgh, the motor coach will go to Newcastle-on-Tyne, York and Leamington, thence to London by way of the Shakespeare country and Oxford. Four days in London will give the visitors ample opportunity to see the Tower of London, the Houses of Parliament, the British Museum and other ancient buildings of interest. Windsor and Hampton will come up more memories, and Stoke Pogis will bring to mind the curfew tolling the knell of parting day, the village Hampden, mute ingtorious Miltons and the quiet reductions attributed to Gray and thereto. Bruges and Brussels will be followed by a week in Switzerland, including Lucerne, Interlaken, Montreux, Geneva, with best trips—and the six days in Paris will likely be all too few. The tour party will sail from Havre on the Megantic, arriving in Montreal on August 18, 42 days after they left. Over the long sweeping aspects of the tour, according to railway officials, is that it will not be rushed and that the travellers will have time to allow the multitude of new impressions to soak into their memories for future refreshment.

Testing Fullers Earth Clay

Clay from 22 different deposits in the western part of the province are under test in the Department of Ceramics, University of Saskatchewan, to determine their suitability for the manufacture of whiteware. This classification includes such products as household ware, electric porcelain and floor and wall tile.

Ice Sculpture in Quebec

Just towards Carnival time in Quebec examples of ice statuary begin to appear in the streets. This statuary ranges from very modest ice arches to most ambitious conceptions such as a railway locomotive, a dog team and sled or a cariole (habitant sleigh) complete with horse an "habitant et bonne femme." These statues are not freakish bits or carnival decoration but embody very real artistic values and are usually cut up before the Chateau Frontenac.

The genius who makes these delightful things is a little French-Canadian man. A habitant with bright eyes, a ready laugh and a high heart. His name is Michel Carbonneau and he will tell one that he is "Un sculpteur de bois, marbre," and various other mediums; also a carpenter, but "The specialite mocument de glace, Ma'moiselle s'il-vous-plait."

Land Sales Classified

Provincial Land Sales Are Now Classified Into Four Groups

Land sales in the province of Alberta are now classified into four groups, according to the Provincial Minister of Agriculture. Group 1 includes all sales of land in the province which are made to settlers who have had no previous experience in farming. Group 2 includes all sales of land in the province which are made to settlers who have had previous experience in farming. Group 3 includes all sales of land in the province which are made to settlers who have had previous experience in farming in the province. Group 4 includes all sales of land in the province which are made to persons who have had previous experience in farming in the province and who are purchasing additional land.

Land Settlement Activities

Land settlement activities in Alberta during the past year have been confined largely to the Peace River district, where the Provincial Government has been assisting settlers to locate on land. Up to the end of October 1927 there had been 1,200 settlers placed on land in the Peace River district, and it is expected that by the end of the year 1,500 settlers will have been placed on land in that district.

Alberta Has Many Lakes

Alberta has many lakes, and the Provincial Government has been making a survey of them with a view to stocking them with fish. Up to the present time 1,000,000 fry have been planted in the lakes of the province.

If seed wheat contains sheurnal or discolored kernels a first class crop cannot be grown to maturity even under ideal climatic conditions. Weather conditions, such as prevailed in the prairie provinces of Canada during the harvest time of 1927, tended to bring mal these abnormalities and discolorations in grain to a more marked extent than usual.

Shrivelled, shrunken and pinched or blistered wheat should be avoided. Shrivelled or shrunken kernels may be the result of badly, stacked wheat or may be indicative of the presence of a "fungus within the seed, while frozen wheat has a pimpled or blistered seed coat: it immediated kernel which is white to gray in color is typical of the presence of a very serious and destructive fungus disease.

Discolorations such as green, pink and black are also very common. Green kernels denote lack of maturity, while the cause of the distinct pinkish discoloration so often found is not definitely known. Blackened kernels are typical of the presence of a number of different wheat parasites. If the top of the germ end is inky black in color bacteria are very frequently the cause. If blackening is evident at different places on the seed coat, fungi, which cause root diseases of cereals, are often present.

During the last few years extensive tests have been conducted to study the importance of such abnormalities and discolorations as are mentioned above, and results show that it is a very serious practice to sow wheat of this kind. In all cases germination is reduced and the plants produced thereby are very often weak and sickly in appearance; by sowing such wheat the farmer in many cases gets practically no pleasing fungi into his land.

Wise and careful selection of seed wheat is of the utmost importance. Modern threshing methods such as are used by the average farmer will suffice to remove nearly every light kernel and hannah, but many remain, and if these comprise even a small proportion of the seed lot it should be remembered. Samples of seed grain may be sent to any of the Dominion Experimental Farms or to this laboratory for examination.

Roots As Feed For Horses

Turnips Or Carrots Are Good For Horses During the Winter

Roots are a valuable food for horses under many conditions. For instance, they are good for horses doing moderate farm work during the winter. Two or three turnips or a few carrots thrown into the manger when the horse comes in at night will be greatly relished. Turnips or carrots are more acceptable to horses than mangels, and they should be given whole. According to a new bulletin of the Dominion Department of Agriculture on "Growing and Feeding Field Roots," the merits of roots as a feed for horses may be summed up as follows: They increase palability, increase the digestibility of coarse fodders, benefit the teeth and gums, form a splendid tonic, and cheapen the ration.

British Columbia Land-Producer

Approximately 9 per cent. of the total output of coal and 21 per cent. of the zinc comes from British Columbia. Gold, silver, lead, copper and other metals are also produced in large quantities, in Ontario, the Yukon, the Province of Quebec, and about 6 per cent. of the zinc is produced in Quebec.

How The Sun Life Made Thirty-Eight Millions Profit In The Year 1927

Participating Policyholders Receive Ninety-Five Per Cent. of Profits—Dividends to Policyholders Again Increased —Company Seeks Legislation to Maintain Canadian Control.

Montreal, March 10. The phenomenal record of the Sun Life Assurance Company as an institution for all Canadians. Its income of $102,000,000 is already equal to the total revenue of the Government of Canada in the year 1910, and $38,000,000 is certainly an amazing total to be earned as profit in one year. Not many corporations anywhere can report such figures. The President's initiator practical comments at the annual meeting explaining how these huge profits were made were illuminating.

Of even greater interest, however, were his statements regarding the danger that this great Canadian institution may pass from Canadian control. Some months ago, Sir Macaulay referred to the activity of Wall Street in the buying of Sun Life stock, and cautioned policyholders and shareholders of the measure it involved in an institution, which was founded and developed by Canadians and which has obtained its phenomenal growth under Canadian management. Subsequent events have justified those misgivings, and at the meeting today the first public intimation was given that the Sun Life directors are moving legislation at the present session of parliament which is intended to effectively forestall the danger.

Precautions to Maintain the Company A Great Surplus and Contingency Fund Created in Quarter.

In concluding his address to the shareholders and policyholders at the Provincial meeting the following reference to the matter:

"There is but one cloud on our horizon. Our very prosperity has created a remarkable demand for our capital stock. We desire to ensure that this great company shall always remain strictly Canadian in its control and in particular that its investments shall never come under Wall Street domination. A bill which we have introduced into Parliament will be submitted for your approval. If it be passed, it will give us the protection we so much need, and I know we can rely on the whole-hearted sympathy and support, not only of our shareholders and policyholders here present, but of our army of policyholders throughout the country."

The meeting unanimously approved of the measure in question. Later important and how vital to Canadians are the interests at stake in dividends in the report submitted to the annual meeting of the Company.

In moving the adoption of the report, President Macaulay said:

"You gentlemen have become so accustomed to our presenting every year a statement of results better than previous records that you come prepared to hear another report of that description. I am quite sure, however, that one of you, in his most optimistic mood, expected a report so favorable as that which you have before you. Our record for 1927 is indeed a remarkable one. Let me touch on the main features:

Remarkable Growth, Strength and Profits

"The new assurances completed amounted to $238,000,000, an increase of over $62,500,000.

"The amount in force at the close of the year had risen to $1,487,000,000, and at the present moment is well over $1,500,000,000.

"The income exceeded $147,000,000, an increase over the previous year of $23,500,000. To me, this is very impressive. Not only has this item passed the one hundred million mark, but the increase alone is equal to what was our total income but eight years ago, which had been accumulated by the forty-nine years of strenuous effort. A life company with a total income so greater than our increase would be an important corporation.

"The assets have increased by $56,000,000, and now exceed $400,000,000.

"But the most wonderful of all these wonderful figures is the amount earned as profit $38,000,000. How great this figure is may be judged from the fact that the earnings of the previous year, in which we so rejoiced, were $29,500,000. It would be hardly reasonable to assume that our earnings of future years will continue on such a tremendous scale, and we have therefore set aside a part of this sum now to provide for future contingencies.

I. The Need For Food, verses 31, 32. The disciples returned from their mission to their Master. Success, but they were greatly wearied and needed rest. They needed likewise an opportunity for talking over with their Master. Neither rest nor communion was possible. However no great was the crowd that continually came and went about Jesus. They had no leisure even to eat. Mark tells us, "Come ye your selves apart into a desert place, and rest a while. Jesus bade According, ly, they set off in their boat on the for an unabashed spot (for this is the meaning here) on the other side of the lake. There come times in the lives of all Christian workers when they need to heed this counsel of Christ to go apart and rest a while. Rest is not the regular program; it is only the necessary expedient to fit us for bodies and weary brains must be given a chance to recover if they are to do effective service. RICH, RED BLOOD A REAL NERVE TONIC

The Source Of All Nervousness Is Weak, Watery Blood

Many people, both men and women, feel themselves run down, overwrought, or nerveless. Such sufferers should examine their blood, for upon it depends bright and cheerful. Miss Irene Denise, R.R. No. 1, Windsor, Ont., tells what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her as follows:—"I suffered for a long time with my nerves and a general run-down condition. I grew so weak that I had no life in me or part of every day. I could not do my work and was taking medicine all the time, trying one medicine after another. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I have reason to be thankful that I acted on this advice, as this was the first medicine that gave me any relief, and in a comparatively short time restored me to the blessing of good health. When I think of the marvelous good these pills did me, I can most highly recommend them to all weak, nervous people."

If you are at all run-down, or weak, you should begin at once to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and you will soon be well and strong. These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HEART WAS SO WEAK Had to Stay in Bed

Mrs. F. Wilson, Lethbridge, Alta., writes:—"My heart was weak and I had to stay in bed for five weeks.

"My aunt advised me to take so she had taken them with good results after a very bad experience.

"I took them and soon thus after a doctor came to examine me for life insurance and he said there was nothing wrong with my heart."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all druggists and dealers, or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful ills and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet in the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor. always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, but are free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

UNITED FARMERS STRESS VALUE OF THE H. B. ROAD

Saskatoon. Initial steps leading toward the creation of a co-operative wholesale society in this province were taken by delegates attending at the annual convention of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section.

Following a debate, a resolution was adopted calling for the urgent need of separation of the present trading department from the parent body. The board of directors also was authorized to appoint three representatives of the association as members of a provisional board which will be entrusted with the task of formulating the details of the proposed plan of organization.

As a fitting commemoration of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation, the organized farmers of Saskatchewan also advocated the establishment of a free consultative clinic in the province, the report revealed.

The main object of the clinic would be to bring in the best medical skill within the reach of all, and provide complete laboratory investigations of a case and X-ray service.

In commenting on this subject the report says:

"We believe that a free consultative clinic would encourage people to have their ailments treated in the incipient stage of illness and would be of inestimable value in preventing disease.

"On the question of transportation the directors voice gratification in the reduction of rates on grain and flour during the past year. The rate on grain, on what is commonly known as the Armstrong route, has been reduced 3 cents a bushel, giving the farmer a reasonable all rail rate to the Atlantic ports."

The matter of freight rate, the report states, will also prove a decided check on like transportation charges.

Resolutions were also passed by South and South, governed by the Crows Nest agreement, and also meant a saving of $2,000,000 a year to the farmers of Northern Alberta and Saskatchewan.

The report concludes: "We are now seeing pushed to completion the long hoped for Hudson's Bay Railway. Organized efforts of the Saskatchewan farmers has been largely responsible for the initiative of the federal government in undertaking the completion of this railway.

"It is impossible to estimate the value to Western agriculture to be derived from the completion of this transport, thereby placing us 1,100 miles nearer our communing markets; but if we are to enjoy the full benefits of this great undertaking, the fullness must be our motto where the Hudson's Bay Railway is concerned."

JESUS TRIES THE MULTITUDES

Golden Text: "I am the bread of life; he that cometh to Me shall not hunger, and he that believeth on Me shall never thirst." John 6:35.

Devotional Reading: Ezekiel 34: 11-16.

Explanations and Comments

I. The Need For Food, verses 31, 32. The disciples returned from their mission to their Master. Success, but they were greatly wearied and needed rest. They needed likewise an opportunity for talking over with their Master. Neither rest nor communion was possible. However no great was the crowd that continually came and went about Jesus. They had no leisure even to eat. Mark tells us, "Come ye your selves apart into a desert place, and rest a while. Jesus bade According, ly, they set off in their boat on the for an unabashed spot (for this is the meaning here) on the other side of the lake. There come times in the lives of all Christian workers when they need to heed this counsel of Christ to go apart and rest a while. Trade Barometer Rising

Trade and Manufacturing Reported On a High Level

Ottawa. Canadian business got off to a good start for the current year. Out of the same indicators to confirm for the first month of the year which are reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics each showed Canadian trade and manufacturing were on a higher level than they were at the opening of 1927.

In the table which follows the state of trade for the corresponding month last year is taken as 100 and the latest index for the present year is given as a percentage on that basis. The results are Employment, 108.

Pig iron, 127.
Steel, 142.
Bank debits, 120.
Bank clearings, 128.
Cheques, 108.
Imports, 101.
Exports, 84.

The employment figure is that reported to the bureau for the first of the month. Our Saskatchewan and mid-week of February. All the other figures reflect conditions during January.

Think Banking System Could Be Improved

Parliamentary Committee Is Preparing To Start Work

Ottawa. Measures to curb the Deputy Minister of Finance as the first witness was reached at the meeting of the parliamentary committee on banking and commerce.

The committee has before it a resolution moved by J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., Labor, North Winnipeg, that the time has come for the consideration of the improvement of our banking system and that the banking and currency committee be empowered to study possible improvements and report thereon."

Mr. Woodsworth, of Hon. J. L. Ralston, Conservative, Vancouver South, the committee decided to request the House to print 1,000 copies of the proceedings reported and printed.

It was suggested that one or two witnesses be heard each year to keep the committee familiar with the operation of the Federal Reserve Bank would be called from that country. The recommendation of witnesses was then left to the sub-committee.

Will Investigate Finding Of Bullets On Street in Ottawa

Toronto. An investigation to clear up the finding of bullets on the city street in Ottawa will be made by a royal commission composed of Mr. Justice Hodgins, of the Ontario Court of Appeals, of the appellate court division, Premier Ferguson announced in the legislature. The commission will also put an end to a deadlock which developed in the privileges and elections committee when that body asked Liberal leader Sinclair to produce the ballots then in his possession and he refused until the ballot boxes were opened. The latter organized motion to be identical with those used in the last Ottawa South election.

Gasoline Prices Drop

Reduction Of Three to Five Cents a Gallon In Manitoba

Winnipeg. Man. Gasoline prices in Winnipeg and most parts of Manitoba have dropped from three to five cents. Tank wagon prices are now quoted at 21 cents for low test gasoline and 24 cents for high test. The retail station prices are accordingly 24 to 27 cents for the low test, and 31 for the high, inclusive of the government tax.

The new prices were announced by the British American Oil Company, Limited, which was followed by the Imperial Oil Company. The average reduction throughout the province amounts to three cents, while at some places a drop of five cents has been reported. Members of the trade give the opinion that the price drop will have an early appreciation in Saskatchewan.

Has On Submarines

British Government Reaffirms Position On This Question

London. Right Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, when asked in the House of Commons if he had considered the desirability of abolishing the submarine if all other countries do the same, replied that the attitude of the British Government remained the same as enunciated by Lord Lee, of Fareham, at the Washington conference in 1921. At that time Lord Lee urged the abolition of submarines.

This attitude the First Lord submitted, was reaffirmed by himself at the plenary session of the recent naval conference at Geneva.

Predicts B.C. Will Use Coal Resources

Cranbrook Member Believes Oil and Gasoline Will Be Manufactured In Province

Victoria, B.C. British Columbia will some day manufacture all its oil and gasoline from its vast coal resources is the opinion of W. A. Wallinger Cranbrook member of the Legislature and a veteran mining man.

We should follow up the use of pulverized coal as a fuel and the use of coal for gasoline and fuel oil," said Mr. Wallinger. "Experiments already made indicate that the idea is not a dream but a practical opportunity to utilize natural resources. The present hardly realized British Columbia self-contained in the matter of oil and gasoline would become one of the richest industrial zones in the world."

Mr. Wallinger deplores the fact that few great mines have been discovered in British Columbia during the past few years. "Our province is not encouraged as he used to be. Most of the prospectors I run across these days are 60 years old, or older.

Walked Narrow Ledge Across Niagara Gorge

Woman Takes Dangerous Path To Enter U.S. Illegally

Niagara Falls, N.Y. How she flirted with death to enter this country illegally from Canada was told by Anna Putrimus, a pretty dressmaker of Montreal She is a native of Lithuania.

She claimed she was lowered by a rope over the gorge here on the Canadian side to the lower abutments of the Michigan Central Railway Bridge and then, accompanied by an alien runner, made her way across the gorge on the narrow steel ledge forming part of the under section of the bridge, more than 250 feet above the swirling whirlpool rapids.

The girl and her escort mounted safely on the American shore and she was taken to the home of Frank Dagostino here to await four other young women who were brought across the river in a rowboat the following night.

All five of the women were held as witnesses against the five men charged with smuggling aliens.

Death Of H. E. A. Leech

Regina, Sask.—H. E. A. Leech, 69, chairman of the Saskatchewan liquor commission from 1920 until the inception of government liquor control in 1925, collapsed and died suddenly at his home here. Leech, Winnipeg; Dr. J. W. Leech, Raymond, Alta., and a sister, Mrs. F. J. Oates, Los Angeles.

U. S. STRONG FOR THE ABOLITION OF ALL WARS

Washington, D.C. An invitation to Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany and Japan to join the United States in forming a league to outlaw war outside the League of Nations was contained in the note handed by Secretary of State Kellogg, to the French ambassador, Paul Claudel, for transmission to the French Government.

The United States firmly puts aside French suggestions that the proposed agreement recognizes the right to make war under certain conditions. "If such a declaration were accompanied by definitions of the word 'aggressor,' said by exceptions and qualifications stipulating when nations would be justified in going to war, its effect would be largely if not wholly weakened and its positive value as a guaranty of peace virtually destroyed," says the United Kingdom.

The note insinuates that the United States is not unwilling to conclude a separate agreement with France for the outlawing of war between Britain and other great powers to participate. "If the members of the League of Nations continue, without waiving the terms of the covenant of the league agree among themselves and with the government of the United States to renounce war as an instrument of their national policy, it would be in accord with other historical or multilateral treaties unreservedly renouncing war I am reluctant to believe, however, that the provisions of the covenant of the League of Nations really stands in the way of cooperation of members of the league and the United States in a common effort to abolish war."

The note, which is brief, concludes that the government of the United States desires to see the institution of war abolished and stands ready to collaborate with the French, British, Italian, German and Japanese governments a single multilateral treaty, open to subsequent adherence by any and all other governments, declaring parties thereto not to resort to war with one another. The precise language to be employed is said in treaty is a matter of indifference to the United States so long as it clearly and unequivocally outlaws war. The determination of the parties to abolish war among themselves. I therefore renew the suggestion contained in my note of January 11 1928, that the government of France join with the government of the United States and the governments of British, Italian, German and Japanese governments for their consideration and comment the text of the United States draft proposal, together with copies of subsequent correspondence between France and the United States, as a basis for preliminary discussions looking to conclusion of an appropriate multilateral treaty proscribing recourse to war."

Oldest Motor Car For Sale

French Model Of 1891 Still In Working Order

Paris.—The oldest motor car in the world, built nearly forty years ago and still in working order after having covered over 60,000 miles, is to be put up for sale by auction. It is a one-horse power Panhard with a chain drive and iron tires. It made its first run in 1891, and the engine was taken down and completely overhauled in 1913. That is the only occasion on which it has been to the garage for repairs. The owner of the car is Abbe Gervais, the worthy village priest of Bailey-Saint-Germain, in the Seine-et-Marne department, who bought it in 1895 for the sum of $360 and has used it ever since. Several times he has exhibited it in Paris at the Motor Salon, driving it down the Champs Elysees amid the stream of traffic of modern luxury cars.

Abbe Gervais wants to build a new church in his village in the old way now dedicated to St. Christopher, the patron saint of motorists, and he has confided the "old bus" to the Automobile Club of Picardy for sale to the highest bidder ,the product of the sale to be used towards the building of the new church.

President Coolidge has no business or duties.

HIGH VALUE OF ALBERTA FARM LANDS

Alberta farm lands in occupation in 1927 are valued at an average of $38 per acre as compared with $36 per acre in 1926, according to the Dominion government crop report issued from Ottawa on February 24. This valuation includes both improved and unimproved lands, as well as dwelling houses, and farm buildings. This report gives an average for all of Canada as $36 per acre as compared with $37 in 1926, and $40 in 1925. The 1927 figures for the other provinces are given as follows: British Columbia, $69; Ontario, $66; Quebec, $71; Prince Edward Island, $41; Nova Scotia, $37; New Brunswick, $32; Manitoba $37 and Saskatchewan $25.

SETTLERS HARVESTED VERY GOOD CROP

The average yield of wheat in the section of Alberta from Red Deer south to the border, on the farms of settlers brought over from the Old Country by the Land Settlement Board was twenty-one bushels to the acre, according to the recent report of W. S. Wood, superintendent of the Calgary branch of the board. The sixteen field supervisors from whose reports this information was compiled have reported conditions generally to be satisfactory among these new settlers.

Demonstrates New Camera

Spark Instead Of Shutter Gives Shots Exposures Per Second

Moving pictures taken at the rate of 20,000 exposures a second showing a bullet apparently barely moving as it shatters a glass bulb were shown to a meeting of the Optical Society of America.

Dayton Clarence Miller, of Case New York University who gave the demonstration at Columbus, Ohio, said the camera did not differ from to an ordinary one except that a spark vibrating with high frequency took the place of a shutter.

Pictures of a whirling propeller taken in the dark at only 1/100 a second showed the blades turning at a rate not much faster than a lazily revolving door.

The pictures of the bullet shattering the glass bulb taken at the high frequency exposures showed the shattered glass fragments falling through air so slowly as to be hardly perceptible

It was strange for Arthur Warner, after all his lonely years, to be sitting here talking so intimately to a woman who was a comparative stranger, and learning from her confidences which she had given to no one else. He thought of his own lonely hours—so precious to him, so eagerly acquired, so patiently worked for—how a woman like this would have frightened it and grazed it with her presence. She was so calm, so brave, so gentle.

When their eyes met Helmi smiled encouragingly at him, though sadly too, as if the tears were not very far away. Here they have become how was going."

"Helmi," he said, "we are both facing the elemental things of life, and it draws us together. We are facing the harsh things that men and women ever have to face. Yong part will be to give life, maybe at the expense of your own life. God forgive me to take life. Are you afraid?"

Helmi shook her head. "No," she said, simply, "I believe in God. I believe He loves me. I love Him. Every day I say my good words. I learned them in His house. They are, 'Cherish health; Seek truth; Know God; Serve others.' Then I say, 'Please God, bring home my Jack.' It is good to pray, Mr. English, when one is afraid."

The first ragged whistle of the train came booming down the valley. "I'll not your name Helmi," he said, "and I want to my good words for you and for your Jack."

Helmi took his hand and impulsively kissed it. "Helmi Duncan," she said. "I am glad you will say good words for my Jack. Maybe you will see him over there I know he will go."

"I hope for your sake that it will all be over when Jack comes home at Christmas."

He was standing up now with his cap in his hand. The train was whistling again as it came slowly down the grade. Helmi looked at him reverently. It was not merely a lonely, weather-beaten homesteader she saw standing before her; she saw a brave man who was willing to give everything he possessed, not withholding his own life, for the cause of human liberty, and on his face she saw the unmistakable majesty which comes to those who are appointed to die.

Arthur Warner bent over and kissed her shining hair. "Good-bye, dear Helmi," he said.

"Good-bye, God bless you dear Mr English!"

When Arthur went out he met Mrs. McMann coming in. She had come presumably to ask Helmi what she had done with the cape-like

CHAPTER XX.

It was in December that Helmi decided to delay no longer, she would go to the city. Jack had told her to go to his nine boss and get the two hundred dollars which was due on his wages. She had not needed it until now, and had felt it best to leave it where it was. She had hoped her Jack would be home to her before this and then he could go himself. Helmi had earned nearly five dollars from Mrs. McMann, too, and she had often imagined the proud look which would come to Jack when she would show him the fifteen five-dollar bills in the pocket of her black valise. Helmi knew what she was going to buy with it, too. Had she not marked the things in the catalogue? But the days had been wearily on that there had been no word. It was often hard to keep from crying, but it must be all right. God would not let her deny Jack he had.

The Blue Book was a comfort, too. It was so full of happiness. The Blue Book was sure everything would come out right. She wondered if the people who wrote the Blue Book ever had their men go away so far and stay so long. She had found the Blue Book was right in what it said about gardens. It said a garden links one with God. Helmi had been happiest in her little garden, every seed of which she had turned herself. In the summer evenings she had worked in it until it was so dark she could not see, and never did thoughts come to her then.

Helmi took it as a sure sign that God was pleased with her when her plants grew so beautifully and the frail stems which broke windows in some of the houses did not touch her garden at all. Helmi was proud of her garden, too, because it was the largest garden in Maple Manse, and also because the women said nothing would grow in that way her headlettuce, radishes, onions, cabbages, carrots, and beets were astonishing of a triumph. But best of all was the square in the middle, where stocks and asters and nasturtiums grew. Every day there were bouquets from her garden on the tables of the manchild-house, and although they were nothing like the flowers which Mrs. McMann herself had grown in Lincoln, Nebraska, either in color or perfume, still even Mrs. McMann admitted the asters were fine flowers to go to Canada. Helmi did not mind what Mrs. McMann said, and the neighbors knew they were wonderful flowers. The meantime had pushed down upon her as shadbell summer she knew that was to end.

There were the deaths to praise among the men who were glad to have fresh instead of canned vegetables for their meals and twenty-one women was the only female left in the part of her block same as prove that her garden had been a success. Even after the vegetables were dug up the asters and stocks and bleeding hearts had flowed. Helmi had but one more Jack would come in time to see teh. They seemed to grow big as bears and redder as the night grew the nights progressed. But one night when the first sliver down the creek, with of a mound, and had two early sticks and every bloom in her garden and shrubbing dies its work went back the way it came. The morning was blue and bright, the sun was warm and playful little breezes tossed the dead flowers over, just as if the asters that were missed. After Helmi came out and saw the work of the night she wrung her hand but only for a minute. That day she raked the dead stalks into a pile and the barren there when they were dry and dug the garden for her next year's planting.

Helmi had not yet brought herself to ask for the two hundred dollars Jack had left. She needed the timekeeper would give it to her without asking for it but to this there came and she knew she could go soon She would not let Mrs McMann or anyone think she was spending or distressed. Jack had told her that the greatest thing in married life was to trust and not be afraid, so she affected a gaiety she did not feel, which quite deceived the "elite" lady.

"Those foreigners haven't got any fine feelings," Mrs McMann told her friend Mrs. Turner. "Now one would think Helmi would feel a little shy, but just her home any time you like and you can hear her singing, and as long as the days were nice she was either working in the garden or sitting outside sewing. And mind you, she went into the store and asked for white flannel from Jim Dawson—Mrs. Dawson told me. Well, of course, one can't expect much from these foreigners their standards have never been like ours. Mr. McMann often told me I was too shy, but it was the proud Waskee way."

Helmi waited until the middle of the month. Still no letter, no word. There was no use going to the postoffice. The same answer was inevitable "Nothing today." She could hear it all the time, beating, beating on a sore spot in her heart. But always she had been able to make and something, words she had prepared on the way down.

One day she went to the stuffy little mine office and spoke to the timekeeper about the wages Jack had not taken. The timekeeper sat in his shirt-sleeves mashing out his accounts. The place reeked of stale tobacco, and dust lay gray on the windows still. Quite frankly Helmi explained her reason for going to the city.

The timekeeper looked confused and embarrassed. "I'm awful sorry, Helmi," he said, "but it looks as if there has been a mistake here some place. There was two hundred dollars owing to Jack when he left, but a man came one day with an order from Jack and I gave him the money. He said when Jack got to Peace River he found there were some things he needed. It was about a week after Jack left, if I remember—I have the order here, if you would like to see it. You see, I didn't know you would be wantin' it, or anything, or I would have refused this fellow, but he had the order and I couldn't very well do anything but pay the money over."

Extract From a Letter Sent By a Soldier To His Wife

The following graciously preserved extract from a love letter written home to his wife by a soldier on active service will evoke tender memories in thousands of our former service men:

"Don't send me no more nagging letters, Lettie. They don't do no good I'm three thousand miles away from home, and I want to enjoy this war in peace."

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If the name Bayer appears, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Aspirin—at any druggists—with proven directions.

REV. D. C. RAMSEY INDUCTEDAS PASTOR OF FIRST UNITED CHURCH

The Rev. D. C. Ramsey, M.A., was inducted to the pastorate of the First United church at Fort Saskatchewan last Friday evening. There was a large representation of the Fort and Patricia congregations present and the impressive ceremony made a pleasant impression on all.

Rev. Russell McGillivray, B.A., B.D., Central United church, Edmonton, introduced Mr. Ramsey and Rev. Gaine, McDougall church, Edmonton, delivered the address to the congregation. Rev. Hargith, B.A., of the Highlands, Edmonton, addressed Rev. Ramsey. Rev. Farrel, chairman of the Edmonton Presbytery, was also present to welcome Mr. Ramsey as a new member of the Edmonton Presbytery.

Refreshments were served after the service and a social time enjoyed.

LADY CURLERS WHIST DRIVE SUCCESSFUL

There was a large crowd at the whist drive Tuesday night arranged by the members of the ladies' curling club. There were twenty-five tables and space was limited in the buffet room of the Memorial hall. Though late in starting everybody was happy and, as our old acquaintance Bob Edwards used to say in his "Eyeopener," "a good time was had by all." Prizes were won by Miss Olive Lees, Mrs. Lane and Messrs. H. Oxley and Jos Macdonald. Refreshments were served while the secretaries examined the score cards. President A. M. Carscadden presented the prizes for the drive and also the prizes won in the hospital contest at last week. Skips who trotted up for their trophies were D. E. R. Ewer, J. S. Wright, Earl Graham, Jos Macdonald H. Thoms. J. S. Wright obligingly presented prizes to president Carscadden, who won the Grand Challenge.

In addition to the drive the lady curlers held a tea and sale of home cooking in the afternoon, which was also popular, the two events yielding a profit of a sum amounting to around $50.00, which will be turned over to the curling club.

PLANS MADE FOR CAPT. DANCEY'S ADDRESSES

Plans are now complete for the big community day on Wednesday, March 21st, when Fort Saskatchewan will have as its guest and speaker of the day, Captain S. N. Dancey, who comes under the auspices of the Canadian Legion.

All local organizations are co-operating, in fine spirit, with the veterans in making the day the success that it should be and fully in keeping with the high standard set by Alberta communities.

Captain Dancey will talk to the pupils of the high school and upper grades in the morning and in the afternoon there will be a meeting of the women at 3 o'clock. The Women's Institute is in charge of this program but a general invitation has been broadcast to all women's organizations and women generally. At this time, Captain Dancey will discuss

Canada's Future

Canadians should take a big view of their country and its future. There should be nothing narrow nor small in their conception of the Dominion present or future, but rather our vision should be broad, large and courageous. The individual man who persists in looking out on life through blue spectacles, who can never see any possibility or success ahead because of obstacles in the path, who is forever contrasting his inferior position with that of a more successful neighbor, will be a failure. And what is true of the individual is equally true of a nation.

The habit indulged in by some Canadians, both in public and private life, of comparing Canada with its sixty years of history as a confederated unit with the United States with its 150 years of union, and Canada with its ten millions of people with the more than one hundred and ten millions in the United States, is just as absurd as it would be for a merchant established one year in business and with five employees to complain that his business turn-over was not equal to that of another merchant with a business of many years' standing and a staff of employees ten times as large. Yet many people persist in comparing Canada of today with the United State of today instead of comparing Canada with the United States when that country was of the same age or had approximately the same population.

Comparing Canada with the present United States gives the latter the advantage, but the advantage is all with Canada when it is compared with the United States at the same age or with an equal population. Even making full and ample allowance for changed conditions resulting from science and inventions, discoveries and advancements of all kinds, the contrast is decidedly and greatly in Canada's favor.

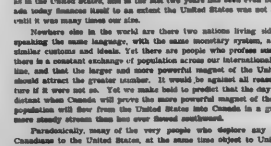
For example, it was not until the United States had a population of seventy-five millions of people that its trade reached the figure which Canada now enjoys with ten millions of population. When the United States had a population only equal to that of Canada today, it did not cut much of a world figure; it was not a leader in any department of world production or commerce; rather it was engaged in the pioneer task of its own domestic development, and it would have been just as reasonable to decry the United States and its future then because it did not measure up to the older countries of Europe, as it is now to decry Canada and its future because it has not already attained to the stature of the United States.

Young in years and small in population, Canada is today a real factor in world affairs. It has outstripped the United States and all other countries in the manufacture of paper, it has become the world's greatest exporter of wheat, it is the chief source of the world's supply of nickel and asbestos, year by year it is overtaking the United States in the production of gold and in not near far behind. For some years past employment has been as general as in the United States, and in the last two years has been even better. Canada today finances itself to an extent the United States was not able to do until it was many times over size.

Nowhere else in the world are there two nations living side by side, speaking the same language, with the same monetary system, and having similar customs and ideals. Yet there are people who profess surprise that there is a constant exchange of population across our international boundary line, and that the larger and more powerful magnet of the United States should attract the greater number. It would be a surprise to us if the reverse were not so. Yet we make bold to predict that the day is not far distant when Canada will prove the more powerful magnet of the two, and population will flow from the United States into Canada in a greater and more steady stream than has ever flowed northward.

Paradoxically, many of the very people who deplore any exodus of Canadians to the United States, at the same time object to United States people and capital coming to Canada because of a fear that Canada will thus become Americanized. Others object to Canadian capital being invested in the United States or other countries, claiming it should be kept at home for investment and development purposes.

In all this is to be seen an attitude of doubt, of fear, a spirit of "little Canadianism," expressive of an inability to stand on one's own feet. It is an attitude which, were it at all general, would inevitably drive the self-reliant, forward-looking youth of Canada out of the country. Such people would do well to throw away their blue spectacles, and realize that Canada is on the map of the progressive nations of the world to stay. They should become intoxicated with the considered opinion of the Prince of Wales who recently declared: "Canada is on the threshold of one of the most astonishing eras of expansion and development ever seen. Exactly how long that will take none of us know, but certainly it will occur in the lifetime of many of us."



What most people call indigestion is usually caused solid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use soda baths. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 99 years since its invention it has remained the standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in 10-cent, or hospital, 25-cent size.

One teaspoon spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, even in bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with mere acid in the crude ways. Or leave it—why this method is so prompt.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Don't accept substitutes for 99 years in succession. Always say Phillips' when buying. Genuine has name plainly printed on bottle. Buy druggists.

Northern Saskatchewan Development

Provincial Government Is Planning To Aid Mineral Prospectors

The new department of industries of the Saskatchewan Government is planning to aid mineral prospectors in the northern sections of the province in conjunction with the Dominion Government, aerial surveys will be continued, and it is hoped that the whole north-eastern mineral area will be thoroughly surveyed and reduced to geographical maps by the end of next year. The department is getting itself in the position whereby it can be of every assistance to the prospector and investor. At the present time there is very little accurate information of Saskatchewan northern mineral areas. Recognizing that great development can be looked for both in these areas and the western mining areas of Northern Manitoba, the provincial department is speeding up aerial mapping of the territory as well as the plans for its own provincial activities in the coming season. The assistance to be rendered by the staff of the department to prospectors will be directed to the disposal of the prospector to the best advantage. We will also give every possible assistance," said Mr. Spence, "at no cost to himself to get him through our experts at the university and do everything possible to place him in the position of developing any proposition which appears to have evidence of successful working out. To the prohibited and important will be prepared to offer to assist in developing water powers and coal fields and to co-operate in every way."

Growth Of Wheat Pool

Now Has a Membership Of 140,000 Farmers

The most recently compiled returns show that the Canadian Wheat Pool has a membership of 140,000 farmers with a wheat acreage under contract of 15,000,000 in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The Pool operates 943 country grain elevators with a total capacity of 30,000,000 bushels and ten terminal elevators with a total capacity of 35,000,000 bushels. During the last crop year the Pool shipped 124,000,000 bushels of grain to 24 countries through 68 ports of the world, 58,000,000 of which went to the British Isles.

Canadian Nationality

To the continuous national protest against the [illegible] of census statisticians in refusing to recognize such a thing as a "Canadian" nationality, the government must pay heed. It is absurd to style a child whose grandfather was an Englishman, married to a Frenchwoman, whose father was born in Canada and married a Swedish woman, as Anglo-Irish. The lad is a Canadian, content only in standing to the North American Indian.—Western Professor.

Widely Known Horseman From Brampton Will Reside In Saskatchewan

W. J. McCallum, the widely known horseman of Brampton, Calgary, and Regina, Saskatchewan, has completed arrangements whereby he will permanently reside in Regina and have his stables there as a distributing point. Mr. McCallum entered over 100 horses at the Royal Show, Toronto, last fall, filling three stables with his own importations. No exhibitor ever won so many championships and prizes as he won at that show.

Excursion To Sweden

Many Are Planning To Revisit Native Lands On the Baltic Sea

Rev. Oscar Gunnerfelt, of Winnipeg, is organizing a special midsummer excursion to Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Finland, which is to leave Winnipeg about May 14, by Canadian National Railways, and will sail from New York May 21, on the S.S. Drottningholm. Already quite a number of applications have been received for reservations, and it is expected that a large party from Western Canada and Minnesota and North Dakota will take advantage of this opportunity of revisiting their native lands on the Baltic sea.

Curious New Lifeboat

Invention Of Ship's Carpenter Said To Be Unsinkable

A ship's carpenter, after 60 years at his trade, has invented a new lifeboat of a very curious kind.

It is practically two broad, shallow boats fixed bottom to bottom so that as one half is capsized the other half is righted. It is said, however, to be practically impossible to capsize it, still more to sink it. In the double bottom are valves which will let the water out but will not let it in whichever way up the boat is; and there are tanks for fresh water and food which can be punched whichever side of the boat may be uppermost.

Commander Byrd Sketches Plans For His Proposed Dash To The South Pole This Fall

Reclining in an easy chair at the Governors' mansion at Richmond, Virginia, Commander Richard Evelyn Byrd pictured the time when he would be camped on a stationary footing, 2,500 miles from the nearest human dwelling, on his projected exploration trip to Antarctica region.

Commander Byrd said his expedition would sail south in September, 1928. He expects to return by June, 1930, though there was a possibility, he said, that he might be detained a year.

New Zealand is to be the first stop of the adventurer and his men. They cross the voyage for the Ross ice barrier, 1,200 miles to the south.

The base of the expedition will be at the Bay of Whales, where Amundsen had his headquarters, according to present plans.

"This is 2,000 miles from the nearest human dwelling—the farthest people have ever lived from civilization," Commander Byrd said, "and there we shall establish a small village.

"After making camp, we shall establish several sub bases about 100 miles apart on the way to the South Pole. These will be necessary, for in the event of a forced landing we shall be able to hike to a food supply.

"The final flight to the Pole will be the most hazardous. In addition to the radio, we shall use a kite to keep in touch with the base. As the South Pole is on the last plateau, 10,000 feet high, landing will be difficult. The air at the height of two miles has but one-half the resistance that it requires a great deal of power to take a plane off the ground and we shall load each plane at least 1,200 gallons of gasoline and 1,000 pounds of emergency equipment. Our landing speed must be fast."

For the flight to the Pole a big monoplane with three engines and a wing spread of 78 feet, probably will be used, the Virginia aviator said. In addition, the expedition will carry two single engine monoplanes of the type used by Chamberlain on his trans-Atlantic flight. Radio will be used to keep in constant touch with civilization and to "see ship," with a hooved ball and two projecting timbers to push aside floes in being constructed. Fifty-four men, including a dozen experts, will make the trip. Floyd Bennett, who accompanied Byrd to the North Pole, will be second in command.

Maps of the polar regions will be made of everything encountered by the scientific data brought back to civilization. The frozen area to be explored is larger than the United States and Mexico combined.

"Science is the hour so long as there is a large, unexplored area in the world," Byrd said. "This trip is primarily for scientific purposes and I regard whatever hazards encountered as justified by the increase in man's knowledge which the expedition will make possible."

Million Bushel Elevator At Canal

A contract has been awarded for the construction of a million bushel grain elevator for the Fraser River Elevator Company on the Fraser River near New Westminster, B.C. The elevator will be located on the south side of the river on a spur of the Canadian National Railways. The contract price is $400,000.

To Improve Quality Of Canadian Barley

Conference In Ottawa Attended By Representatives From Province

Preliminary steps for improving the quality and broadening the market for Canadian barley were taken at a conference held here in Ottawa under the direction of Dr. J. H. Grisdale, deputy minister of agriculture. All the prairie provinces were represented.

A committee has been appointed to investigate the question of securing the varieties and strains best suited to the different localities where barley can be profitably grown.

The committee includes L. S. Newman, Dominion cerealist and Professor T. J. Harrison, of the Manitoba Agricultural College, Winnipeg.

A seed committee also was appointed with Major H. G. L. Strange, of Foss, Alta., as a member, while a barley markets extension committee was formed, composed of L. H. Newman and Professor Grant, of Winnipeg.

Several of the delegates stressed the importance of barley growing where wheat and oats could not be successfully grown and recommendations made for adopting new barley grades. A committee was appointed to see what could be done by seedsmen to the Canada Grain Act which would provide grades for malting barley.

LARGER EQUIPMENT REDUCES FARM LABOR

Farmers Should Keep This In Mind When Replacing Implements

The economical use of farm labor is essential to profitable farming. Labor is often needlessly wasted because farmers have not calculated the hours of manual labor that they could save by using, on farms having a sufficient acreage, implements drawn by three or four horses instead of two, says an Experimental Farms Note.

In many cases the time of a man could be saved by using, for example, a two or three-furrow plough, mower, disc section harrows, or a double cultivator. For the cutting and binding of hay or grain, much labor could be economized through the use of larger implements, as these implements are ordinarily used during several days each year.

On a 300 acre farm where a 5-year rotation is followed and of which 150 acres are needed to carry on other hoed crops, 65 acres to grain and 20 acres to hay, an average of 800 to 900 hours of man labor equal to 80 to 90 ten hour days can be saved yearly solely through the use of more powerful implements.

The labor which is saved could be used for other lines of work which are often neglected because of the lack of time, or the tilled area might be extended and thus increase the farmer's income. In most cases it would not be necessary to increase the number of horses on the farm for such a change.

It is readily understood that the farmer who already owns a complete set of agricultural equipment is not ready to scrap it as a whole in order to buy larger implements, but as he gradually replaces his equipment, he would be wise to consider the advisability of buying, even at an increased cost, three or four-horse rather than two-horse machines.

A Dual Source Of Wealth

Coal Mines and Clay Deposits In Southern Saskatchewan

A new coal mine has been opened up recently in the Estevan district, Southern Saskatchewan. The coal seam is several feet deep and carries an overburden of valuable commercial clay. The mine is being operated by a force of practical miners, and the coal retails at $3 per ton to local farmers who haul it from the pit. Clays from twenty-two different deposits in Southern Saskatchewan are now being tested at the laboratories of the provincial university to determine their suitability for the manufacture of whitewares. This classification includes such products as household ware, electrical porcelains and floor and wall tile.

Fame Of The Dominion As An Ideal Vacation Land Has Been Spread Far And Wide

Much has been said in recent years relative to the variety and extent of Canada's recreational resources. The annual national income derived from such resources, although hard to estimate accurately, is one which compares favorably with the annual values of the products of her forests, of her mines, fisheries or any other industry. In addition to hooping abroad with other progressive countries in the field of commercial activities, Canada has established a world-wide reputation as being a charming holiday land where practically all forms of recreation are available at moderate cost to the visitor. There are few records in the annals of Canadian development more interesting or more remarkable than those of the manner in which the accessible importance of the Dominion's recreational features has grown in recent years.

Not the least among the many changes in the conditions of modern life are those resulting from the development of the automobile as a means of transportation. As amazing as the increase in the volume of holiday movement has been witnessed during the last few years and the automobile has played a large part in this regard; it is no longer considered a luxury of the rich but is rapidly becoming a necessity for the man in moderate circumstances.

Some idea of the extraordinary growth of the holiday traffic may be gained from a comparison of the records of touring automobiles entering Canada over a period of years. Between 1919 and 1926 the number of cars receiving permits to enter the Dominion for a period of 30 days rose from 89,000 to 560,000 and those entering for twenty-four hours increased from 177,000 to over 1,500,000. The number entering for a period of from one to six months also shows a substantial increase. Aside from the remarkable increase of motor tourists, railway and steamship lines each year add enormous numbers to the thousands who holiday in Canada. Including the even wider field than the automobile these organizations have spread the Dominion's fame as an ideal vacation land far and wide.

The vast numbers who annually visit Canada by automobile can find opportunity to spend part or all of their vacation in territory extending beyond the usual avenues for travel. In keeping with the desire of many who wish to visit newer fields and in order to provide facilities for easy and convenient travel, many highways have been constructed which now enable the tourist to reach beautiful inland country. In some instances nearly explored. There are now over 150,000 miles of improved roads in Canada. In addition to the vast mileage, which is kept in good condition throughout the touring season and in some districts available to the motorist during the whole year, there are many thousands of miles of other roads quite suitable for general motor traffic. Leading to practically all places of interest in the populated areas of the Dominion these motor roads contribute largely toward the development of her recreational resources.

Fine countries in the world possess such magnificent and diversified natural scenery or such inviting summer and winter vacation areas as Canada. Fortunate indeed the inhabitants of the large cities of American nature has bounteously provided immense playgrounds in her wide expanses of mountain, lakeland, forest, and river. National and Provincial parks covering an area in the neighborhood of 25,000 square miles and ranging from the Atlantic seaboard to the Pacific coast are all easily accessible either by rail or motor road or both and provide the tourist with exceptional opportunities for varied recreation. The mountain fastnesses, camper or canoeist will find in Canada's hinterland great stretches of moderate circumstances.

Banking Week on N.B. Road

Good Progress Has Been Made Since Beginning of the Winter Months

Work has been prosecuted all winter on the railway now under construction from the Hudson Bay Railway to the Flin Flon mining area in Northern Manitoba, and railways have been laid for a distance of thirty-five miles. It is stated that the survey of this line will be continued to Pukl Lake, a distance of twenty-five miles beyond the Flin Flon mines, with the intention of extending the road to that point. The line to Flin Flon is to be completed for operation by December 31. Work on the Hudson Bay Railway from Limestone Rapids to Port Churchill has also been carried on during the winter, and good progress has been made in clearing the right-of-way and getting things in shape for an early start by the graders. When on the harbor at Churchill has also been going on all winter, so that there will be permanent docking accommodation for ships by the time the railway has been completed.

The Sun Life

More Firmly Established On a Sound and Financial Basis Than Ever Before

One of the most encouraging signs of the times for Canada is the substantial progress that continues to be made by our great banking and insurance institutions. The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada has done record business during the past year and its position is today more firmly established upon a sound financial basis than ever before in its history. When Canadians reflect upon the strength and solidity of their banks and their insurance companies, the desire that these shall always remain Canadian is apparent, as is indeed in the highest interests of the nation that they should never pass under foreign control. Ample native capital, but not to be devoted to shallowing up our national identity.

NEW STRENGTH FOR ALL WEAK GIRLS

Comes From the Rich, Red Blood Made By Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

There must be no guesswork in the treatment of the weakness from which children if your daughter is languid has a pale, sallow complexion, short breath after slight exertion or going up stairs, if she has palpitation of the heart, poor appetite or a tendency to faint, she has something the matter with her, for poverty of the blood. Any delay in treatment invites grave risks to her health in the rest of her life. When the blood is thin and watery give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, coupled with nourishing food and gentle outdoor exercise. The new, rich blood which they create from a fair start of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in a short time, stimulates the nerves and brings a glow of health to pale cheeks, and the doctor's treatment did not help her. I tried several remedies, but with no good results. One day a friend advised me to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I did so. It was not very long after she began taking the pills that I noticed a change for the better. She kept on taking the pills for several months, and through them grew into a strong, healthy girl. Since then, if a tonic has been needed at any time, it has always been Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

The Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Lesson Mark 7:1-23.

Devotional Reading Psalm 51:1-6

Explanations and Comments

I. The Tradition Of the Elders Violated By the Disciple (vv. 1-5).

Certain Pharisees and scribes had come from Jerusalem for the express purpose no doubt of observing disciples which they could find occasion to censure. They noted that the disciples took without first washing their hands and ate that the washing of hands described ceremonially unclean because unwashed.

For the benefit of his Gentile readers who were not familiar with Jewish customs Mark here explains that they did not give particular attention to the washing of hands as a religious duty. Before eating the Jews washed their hands diligently and so did the others. Herbert Vereish (Ph. was not because the hands were unclean, but because they were in close contact with the market place where they would come in contact with heathen who they regarded as unclean especially on the Sabbath's coming. They kept also all the public rules as to the washing of utensils of pots and brazen vessels.

The Jews held the tradition of the elders in Charles H. Dodman reads the story of an Israelite-devil who was allowed the most unusual amount of bread and water for his daily ration, and who saved the life for bribing his guards instead of drinking it saying that hell could be than transgress the institutions of his ancestors.

"Pantheism is easily awakened in the heart of the Christian. The Church of Rome the ecclesiastical regulations of the Jewish Scribes, or the religion of the child, and the monastic vows, are evidences of a greater severity in the original requirements of the Gospel. The Roman Church, accepting the principle of Tradition, has made the precepts of men into doctrines to such a degree that the New Testament is rightly regarded as a danger to the laity. A passage like the one before us is subversive of Roman teaching."—R. F. Horton.

WINTER CROQUPED

2 cups milk.
6 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup sugar.
1½ squares chocolate.
½ teaspoon vanilla.
½ teaspoon salt.

Mix dry ingredients, make into thin smooth paste with a little milk. Add to heated milk in top of double boiler. Add melted chocolate. Stir to prevent lumps. Cook 30 minutes. Add vanilla and pour into molds rinsed in cold water. Chill, serve with cream or whipped cream.

FUFF-BALLS

1 egg white.
4 oranges.
½ cup powdered sugar.

Peel small oranges, removing white membrane with outer skin. Add egg white, slightly, using wire whisk; add sugar, gradually, and continue beating until meringue is light and will hold its shape. Thrust a long slender wire skewer through the centre of each orange; first then completely with the meringue, and support them, by the skewers, across a narrow pan, and bake twelve minutes in a slow oven, being careful not to let them brown. Twist skewers gently to remove them. These oranges make a pretty dessert or supper dish.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation, diarrhoea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

SITUATION IN THE NEAR EAST LOOKS OMINOUS

London.—The storm note which Great Britain presented to Egypt, stating in effect that the British will not grant full independence to that country at present has been coupled with the "body war" in Arabia to create a situation which may affect British relations throughout the Near East to the borders of India.

Despatches from Egypt assert that the political situation there is fraught with confusion, uncertainty, and excitement. Egypt is without a cabinet, but the Nationalist leader, Nahas Pasha, after an hour's audience with King Fuad, declared that constitutional governments would be formed as long as the constitution exists.

Thirty Bills Were Put Through In Final Session

Regina.—With traditional dignity and solemnity His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Newlands prorogued the third session of the sixth Saskatchewan Legislative Assembly since January 21 thirty, three sittings were held during the session, including 11 night sittings, four morning sittings and 17 Saturday sittings.

The closing ceremony came after a long busy day during which more than 30 bills were put through the closing stages and passed one of the last items of business transacted by the House was the passing of supplementary estimates totalling $1,118,515 to cover expenditures already incurred. These were put through with little interruption, except a question now and again as to how the money was spend. An item of $11,500 was required for the Power Commission's work. The main items were $4,000 for the Treasury including capital for the Provincial Printing Bureau, $2,500 for the Provincial Institute for the Blind and $2,000 for Freight Rates Inquiry. Salaries for the staff of the Normal School and for the Educational Department, $57,220 for the public health, deputy head, set in additional $24,200 was voted for the indemnities for members of the Legislature up to $2,800 a year from $1,800, to provide $3,000 for leaders of the Opposition and to give the Premier an increase of salary from $4,000 to $5,000. The latter increases were discussed a day or two ago when it was pointed out that Premier Latchewan received less than his colleagues in any legislature west of the Maritime Provinces, and Howard Connell, the member for Rosthern, declared Premier Latchewan, while the hardest worked man in the province, was poorly paid when there was no reason for the province is no big one.

New Discovery At Flin Flon

Another Ore Body Located Said To Be Important

Toronto.—Reports from Flin Flon in the Pukl Lake district, where gold has been located south of the main ore body. It is stated that the new find is of considerable importance.

Development work is being pushed forward energetically. On the 400-foot level a crosscut 240 feet in width has been drifted on for a length of approximately 300 feet. The average value obtained has been 2 per cent. copper and some zinc, but some sections are of much higher grade, one of 28 feet width running between 8 and 6 per cent. copper.

The work of preparing a new township is well under way, and sites have been selected for the concentrator and smelter. The present camp buildings will be removed to make room for the new plant.

Banking System Discussed

Government Inspector Says Nothing Wrong With Present System

Ottawa.—C. H. Cunningham, government inspector general of banks, appeared before the House of Commons committee on banking and commerce and submitted to questions by the members. The banking system, as it existed, and the needs of the country, he told the committee. Of course, from time to time changes were necessary but by and large the system had very splendid working with the exception of the Home Bank crash. Now, however, permission for the exhibition has been refused by the Lord Chancellor, the Earl of Cromer with whom the decision on the matter rests.

Sterilize Feeble Minded'

Edmonton.—Following one of the stormiest passages that any measure before the Alberta House has been associated with, the Sexual Sterilization Bill was given third reading and will be put into effect as soon as it has been assented to by the Lieutenant-governor. By the action of the legislature, Alberta becomes the first province in the Dominion of Canada to undertake sterilization of the feeble-minded.

Gift For Medical Research

Stockholm.—At the request of the monarch himself, Sweden's birthday gift to King Gustav V. will be devoted to work for suppression of cancer. A national subscription for the fund in honor of the king's 70th birthday, June 16, has been started, and the king has accepted in advance, on the promise that the money be used for medical research.

Government Bill Criticized

One Day's Rest in Seven Bill Does Not Please Manitoba Laborites

Winnipeg, Thursday.—It was given second reading the Bracken Government's bill for one day's rest in seven for certain employees was severely criticized by the Labor and Conservative leaders in the legislature.

Under the bill, declared John Queen, Labor leader, the bill only applied to employees already getting one day's rest in seven Mr. Queen described the bill as "a bluff," the work of an unsympathetic industrial trainee.

"The bill," said Mr. Queen, "applied to piano and organ factories, though there were none in the province. Why not, on the same principle, apply it to shipbuilding, the building of dreadnaughts and submarines? Let us have a real act, when we are at it."

Flight Destructive Insects

Ottawa.—The fight against the destructive insects which prey upon the farmers' crops was described by Arthur Gibson, Dominion entomologist, to the convention of the Canadian Horticultural Council here. The use of the aeroplane for dusting in an endeavor to rid the crops and soil of insects was also suggested. Last year and proved quite promising

Nothing but praise for the sportsmanship of Old Country people was expressed by the Waratahs, New South Wales, Australia Rugby Team, when they arrived in Canada recently on the Canadian Pacific Steamship Melita. During their nine months' tour of Great Britain and France, where they played 33 games with record crowds in attendance, sometimes exceeding fifty thousand, they much appreciated the sportsmanlike behavior of spectators.

R. Gordon Shaw, manager of the team, said: "The British crowds were about the most fair-minded and unprejudiced I have ever seen. It is rather ever gave a decision that you perhaps a shade on the doubtful side in our favor, there were never any demonstrations of discontent. I have nothing but unstinted admiration for the whole-hearted sportsmanship of our treatment on the other side."

Escape Death When Airplane Crashes

Eight Passengers On London To Paris Flight Were Unharmed

London Eight passengers of an aeroplane flying from Paris to London had a remarkable escape when the machine crashed in a field near the Lympne airdrome in Kent Baroness Von Tui Cate's Kavanagh, of the House, was cut in the face by glass, but the other passengers were uninjured.

Trouble was experienced when the plane reached the French coast, and its speed was reduced. Near the airdrome the left wing suddenly dipped, and the plane spiralled rapidly toward the earth. It crashed and bounced several times after the wing struck the ground. The passengers were jolted all over the place and the baggage tumbled about.

The one-armed, the pilot, Roger Maury, climbed out of the cockpit, rejoined the passengers their bolt and scrambled to safety, feeling the machine might catch fire as both engines were stopped.

Later Lieut Maury explained that a valve spring in one of the engines had apparently broken

Infant Princess Dies

Six Months' Old Daughter Of Emperor Of Japan Succumbs

Tokio, Japan.—The six months old daughter of Emperor Hirohito of Japan, is dead. "Complications following pneumonia," was assigned as the cause of the death of the little royal baby, who had been critically ill for several days.

The child was originally attacked by influenza, from which the emperor himself also suffered, together with thousands of Japanese people. It was announced that the emperor was convalescent.

At the bedside of little Princess Hisa were the Empress and other members of the royal family. Tiere will be no official mourning as the child was under seven years of age, and no public mourning. Interment will be under Hisato rites at Asakawa, near Tokio, where the late Emperor Teishe is buried

Mine Chief Admits Laxity

Hollinger Disaster Due To Order Not Being Enforced

Timmins, Ont. Charles Williams, Hollingers' general superintendent, admitted to the Royal Commission inquiring into the Hollinger disaster, that there was a "very bad slip up" from himself down to the transportation men, when his orders about disposal of powder house rubbish had been disregarded.

Instead of putting the rubbish in the waste pans or else mixed with rocks in the stopes, it had been put in the stopes without any rock, and as a result had started the fire which snuffed out the lives of 39 miners.

Williams could not say who was responsible. Williams said he knew of no one who could give further information when it was suggested the commission adjourn so that it might conduct an inquiry there

REPORT TELLS OF SEARCH MADE FOR AVIATORS

Ottawa. — Beacon's burning on mountain tops and rockets were used to spread the news of the seeming tragedy all over the North land, and officers of the Royal Canadian Air Force did all that was humanly possible to locate Flying Officer Lewis, Flight Sergeant Terry and the fifth—"Bobby" when they were missing, according to the latest radio reports to reach Ottawa from the Hudson Bay Route, Sqaudron-Leader T. A. Lawrence, of Ottawa, who has charge of the R.C.A.F. detachments in the north, detailed areas covered by aeroplane and dog team. Every section of Ungava and Ungava Bay within an area of 300 miles were searched. Dog teams and Eskimos were sent out to establish caches of fuel and supplies, and to warn Hudson's Bay posts and Eskimo villages that the airmen were missing.

Beacons were kept going from a high point behind the Port Burwell base at night. Flares and distress signals were fired off until this had to be suspended through shortage of fuel and flares.

Squadron Leader Lawrence tells of the part played by Flight-Lieutenants Carr-Harris, Carruthers and A. A. Leitch, Winnipeg, in the search, and adds, "great credit is due to members of the Hudson's Bay Limited Police, Mr. C. Ford, manager of the Hudson's Bay Company's post at Port Burwell, Capt. W. Hall and crew of the C.G.M.M. steamship Canadian Raider and the natives of the whole district for their untiring assistance in the search and rescue parties. Personnel have now entirely recovered from their harrowing experiences."

It is said circles have followed the plane which the three men were forced to abandon will be washed up on the shores of Labrador or Newfoundland in due course, or the wreckage picked up at sea. The ice on which it was deserted may bring it southward by the Labrador current, and it would thus probably remain visible on the surface of the ocean for several months at least.

Woman Liberal Elected in Britain

Mrs. Walter Runciman Successful In Newcastle Election

Penzance, Eng.—The first woman Liberal in the present British Parliament and the first woman elected with Liberal support since the Liberal-Conservative combination in the House of Commons have resulted from the recent by-election in Saint Ives.

Mrs. Walter Runciman, wife of the Liberal member for Swansea West, not only became the first woman Liberal in the present body, but succeeded in capturing the St. Ives constituency from the Conservatives.

The district formerly was a Liberal stronghold, but returned a Conservative at the last general election in 1924.

Mr. Runciman, who is a prominent figure in the Liberal party, actively supported his wife's candidacy.

Boy Inherits Millions

Young Son Of New York Millionaire Receives Legacy

New York.—A five-year-old boy today had joined the ranks of America's multi-millionaires. Edward Cornard, 3rd, of Glenridge, N.J., is to receive at least two-thirds of the more than $1,000,000 estate of his father, J. Montgomery Cornard, late head of the Cornard Shoe Stores, who died in Havana recently.

Part of the fortune which the five-year-old boy inherits is $1,000,000 from an insurance company policy his father took out last July. Mr. Cornard was 38 years old.

Want Holiday November 11

Ottawa.—"In view of the request of the Canadian Legion, is it the intention of the Government to declare November 11 (Armistice Day), a National Holiday?" asked H. J. Burber, Conservative, Fraser Valley, in the House of Commons. He was informed that the matter is still under consideration.

CURLING

Four rinks of lady curlers met in friendly games a like number of ladies at the Granite rink, Edmonton, last Thursday. Very enjoyable games resulted in which two rinks won and two lost, the total number of points, however, being in favor of the Fort ladies, who obtained 53 to their opponent's 37. Tea was served in the club rooms. The Fort rinks were:

Mrs. Taylor, skip, Mrs. Lees, Mrs. Buckley, Mrs. A. M. Carscallen.

Mrs. Henry, skip, Mrs. Harper, Mrs. Decker, Mrs. McLaughton.

Mrs. Wright, skip, Mrs. Flintoff, Mrs. Hadden, Mrs. Frey.

Miss Olive Walker, skip, Mrs. McLellan, Mrs. Edgar, Mrs. Baker.

Transportation facilities were provided by Mrs. Bacon, Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Lane and the lady curlers are exceedingly grateful to them for the use of their cars.

The high school pupils engaged in a bonspiel of their own last Saturday which kept most of them occupied from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and occasioned much screams of muscle and weariness of body. The event finally narrowed down to a final between the Chevalier boys, S. of that ilk triumphing over A. in the final. Winners and runners-up received a box of chocolates each. Rinks were: S. Chevalier, skip, Connie Turner, R. B. Bignal, Mary Oxley, A. Chevalier, skip, Jessy Geof, Alfred Frey, Annie Bowden.

U.S. Investment Abroad

World's Debt To the United States Receives Huge Total

The world's debt to United States investors, approximately $25,000,000,000, is more than $5,000,000,000 greater than was owed to Great Britain when British foreign investments were at their peak, Dr. Max Winkler said in a report prepared for the Foreign Policy Association.

Exclusive of the so-called political obligations held by the United States Government, American investments in foreign securities in the first of the year aggregated about $14,500,000,000 American holdings in Europe approximately $4,227,000,000, exceeded those in any part of the world. Canadian holdings by Americans are about $3,972,000,000; South American $2,266,500,000; Central American $2,924,000,000; Far Eastern, $276,500,000, and miscellaneous, $62,500,000.

The names that came over Helmi made her sway uncertainly, but she caught the back of a chair and managed to say, "Oh! it is all right, Jack left me lots of money, I really do not need it. I just thought I had better take it with me." She was holding her lips very tightly so they would not tremble. She even smiled wrinkling very quickly to keep the tears back. "I expect to meet Jack in the city," she resumed. "He has forgotten to mention to me that I sent for the money, but it is quite all right. I have plenty. Goodbye, Mr. Hamilton. It looks like snow, does it not?"

Helmi turned away quickly. The timekeeper called her back. "Say, Helmi," he began awkwardly, "don't think I am buttin' in or the like of that, but I just wanted to out you wise. That old bird at Canadaruria at Hanneerman has been shootin' off his mouth. It seems he claims he knows a lot about you. He says—Oh, well, I don't need to repeat what he says—he is drunk most of the time, and nobody should mind a word he says, but he declares you and Jack ain't legally married at all, and he insinuates that Jack sent o' tipped him off. Oh, I don't know that he has said much of it, but I just wanted to warn you to hang onto your certificate, and then in case of a frame-up you have the dockyment on them all. You have the certificate, have you not?"

Helmi nodded, her heart was beating in her throat so painfully she was afraid he would see it.

"Well, then, you're all to the good. But I just thought I would warn you up on what was goin' round. We're all for you, Helmi—you know that!"

Helmi thanked him without knowing what she was saying and got out of the office some way. The little man looked after her with kindly eyes, all red-lidded eyes, staring and pointing at her; voices whispering closing in on her as if they would stifle and choking. The mountains were gladly grind her to powder, and the river that rose was the worst of all as it ran slithering by so green and deep and cold. A man had drowned himself at one of the other mines last week because his wife had taken his money and run away, and now Helmi knew that wasn't the reason at all. It was because the river had taunted him so, and mocked him, and dared him, and driven him to it

Helmi reached her own house, and, going in, shut and bolted the door as she must think! A basin of water stood on the box. She buried her hot face in it to try to stop the tears and cries thrusting in her eyes. The heart-beat in her throat seemed to choke her

"Oh, Aunt Lil! Aunt Lil!"

But it could not be. Her Jack Dorsan was a good man. God was good. She sought the Blue Book anxiously

"Oh! to be a girl and see
Beauty in flower and bird and tree,
To pass through, strong and pure and good,
The gate which leads to womanhood."

She read it all with a heart that grew heavier and heavier. It was not for her at all. She was no longer a girl. She was a woman, with a woman's heartache, old as the world, black as midnight, and deep as the deepest sea.

And with all the hosts of heaven and all the ministering angels around the throne, there was no eye to pity and no arm to save not one.

Yes, there was one. A dog whimpered at her door, and instinctively Helmi arose to let it in. A very big and wistful looking sable collie, with a clouted rope hanging from her collar entered timidly. It was the dog that Arthur Warner had given away and that had been kept tied up by her new owner, in the hope she would forget her old master.

Today she had made her escape and found her way to Helmi's door, determined by her eager looks to know where her master was. Helmi tried to explain in both languages, but in vain. Then she offered her food, which she refused, still begging Helmi to tell her the truth.

The collie made no response to Helmi's attempts to comfort her, and having convinced herself that her master was not in this house, she sniffed only one thing, her freedom. She would take to the open road again. She would be on her way. Helmi, knowing what was in her heart, felt the hopelessness of the quest, endeavored to keep her, but she knew she was hating her for holding her back from her only chance. At last, with her heart sore for the dog's trouble, as well as her own, she tied a thick piece of bacon to her collar, knowing she would follow the scent with her nose when she wanted to, then opened the door and let her go. She ran straight to the station.

CARRIED WIFE TO BED

Suffered So She Could Not Walk. Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Missaing, Ontario.—"I am a practical nurse and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to suffering women. For three months I was almost helpless and could not sit at the table long enough to drink a cup of tea. Many a time my husband carried me to bed. I would be so weak. Then one read in the paper of a woman suffering as I did who got better after taking the Vegetable Compound, and I sent and got it for me. When I had taken three bottles I was just like a new woman and have had splendid health ever since. When I feel any bearing-down pains I always take it; sometimes a half bottle or whatever I need. It is my only medicine and I have told many a one about it. Any one wanting to know more about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I will gladly write to her. I do all I can to help suffering women as I feel I owe my life and strength to it."—Mrs. Neal Bowman, R. R. 1, Missaing, Ontario.

Do you feel broken-down, nervous, and weak sometimes? Do you have the horrid feeling of fear which sometimes comes to women when they are not well? Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is excellent to take if such a time. It always helps, and if you write confidentially to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., they will advise free your case.

MARCH WEATHER DANGEROUS TO BABY

Our Canadian March weather—one day bright, but sloppy, the next blustery and cold—is extremely hard on baby. Conditions make it necessary for the mother to keep the little ones indoors. They are often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which rack their whole system. To guard against these colds and to keep the baby well till the better, brighter days come along, a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels and thus they relieve colds and simple fevers and keep the baby fit. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Thirteen Feet Specimen Bought In Victoria By English Tourist

Picturesque British Columbia, freight, product of one of the earliest of "home industries," was shipped from Victoria recently when an Indian totem pole consigned to W. F. Fisher started on its long voyage to England.

Mr. Fisher is one of the London directors of a fire insurance society and on a trip to the West Coast of Vancouver Island last summer he was particularly fascinated by one of the totem pole villages and he made it his business to secure a 13-foot specimen for the grounds of his home at Waterside, Bourne End, Bucks. The totem will be one of the few in England outside a museum.

Major Gerrard interposed. "Hush, girl,' he said, "you must remember Col. Blackwood is a magistrate. Your condition makes you hysterical. We're sorry for you, but you must not speak like this"

Col. Blackwood said not a word. He went again to the cupboard, and after finishing among the papers there brought back a newspaper slightly yellowed. "I'll show you something you hellcat," he said, slowly, taking his pipe from his mouth and laying it carefully on the window-sill

Man Who Captured Leadership Has Become All-Powerful

Joseph Stalin, the Russian "Man of Steel," who is holding that troubled empire in his hands today was born in the year 1879, and his real name is said to be Dybugashvili or Djhugoshvilli. Probably he changed it because he preferred one easier to pronounce

He comes from fighting stock, says an article in the London Daily Mail by Dr Edward Ludwig, an eminent chronicler of Russian affairs who has known Stalin since his boyhood days

Today he is all-powerful, not only because the Army and the Cheka are at his command, but because at the first sign of anti-Stalinism he gets into motion the party machine, which declares every opponent of Stalin an enemy of the party and of the Soviet State. As for his personal safety of late he has imported a whole regiment composed chiefly of Caucasian brigands And it may be added that the Georgian brigands will fight to the death for the safety of a descendant of one of their comrades who has managed to conquer Russia

T. J. Carscadden returned Friday from a two month's trip to the coast, sight-seeing in Vancouver, Victoria, Seattle and Portland, at the latter place visiting with his sister, whom he had not seen for thirty years. One of the outstanding sights which linger in the memory of Mr. Carscadden was the lodging of the S.S. Robert Dollar, the third largest freighter in the world and the largest vessel to visit the port of Vancouver, into its holds were stowed 7,500,000 feet of lumber and logs and 5000 tons of grain destined for Japan. Her decks were also piled fourteen feet high with lumber and logs strapped down with cables and chains. The huge vessel attracted so much public interest that thousands visited it during its stay in port.

J. C. C. BREMNER DIED SUDDENLY FRIDAY NIGHT

One of the pioneer settlers of the district, in the person of J. C. C. (Charlie) Bremner, who came here thirty-seven years ago, died suddenly on Friday evening at his farm at Elk Island.

Mr. Bremner, who was 69 years of age, was one of the most prominent farmers of the district, having nearly 500 acres which he farmed in a large way in the Clover Bar district. He also was largely interested in industrial development in Edmonton, being identified with the organizing of several coal companies, while in recent years he was actively connected with oil drilling through being a director of the Maple Leaf Oil Co.

Coming from Scotland in 1891 the late Mr. Bremner homesteaded in the Clover Bar district and has resided there ever since. His holdings were extended from time to time and improvements made, with the result that his fine farm was a pride of all living in the district.

He is survived by his widow and two brothers, Hamilton and Captain Donald Bremner, of Sussex, England.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from the First Presbyterian church, Edmonton, interment taking place in the Edmonton cemetery.

NEWSPAPERMEN TO MEET IN EDMONTON

The 24th annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association will be held in Edmonton during the first week in July, according to a decision reached at a recent meeting in Ottawa. Over 200 members of the association from all parts of the Dominion are expected to attend the convention. In addition to regular business sessions, trips to the surrounding district and to Jasper Park are planned as features of the gathering.

CARD OF THANKS

The family and relatives of the late Philip Mohr, sr. wish to express their sincere thanks to all those who gave assistance in their recent bereavement, and also to those who sent floral offerings.

CARD OF THANKS

The members of the congregation of the Catholic church wish to thank those who contributed in any way to the success of the St. Patrick's concert.

OLD TIMER TAKEN BY GRIM REAPER

The death took place on Saturday, March 17, of Philip Mohr, aged 66 years, a well known and greatly respected old timer of the Josephburg district.

Deceased came to Canada with his parents, brothers and sisters forty years ago in May and settled at Josephburg thirty-seven years ago. The esteem in which he was held by his friends and neighbors was attested to by the large attendance at the funeral service, which was held at Josephburg church on Monday, interment being made in the Josephburg cemetery. The Rev. C. H. Rupert, of Stony Plain, and the Rev G. Gaisser, of Vegreville, had charge of the service, the latter preaching in the German language, taking as his text, John 11: 25-35. The Rev. Reppert spoke in English, taking his text from Amos 4: 12.

Pallbearers were: A. Unterschultz, Ed. Frey, Philip B. Mohr, Jacob Hennig, Philip E. Mohr and Louis Kulak.

Deceased leaves to mourn his loss four sons and four daughters, all, with the exception of Mrs. Philip Mohr, living in the Josephburg district: John, Frank, George and Albert; Mrs. Jos Thomas, Mrs. Daniel Thomas, Mrs. Philip Mohr, of Vegreville, and Miss Matilda Mohr. Also five brothers and two sisters: Frank, of Winnipeg, John, Henry, Mike and George, and Mrs. Geo. Becker of this district, and Mrs. Fred Rippel, of Vancouver.

Floral offerings were sent by: Mr. and Mrs. Jos Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mohr, Mr. and Mrs. John Mohr, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Thomas, Mr. George Mohr, Mr. Albert Mohr, Miss Matilda Mohr, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Mohr, Vegreville, Mr. and Mrs. John Mohr, sr., Mr. and Mrs. George Becker, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mohr, Jones, Graham & O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. E. Ketterhorn, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Shara, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Walton, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Mohr, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mohr, Mr. and Mrs. E. Krebs, Mr. and Mrs. F. Becker, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Frey, Mr. and Mrs. Rienold Mohr, Fort Hardware.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF CLOVER BAR, No. 517

The Statutory council meeting of the Municipal District of Clover Bar, No. 517, was held on the 13th inst. After the reading of the returning officer's report concerning the elections, Messrs. Wm. Thomas and S. Cholenski took the oath on assuming the office of councillors.

Mr. A. Gillies was re-elected Reeve for the ensuing twelve months and Mr. E. Keith elected deputy reeve for the ensuing six months.

D. Roberts was re-appointed secretary-treasurer, Dr. T. W. E. Henry, medical officer of health, and James A. Henderson & Co., auditors.

The secretary was instructed to obtain one hundred gallons of Atlas Non-Poisonous Weed Killer for experimental purposes. This is to be distributed to farmers in the district to ascertain if it will do the work that the manufacturers guarantee it will do. The manufacturers claim that it will completely eradicate sow thistle, burning up the roots at all stages of its development.

Copies of the accounts due to the Royal Alexandra hospital by residents or former residents of the district were submitted to the council. These will be discussed after information regarding the district's liability in regard to same has been obtained.

With the passing of payments and accounts the meeting adjourned until April 7.

MANY BRITISH SETTLERS EXPECTED

A large number of British settlers will be coming to Alberta during the next three months, states E. M. Johnston, district superintendent of the Land Settlement Board at Edmonton, whose office is arranging for the handling of these newcomers. Some two hundred boys are expected from the training schools established by the British Ministry of Agriculture in various parts of England and Scotland, where "lost age boys are given a six months' course of training on farms equipped with Canadian machinery and implements. In addition a considerable number of married couples as well as single men and women listed as farm laborers and domestics are included in the emigrants from Great Britain destined for this province.

ST. PATRICK'S CONCERT AN ENTERTAINING EVENT

The annual St. Patrick's concert held on Monday evening was a success of pleasure to a large audience. It was arranged by members of the congregation of the Catholic church and though several who had promised to take part in the programme were forced by one circumstance or another to withdraw, to the disappointment of the organizers, a splendid programme was nevertheless arranged which was in no way inferior to the one originally planned.

The artis family, of Edmonton, were responsible for a great deal of enjoyment and an important factor in the success of the evening, "top o' the bill," so to speak.

Other artists were Mrs. Field, vocal soloist, Miss Marie McClarnon, who entertained with a vocal solo and a reading, Miss Olive Brosseau, violin solo, and Mr. Gardner, vocal solo.

The entertainment was brought to a conclusion by an amusing playlet, "The Obstinate Family," which was well put across by the Misses Lily Tercier, Annie Beauvais, Elise Lamoureux and Messrs. M. Barnett, Antoine Allard and Joe Jardel.

Canadians Are Busy

During the years that have elapsed since the war, unemployment conditions in Great Britain have been the subject of much discussion, and in no country has greater attention been paid to them than in the United States. Scores of writers across the line have professed to see in the British situation, with its large army of the unemployed, the dole system, and the great strikes and general industrial upheaval and labor unrest, the beginning of the end for Great Britain in its world leadership in finance, manufacturing, shipping and commerce.

But the Old Land has weathered the many severe storms with remarkable success, has steadily increased employment, re-established its great industries on a peace-time basis, balanced its budget, and is paying off its huge national debt. Its position at home and abroad continues to improve from year to year.

Canada, too, had a hard struggle in the years immediately following the war, though nothing like what Great Britain experienced. Nevertheless, for a number of years business in Canada was depressed and there was a considerable volume of unemployed. At the same time business conditions in the United States were brisk, employment plentiful, production was proceeding at top speed, wages were high, and the whole world was paying financial tribute to it as an outcome of the war. As a result thousands of Canadian emigrated to the States, and throughout this Dominion some sharp contrasts were drawn between conditions here and to the south, always to the disadvantage of Canada.

Within the last year or two a marked change has taken place, and today there is more unemployment in the United States both in the aggregate and in proportion to population than there is in either Canada or Great Britain. In fact, the situation in the United States is becoming so serious as to call for most serious consideration by Congress and the various State Governments.

The Department of Labor at Washington estimates there are four million people out of work at present, and the Industrial Commissioner of New reports 500,000 out of work in that State alone. Conditions of employment in New York State are officially stated to be the worst since 1921, while Senator Copeland declares there are more people out of work in New York City than at any time since 1914.

Contrasting the United States with Great Britain, it is seen that New York State alone has half as many unemployed as the United Kingdom despite the fact that the latter has four times the population. Or taking the whole United States with two and one-half times the population of the United Kingdom, it is seen there is four times the number of unemployed in the States that there are in Great Britain.

While unemployment has been increasing in the United States in recent years until it has now reached a point where the National City Bank of New York reports 500,000 out of work in that State alone. Conditions of employment in New York State are officially stated to be the worst since 1921, while Senator Copeland declares there are more people out of work in New York City than at any time since 1914.

of this year are still higher than for the corresponding months a year ago. Prospects for a continuance of this satisfactory condition are of the brightest.

It seems to make no difference what branch of Canadian activity is analyzed, general improvement is to be noted. The trade of the Dominion is expanding year by year, and in this connection the gratifying fact is noted that the increase in imports is largely accounted for by commodities not indigenous to Canada and were imported for use in the manufacturing industries. The building construction the value of contracts awarded has risen from $276,000,000 in 1924 to $296,000,000 in 1925, to $372,000,000 in 1926, and to $419,000,000 in 1927.

The steel industry, which has suffered in recent years, reports a 45 per cent increase in production for January this year as compared with a year ago. Car loadings on the railways were 22,000 greater than a year ago. Bank clearings for the same month increased by $425,000,000 over January, 1927. The total volume of Canadian business in January this year was the highest for any January in the history of the country. Employment for January was 9.3 and for February 10.3 as compared with the high record of 10 set for the year 1926, when employment figures were first tabulated in this country, and before the after-the-war depression set in.

Yes, Canada is busy and promises to become increasingly so throughout 1928.

A Busy Season Ahead

Work For Thousands Of Men On Railway Building In Western Canada

Work for thousands of men in Western Canada and payrolls running into millions of dollars are indicated in the western building and expansion programme of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the 1928 season, according to D. C. Coleman, vice-president of Western Lines. Tenders are already out for some of the work including new stations and sheds, shops, coaling plants and new rail construction.

Exporting Rubber Products

Canada Is Now Fourth Rubber Manufacturing Country Of World

Canada has now become the fourth rubber manufacturing country of the world, exporting rubber products to the value of $5,000,000 annually, though the real product consists of countries to which the Dominion is exporting the manufactured commodity, says Hon. Aimé Boisvert, Minister of Trade and Commerce at the annual banquet of the Canadian Rubber Association in Montreal.

Seeking Trade With Canada

Chance For More Business Being Investigated By Belgium

According to a despatch from Brussels, a Belgian economic mission has been sent to explore the possibilities for increased trade with Canada. Interesting prospects for commerce with Canada are opening up, it was stated. Canada imported from Belgium to the extent of $10,152,870 in the past year, and exported to that country to the value of $15,689,091

SAME SYMPTOMS IN MANY CASES

An Anaemic Condition Easily Recognized — Calls For a Blood Builder

In most cases of anaemia the symptoms are the same. Headache, nervousness, fluttering heart, poor appetite and in nearly tired after the least exertion. The appetite is fickle and the patient loses in weight. Sometimes there are backaches, and often inability to sleep well. As the blood becomes thinner and poorer, these symptoms become more pronounced and often there are fainting spells. All this shows that the blood is thin and watery, and at the very first symptoms of anaemia the sufferer patient should take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the great restorative, blood builder and nerve tonic known. The same success of this medicine is to be found in almost every district where it is done all the distressing symptoms disappear.

Among those who have reason to praise this medicine is Mrs. M. E. Paterson, Shandon, B.C., who says: "About four years ago I became very much run down, I could not eat, sleep rest, and I grew so nervous that the smallest things would upset me. I had no strength and would annoy me. Eventually I grew so weak that I could hardly walk. I was just a miserable wreck, and became very discouraged, as I had taken many medicines which failed to help me. In this wretched state a friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so and before long found they were helping me. Gladly I continued taking the pills until I fully regained my health and strength and I have since continued in the best of health. Later my daughter became anaemic and six boxes of the pills restored her to health, strength and color. Naturally I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a blessing to weak, run-down people."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Reduce the Acid

Sick stomache, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes MANY times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Or prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many dangerous hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting stomach acids. Most bottles contain full directions—any druggists.

Sweet Clover a Good Friend But a Bad Master And Must Be Kept Under Control

Like fire, sweet clover is a good friend but a bad master. After a hectic career of about 15 years it has risen from a place of universal condemnation to a dangerous weed, to one of the most popular crops in the country with many men, an early land particularly, making a fortune out of its seed. Even at ten dollars and more a bushel it was pleased widely all over Eastern Canada and made many headway in the West. Then a few years after the war the defects of sweet clover began to show up and it sank in popular esteem until today the markets are loaded with seed and farmers cannot get more than two dollars a bushel for it.

Go into any of the five Dominion Government Seed Laboratories, scattered across the Dominion, and you always will find that sweet clover pollutes most samples of other clover and alfalfa. Seedsmen will tell you that scores of good red clover, alsike, and alfalfa seed producing districts have been ruined by this weed, because it is a weed when growing with other crops, which comes up with the other clover, goes to seed at the same time, and because the seed of sweet clover is about the same size and weight as that of the others it is very difficult and sometimes impossible to separate it. Moreover, although once widely boomed as a hay crop, it is now generally admitted that red clover or alfalfa is a much better pasture for this use.

But again, like fire, sweet clover has a very real place in Canadian agriculture, if it is handled properly. At the Government experimental farms there is no trouble with sweet clover, because it is kept under control. Even in seed producing districts it can be grown, though the big seed growers and growers against the rish. As fertiliser, silage, manure pasture and weed smotherer, sweet clover has a very real place, and on account of its qualities in these respects, it will probably always be grown in Canada, although no one expects to see big prices for seed again. There is no market for sweet clover in Canada and being a big yielder of seed and so widely planted both here and in United States, there is no possible chance of a recurrence of the boom period, and for the sake of the good condition of the plant, it is well that these days do not recur. As a result prices for it were soaring the crop was planted everywhere before it was understood and the reaction which followed the appearance of its defects more than offset the advantage of its recent popularity.

But the secret of growing sweet clover is to prevent it from going to seed. That seems emphatic cannot be laid on the point. It must be mown early and before it commences to go to seed. If used for pasture it must be kept grazed closely or the stock will turn to something else and the clover will go to seed coming up in other crops later on as a weed. It must be scarified before sowing so that every seed will germinate or else some of the harder seeds will lie over one, two or even more seasons germinating later and polluting the crop coming on then. In special seed growing sections, such as Peel County, where alfalfa is a major crop, or in the Elgin or Mariposa alsike districts in Ontario, or in the Brooks alfalfa area of Alberta, seed experts advise growers not to touch sweet clover at all. The risk is too great of it getting mixed with the alfalfa, alsike, or other clover and spoiling the quality of the crops produced. If these growers could band together and prohibit sweet clover in these specialized sections altogether, it would be added protection. At all events they should insist that no threshers which have been operating in districts where sweet clover is grown should touch their own crops on the machines will carry sweet clover seeds and mix some with the seed of alfalfa and alsike. The seed may also be spread through manure or straw from farms growing the crop.

Alfalfa, red clover, timothy and mixtures of the three are marketed all hay and the alfalfa and the best

Hobbs World's Record

Has Owned By University Of B.C. in Handling Her Population

There is a ben in British Columbia which seems to be the prototype of that well-known fowl that "laid the golden eggs." "Maisie" is the name of the famous White Leghorn, owned by the University of British Columbia, which, because of her egg-laying productivies, has had greatnesss thrust upon her. This remarkable hen has already a world's record for egg-laying to her credit, having laid 351 eggs in one year, and she has more than sustained her reputation in the new year. According to the Brandford Expositor, "Maisie's" production brought in the university last year quite proceeds of $3,223. Included in this was $500 each for two cockerels; another cockerel sold for $100, and marvellous hatching eggs brought $425 to the coffers of the university. It can hardly be wondered that this Western institution has refused all offers to part with "Maisie," although high cash offers have been made. Apart from the quality of this hen as a revenue producer, it is an advertisement for the university that cannot be measured in dollars and cents. It has probably done more to make the University of British Columbia known throughout the American Continent than any other single factor since the institution was founded.

Canada's Copper Industry

Dominion Rapidly Climbing To Third Place In Production

That within the next 10 years Canada will become the world's third largest producer of copper, being then surpassed in this field only by the U.S. and Chile, was the prediction made by Sydney J. Uteh, chief of the mining, metallurgical and chemical branch, Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Ottawa, during an address on Canada's future in copper, given at the annual general meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy in Quebec.

Mr Cooke said that although Canada now produces only about two per cent. of the world's output of copper, an enormous increase in production will be possible through the development of the newer fields that are just now coming to the front, such as the Rouyn District in Quebec, the Prood mine area near Sudbury, in Ontario, and the several copper properties in Manitoba.

The speaker foresaw no diminution in the per capita consumption of copper, but rather the probability of a gradual increase in the use of this metal.

Almond Industry Profitable

Many Varieties Are Cultivated On Island Of Majorca

Almonds have a prominent place on the table of the well-to-do people, the great trouble taken in their cultivation. They are the most important crop of the island of Majorca, where many varieties are cultivated, and the industry is so prosperous that as old olive trees die they are replaced by almonds.

When the almonds are almost ripe they are knocked off the branches by long bamboo poles and then picked up by women and children. The nuts are separated from the husks after drying, and the shells are then broken by hand or machinery and the kernels extracted.

Naval Agreement Between Britain and U. S. Would Be Big Step Towards World Peace

Great Britain and the United States eventually will be in accord on the naval armament question, and when that time comes a big step will have been taken in insuring world peace, John B. Atkins, political editor of the London Spectator, told members of the English-speaking union in Chicago.

"The failure of the Geneva conference was a blow to the hopes and aims of the English people, but it is only a question of time until the two nations are able to see eye to eye on this question," Atkins said.

"It is not realized in this country how necessary it is for Britain to reduce her offensive arms, or how much is earnest Englishmen are on the disarmament question. Since the war England's industries have been on the verge of disintegration. The thermometer of our prosperity, our northern heavy industries, coal, steel and textile, has been very low."

The cheap food fight cruiser question, to which Atkins attributed the Geneva break, he traced to the geographical differences between the British Empire and the United States Britain held out for a larger number or small cruisers because of its complexity of trade routes she must protect.

"We recognize that commercial prosperity does not lie in battleships as has passed to the United States," he said. " Because of this we realize that entering into a naval armament competition with you would be to court disaster. That is why I am convinced that the light cruiser problem will not long remain a point of difference.

"In the next war the battle lines will be the centres of production. Instead of fighting on the fields. The civilization of the countries involved will receive crushing blows."

Farmers Account Book

A Useful Little Account Book For Farmers

Farm surveys have shown that very few farmers follow a systematic method of farm accounting. This may, in the past, have been due to a lack of suitable simple forms or account books for the farmer to use. There are today a number of simple books issued which are a great help to the farmer in this important matter. Farming is a business, and if it does not pay the farmer should know why it does not pay. Keep a record of receipts and expenses, together with an inventory (a list with values of livestock, feed, implements, etc., on hand), taken at the beginning and the end of the farmers' year, must be kept if he is to find out why it doesn't pay. Keep a record of every department of your farm business. Find out how much you are making from each, and if any are not paying.

A simple and yet very useful little account book for farmers has been issued by the Dominion experimental farms. It may be procured from the publications branch, department of agriculture, Ottawa, for the nominal charge of 25 cents. This little book while simple, is a great step in advance of keeping no accounts whatever. Now is a good time to take an inventory and start keeping accounts.

Believes New Wheat Is Rust Resistant

Discovery By Dr. Seager Wheeler Suitable For Milling Purposes

A new variety of wheat which he thinks will be substantially rust resistant and at the same time be suitable for milling purposes has been discovered by Dr. Seager Wheeler of Rosthern, Sask. Dr Wheeler made the announcement while speaking on the danger of rust in Western Canada, at the annual banquet of the Rosthern Board of Trade. Dr. Wheeler announced that the new wheat is a cross breed from Kota. He has been growing wheat for the past 40 years and for the last 20 years has endeavored to obtain a rust resistant variety. He states that this Kota cross breed will be most likely what was desired by the Western farmer. Experiments are being made with this wheat at Ottawa, Saskatoon and in Manitoba and Dakota.

Housing Series Of Historic Postcards

British Steele Papers Will Be Photographed Before Disposal

To popularize history, the Public Record Office, in London, is about to issue a series of postcards made from photographs of some of the state papers contained in governmental archives. The subjects include: The original draft of the log of Nelson's flagship on the two days after the battle of Trafalgar; a signature of Shakespeare; the Philip Sidney's last letter; the indenture to Magna Charta; a page of the treaty violated by Germany in invading Belgium a picture of the two volumes of Domesday Book.

ARE PALE PEOPLE WELL?

Some pale people are well, but not many. Paleness generally means thin blood. When, in addition, you are short of breath, and your heart palpitates after slight exercise and you perhaps show symptoms of indigestion and nervousness, there is no doubt about it. You are in an anaemic condition.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the logical remedy for anaemia, for they begin at once to build up the thin blood, strengthen the nerves, increase the appetite and aid digestion. But do not wait too long. Thin blood is a stealthy and dangerous foe.

If you will send your name and address to Pink Pills, Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., they will give you two little booklets, "Building Up the Blood," and "What to Eat and How to Eat," both of which will be found very useful in the home.

The Feeding Of Babies

From time immemorial it has been recognized that babies thrive best when breast-fed, and it is the consideration of every mother to nurse her baby. But since it frequently happens that this is not practicable for one reason or another, the young mother looks about most anxiously for that food which will best take the place of the natural food which is not obtainable. It is essential that the food used should be absolutely pure, that it should contain all the necessary elements of nourishment for the child, and finally that it should be easily digestible. For these generations Borden's Eagle Brand Condensed Milk has been the mainstay of numerous mothers when unable to nurse their babies. It is a leading infants' food, every Eagle Brand being used thus the combined total of all others. It measures up to the requirements of the infants perfectly, and nearly all babies thrive on it from the first feeding.

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Aspirin. Insist that Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If the name Bayer appears, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Aspirin—at any druggists—with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) indicating Bayer manufacture of Acetylsalicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer, to protect the public against imitations, the Bayer Company will be identified in future as the sole distributor of Aspirin.

NO AMBASSADOR FROM AUSTRALIA TO UNITED STATES

New York.—"I can see little chance for the appointment of a minister to the United States, and believe that Australia is well satisfied to be independent enough to deal directly with each of the countries with which she has trade."

Sir Archibald Bodkin, K.M. Bruce, Australian minister to the United States, on his arrival in New York on the Olympic.

Given the possibility that South Africa may follow the precedent of Canada and Ireland in the appointment of ministers, Mr. Bruce said he would be glad to see it. "It would certainly be a step in the right direction and would be welcomed by the people of Australia," he said. "Australia has a diplomatic representative in the capital of France, and I see no reason why we should not have a representative in the capital of the United States. We have many trade problems and other problems of mutual interest to deal with, and I see no reason why we should not be represented."

Mr. Bruce said that among the matters he would invite the king upon whom he will present his diplomatic credentials, the possibility of holding the next Imperial conference in Australia. He also said that an invitation to that effect would be one of the principal matters he would present to the king.

Mr. Bruce said that Australia had a population of 6,000,000 people and 21 men to represent them. "We are unable to go out into the world and do as other countries do. We have to be content with the British Empire Exhibition in London, and I am not sure that I will be able to get there," he said.

Forty-five years of faithful service to the Canadian Pacific Railway were honored recently when George A. Forbes, former baggage agent of the company, was presented by George Stephen, Dwight Sutherland, manager, with a purse of gold, contributed by Mr. Forbes' colleagues in the railway's freight traffic offices east of Chicago in the United States and east of Port William in Canada.

Fergus.—A special train of 30 cars left here Saturday and picked on route the other day with over 11,000 consignments of washing machines and barn equipment. This trainload, the largest of its kind ever to originate in Canada, is from a Fergus firm and was handled by the Canadian Pacific Railway as a special train, stopping at Port William, Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton and other centres. Nearly all the consignments were for rural communities.

Immigrants are beginning to pour through the port of Saint John and Montreal en route to Ontario and the West. With the arrival of Canadian Pacific liners Montclare and Montmartre recently, in the neighborhood of 600 settlers of the best type have been distributed. Among the very British farm laborers going to selected farms under the scheme of the Canada Colonization Association, and many more will be coming in during the next few months.

Toronto.—In accordance with his promise to Western Ontario tobacco growers, Hon. J. R. Motherwell has appointed a commission to investigate the very serious situation growing industry, for which two of the commissioners have already been named. The probe will extend to every phase of the industry, from seeding to marketing, and one of the most important features will be the effort to ascertain the best method of operating a proposed co-operative marketing plant.

Fort Arthur.—Eventually Canada will produce a 1,000,000,000 bushel crop of wheat, but this will have to be built up finding a market for it, predicted Hon. T. A. Crerar, President and General Manager of the United Grain Growers Limited, and former Minister of Agriculture for the Dominion. Referring to the development of Western Canada, Mr. Crerar said there was no country in the world where as great a development had taken place in the past few years and there was no country having such great possibilities.

In order to meet the increasing popularity of the Canadian Rockies as a winter sports, and also to assist in developing trans-continental travel, the Canadian Pacific Railway will run a quintette of trains across the Dominion this Winter. Two from Montreal and Chicago to the Rockies, Vancouver and Victoria this coming season. The latest will be "The Trans-Canada Limited", "The Imperial"—Toronto-Vancouver Express, and "The Mountaineer" and "Soo-Pacific Express" from Chicago. The Trans-Canada and the Mountaineer will be all-sleeping-car trains.

Vancouver.—"Mickie," the famous white Leghorn hen owned by the University of British Columbia farm, officially known as Hen No. 5, the world's champion layer with 311 eggs in a year, is proving a substantial revenue producer for the University of British Columbia. Last year the sale of pedigreed poultry stock from Mickie returned to the University $2,223. Two of her pullets fetched $500 each and sold to Chile poultry raisers, while another pullet sold in New Jersey for $200. The University receipts on sale of pedigreed Rock Cockerels stock totalled $7,225 for the year.

A record high price of $2,000 was paid during the past week for a seat on the Calgary Stock Exchange, by Sedgewick Sims & Co., of Toronto. This company intends to open a branch office in Calgary as part of their continent-wide service to investors.

LARGE NUMBERS OF TREES PLANTED IN SOUTH

It is estimated that new settlers in the Vauxhall district of southern Alberta planted over 17,000 trees around their farm homes in 1927. Trees planted under similar conditions by pioneers of 1908 and 1921 have made splendid growth and done a great deal to encourage further efforts to beautify prairie farms in this way.

The latest arrival in the New Chevrolet has been well received is indicated by these first photographs of the latest addition to the light car field. The smart sport cabriolet, with its folding head and disc wheels, is shown in the upper right-hand photograph. In the centre is the sturdy Chevrolet one-ton truck chassis, while at the lower right is the coach model, the body of which is five inches longer than formerly. Inserts are: upper left, the massive new radiator and heavy full crown fenders; right, the powerful and clean-cut motor of the new line, with two-port exhaust and complete enclosure; lower left, a view of one of the four-wheel brakes. The New Chevrolets, which are to be reduced in price, are to be available at once. They are longer and roomier than previous models.

MAIN BUDGET MOTION ADOPTED BY 24 MAJORITY

Ottawa.—By a majority of 24, the House adopted the main budget motion. The vote was For, 116, Against, 92, majority for, 24.

The majority consisted of Liberals, Liberal-Progressives and the independents sitting on the government side. From the left of the speaker L. H. Jelliff (U.F.A., Lethbridge) was the only member to vote for the budget. Conservatives, other members of the U.F.A.-Progressive group and Labor members voted against the budget. There were loud cheers from both sides of the House as the result was announced. Speaker Lemieux left the chair and the House resolved into committee to ways and means to consider the budget resolutions one by one. But proceedings in committee were the reverse of a reporting of technical progress and the House proceeded to other business.

The House met in expectant mood. The intervention of Henri Bourassa with its sudden termination of the vote on the main budget motion had left members wondering, what the day would bring forth.

Immediately the main motion was submitted Mr. Bourassa rose to speak. But he had said only a few words when Dr. H. H. Hazlett, Conservative leader, was on his feet with the objection that Mr. Bourassa has already spoken and was not entitled to speak again. There ran some discussion pro and con and the speaker ruled against Mr. Bennett. The speaker held that members with the exception of Mr. Cahan had not spoken on the main motion, and were therefore entitled to speak.

Mr. Bennett appealed the ruling, which was sustained by a majority of 41. Liberals were the exception for six French-speaking members from Quebec, voted for the ruling as did Liberal-Progressives, Progressives U.F.A., and labor members. With them also voted C. H. Cahan, Conservative of St. Lawrence-St. George. All other Conservatives voted against.

When the result was announced, Mr. Bennett rose to continue with his speech. He was interrupted by booing from the Conservative side. As he endeavored to continue there was a sort of catcall from the opposition lobby.

"Order, order," called the Speaker. "I will ask the sergeant-at-arms to exercise the rights of the House," he said.

The sergeant-at-arms went into the lobby. The noise ceased and Mr. Bourassa proceeded.

Where Women Cannot Vote

Defeat Effort to Give Married Women Right to Vote in Montreal Municipal Elections

Quebec. A final effort to give married women separate as to property the municipal vote in Montreal was defeated in the Quebec legislative council on third reading of the bill to enfranchise them, by 12 to 9.

Hon. J. L. Perron, minister of roads and Government leader in the Upper House, remarked in the course of the debate that there are not 15 women in the province of Quebec who favor feminine suffrage

Destroyers For Canada

California Disaster

Death Toll Placed at 204 in Territory Laid Waste by Flood

Santa Paula, Cal. Rehabilitation work is under way in San Francisquito Canyon and the Santa Clara Valley, which were laid waste by the breaking of St. Francis dam with a known death toll of 204.

While searching parties continued to bring to additional tragic evidence from the silt and slime left in the wake of the flood, telephone and telegraph repair gangs, steam shovel, wrecking and bridge crews in the [illegible] were at work [illegible] the [illegible] and industry.

Meanwhile a committee was organizing here to formulate a general rehabilitation programme. Speakers charged that the city of Los Angeles, which built the dam as part of its water system, was responsible for the disaster.

The toll in life and property, estimated from official figures and the surveys of careful observers, stood as follows:

204 lives lost.

St. Francis dam demolished.

Los Angeles municipal power house below dam demolished.

500 homes destroyed or greatly damaged.

20 miles of citrus orchard land buried under many feet of mud and silt.

10 important bridges destroyed.

State and county highways washed out at numerous points.

Telegraph and telephone lines interrupted over a wide area, affecting a dozen towns and a dozen smaller communities.

1,200 persons virtually homeless and many of them, temporarily at least, destitute.

Livestock killed and drowned, unestimated total.

The aggregate property loss cannot be determined at present.

Officials declared that it would require weeks to fix the figures which might be found anywhere between $7,000,000 and $20,000,000.

Tourists Injured In Fire

Sleeping Car on Train From Luxor Completely Destroyed

Cairo, Egypt. Passengers of a crowded de luxe train from Luxor narrowly escaped death when a fire broke out in a first class coach and spread to an adjoining sleeping car in the night. Some of the passengers, mostly tourists, received cut hands, barbed shins, sprained ankles and bruises as they escaped through windows, the only available exit. There was no time to save anything or to don suitable garments.

Baggage and valuables were abandoned, a prey to the flames. Nearly all were destroyed in the two coaches. The losses are believed considerable.

George Eastman, Rochester, N.Y., millionaire, and his hunting party, were aboard the train, and all the films taken on their trip were destroyed.

The Eastman films included those of wild animal life which he had taken in Central Africa.

Butter From Antipodes

Ottawa.—Between April 1, 1927, and January, 1928, 33,872 pounds of Australia butter entered Canada for consumption, according to an answer given in the House of Commons. It was also stated that 1,980,000 pounds of butter entered Canada from New Zealand during the calendar year 1927, and 886,000 pounds of mutton entered Canada from Australia during the same period.

Beer by the Glass

Winnipeg.—A little more than twelve years ago the old saloon bar, with its familiar brass foot-rail, was discarded in Manitoba. Today beer parlors with fine furnishings and restful appearance opened in Winnipeg, and a "revolving" business was reported from a score of hotels which started serving beer by the glass under the newly adopted liquor control legislation.

Bodies of Slain Victims

Hon. William Sloan, British Columbia's Minister of Mines, and formerly Provincial Secretary, who died recently at Victoria.

Chosen Conservative Leader

Mr. J. T. M. Anderson selected as Leader of Conservative Party in Saskatchewan

Saskatoon.—Dr. J. T. M. Anderson, member of the Saskatchewan Legislature for Saskatoon City, was selected by three hundred delegates to the Conservative convention here as the provincial leader of the party.

When the moment came for receiving nominations, the following names were submitted to the delegates: M. A. MacPherson, K.C., M.L.A., Regina; Dr. J. T. M. Anderson, M.L.A., Saskatoon; Howard McConnell, M.L.A., Saskatoon; J. A. Haggerwood, Unity, and J. F. Ratcliffe, Prince Albert.

Under the procedure decided upon, a special committee consisting of George Bennett, Wolseley; H. E. Alexander, Gull Lake, and W. Ramsay, Bladworth, immediately met the nominees to ascertain whether or not they would accept nomination. The report brought back by this committee stated that it was the unanimous decision of the candidates that Dr. Anderson should be selected and consequently the others withdrew their names from nomination.

Hinkler Receives Cheque

Sydney, N.S.W. On his arrival at Canberra, Bert Hinkler, Australia's new hero-flier, was welcomed by the Commonwealth government and presented with a cheque for 2,000 pounds sterling by Premier Bruce in recognition of his feat in flying from England to Australia in fifteen days.

Cost of Fishing Probe

Ottawa. The total cost of the Royal Fisheries commission established to investigate the problems of the fishermen on the Atlantic coast amounted to $31,543.96 up to January 31, 1928. This was divided between $26,220.11 for fees and $26,023.45 expenses.

Officials Will Be Examined

To Give Evidence at Future sittings of Immigration Committee.

Ottawa.—Colonials in charge of immigration and colonization for the Canadian Railways will be summoned before the parliamentary committee investigating the department of immigration.

W. J. Egan, Deputy Minister of Immigration, was again on the stand. He said the department had checked the performance of all farm laborers brought in under the railway agreement actually went on the farm and had discovered that such was not the case in a number of instances.

Mr. Egan said he thought railways which brought in the bulk of immigrants were fulfilling the spirit of their agreement.

Every effort had been made by the department to induce British farm laborers to come to Canada and despite the lower rate in effect to Australia there were more people coming to Canada from Britain than went to all other outlying parts of the Empire.

Answering a question by George Spotton, Mr. Egan declared there had been newspaper propaganda against Great Britain during 1922 and 1923 arising partly from nonpayment of interest on Grand Trunk securities. This affected immigration, but the propaganda had later been contradicted.

Usually immigrants were not stripped for examination, he said, and Dr McGibbon objected that if this was so the medical examination was a farce. It would not be known if a man had tuberculosis or heart trouble without stripping him.

For Union With Canada

Newfoundland Would Welcome Newfoundland as a Province of this Dominion

Ottawa. Favorable attitude by Canada towards any proposal which Newfoundland might make to join the Dominion is advocated by Senator C. E. Tanner, Halifax. Senator Tanner has given notice of a motion for discussion in the Senate advocating:

"That in the opinion of this House if proposal should be made on behalf of the people of Newfoundland for union with the Dominion of Canada the people of Canada would view such proposal with favor, and would welcome Newfoundland as a province of this Dominion."

Is Back to Fair

New York. The Canadian dollar climbed back to par on the New York money market after being at a slight discount for more than three months. The Canadian dollar was at a slight premium on par from August 22 to December 2, 1926, when it dropped to a discount, which has since ranged from 1-32 to 15-64 of one per cent.

Banff Carnival Triumphs

1. Miss Lucile Mason, retiring queen of carnival, receives delegation of snowy sentinels.
2. Mark Peterson, Banff, Emery Mason, Calgary, and Miss Mason, Calgary, Miss Hawthorne's aide prior to the ski-jump race.

After one of the most successful Banff Carnivals on record proceedings came to a close on Saturday, February 11, with the crowning of Miss Kate Harrison, of Vancouver, B.C., as the new queen. Miss Harrison will hold office until the close of next year's carnival. One of the most picturesque happenings of the eight days festivities was the receiving of a band of Stoney Mountain Indians by the retiring queen, Miss Lucile Mason, of Calgary, who received a tremendous ovation as she vacated her throne of office.

Visitors from all over the United States and Canada thronged and vied with each other in every variety of winter sports. The Winnipeg Skating Club covered itself with glory when it annexed the Eldbrook, emblematic of the championship while that well known member, Ike Hills, added further to his laurels by winning the Dog Derby and the Strongbow trophy in remarkable time. He dashed the last 30 miles in the astounding time of two hours and forty minutes

WOULD GIVE AID TO CANADIANS SETTLING IN WEST

Ottawa.—A resolution proposing that citizens of Canada desirous of settling on western land should receive from the Government the same assistance and favorable treatment as the citizens of Europe was proposed in the House of Commons by C. L. Bruhanger (Liberal, Bellechasse).

The reasonableness of the proposal should appeal to all Canadians, Mr Boulanger said. It would mean more shoulders to bear the burden of debt and would help to keep Canadians at home on the land. Canadians, the descendants of the Loyalists and those of French origin had traditions which made them the best type of settlers.

Hon. J. W. Edwards (Conservative, Frontenac) declared that the resolution should be extended in order to encourage westerners to come east and settle in the central provinces. He could not see the force of the resolution until the Government adopted a policy that would keep the youth of Canada on the land.

M. E. Lavigueur (Liberal, Quebec-Montmorency) declared that Hon Mr. Edwards should be joining hand to hand with Mr. Boulanger in the matter of this resolution, rather than indulging in "whispers of death."

Peter McGibbon (Conservative, Muskoka-Ontario) declared that what was wanted in Canada was work. He could not understand why the ministry of immigration put greater facilities and encouragement to immigrants from Europe when Canadians were leaving this country daily. He suggested the establishment of fur farms in Northern Ontario and Quebec.

Believes In Northern Route

Capt. Bernier Has Great Faith in Future of H. B. Railway

Ottawa.—Captain J. E. Bernier, famed Canadian navigator and Arctic explorer, believes an unprecedented period of prosperity will be Canada's fortune when the Hudson Bay Railway is opened, thereby providing an economic outlet to the Atlantic for the products of the prairies, than when he arrived in the capital.

Captain Bernier said that with the opening of the new route great wheat loads of cattle and grain would be facilitated in their voyage to Europe, and that Canada would then compete more capably with the United States in the trading world. He said, however, that the ships used for this purpose would have to be fitted with sufficient strength to withstand ice pressure and that their mariners would require a full and accurate knowledge of existing conditions, supplemented with weather reports from coast stations.

Find Body of Murdered Man

Charred Bones of Victim Discovered on Trail Island

Vancouver.—The bones of a man who had apparently been stunned by a blow on the back of the head and then killed, and the remains burned in a cleverly concealed natural furnace have been found on the southeast corner of Trail island, about 20 miles north of Vancouver, it has been reported to provincial police.

The district is popular with summer campers. Indications were that the crime was committed within recent years.

A deep hole between boulders had been selected just above high water mark for the burning in a concealed spot that could not be seen by campers on the mainland. The case is being investigated.

Bill Given Third Reading

Winnipeg. The Manitoba Old Age Pensions bill has passed its third reading in the legislature. A sum of $500,000 will be required to finance the measure during the first year, and this will be raised by means of a property tax. The bill will be effective only after proclamation by the lieutenant-governor, and probably will not become operative until late in the summer.

THE RECORD

H. Oxley, Editor and Publisher

FORT SASKATCHEWAN, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY, MAR. 21, 1928

Today is the first day of Spring. The roads, following the drastic thaw, have been in the vile condition usual in the spring time. We were all primed to head out some wonderfully good advice to the council about putting a handful of cinders here and a shovelful of gravel there to improve the streets and roads for those who wished to walk or drive abroad, but nature beat us to it. Before the day came round upon which this journal is pleased before you, the beautiful, balmy weather had dried up all the worst wet spots, and left us with no grievance to air, which is a happy condition to be in but one that gives no incentive for an editorial of the kind we premeditated. Rather than be deprived of all the thunder we had bottled up, might we suggest that thaws had again be noted and remembered before the first million dollar rain comes.

CURLING

PLAN TO FORM ALBERTA FISH AND GAME ASSOCIATION

Farmers and ranchers are co-operating with fish and game associations, already locally organized, for the purpose of forming an Alberta Fish and Game Association. Among the chief objectives of this provincial association will be the suppression of pests, such as crows, magpies and coyotes, the preparation of recommendations which will advance the fish and game interests in their relation to farmers, ranchers and sportsmen, and the bringing in of new game birds, such as Ring-necked pheasants, which will do well in this province.

In this connection, the Calgary Fish and Game Association has already arranged to bring in 1000 pheasant chicks this summer to be set out in the Calgary district. Other associations are taking similar steps and it is indicated that there may be support from the provincial government in this respect.

In order to form a strong Alberta Fish and Game Association, it is desirable that local associations be organized throughout the province and all sportsmen in the district are urged to take an active part in accomplishing this end. Those who are interested in the revival of sport to C. A. Hayden, President of the Calgary Fish and Game Association, who is looking after the preliminary work in connection with the forming of the provincial association.

"Do you think I would marry you to a decent boy a boy of good family who was foolish enough to think of marrying a foreigner of whom he knew nothing, and of whom the police knew considerable? Look!"

Helmi leaned over and scanned the paper. Her own picture stared at her. For a moment she forgot everything but the pleasant memories it brought to mind of Miss Abbie's home and his kindly shelter. The picture was taken in front of the house; she had worn her white middy and pleated skirt. She remembered that Mrs. Wysmuth had asked for a photo—it was one of the rules of the House.

Helmi Mlinder, young Finnish girl who escaped from the Girls' Friendly Home. Arrested here a year ago in the worst Chinese den in the city." Helmi reeled, and would have fallen had not Major Gosnell sprung to her assistance and placed her in a chair.

"I'm sorry—very sorry," said He Major-ase, when he thought she was sufficiently recovered to speak.

"No," said Helmi faintly; "that's my picture, but it's all a lie."

"Of course, they all say that!"

"Well, at least you can understand that I was not anxious to marry you to young Dusan or any decent man. You have a record you see, and every magistrate in Canada has a copy of this."

"Did Jack see this?" Helmi asked after a pause.

"Yes, I showed it to him while you sat outside," said the magistrate, "but he told me to go on like every other young fellow he wanted his own way. But now I advise you not to try to make trouble. You have no claim on him—husbands that and, he's game away, I hear, for good. You'd better go straight back to this Home that you ran away from. No doubt they will help you through again. I understand many of the girls come back two and three times. In fact," he said turning to his bench, "that is one great objection to these Reserve Homes they make things far too easy for girls of this class."

Helmi sat staring past them vacantly. The pallor of her face was deepening.

"Now, look here," said the magistrate, sharply, "no tricks, no faints. You're an old hand at this, although you are not old in years, and you can't make me believe you are an innocent young thing, who has been deeply wronged. You're well able to look after yourself."

Helmi rose uncertainly. She reached out her hand for the certificate she had given him.

"This is no good," he said, "you may as well leave it here."

"Give it to me," cried Helmi, with some of her old fury, snatching it from his hand.

"Take it then, you tiger," he said tartly. "It's no good to you. Take it and get out of here! I am not running a Girls' Friendly Home here."

Helmi opened her purse to replace the paper, and as she did so a card dropped out. She stooped and picked it up. It was a white card bordered with maple leaves, and in the centre were printed these words: "Welcome to Canada!"

The sight of the card brought Helmi back to the night she had got it. It was her place-card the night the girls gave her the party. They were good to her and would be sorry for all this trouble which had come to her. The man who had caused her so much harm would suffer for it. Caitsa was all right. God was all right. This man was a devil. In a moment all her faintness was gone, succeeded by burning rage.

The two men watched her uneasily. There was something terrible in her anger. She walked over to the table and stood in front of Col. Blackwood.

"You are a bad man," she said, "A devil—an old dirty, drunken devil. I hate you, and I will kill you. If my man does not come back to me I will kill you." Her voice was low, but it filled all the room. "It will be your fault, and I will come back here and kill you."

Before either of the men could recover from the shock she was gone.

When Helmi drove into the yard at the Boarding House old Slim, who had been watching for her, came to take her horse. Mrs. McMann came next, and the timekeeper, and the miner hoss. They had been talking it over.

Helmi stepped out of the buggy and stood leaning against the wheel. Her face was white and lined, and her big eyes were feverish.

"Well, Helmi, what about it?" said Mrs. McMann, who could bear the suspense no longer. "What about it?"

"It is not in the book," said Helmi, wearily. "He says we are not married at all. He says Jack was fooling me. He is an old devil, that magistrate."

"Tough luck, Helmi," said the miner boss, "but we all know it wasn't your fault. He fooled you—that's all."

Mrs. McMann found her tongue—never a hard task for her. "Well, one thing sure, Helmy, you can't say I didn't warn you. I knew it means no good to a girl when one of these city dudes starts to go with her. They mean no good to any girl. I tell you, a girl has to watch her step all the time. I can't keep you here. I'd keep you on if I could, but there's so much talk of this, that and the other; and I've always tried to run a decent house, but with so many comers and goers, and now that Mr. McMann has gone I've got to be more careful. I guess you'd better go into the city. There's so many people there no one asks questions."

Mrs. McMann went on talking.

Helmi stood up and faced the sunset and her eyes were looking far away. She did not hear what Mrs. McMann was saying. She was thinking of that sunset long ago—the night before she crossed the Canadian border—how it glowed and gleamed and beckoned. She had been so sure it was a welcoming fire to warm and comfort her. She had been so full of hope and confidence so sure she was of making her way, and finding friends. But those fires, these friendly fires, where were they now?

Her friend whom she loved had betrayed her into hostile hands. And now her Jack! Was Aunt Lili right after all? Was Jack a painted Brute . . . and God, her God, who had seemed so close and dear and loving to her, was he just a painted fire like the other, cold, and dead, and mocking, when she came to him crying and shivering, bitterly alone, and afraid.

The last gleam of color faded in the sky, and the night wind came whistling, cold and piercing, down the mountain pass.

Helmi was aroused by the collie dog licking her hand.

CHAPTER XXI

Dead gardens, littered with stock from which the life had fled and the bright blooms had departed, with all the sadness of the silent places where throbbing life had been, hummocked over the newly earthed graves where the potatoes and turnips now lie buried; dead fields cleared out, swept clean and tidied away like the house of trouble where the neighbors gather and do this and service for the one who is gone; leaden stubble whose golden hue was faded now to match the lowering sky; leafless trees that draw together moaning and complaining like toothless old women whose children have all forgotten them; no birds at all except the little grayish-fawn who sing no song and whose coats are the color of dust; the rose-haws gone, driven out by the scouring winds of December that foam with rage at any spot of brightness; weary winds that rage all day and moan at night as if they had repented of their evil ways, but whose sorrow is only for the works of destruction which they were not able to accomplish. The harvest past, the summer gone, starts melancholy over all. So came that cold, gray, desolate time which we refer to as the "Turn of the Year."

There was only one hope for the sad old world, so gray and unlovely and lifeless—hope that the decent snow would come with its soft, widening sheet to cover the unsightliness of the dead face. Surely there would be snow for Christmas. "A green Christmas makes a full churchyard" the old people said grimly, but no one could truthfully call this a green one. It was only gray and hidden.

Why do so many, many babies of today come to us with their little spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence melts off gently through the tiny system. Not even a dissolved dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhoea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

FIGHTING FOR BABY'S HEALTH

In the Constant Care Of Every Young Mother

The young mother has a constant care in looking after the welfare of her little ones. Childhood ailments come on so sudden sometimes without a minute's warning the mother may have a very sick baby on her hands before help can be obtained. That is unless she has a remedy in the house which she can safely give the baby for any of the many minor ailments of babyhood and childhood.

Such a remedy is found in Baby's Own Tablets. Thousands of mothers throughout the country always keep a box of the Tablets on hand and they be quick to tell you that for sweetening baby's stomach; regulating his bowels, and thus driving out constipation and indigestion, colds and simple fevers and making the dreaded teething period easy.

Baby's Own Tablets are an absolutely safe remedy. They are guaranteed to be free from opiates or any other narcotic drug which are so harmful to the future welfare of the baby. Mothers, if you value the life of your little ones give him Baby's Own Tablets when he is ill, or, better still, give him an occasional dose of the Tablets to ward off illness. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or will be sent to any address, post paid, at 25 cents a box by addressing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Rubber From Flowers

Asters are three per cent. rubber and there is enough tire material in dandelions and golden rods to provide an emergency supply should the occasion arise. This according to announcement from the laboratories of America's inventive wizard, Thomas Edison.

Cause Of Asthma.

No one can say with certainty exactly what causes the establishing of asthmatic conditions. Dust from the street, from grain and various other irritants may set up a trouble impossible to irradicate except through a sure preparation such as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Uncertainty may exist as to cause, but there can be no uncertainty regarding a remedy which has freed a generation of asthmatic victims from the scourge of the bronchial tubes. It is sold everywhere.

Winnipeg Live Stock Shipments

During January 1296 car loads of live stock were handled at the Union stock yards, St. Boniface (Greater Winnipeg). The shipments comprised 20,662 head of cattle, 67,377 hogs, 17,448 sheep and 1,420 horses.

Hard and soft corns both yield to Holloway's Corn Remover, which is entirely safe to use, and certain and satisfactory in its action.

LESSON No. 20

Little Helps For This Week

"Blessed be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with benefits, even the God of our salvation."—Psalm lxviii. 19.

When all Thy mercies, O my God,
My rising soul surveys
Transported with the view, I'm lost
In wonder, love, and praise.

Ten thousand thousand precious gifts
My daily thanks employ;
Nor be the least a cheerful heart,
That taste those gifts with joy.
—Joseph Addison.

If gratitude is due from man to man, how much more from man to his Maker? The Supreme Being does not only confer upon us those bounties which proceed more immediately from His hand, but even those benefits which are conveyed to by others. Every blessing we enjoy, by what means soever it may be derived upon us, is the gift of Him who is the great Author of good and Father of mercies. Ibid.

PAINS ALL OVER BODY

Two More Cases of Feminine Ills soon Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Barrington, N. S.—"I had terrible feelings, headaches, back and side aches and pains all over my body. I would have to go to bed every month and nothing would do me good. My husband and my friend got me my work for me as I have two children and we have quite a big place. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and got a little book about it through the mail, and my husband went to Eaton's and got me a bottle, and then we got more from the store. I am feeling fine now and do all my work and am able to go out around more. I tell my friends it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that makes me feel so well."—Mrs. Victor Richardson, Barrington, Nova Scotia.

Dull Pains in Back.

St. Thomas, Ont.—"I took four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and found great relief from the dull, heavy pains in the small of my back and the weakness from which I suffered for five years after my boy was born. After taking the Vegetable Compound and using Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash I am feeling better than I have for the past seven years, and advise my friends to take it."—Mrs. F. MANITOBA MAY USE ALBERTA TAR SANDS

Large quantities of Alberta tar sands may be used during the coming summer in connection with an extensive program of road building to be undertaken in the province of Manitoba. Representatives of Alberta Tar Sands companies have been in negotiations with Manitoba authorities for some time, and the plan under consideration involves the operation of a plant at McMurray or some other point adjacent to the deposits, where the tar can be extracted from the sand in order to reduce the cost of transporting this road building material.

CAPTAIN DANCEY HAS BUSY DAY AT FORT

At the invitation of the local branch of the Canadian Legion Captain Dancey addressed a large audience in the Memorial hall last Wednesday evening on "Canadianization of Canada." The captain is a forceful speaker and kept his audience interested from beginning to end. He launched some shafts which were not to the liking of everyone and if he did not succeed in waking us out of the Rip Van Winkle sleep he imagines us to be in, he at least provided a theme for conversation for some days.

He brought the returned men to take the "ex" from in front of service and to do their bit in civil life as they had in the war, and in particular to attend to those who were disabled and still suffering as a result of their army service.

The C.G.I.T., Boy Scouts and Cubs were heard from very plainly giving their codes and yells providing a pleasure to the audience.

Captain Dancey also addressed the school children in the morning, some of the business men at lunch and the women in the afternoon, calling it day after meeting the veterans at the close of the mass meeting.

FIFTY YEARS AN ODDFELLOW

After the usual routine business on Monday night a pleasant surprise awaited past Grand Master W. G. GOOD HOPE SILVER WEDDING

A very pleasant event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin S. Pomeroy of the Good Hope community on Monday evening, March 24, when immediate relatives to the number of thirty and a few friends gathered to help them celebrate their silver wedding. Mrs. Pomeroy's maiden name was Minnie Cranston. She has three brothers in this district, Dave, Walter and George. Mr. Pomeroy is the son of the late Rev. W. M. Pomeroy, who spent all his ministry within the bounds of the former London Methodist Conference. The grandfather was also a Methodist minister, and one of Mr. Pomeroy's brothers, the Rev. D. W. Pomeroy, for some years a minister of the Alberta Conference, is now a minister of the United church at Malden, Ontario. Mr. and Mrs. Pomeroy are staunch supporters of the church and of every good cause.

The Menace Of Wheat Rust

"During the last twenty years a certain parasitic fungus, known to the prophets from Moses to Burbank, has stolen half a million dollars' worth of wheat from the farmers of Western Canada."

With these introductory words, W. A. Irwin writes in a recent issue of MacLean's Magazine, of the tireless efforts being put forth in the Dominion Rust Laboratory at Winnipeg, and by the research departments of the three universities of the Prairie Provinces, to develop a rust resistant type of wheat. Mr. Irwin proceeds to say:

"Twenty years ago, Manitoba's hard bread wheat was at once the standard and the envy of the world. Last year, more than half of Manitoba's wheat crop was useless for bread-making. Why? The answer is 'rust.'

"Last year, Alberta produced four-fifths as much wheat on six and a quarter million acres as Saskatchewan produced on thirteen million acres. Why? The answer is 'rust.'

"Last year, up until the end of December, of the wheat from the entire West, only thirty-five per cent. graded Number Three Northern or better, as compared with fifty-five per cent. so graded during the previous year. Why? The answer is 'rust.'

"Last year, Manitoba produced only 30,000,000 bushels of wheat as compared with 50,000,000 bushels in 1926. Why? The answer is 'rust.'

"Nor is that the whole story. Since 1907 rust has taken an average of $35,000,000 a year from the Western wheat grower, a total of half a billion dollars. In one year, 1916, the loss from rust damage reached the colossal sum of $100,000,000. In 1923, $5,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat that might have gone out into the markets of the world fell a prey to the rust scourge. More than that, thanks to the same scourge, it now is impossible to grow Marquis a best in great areas of northern Manitoba and those who know best declare, without equivocation, that a similar fate would overtake all of that province and most of Saskatchewan if this new thrust of Nature were allowed to run its course unchallenged."

Even to Western farmers who knew, to their own sorrow, the terrible ravages of rust, these statements, showing the enormous extent of the losses sustained, and the gravity of the menace to the future of wheat growing in the West, will come as a surprise and a distinct shock. It is revealed by these facts and figures that 'rust' is levying a heavier toll on Western farmers than customs tariffs, or freight rates, or hail, or many other things which have long commanded the attention of farmer organizations.

Rust, hail and noxious weeds are the great enemies of the Western farmer. Weeds can be eradicated through the combined efforts of rural municipal councils and individual farmers, and they can be prevented by the adoption of good farming methods, and the use of only good, clean seed. Insurance against losses by hail can be secured, even if the occurrence of hail cannot be prevented or controlled. But it has been established that rust cannot be prevented or eradicated; that there is no bread wheat in the known world that is immune from rust; that, consequently, the only hope lies in the development of a type of bread wheat that is rust resistant.

As is pointed out in Mr. Irwin's article, it is the same old story of the pioneer's fertility all over again. In the beginning, the West couldn't feed a wheat that would grow fast enough to escape the spring and autumn frosts north of the forty-ninth parallel. So it called in the plant breeder and made wheats that would grow fast enough. Now it's a wheat that won't feed rust.

The story of the campaign now being waged to develop such a wheat is an inspiring one. Furthermore, the progress thus far made is highly encouraging, even though the battle is yet far from being won, or the end of the struggle in sight. Dr. Bailey, who has been in charge of the Dominion Rust Laboratory in Winnipeg, will make no definite predictions, but, he told Mr. Irwin, "I think I can say with reasonable certainty that we have been successful in capturing rust resistance in a bread wheat type. We have several resistant lines now, some of them in the fourth generation, and they seem to be fairly stable, but we have no guarantee that they will have satisfactory quality."

It is not in itself sufficient to develop a rust resistant type of bread wheat. Such a type must also be satisfactory from the standpoint of yield per acre, early maturity, milling quality, baking quality, and all the others demanded by a wheat importing world. Therefore, added Dr. Bailey, "if the quality is not satisfactory, we'll have to start breeding for it and if we can't breed for quality from the rustproof lines already produced, we'll have to start all over again."

It is not the West alone that is vitally interested in the success of this great undertaking, but all Canada, indeed, the whole world. The Dominion Government is spending about $50,000 a year on the maintenance of this highly trained rust research, a mere bagatelle compared with the average of $35,000,000 a year lost annually from rust impose on the country. The experts carrying on this important work are immediately underpaid and there is grave danger of losing their services. Farmers and business men of the West should not only insist that there be no economy in the remuneration paid to these men and their services retained, but the Dominion Government should be urged to step at no expense necessary to bring these really wonderful experiments to a successful conclusion at the earliest possible date.

Newspaper Men To Gather At Edmonton

Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association To Be Held in Northern City in July

At the annual meeting of the board of directors, Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, just concluded, the city of Edmonton was selected for the annual convention of the association to be held in July, with side trips to Banff and Jasper. The position of manager of the association with head office at Toronto Ontario, is as yet vacant, but hopes are held that a suitable man will be secured shortly. The list of candidates submitted was not satisfactory. A delegation of eastern and western members is anxious to secure the consent of R. J. Dornan, manager of the Batchewan Gazette and publisher of The Alameda Dispatch, to accept this position. Mr. Dornan has so far refused to leave the west.

Ancient Wood Carver Passes

Credited With Being the Originator Of Famous Cigar Store Indian

Louis Jobin, the old Quebec artist, who died at the age of 87, was a figure known to thousands of tourists who visited him in his little studio near the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre and bought samples of his work. Jobin's craft was an ancient one that was born to the Indians. He was credited with being the originator of the famous cigar store Indian.

Born at St. Raymond, Portneuf county, Quebec, he was known as one of the world's greatest carvers. Perhaps his most distinctive work, and one by which he is known, are, he left huge statue of the Blessed Virgin which towers above Cape Trinity at its entrance to the Saguenay River and is known as Our Lady of the Saguenay. It stands 25 feet high.

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulates the stomach and bowels; banish constipation, indigestion, break up colds and simple fever and make teething easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or direct by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Population Of Saskatchewan

Rural Population Nearly Three Times Double That of Cities

The population of Saskatchewan, as at June 1, 1926, was 820,732, an increase in the five-year period of 76,732, the subsequent census of 1921, or 63,236, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa. In 1901 the population was 91,279, and in 72,194. The rural population was more than double the urban, at 575,-200 compared with 245,532. In the latter seven cities, 86 towns and 200 villages are included. Regina's population is set at 57,239; Saskatoon's at 21,264 and Moose Jaw's at 19,038.

You doubtless depend on Aspirin to make short work of headaches, but remember that it's just as dependable an antidote for many other pains! Neuralgia? Many have found real relief in an Aspirin tablet. Or for toothache; an effective way to relieve it, and the one thing doctors are willing you should give a child— of any age. Whether to break up a cold, or relieve the serious pain from neuritis or fever-created rheumatism, here's nothing quite like Aspirin. Just make certain it's genuine; it must have Bayer on the box and on every tablet. All druggists, with proven directions.

Dr. Seager Wheeler Tells About Development Of A New Rust-Resisting Wheat

In further explanation of his development of a new wheat from the Kota strain, which promises to be rust resistant to a degree not approached by any other wheat, Seager Wheeler, of Rosthern, has given a statement on his experiments. He says he started with the Kota type which is famous for its rust resistant qualities, but is also noted for a weak straw and poor milling qualities. This variety of wheat is also of the bearded type. In 1923 Dr. Wheeler found that among his plots of Kota wheat were two bunds of the beardless class, although positive that it would have been impossible for any other class of wheat seed to have become mixed with this plot.

Believing that, by that accident of nature, the natural cross, that he had something to work on, he planted these two heads separate and sowed the seeds in a separate plot. This was in 1924. In making the maintare harvest of his plots, he noticed that the product of this new experiment plot had broken up into several distinct types, each different from one another, but only noticeable to one who had spent years in the wheat study.

Each of these different strains was planted in separate plots in 1925, which again divided, and at the end of the year Dr. Wheeler was able to count 60 different varieties of his original product, derived from his two heads. Many of these were bad apparently not been affected by the rust of 1927.

The following year, 1926, there was practically no rust, consequently experiments carried on in this year could not demonstrate the ability to fight this enemy of the farmer. However, it was shown that a grain similar to that of Kota, with bearded heads, with straws of a much stronger description and whose milling qualities were much superior to those of the original strain had been developed.

Not content with this, Dr. Wheeler again carried on his series of experiments last year, and it is as a result of these, carried on in one of the worst rust years of the district, that Dr. Wheeler was able to announce definite results, he said.

Sowing about 30 selections of his original strain, he found that the seeds taken from the Kota product were more successful in warding off the damaging attacks of rust. On all sides (for the experimental plots of this morning somewhat break for area) could be seen types of wheat that he was testing. All of these showed the effects of rust, not only in the stalk, but also in the shrunken seeds. This new type or types developed by him since 1926, showed very little rust. Types of wheat on each of rust were seen on the leaves but the seeds were fully developed and not damaged in the least, he said.

When questioned in regard to the future of this wheat, Dr. Wheeler said that he intended continuing his experiments, and believed that by careful selection and observation he would soon be able to give to the world a wheat that although not guaranteed against rust, would be so little effected by it that the damage could be discounted.

Dr. Wheeler pointed out that he was not announcing that he had a wheat that would have no rust attacks. He mentioned that in the past others had announced that they had a wheat of this type, consequently disappointing those whose livelihood depended on their crops when proved a failure. "What I do say, is that I have a wheat which I confidently expect will prove sufficiently rust repellant to greatly lessen the dangers of loss by rust."

Dr. Wheeler has been growing and experimenting with wheat in Saskatchewan for the past 40 years. In addition to developing such an early ripening wheat as Red Bobs, and carrying on endless experiments in all cereals, Dr. Wheeler has an orchard on his small farm three miles east of Rosthern, in which he grows practically all types of fruit with the exception of those which only mature in tropical countries.

Mining in the West

Talc Deposits in Alberta Are to Be Developed

Manitoba is rapidly rising in importance as a mining province," H. H. Lumsden, chairman of the mining bureau of the Winnipeg board of trade and director of the industrial development board of Manitoba, remarked in Montreal recently on his way to the annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, which was opened at Quebec. "In fact, the prairie as a whole has little realization of the strides being made by Manitoba in directions other than agriculture and especially in mining," continued Mr. Lumsden.

An important present development in the west, mentioned by Mr. Lumsden as shortly to materialize, is that in connection with large deposits of talc, both of the green and white variety, in Alberta, about 15 miles from Banff, the bins now quite near the road, and was used chiefly in the making of electrical insulators and gas burners, while the white, which was very pure in the region of Seven Sisters, was the raw material for face powders.

A Remarkable Cow

Wetaskiwin District the Home Of Record Breaking Guernsey

Wetaskiwin district has the distinction of being the home of a Shorthorn cow which holds the record for all Canada in the production of milk and butterfat as a three-year-old. She is owned by J. O. Harvey in the north western part of the town of Wetaskiwin, and a letter from Ottawa advises that the production of this cow for the year has equalled 19,000 lbs. Gladys No. 300899 produced 19,304 lbs. of milk and 909 lbs. of butter fat in a test extending over 365 days. She is now undergoing her test as a four-year-old and is averaging about 58 lbs. of milk a day.

Revenue From School Lands

Nearly Two Million Dollars Collected By Federal Government In Southwestern Last Year

Revenues from Dominion and school lands in Saskatchewan during the fiscal year 1926-27 amounted to nearly $2,000,000 according to a report of the Federal Department of the Interior. Revenues originating in this province, chiefly through agencies at Prince Albert, Battleford and Regina amounted to $964,231.69 on Dominion lands, Crown timber, forestry, water power and reclamation, mining and national parks. School lands revenues amounted to $838,438.

Canada Spends Huge Sums In Construction and Maintenance Of Good Roads Coast To Coast

Feeding Young Turkeys

Must Not Be Fed At All Until 60 Hours Old

Some good advice on the feeding of poults is given in a Dominion Experimental Farm bulletin on turkeys. According to the bulletin the baby turkeys should not be fed at all until they are at least 48 hours old, and even sixty hours without food is not too long. The first feed, given in the morning, should be chick size oyster shell scattered on a small board, and sour skim-milk. Towards the end of the afternoon they should be given some hard boiled eggs chopped fine. Regular feeding should be started the next morning with hard boiled eggs and bread crumbs mixed together and given three times daily. After one week the egg may be gradually discontinued and the feed consist of bread alone. After the second week a little moist shorts are added, discontinuing the crumbs until the shorts alone are used. All these changes should be made gradually. Sour milk, grit and oyster shell should be given daily from the start. Never over feed or offer anything that has been mixed for previous feeding. As the poults grow they will travel over a wider range until very little feeding is necessary. The building, the coops and runs, and management of turkeys, may be obtained from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Growing Flax For Fibre

May Be Harvested By Cutting Instead Of Pulling

The slow progress that has been made in the growing of flax in Canada for fibre has been due to a considerable extent to the old idea that the flax plants have to be harvested by pulling. Experiments in harvesting at the Experimental Farm at Ottawa indicate that flax that is harvested by cutting can be made into a high grade tow. By harvesting the crop in this way one of the most expensive items of culture is largely overcome. The significance of this conclusion is that flax may be grown over a very large area of Canada and not cause fiane as it has been largely in the past to districts where Indian labor could be secured cheaply to pull the crop.

Horse Meat For Belgium

Frown, president of the United Trust Company, Abilene, Kansas, sailed recently on the four weeks cruise of the Canadian Pacific liner "Montroyal" bound for a tour of the West Indies, accompanied by seven women employees.

The president made a promise that he would take seven of his most efficient office girls on this cruise, the choice being left to the entire force under his control as to who should go on the fortunate trip. He leaves it travelling with his wife and daughter who are seen on either side of him in the above photo.

Canada Spends Huge Sums In Construction and Maintenance Of Good Roads Coast To Coast

There are now in Canada more than 150,000 miles of improved roads that are kept in good condition during the touring season, and in some districts during the winter months as well. In addition there are thousands of miles of roads of less costly types that are suitable for motor traffic. The construction and maintenance of all these roads have cost the Canadian an enormous sum of money. Highway improvement projects undertaken in co-operation by the Dominion Government and Provincial Governments since the Canada Highway Act of 1917 covered only 8,668 miles of the total road mileage of the country. Yet they keyed at a total investment of almost $49,000,000, of which the Dominion undertook to pay $19,596,288, and had paid $18,778,094 up to the end of March, 1927. Expenditures made for road construction and maintenance throughout the Dominion amounted in the one year 1926, to $45,508,000, of which almost $16,000,000 represented the cost of upkeep. Furthermore there is reason to believe that expenditures of the kind will continue.

The Canadian people's investment in good roads has facilitated travel between centres of population throughout the Dominion. It has undoubtedly had an influence on world and business relations between inhabitants of the country. It has afforded new means of access to the summer holiday grounds and to the most beautiful sections of the land. Tours throughout the mountain and lake ways have procured for the Canadian people. These expenditures have also helped to attract visitors in large numbers from the United States. In 1927, 8,153,000 touring motor cars came to Canada from the United States. The travellers in these cars, it is estimated, spent $276,298,150 in the country, as compared with $268,-197,820 that tourists of all kinds disbursed here in 1926. In 1927 Canadians visited the United States in 1,047,929 cars and spent there a total of $70,000,000, it is estimated. Thus in that year Canada showed a favorable balance of $200,000,000 in tourist trade.

The influx of tourists from the United States was beneficial to the country in more than one way. The visitors incurred travelling expenses in Canada, and in that way put money into circulation here. Under the tariff law of the United States, it must be remembered, each tourist was permitted to carry home goods to the value of $100 that were bought in Canada. Many of the tourists availed themselves of this provision of their countries law, and so contributed to the volume of business done last year by handling Canadian products. It is probable that many of the tourists helped on their return home to advertise Canada's attractions as a summer resort, its resources and the opportunities it offers for the investment of capital.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

A Dairy Province

Alberta has rapidly become a dairying province in the last few years. In 1927 her production in this department was valued at $9,750,000, of which $5,478,000 came from 16,435,000 pounds of creamery butter and 9,161,000 from 1,832,000 pounds of cheese, the latter being a comparatively new industry.

The BABY

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know were perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Pretty soon and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is nerves.

That's the beauty of Castoria: its gentle laxative nature just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's medicine being purely vegetable, so you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhoea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: it is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all deadlier drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Besides the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

Canadians May Sail For Antarctic

Reported That Two Canadian Citizens May Join Commander Byrd's Expedition

When Commander Richard E. Byrd sets sail for the Antarctic next fall, with his expedition culminating in an epoch-making flight across the South Pole, there is a possibility that he will be accompanied by two Canadians.

There is a possibility of Dr. L. D. Livingstone F.R.G.S., of Ottawa, who is connected with the [illegible] Territories branch of the interior department, and Inspector A. H. Joy, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, going with Commander Byrd, though definite arrangements have not been completed.

Both Dr. Livingstone and Inspector Joy have had great experience in the Arctic regions.

Western Canada Hog Industry

Word Will Soon Pass the Fifty Per Cent Mark in Hog Production

Western Canada will soon pass the 50 per cent. mark in hog production in the Dominion, it was predicted at the annual convention of the Western Canada Livestock Union. Steadily the percentage of select bacon hogs has been increasing and since grading has been in effect the Western Provinces have practically doubled the output of this class of hog. In 1927 there were 1,078,346 of these in Western Canada as against 969,097 in 1926.

There is nothing repulsive in Miller's Worm Powders, and they are so pleasant to take that a sugar pill or the children will refuse them. They can be thoroughly depended upon to clear worms from the system.

Demand For British Youths

Manitoba Farmers Anxious To Secure Services Of Youths From Great Britain

So many applications have been received from farmers in Manitoba to engage the services of youths who are being sent out from Great Britain under the Empire Immigration Scheme that the Provincial Government has requested the authorities to increase the number from the 1000 in 1928. Robert Prefontaine, Minister of Agriculture, stated that 175 farmers have filed applications for this help. It is expected that the first batch of youthful immigrants will reach Manitoba this month.

British Columbia's Growth

While British Columbia's whole population increased by nearly 28,000 or 2% per cent. in 1927, it is pointed out that there is no danger of an overproduction since only 60 per cent. of the mutton and lamb consumed in the province is domestically raised.

JESUS THE ANOINTED MESSIAH

Golden Text: If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me.—Mark 8:34

Lesson Mark 8:27-91; 9:2-9:2 to 34

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 63:7-9

Explanations and Comments

The Demands Of Discipleship—verses 34-37. One great truth, Jesus is the Messiah, the disciples had learned, another great truth, the Messiah must suffer they had been told, but as after events proved, they had not grasped, a third great truth they were now told the followers of the Messiah must suffer and sacrifice likewise.

To the multitudes as well as to the disciples Jesus said, "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." Denying oneself does not mean the giving up of this or that, but the giving up of self, the suppressing of all self-centered desire. The taking of one's cross is self-denial. Not only must he himself refuse the comfort but he himself. Peter found, if he would be Christ's true follower he must be ready to suffer death for it. A Christian is a Christian, in both of's contexts.

The beautiful thing is that this appeal of Christ was not lost in it aimed at repelling. Instead it attracted. He actually obtained the men whom he was hunting for, not by offering them worldly inducements but by making such appeals as anybody but Christ would have thought of. By addressing the sacrificial spirit in them, and making an appeal to their capacity for heroism. There is a wonderful tribute in Jesus' method to these characteristics in human nature which have never been developed, which, an answer to the highest motives, which do not need to be bought by any low compensations, but which a spring into full life when appealed to on the most heroic and unselfish plane. We know how, in consequence, this exaltation in difficulties, this love of hardship, this desire of ease, became the characteristic note of early Christianity. In the best summary description which Paul gives of Christian character and manhood, in the twelfth chapter of Romans, we find him speaking of "rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation." And when he comes to write his conception of the character of the happy warrior, we find him setting this in the foreground, "Endure hardship, as a good soldier of Jesus Christ."—Robert F. Roper.

"For whosoever would have his life shall lose it; and whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's shall save it." Jesus emphasized the word life and the pronoun it referring to life, are used in a twofold sense here. The sentence means: He who merely cares to is to save his natural life shall lose his spiritual life; and he who is willing to lose his natural life for My sake shall find his spiritual life.

The First Tremor Pocket

Before the time of the trousers pocket, man carried his valuables in a little bag or chest hung on his waist. Often, however, a thief would slip up behind, slit the string with a knife, and make off with the treasure. A thoughtful Frenchman, 300 years ago, sewed the bag in the lining of his garments, instituting the first trousers pocket.

A Corrector Of Pulmonary Troubles. Many testimonials could be presented showing the great efficacy of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in correcting disorders of the respiratory passages, but the best testimonial is experience and the Oil is recommended to all who suffer from these disorders with the certainty that they will find relief. It will allay inflammation in the bronchial tubes.

Refused Large Sum For Old Document

Odor Of American Bid Not Tempting Enough For Canada

The British Corporation has refused the offer of $5,000 from an American millionaire for a page of a 17th century document which was recently discovered in a hamper-room of the corporation offices which was being cleared out to provide more space.

The document contained a complete list in clerkly handwriting, of the servants sent out under compulsory indentures to the plantations of the West Indies and Virginia between the years 1660 and 1662.

Twelve thousand names appear on the list and one of these is the family name of the American who was anxious to buy the page on which it appeared.

The list of names is being made into a book, and will be published in America shortly.

For Farming

Saskatchewan To Charge Annual Rental Of 25 Cents Per Acre

For Three Years

An annual rental of 25 cents an acre for three years and $1.00 an acre for each succeeding year is to be charged for lands used for fur farming in Saskatchewan, according to Hon. C. M. Hamilton, Minister of Agriculture. The proposed rental charge is to cover the actual acreage of the land and water under lease. The cost of administering the lands is to be borne by the Provincial Government and it has authority to collect and retain the rentals. Altogether 92 applications have been received by the Department.

WILL CENTRALIZE RESEARCH WORK AT THE CAPITAL

Ottawa Centralized industrial research, made possible by the decision of the Dominion Government to establish national research laboratories at Ottawa, will be of distinct benefit to Canadian universities, as well as to Canadian industries.

Co-operating with the National Research Council, the universities have for the past ten years voluntarily given over their laboratories and their staffs to investigations outside the strict limits of academic research. The step finally decided upon at Ottawa, on the insistent representations of the National Research Council, means that these facilities will once more be liberated for the service of pure science.

The council will continue the fair salaries and scholarships with which since its creation it has stimulated the training of research specialists, to supplant foreign-trained experts in Canadian industries. The fitting of scientists for research work is of the utmost importance to Canada, since industries are still in an infant stage of development, it is pointed out.

The National Research Council has awarded 44 scholarships, as the result of which 155 Canadians completed their training in their own country, almost all of them holding employment in Canada. Before the inauguration of these awards it was necessary for the Canadian student to go abroad to complete his training, with the result that he usually found employment abroad and was lost to his own country. American institutions are learning of the good work scholarships annually, the majority of which are open to Canadian students.

One of the great needs of today is an increased number of such scholarships, so that Canadian universities may maintain graduate schools for training in science and research of sufficiently high standard to eliminate the necessity of the most brilliant graduates going abroad to complete his education and possibly taking his valuable knowledge permanently out of the Dominion. Such graduate schools will provide the technicians required by the universities and the government services, as well as the national industries.

Sir Joseph Flavelle Will Be Chairman Of Research Council In Ontario

Toronto. Sir Joseph Flavelle, prominent Toronto capitalist and philanthropist, will be chairman of the industrial research council for the creation of which legislation is now before the legislature. Premier Ferguson announced in the House.

A research council composed of University men and men interested in the various industries, including agriculture, is to be established. Persons interested in the work may contribute money to the board, and for each dollar contributed by private individuals the Government will contribute another dollar, but will not raise a sum of $3,000,000 in five years, the Government paying $200,000 a year, provided private contributions are of equal amount.

Conditions Of Poultry Business Unsatisfactory Says Cockburn Man

Victoria, B.C. Hen No. — which broke all egg production records a year ago, advertised British Columbia poultry to the world and brought thousands of dollars in orders to the University of British Columbia poultry plant, but she has merely helped to accentuate the market situation.

That is the view of Captain A. H. Mathews, of the Cowichan Creamery Association, one of the largest co-operative dairy and poultry plants in Western Canada.

The condition of the poultry business is unsatisfactory," declared Captain Mathews. Not only has the number of birds increased very rapidly, but egg production per bird is also increasing. In fact, it is said to be the eighth wonder of the world that it has the knack of producing eggs in winter. Unquestionably, the most important development in the poultry industry is the great system of organized marketing the coming generation is to see in the industry. After that—nothing.

Afghan Monarch Views World's Metropolis From the Air

London. The first royal aeroplane tour over London occurred this afternoon, when Amanullah, ex-King of Afghanistan, was given a large Imperial Airways liner for a fifty minutes' flight, during which he could not return there after a swing through the air lanes, in the special plane, the Flower of Kabul, Westminster Abbey, Buckingham Palace, Chelsea and the southwest London district.

The Afghan monarch appeared intensely interested in the countries and moved about in the plane viewing the various scenes through binoculars.

Plague In Prison Camp

Sydney, N.S.W. — Following the murder of two white officials in the Solomon Islands last October, 170 natives were rounded up and confined in a hastily constructed camp. Word has now been received here that dysentery has broken out in the camp. Out of 46 natives affected seven have died. The magistrate to try the prisoners is now on the way from Fiji.

Will Discuss Thanksgiving Date

Edmonton.—Attention and Thanksgiving Day should be celebrated on the same day Simcoe 11 This is the practice advocated by K. J. Latter, Conservative, Vancouver South in a resolution placed on the order paper of the House. The suggestion will be discussed shortly in Parliament.

Date trees in the world total 90,000,000, according to a recent estimate.

Would Not Interfere With Ocean Flying

British Air Ministry Thinks Legislation Would Be Unwise

London A stand against Government supervision of trans-Atlantic flying was taken in the House of Commons by the air minister, Sir Samuel Hoare. The minister told the Commons that in his opinion it would be unwise for a department of the government to obtain legislative powers of that kind.

He added that while he agreed in the advisability of not attempting the right to explore by aydroplane the northwest territories north of latitude 60, and at the same time to be given the right to explore a limited time to stake mining claims in that area.

The applicants pointed out that it would bring into review the policy of the government in co-operating with private capital in the organization of extensively remote territories which for the present is beyond the reach of the ordinary prospector. The syndicate would agree to supply the department with air view maps and other information gathered as the exploration was carried on.

No decision has yet been given by the department but it is understood that a favorable reply would soon be granted. Cost of the exploration would be about $200,000.

Power Contract Closed

Manitoba Company Will Supply Government With 20,000 Horse-power Yearly

Winnipeg The Manitoba Power Company has closed a contract with the provincial government to supply 20,000 horsepower from the power house at present under construction at Sisters Falls. The contract will operate over a period of 16 years at the end of which provision is made whereby the government can take over the private plant on a publicly owned utility.

According to Hon. W. J. Major, Attorney-General, the power will be sold to the government at a rate of $13 50 per horse power. This figure, he claimed, was the most favorable received anywhere on the continent.

Capture Deer In Vancouver

Vancouver, B.C.—While walking along Broughton Street in the west end of the city, two men captured a full-grown deer when it dashed toward them. A number of dogs from nearby residences were in eager pursuit of the animal. Where the deer came from is a mystery. It was uninjured and had apparently travelled

British Medical Men Coming To Canada

Arrangements Being Made For Conference At Winnipeg In 1929

Toronto, Ont. In connection with the proposed meeting of the British Medical Association in Winnipeg, Man., in 1929, a program is already being arranged whereby the visiting medical men will be enabled to see as much of the Dominion as possible before they return to Great Britain. Dr. F. C. Routley, Toronto, secretary of the Canadian Medical Association, is sailing at the end of this month for the old Country to arrange details of the 1929 meeting of the British Medical Association in Winnipeg, which is expected to be the greatest gathering of doctors ever held in the Empire.

This will be the third meeting of the British Medical Association outside of the British Isles, both of the previous meetings being held in Canada, in Montreal in 1897, and in Toronto in 1906.

After a week in Winnipeg, the British doctors will be taken through the Rockies to the Pacific Coast and back again by another line. Thus they will see the prairies, the mountains and the wealth of British Columbia. They will be taken through the Maritime Provinces.

Test Pulverized Coal

Will Attempt To Demonstrate Commercial Possibilities Of Product

Ottawa.—Development of the commercial possibilities of pulverized coal will be proceeded with immediately by the government. To test and demonstrate possibilities, the government will (a) adapt one of its steamers on the Pacific coast to utilize pulverized coal; (b) use pulverized coal in one of the government buildings in British Columbia.

This is stating this announcement to the House of Commons, Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, said he thought there was a bright future for pulverized fuel, especially for use on freighters. Pulverized fuel was no longer in an experimental stage.

The matter was brought up on a resolution by A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberni).

British Settlers for Canada

A good example of the type of British farm settlers now arriving in Canada can be seen from the above photo taken on the concourse of the Windsor Street Station, at Montreal. This group, which forms part of the 460 settlers who arrived recently on the S.S. Montnairn, are the first contingent this season of British farm laborers brought out under the auspices of the Canadian Pacific Railway Colonization Department.

They possess a family farming training, therefore being well equipped for the duties they are to take up in Ontario, where farms have already been arranged for them by the government.

NATIONS FROWN ON DISARMAMENT PLAN OF SOVIETS

Geneva, Switzerland. Twenty-two of the 25 countries represented on the preparatory committee for a disarmament conference are lined up against the Soviet plan for immediate complete disarmament.

Hugh S. Gibson, the United States; Calino Whitmarsh, Cuba; Baron Rolin Jacquemyns, Belgium; Jonkheer Rutgers, Holland; E. Hennings, Sweden; M Bekal, Poland, and M. Markovitch, Jugo Slavia, added their criticisms to those of Lord Cushendun, making the Russian defeat overwhelming.

London. The Evening News, commenting on the speech of Lord Cushendun, British delegate at Geneva, expressing profound regret at the Russian scheme of complete disarmament being possible under present conditions, says it is a matter for serious whistling through the League of Nations council chamber for once not a bouquet but a commendably heavy and well-aimed brickbat. "Lord Cushendun deserves the thanks of the civilized world for his judicious and skilful use of his strong right arm," The News says.

The Evening Star editorially says if the League of Nations could be convinced of Russia's good faith the Soviet peace proposals might be assured a friendly hearing

The fire department had a run with the chemical last Thursday evening, the call coming from G. T. Montgomery, whose garage caught fire while he was burning off grass in the vicinity of the building. Montgomery's place is quite a way out of town and he had the flames quenched by the time the brigade arrived, three being lots of water handy. One side and the roof of the garage was scorched on the inside and the top of his Chevrolet coupe was ruined.

A pipe line is being laid from the jail to Government street where a hydrant will be placed. This will ensure an inexhaustible supply of water in case of a serious fire in the business district. The Edmonton fire brigade is under contract to send a pump here if called upon and their pump would empty in the twinkling of an eye one of the tanks we at present rely on. With this supply from the jail a city pump will be unnecessary at a critical time; without it it is useless to call Edmonton for aid.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Progress in Civil Aviation

Twenty-One Organizations Are Now Operating in Canada

The reports of the civil organizations operating aircraft for the year 1927 show an all-round increase in all forms of aerial activity.

The organizations operating aircraft have grown from 10 in 1922 and 16 in 1926, to 21 in 1927. The mileage flown has risen from 256,536 in 1925 to 825,010 in 1927.

Passenger traffic showed a tremendous advance, due very likely to the increasing popularity of short pleasure flights.

The evident returns for licensed aircrafts and pilots show a decrease of one in the number of living aircraft, causing death or injury, which there were four in 1927, and five in 1926. These included the death of two pilots and two passengers and the injury of one pilot and two passengers as against two persons killed and eight persons injured in 1926

In the City all the street scenes that Christmas Eve were garish and hollow. Street cars clanged and shrieked and roared through the Subway; horses' feet pounded on the pavement like blows on an anvil, and no motible brakes seemed to scream in bright and pain. Many a person turned hastily, expecting to see an accident, only to find it was just a car stopping. Cold, gray and hard lay the city on this day which should be the brightest of the year.

In the very greatest part of the day, when the sunlight was fading and the lamps were not yet lighted, the snow began weaving its changing patterns through the waiting air. The country people saw it falling and said it had kept off well, and hoped for the sake of the cattle, that it would not fall too deep and cover all the grass. Snow was an old story to them, making them think of blocked roads, and paths to shovel to the stables, and, worst of all, hungry cattle looking for food. But in the city the snow got a royal welcome.

"How it does look like Christmas," the people called to each other on the street through their wet fur collars, and hurried along with their shopping bags dropsical with last-minute Christmas gifts. The red bells in the shop windows suddenly grew brighter, as if a candle had been lighted in them, and the Christmas serenins sparkled through the splinters of frost that began to come on the windows, for with the approach of nightfall the cold increased.

The hurrying bakers' wagons and coal-carts made frosty music on the snow, which in half an hour had covered the frozen ground. The Salvation Army captain on the corner with the red-mittened hands together to keep them warm, and blessed the falling snow because he knew it would help people to remember whose birthday it was tomorrow. As he rapped his cane on the pot and made it ring out its silvery monotone he could more heartily to all good Christians to keep the pot boiling.

"Help to provide Christmas cheer for all the needy and homeless in our city, he cried, "Tho had for anyone to be hungry or sad tomorrow. Thank you, Sir—God bless you; and you, too, ma'am—Keep the pot boiling, remember our Blessed Lord! Keep the pot boiling! Christmas comes but once a year!"

A man in a coon coat walked hurriedly by, without contributing. The Salvation tried in vain to catch his eye.

"You won't get anything from me," he was saying to himself, "to feed a lot of lazy hobunks that would not take a job when it was offered to them. By Gosh! don't I know them? Everything comes out of the farmer these days trimmed at every turn but here's one place I won't bite anyway—I have all I can do to keep my own pot boiling."

He turned into the Dominion Cigar Store then, remembering that his stock of tobacco was low.

A crippled man on two crutches, back from the war, stooped to throw in the coin which he extracted with difficulty from his pocket.

"God bless you, brother!" cried the captain; "your legs may be on the blink, but your heart is all right—God bless you!"

"He—he—he blesses me every day," mulled the lame man; "I'm lucky to be alive."

"I bet you are!" Came on, good people, it will do you good to give; it will make your own dinner taste better tomorrow."

A young girl with hair of fiery gold, but awry, flushed face and weary eyes, stood in a doorway across the street. She had laid down her heavy valise for a moment to rest her aching shoulders. The crowd of Christmas shoppers surged past her, some of them giving girls of her own age, giggling, scuffling, incoherent in their gladness. She watched and she looked at them. There were young mothers, too, herding excited children who had been in the Santa Claus in the toy department of one of the big stores. Each of these carried a balloon, red, green and blue, balancing gayly. The little children—the believers—were rapt and quiet with the wonder and glory of their visit—the older ones noisy, greedy, impressive, demanding.

Helmi Dorsi, not much more than a child herself, suddenly wanted one of the balloons, the blue of which she had never seen; then so suddenly she remembered!

She must ask someone where to go, but no one even looked at her, they were so busy, so happy, so absorbed. The snow on the street muffled their footsteps but the clanging of the street cars and their peering storm-obscured eyes alarmed to her, and the dual movement of the snow falling and the people passing was confusing. She began to feel dizzy as she once did when fording the McLeod River, the rushing water of which had turned her head. She seemed to be going, going, with the street and all the people in them, and behind the fear of it on her face, which was so hot and dry and burning, and on her heart, which was so sore, and she hoped the snow would keep on falling until her heart would be buried so deep she could not feel it aching.

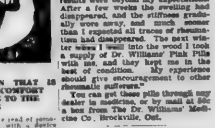
There is nothing too great, nothing too small, for us to bring to the One of all compassion. I think it is the failure to deal with our every want that ills loves. Hence the oftener we go the more we please Him, for our asking for the, to us, seemingly little things, is but demonstrating our entire dependence on Him; and surely this dependence, this trust, is what He wants of the children of our Heavenly Father.—Rose Porter.



A NEW INVENTION THAT IS GOING TO BRING COMFORT AND PLEASURE TO THE SHAVEN

Every man is a shaving fool at some time or other, and Mr. Gillette has made a fortune out of the life of safety. Razor Blades and at the same time surprising many a shaving convert. But it starts with a St. Louis man to place on the market a razor embodying the features of all this and a little more. Kilkenny, the originator of the Kilkenny Cat, invented a safety razor. It is a novel principle and is hardly necessary to explain the principle, which gives the razor a neat amount of satisfaction and the pleasure of not having to eventually dip into his pocket to purchase new blades. This new device will enable the user to employ one blade indefinitely.

SICK ABED EIGHT MONTHS

After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Could Do All Her Work and Gained in Weight

Melfort, Saskatchewan. — "I had severe trouble, headaches and severe pains in my back and sides. I was so sick generally that I could not get up and I was in bed most of the time for eight months. An aunt wrote to me to get the bottle I could get up and do my own work. She told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine. When I first took the medicine I only weighed seventy-eight pounds. Now I weigh twice as much. If I get out of work or worry and can't sleep I always take some of the bottle of the Vegetable Compound. I find it wonderfully good for female troubles, and have recommended it to my neighbors. I will be only too glad to answer any letters I receive asking about it."—Mrs. WILLIAM STICHEL, Box 456, Melfort, Saskatchewan.

AVOID THE PAINS OF RHEUMATISM

This Trouble Comes Through Weak, Watery Blood

Many people suffer rheumatic pains that could be avoided by building up their blood. Rheumatism comes with thin, watery blood, and can only be driven out of the system by enriching and purifying the blood. To make rich, red blood no medicine equals Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new blood, driving out all poisonous secretions and creating a condition of robust health. Thousands of rheumatic sufferers can testify to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Among them is Mr. Joe A. Tully, Bobcaygeon, Ont., who says :—"As a worker in the woods for years I was exposed to all kinds of rough wintry weather. The result was that I was finally laid up with rheumatism. I could hardly stir, and was confined to bed. Medicine seemed to have little or no effect and the best encouragement the doctor gave me was that with the coming of warm weather I would be better. But instead of getting better, I grew worse. My joints were badly swollen, and my legs so stiff they would hardly support my body. At this stage I read that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended for rheumatism and decided to try them. The results were beyond my expectations. After a few weeks the swelling had disappeared, and my stiffness gradually wore away, and much sooner than I expected all traces of rheumatism had disappeared. The next winter when I went into the wood I took a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with me, and they kept me in the best of condition. My experience should give encouragement to other rheumatic sufferers."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Pains Across Kidneys For Two Years

Unable to Work

"Gin Pills—Wonderful Remedy"

We receive thousands of letters yearly from grateful users of Gin Pills, who have been relieved of pain and suffering from kidney and bladder trouble. When Nature fails to do her proper work of eliminating harmful acids through the kidneys, bladder and bowels, a remedy must be found. Many people have found Gin Pills to be this remedy. Mrs. Alex. Johnson, Box 1, Johnson's off Bridgeburg, Ont. He writes:

"I was troubled with pains across the kidneys for two years. I was unable to do my work. I had taken medicine from doctors and they did me no good. I saw Gin Pills advertised and sent for a box. They relieved me in a few days. I am now working and can say Gin Pills are a wonderful remedy for kidney trouble."

Neglect of kidney trouble spells disaster. Lumbago, Rheumatism and Sciatica go hand in hand with kidney troubles follow. Use Gin Pills and warning get a box of Gin Pills, 50c at all druggists, or direct from National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Ltd., Toronto, Canada.

CHEVROLET DEMONSTATION INTERESTS LARGE CROWD

A large crowd attended the Chevrolet demonstration given in the Eden Palace theatre last Friday. The proceedings opened with community singing from leaflets provided, and the pleasure of giving vent to restrained energy by singing parodies on popular songs put everyone in the right frame of mind to listen to the speakers. The Chevrolet representatives were Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Mayhew and though they apologized for their dry speeches, they need not have done so, as their talks were full of interest and information to all agre assembled in the theatre. Four reels of moving pictures were shown of the proving grounds of General Motors at a place near Detroit, where cars of all makes are put through gruelling tests and the results tabulated by skilled engineers. From statistics obtained from these sources and from experiments improvements are constantly being added to the Chevrolet and other makes of cars in the General Motors family.

Mr. R. M. Robinson, the local Chevrolet agent, announced a free drawing for prizes and R. Warrier was the lucky man to get $25.00 on the purchase price of a new Chevrolet, the lady receiving a five pound box of chocolates was Miss Whitson and Miss Edith Kerren was given a fountain pen.

Easter Message

"Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first-fruits of them that slept."

Life here on earth is manifestly a fragment—only a piece of life. It is not fulfilled here. There are in men and women capacities for happiness, for goodness, and for service never realized in this life. The resurrection of Jesus Christ is our living hope that what is now incomplete will one day be completed. The life of the young man who died in the war was not, after all, at the mercy of a stray bullet. What in him was not fulfilled will yet find fulfilment. The splendid powers of an Abraham Lincoln were not at the mercy of an assassin's knife. And the Supreme Man of all the ages was not snuffed out by the petty jealousy of scribes and Pharisees.

It is true that Jesus Christ is alive. May this Easter time bring the power of his risen life to the heart of all our living.

"Christ is a man like me! Ah! Let us on,
"If we, then, too, can be such men as he."

DOUGLAS C. RAMSEY.

ABUSING PLAY STAGED BY UNITED CHURCH LADIES' AID

Twenty-two ladies of the United church Ladies' Aid put on a play entitled "An Old-time Ladies' Aid Business Meeting at Mohawk Crossroads" at the Palace theatre last Wednesday evening. It was well enjoyed by the large audience. An amusing play in itself it was given added punch by the inclusion of some local atmosphere and by the fact the costumes were years of the past 1870 or thereabouts. Solos, duets and quartettes interspersed with the "business meeting" were also appreciated.

The "troupe" also gave a performance at Bruderheim on Friday evening and were given an enthusiastic reception by a packed audience.

Gibbons is also to be visited in the near future.

CARD OF THANKS

Protect Our Forest Resources

Among the varied natural resources which go to make up Canada's enormous potential wealth, the forests occupy a most important place. As is now generally known, Canada has within recent years moved into first place among the nations of the world in the production of paper, having passed the United States which up to a few years ago was the world's largest producer. The great development of water powers, now so marked a feature of Canada's industrial progress, has been largely responsible, and because of the growth of the pulp and paper industry. This water power development is, however, vitally affecting the whole life of the Dominion.

Apart from the pulp and paper industry, the lumber trade is very important, and play a direct part upon practically every department of Canada's national life whether it be the social, economic, financial, agricultural or industrial. It is of the utmost importance, therefore, that the forests of Canada be protected and conserved.

In full realization of this fact, the Dominion Government has by royal proclamation issued by His Excellency the Governor-General, set apart the week of April 22 to 28 as "Canadian Forest Week." Statements contained in the royal proclamation may serve to bring home to Canadians the effect and value of forests in ways to which they have given little thought. In this proclamation the following facts are emphasized:

1. Our national income depends on our forest industries more than on any other source except agriculture.

2. Our forest industries depend on the timber crops now standing ripe in the forest, and their very existence is jeopardized by any preventable wastage of these supplies. The future of the forest industries depends on the young growth and immature timber of today, and the prosperity of these industries will be in direct proportion to the care and protection afforded this growing timber.

3. Our water-powers depend upon the stability of stream flow throughout the year, the equilibrium of which is disturbed by denudation of the forest cover in the drainage basins, resulting in alternate periods of flood and low water.

4. Our irrigation works demand protection—forests are the fountain-head of irrigation.

5. Our agricultural lands depend on distant watersheds for the maintenance of subsoil moisture during the growing period, and are robbed of productivity by wasteful run-off which occurs when the forests are destroyed.

6. Our game and fur-bearing animals depend on the forest for their natural protection, and decrease in numbers or retreat to more remote regions as the forest cover disappears.

7. Our tourist traffic depends in a great measure on scenic and other attractions offered in such abundance by the forest and would be seriously affected if verdant woodlands be transformed into desolate wastes.

This enormously valuable asset to any country—and Canada is among the wealthiest in forest resources among the nations of the world—is threatened by two dangers both of which are man-caused and therefore preventable.—(1) Almost universal carelessness with fire in the forest, resulting in the destruction, not only of timber and young growth, but of the very soil which produces it, and (2) the use of wasteful and destructive cutting methods without any thought of ensuring a new crop.

It is in recognition of all these facts that during "Canadian Forest Week," April 22 to 28, which is also the beginning of another season of travel and recreation in the forest with attendant fire danger, the people of Canada are officially urged to resolve for another year to recognize the situation as set out in this royal proclamation and to give earnest heed to the information issued by the several forest authorities and agencies in Canada to the end that all may be encouraged to a sustained and patriotic effort in promoting the conservation of this valuable resource.

Millions For Publicity

National Advertisers Spent $235,000,000 in 1927 in Newspaper Advertising

National advertisers spent $235,000,000 for newspaper advertising in 1927, the bureau of advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association has announced.

Estimates showed that 368 companies had expended $132,500,000, of which the greatest sum, $93,500,000, was spent by 57 automobile concerns. Eighty-two food advertisers spent $50,000,000, and 14 tobacco companies spent $13,300,000.

Four Settlers Making Good

Alberta Board Reports Payments Met By Large Number

Sixty-five per cent. of the settlers on land under the Calgary District of the Land Settlement Branch have already met their payments due for the year which ends June 30, 1928, according to W. S. Woods, superintendent of the Board in Calgary. More than $315,000 has been collected, out of $765,000 due, and the board has security upon wheat pool assignments yet to be realized upon covering deferred payments on more than 300 000 bushels of wheat. This is regarded as evidence of the board as a particularly good showing.

The worms that infest children from their birth are of two kinds, those that find lodgment in the stomach and those that are found in the intestines. The latter are the most dangerous as they work along the walls of the intestines and if not interfered with will work their way through. Worm Powders dislodge both kinds and while expelling them from the system serve to repair the damage they have caused.

Electrification Of Rural Areas In Canada Is Being Carried Out On Increasing Scale

That electrification of rural areas in Canada will be carried out on a broad and increasing scale in the next few years is pretty well indicated by progress to date and plans being laid for the future. The provinces of Ontario has been largely responsible for the activities of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission which was supplying 10,000 rural customers with electric service from nearly 7,000 miles of rural electric lines at the date of the last annual report. Since then more than 200 miles of lines have been built and plans for this year contemplate the construction of an additional thousand miles, bringing the total to 4,000 miles of line especially built to supply farmers and others in rural areas with electric light and power.

Indications are that progress in rural electrification will be rapid in Western Canada. Electric power lines are spreading out from Winnipeg, Regina, and Calgary particularly. These will not only supply the smaller towns with electric light and power but will bring the boon of electricity to many farms along the way. Manitoba is taking the lead and at a conference in Winnipeg recently of power, agricultural and manufacturing interests, plans were formulated for establishing electrical test farms as a step toward promoting the electrification of rural areas. This plan has been followed by the National Electric Light Association in the United States and it is interesting to note the number of uses to which electricity is being put on the demonstration farms. The installations include such things as refrigeration, lighting, pumping water, milking, cooking, heating, ironing, washing, cleaning, sewing, ventilation, power for hoisting and cutting and for grinding and mixing of feed and fertilizers. The list embraces all the uses of electricity in city homes and many special uses adapted to the farms.

It is predicted that a million farms in the United States will be using electricity inside of five years, a prediction supported by the fact that the number of "electrified" farms is 27 states doubled in three years, from 132,000 in 1923, to 327,000 in 1926. It is also interesting to note the progress being made in electrification of farms in near Montreal. Within a radius of four hundred miles, engineers made up 99 per cent. of the farm power load connected to the 25,000 horsepower plants, 6,436 or 99 per cent. were electric motors. The most widespread use of farm power in New England is for milking equipment of which there were over 17,600 units in use last year. The electric cream separator is an ideal drive and can be moved around for other purposes.

Electrification of rural areas will certainly increase rapidly in Canada and with abundance of water power and rates gradually very much lower than in the United States, it will be surprising indeed, if, at the end of five years, there are not in Canada as many or more electrical farms in proportion to population as there are in the neighboring republic.

Will Use Photography

Pictures Will Aid In Locating South Pole Says Byrd

Photographs will be relied upon to a large extent to help him find the South Pole, objective of his Antarctic expedition, by aeroplane, says Commander Richard E. Byrd.

The explorer said laboratories of two large companies are at work on the photographic problems of the expedition. In addition to making a camera record of every mile of the flight by means of an automatic camera to be fastened to the bottom of the plane, Commander Byrd said he also expected to use photography to help him locate the pole.

A special automatic camera with which he can take as many as seven exposures a second is being constructed. These pictures will be developed while the flight is under way.

Films on which pictures of the sun will be made will be married with what has been termed "position lines." Commander Byrd said, and by calculating the direction in different hours of the day from different spots appear he will have six sun shots by which he can determine his own position on or off his plotted course.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE WEST

Such a Lot Has Been Accomplished In a Short Space Of Time

At Saturday night's banquet in celebration of the opening of the new C.N.R. station, vivid reminders were given of how short a time it is since railway transportation began in the west and how great has been the development. General Superintendent Brown, who still brings the greatest vigor to the discharge of his duties, recalled how, when he commenced railroading out of Winnipeg, the trains had to stop to let the herds of buffalo go by Mr. John A. McDougall, who came to Edmonton by canoe and has ever since been an active figure in this community, pointed out that at that time the white people in all the country between Portage la Prairie and the Rockies were so few and numerous than these assembled in one room as the C.N.R.'s guests.

The progress of the dominion-owned railway under review Canada bought from the United States goods to the value of $706,330,720, or about $71 per head of population of the Dominion. The United States was Canada's best customer as an individual country with total purchases at $471,653,-356, Great Britain was in second place with $467,369,946. Canadian imports from the United States were valued at $443,876,003, which is more than the total value of imports from the whole of the British Empire.

Canada's principal foreign trade is done with 39 countries.

Settlers For Alberta

Effort To Bring Out Six Hundred New Families This Year

Over 600 new families arriving in Canada this year with limited capital can be looked after and settled advantageously in Alberta, by the various provincial agents of the Canada Colonization Association, according to reports submitted to various representatives at the annual Alberta convention just concluded. The objective first set was 600 families, but the survey showed that at least 900 more settlements could be made. T. O. F. Horner, manager of the association, reported that during the past three years 486 families had been settled in Alberta on 132,296 acres of land, of which 185 were settled last year

Highly favorable reports of the workings of the Saskatchewan Registered Seed Grain Association were heard at the recent meeting of the Association held in Moose Jaw. The officials met to discuss the operations of the organization. The business it was reported, is now at its height of shipping. Sales are far in excess of the corresponding period last year, with both internal and export registered seed traffic increasing.

Canada Now Leads The World As An Exporter Of Wheat And Of Wheat Products

Where Canada Spends Most

U.S. Holds Leading Place In Canadian Trade

An indication of the prevailing encouraging conditions of business in Canada is given in the Canadian trade report for the 12 months ended January 31, 1928. The total trade of the Dominion for this period was $2,325,-762,281, an increase of $24,861,282 over the 12 months ended January 31, 1927. Of this total, exports amounted to $1,337,943,868, and imports $1,-987,818,713, a balance in favor of exports of $350,125,251.

The United States, as for a long time past, again holds the leading place in Canadian Trade. In the 12 months ended under review Canada bought from the United States goods to the value of $706,330,720, or about $71 per head of population of the Dominion. The United States was Canada's best customer as an individual country with total purchases at $471,653,-356, Great Britain was in second place with $467,369,946. Canadian imports from the United States were valued at $443,876,003, which is more than the total value of imports from the whole of the British Empire.

Canada's principal foreign trade is done with 39 countries.

Among the field crops of Canada wheat stands supreme. No other cereal product has been built up to compare with it as a vitalizing influence upon the economic life of the Dominion, and the growth of milling has contracted as much attention from the outside world.

The first real impetus to wheat growing in Western Canada was received about 1870 when the first "portion" for separating bran and middlings from flour was introduced from the United States.

About 1876 "Wheat-farming" as a definite business enterprise became firmly established. In that year the C.P. report issued by the Canadian Government, stated which incidentally was the first Government report to be issued up to that time, placed the wheat acreage at 800,000 acres. In 1927 the acreage sown to wheat was 23,469,154 acres, with a yield of 44,-624,700 bushels

As an exporter of wheat and wheat products Canada now leads the world, having a greater surplus for export than any other country. It is interesting to note in this connection that Canada actually exports as much as British India, Australia and Argentina combined.

The rise to preminence of Canada, as a wheat-growing country, has been made possible in no small degree by the work of the plant-breeder. It is probably safe to say that in few countries, if any, has the work of the scientific breeder of plants contributed more directly and substantially to the development of a staple, it has to Canada. He has given to Canada varieties of wheat which have added millions of dollars annually to the value of Canadian production and has turned what was once a distinctly hazardous occupation throughout vast areas of Western Canada into a relatively safe and profitable enterprise.

Through Rolling

Milking the Cow To the Last Drop Is Duty Every Farmer Owes

In an experiment performed at the O.A.C. Guelph, to determine the value of milk taken at different periods during the ten minutes that a cow was being relieved of her half-day production the following interesting figures were obtained.

The first three pounds milked out tested less than one per cent. of butter fat; the next three pounded tested above 2.5 per cent.; the third portion, weighing over four pounds, tested better than 5.5 per cent. while the last portion milked, weighing nearly six pounds, tested over 9 per cent. butter fat. A half tea cup of milk left in the udder each time of milking would mean a loss of nearly a dollar a month per cow less in butter fat. Furthermore, milk left in the udder will soon bring about the condition of dryness. Thorough milking out is essential to success in dairying Cut the last drop.

Record Sheep Heads Caught

Two fine examples of the native mountain sheep were recently captured by Jim Brewster, of Brewster Transportation Co., in the Banff Territory. The heads captured are records for the size, the one on the right being 19 inches with the other 18½, this measurement applies from the highest point on the horn to that on the opposite side.

These sheep are often seen from the windows of Canadian Pacific trains which travel through that district and are often a great inducement by their sheer beauty, for tourists to return and hunt these animals. They naturally take artistic poses, often seen posed on the highest crag of mountains, to be alarmed by a slight rustle and away they go, as fast as the wind, jumping here and there from one point to another until they reach a plateau of security.

They are game worth hunting and the hunter who secures one is usually enormously proud of his prowess with his rifle.

Sweepstakes Sneaky For Work

The two destroyers, the Vancouver and the Champlain, which the Dominion is receiving on loan from the British navy, have been named for Canada. They will come via Gibraltar and the Cape Verde Islands to Trinidad, then they will go to Jamaica, where they will part company, the Vancouver proceeding to Esquimalt via the Panama Canal and the Champlain will come North to Halifax.

Small Town Papers

BY

FRANK PARKER STOCKBRIDGE

Reprinted by special permission from The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia.

It was in the papers a little while ago that one of those modern novelists had bought a couple of country newspapers somewhere in West Virginia. He wanted something to make a living at, it said, which didn't sound exactly right to me.

I haven't any of the gentleman's novels, but from the publicity he gets on the highbrow literary mags seems every time he brings out a new one, anyone who didn't know much about the novel business would think the royalties must roll in so fast that the author would never have to do any real work like running a country newspaper, for example. But the funny part was his idea that he could make a living out of a country weekly, or two of them.

I knew something about country weeklies. I started my journalistic life by cleaning the spittoons and rushing the growler for the editor and the printer, and mating the force on the Washington house press with a big two-handled roller, while Charley Gleason pulled her over. When we had got the weekly run of ten quires off, two pages at a time, Wednesdays and Fridays, we knew we'd been working.

You, sir, between the time when I sent my first type home in the old Georgetown Courant shop over Ah Hee Jackson's Chinese laundry, and the time when I went to the city as a two-thirder to finish my trade, I learned all there was to know about country newspapers. I never worked on one of them after I got my union card, but there hasn't been a spell of bad weather in more than forty years that I haven't been reminded of the old days; the stiff joint misery I got in my forefinger feeding dodgers on the hand-power Gordon every time a rain starts to come up. That stiff finger reminded everything for me, in a way, it absorbed me from the case to the proof box, while I turned out on to an extra to the editorial end. But that hasn't anything to do with country newspapers.

Where I got my big laugh out of that newspaper item about the novelist was remembering the way R. Franklin Simms, the editor of the old Courant, had to hustle for cash every Wednesday morning to get the paper loaded out of the express office. That took cash. Nobody ever heard of an editor taking credit. He had to give plenty, though. Subscribers paid up when they felt like it or not at all. Often as not they would pay in kind — garden truck, corded-out or eggs — and nonresident advertisers did the same. Advertisers could always stand the editor off by threatening to pull out of the paper There was only so much business to be had, and they would get it anyway, so they were merely doing the editor a favor by advertising at all.

I remembered the times when old Otto Mansacker, who ran the lumberyard, settled a three months' advertising bill with six barrels of beans and a few other incidents of that sort, and I felt sort of sorry for the poor fish who had let somebody unload a couple of country papers on him. Not on paper, mind you; that would have been bad enough, but the piece in the papers said he had had two wished on him! If he just wanted experience something to use for material for more novels, that might be a good way to get it, but to make a living well, it just didn't fit with all I knew about country weeklies.

Then I ran into Bert Mills literally ran into him in the crowd at Forty-second and Fifth Avenue, by the library. I hadn't seen or heard anything of him for twenty years, and since he quit his job on the copydesk of the old Globe I remembered hearing at the time that his father had died and he had gone back upstate to settle the family affairs, but that was the last anybody around New York had heard so far as I knew.

I wouldn't have known Bill if he hadn't spotted me first. It took only a glance to assure me that he had been successful. It wasn't only his clothes; they were what any business man might wear. It was his way of looking at you and speaking to you, the air of a man accustomed to being dealt with all sorts of people. He was glad to see me and I was just as glad to see him.

"Still in the newspaper game, old timer?" he asked, after we had pump-handled a while. I told him no, I'd been out of it for a good many years.

"I've sort o' tried, too," said Burt, "I was a quill, do a little fishing, go down to Florida for a couple of months in the winter, run around to conventions a good deal just to see the fellows I know."

Burt must have inherited more than I'd thought, it seemed, before I could ask him what he had been doing all those years, he was chattering on about his folks.

"Hermione thinks Mrs. Mille?" he asked "Her, I wish we'd met a few minutes sooner, she'd have been glad to see you. I just left her at one of the big specialty stores down every little while to shop."

I did remember Bert's wife an anemic, dragged-out, tired-looking little woman, with a boisterous kid hanging to each hand, I had only met her with them once in a cheap little flat over Flatiron Bay. Even twenty years ago it was hard sledding in New York for a man with a family on forty a week.

"You wouldn't know her now," Bert went on. "I was afraid, first, she wasn't going to like it in a small town. She was born and raised in Brooklyn, you know, and Hessaiyn people hate to change. But nothing in Middleboro now ever thinks of her as an outsider. They even tried to get her to run for Assembly last year. She's the politician of the family headed right now for the presidency of the State Federation of Women's Clubs."

He'd put both his hoys through Cornell, he told me, and had a girl, too, who was a junior at Syracuse. One of his boys was married and he even had a couple of grandchildren.

And while he talked I racked my memory to try to locate Middleboro. It must be an important town, but somehow I couldn't place it.

"You haven't told me the most important thing of all, Bert," I said when he had finished about his family. "What I'd like to know is where did you get it? What had been your folks were farmers.

NO BETTER MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Is What Thousands Of Mothers Say Of Baby's Own Tablets

A medicine for the baby or growing child—one that can be depended on—is assured in absolutely safe as well as efficient in Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are praised by thousands of mothers throughout the country. These mothers have found by actual experience that there is no other medicine for little ones to equal them. Once a mother has used them for her children she will use nothing else. Concerning them Mrs. Charles Hutt, Tancook Island, N.S., writes:—"I have ten children, the baby being but six months old. I have used Baby's Own tablets for them for the past 20 years and can truthfully say that I know of no better medicine for little ones. I always keep a box of the Tablets in the house and would not advise all other mothers to do so."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or will be mailed upon receipt of price, 25 cents per box, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Livestock in Prairie Provinces

The value of livestock on farms in the Prairie Provinces, comprising horses, cattle, sheep and swine, in 1927, was $234,948,000, as compared with $203,250,000 in the previous year, all three provinces recording substantial increases. The value of poultry on farms in the three Prairie Provinces was $15,918,000.

THE RESURRECTION

Golden Text: "Because I live, ye shall live also."—John 14.19.

Lesson: Mark 16.1-20.

Devotional Reading: 1 Corinthians 15.20-26.

Explanations and Comments

Three Women Visit the Tomb Of Christ.—Mark 16.1. Very early on Sunday morning, just as the sun was rising, Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome went to the tomb of Christ for the purpose of anointing his body with spices.

As these women went on their way to the tomb they were saying among themselves, "Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the tomb?" The stone probably a cylindrical one which could be rolled to either side in grooves at the entrance to the tomb, but was too heavy for the women themselves to move, being "exceeding great." As they approached, they saw that the stone had been rolled back.

The Lord Is Risen, verses 4-8. While Mary Magdalene ran to tell Peter and John that the stone was removed, the other woman entered the tomb and saw a young man arrayed in a white robe (an angel) sitting within. Luke 24.4 speaks of two men, and in Matthew 28 an angel is sitting upon the stone without the tomb, but as the One Volume Commentary observes, "Such slight discrepancies harmonize well with the detailed feelings which such a vision would be likely to produce. Minute and detailed agreement in independent narratives about such circumstances would be suspicious."

The young man in the tomb said to the women, "Be not amazed: ye seek Jesus, the Nazarene, who hath been crucified: He is risen; He is not here."

"Instead of its being surprising that there was a resurrection on Easter morning, let us ask ourselves if it would not have been more surprising if there had been no resurrection. Would it not have been indeed amazing if the life in Christ had come to a full stop on the day of the crucifixion? Would it not have been time to come to such a stop we should never have heard of him at all, but for how amazing to think that a life like Jesus' could stop! Paul had the right angle from which to view the Resurrection when he declared that it was impossible for death to hold Christ."—J. J. McConnell.

Should Spread At Home

Seventy dollars per head was spent by Canadian tourists last year on United States goods. A considerable percentage of this amount could be spent on just as good products grown at home. Some day there will be more practical patriotism by Canadian purchasers to bring prosperity to themselves and their own country.

ONTARIO BOARD WILL HANDLE ALBERTA COAL

Toronto.—The office of fuel controller, established during the war, has assumed a new importance in view of the Dominion government's action in requiring the railways to transport Alberta coal to Ontario. Premier Ferguson stated in the legislature in connection with the voting of an item for the fuel controller's office. A board was being set up to look after the handling of the coal and the Ontario representative would be the fuel controller.

It would be the duty of the board to see that the proper type of coal was brought east, Mr. Ferguson said. He suggested that in his opinion the railways should not be allowed to transport any coal not approved by the board

Asked how the coal was to be distributed, the premier said: "I hope that we will have an organization created. I would like to see the Alberta government establish an office here, which would serve as a distributing centre and an information bureau. Persons wishing to buy the coal could arrange for it through such an office." It was not his intention of the government to take charge of distribution, he said, but had been done with the trial shipments.

Ottawa.—Those engaged in coal operations in British Columbia have not made representations as to getting into the eastern market," was the answer given by the Government to a question asked by A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberni), as to whether or not the Government would extend the last movement rate on Alberta coal to coal from British Columbia with a pro rata increase for the extra distance.

For Promotion Of Peace

Miss McPhail's Motion For Creation Of Peace Department Is Discussed

Ottawa.—After a lengthy debate in the House, Miss Agnes McPhail withdrew her motion for the creation of a department for the promotion of peace. Miss McPhail expressed the hope that the Government would not ignore the government would set up some agency to tell what was being done for the promotion of peace.

Miss McPhail said: "While we have a superiority complex which nothing can puncture, there will be ways by which war will start." It can be true that we can always be right."

Women, she said, were keenly aware of war. They placed a higher value on human life because they suffered so much for it and for this reason they should be heard. Mrs. Parliament. The sacrifices of 1914 to 1918 should be crystallized into something which should prevent the recurrence of war.

Sir George Parley (Conservative, Argenteuil), said the League of Nations had performed valuable service work in preventing wars and solving labor, health and other social problems. But nations should be done in the way of bringing to the direct attension of the people of all countries the object and benefits of the League. In Canada the League of Nations Society with headquarters at Ottawa might be profitably utilized for educational purposes of this nature.

Officially Withdraws From Public Life

Lindbergh Weary Of Admiration Pushes Role Of Normal Citizen

Washington.—Acclaimed as no other individual in the history of the nation, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh has officially withdrawn himself from public focus to follow his long cherished plan of a normal citizen.

Weary of the admiring masses, decoration ceremonies and the constant formal affairs in his honor, the youth calmly contemplated the future and how best he might acquit himself in the interest of his hero hobby. "Lindy" doesn't know what he's going to do just yet.

Apply For Railway Charters

8,333 Miles Of Railway In Canada Involved In Applications

Ottawa.—Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, informed the railway committee of the House of Commons that charters for 8,333 miles of railway in Canada were being applied for by companies other than the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific Railways. The cost of the mileage he estimated at about $172,000,000.

In addition, there were applications before the provincial legislatures which brought the total mileage up to approximately 1,000 with an estimated cost of $242,000,000. This did not include applications and when it was supplied the total cost would approximate $300,000,000.

The minister told the committee it was not possible at present to lay down the principle that no more charters were to be granted to companies other than the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific Railways.

On the other hand, the Government was of the opinion that with the exception of railways which were required for the development of mineral properties or something of that nature, the two great railway companies could take care of the work. The committee notes the course given to the applications which came before it."

At the opening of the meeting Mr. Cahill, Liberal member for Pontiac, was again elected chairman of the railway committee, and Dr. A. A. Heaps, Liberal, Saskatoon, deputy chairman.

The first bill considered was that of A. A. Wilson, Conservative member for Leeds, designed to place the issuing of licenses for the export of electric power under the control of the Government rather than with the governor-in-council. This bill was reported.

Two bills covering construction of railways in Western Canada were considered next. The first, sponsored by G. G. Coote, Conservative for Macleod, asked for a charter for construction of the Highwood Western Railway Company. The second applied for an extension of time for the construction of the Calgary and Peace River Railway Company. It was introduced by F. W. Gershaw, Liberal, Medicine Hat.

U.S. Wants Canadian Students

Become Educational System In As Thorough Says English Editor

Hamilton, Ont.—People would be surprised if they did not know that it is a land of cold winters, cool heads and warm hearts, John Walter Gore, proprietor of the Times, London, Eng., told a large gathering here when he spoke at a Canadian club luncheon.

Referring to the exodus of Canadian students to the United States, Mr. Walter said that the American educational system is as thorough as the English. The Americans should be done in the way of bringing to the direct attension of the people of all countries the object and benefits of the League. In Canada the League of Nations Society with headquarters at Ottawa might be profitably utilized for educational purposes of this nature.

Work On Transcontinental Is Earnest As Soon As Snow Goes

Winnipeg.—The Hudson's Bay Railway will commence in earnest as soon as the snow goes, according to Donald Grant, superintendent of construction for the Stewart Cameron Company, which has the contract for the remaining 184 miles yet to be completed. Grant said there were from 300 to 300 men on the job at present and that in another month a great many more would be sent out. By the end of May, Mr. Grant expects there will be at least 1,200 on the job.

Propose General Smuts For Defence Minister

Former South African Premier Suggested For British Post

London.—The striking suggestion that General Jan Christian Smuts, former premier of South Africa, and present leader of the opposition in the South African parliament, should be appointed to fill the post of Minister of Defence in the British Government if the Liberal proposal for the combining of the three fighting forces into one, and over which the control into effect, was made in the House of Commons by Commander Belleis, Conservative member for Maidstone. Commander Bellairs based his suggestion on the fact that General Smuts was not only an eminent statesman but a great soldier.

"If we could only bring Gen. Smuts home he would make a very good Minister of Defence," the Commander said, "but he would have to be free of the trammels of being elected to parliament here."

Hockey Titles Come West

Both Senior and Junior Amateur Trophies Annexed By Prairies

Ottawa.—The West annexed its challenge for supremacy of the Dominion's amateur hockey circles when the Regina University team defeated Queen Victorias 1-0 here to fit the Allan Cup and carry it westward to keep the O.H.A. Memorial trophy, emblematic of the junior hockey title, company in its new home. Regina Monarchs won the O.H.A. trophy when they beat the Ottawa Gunners, and the victory for the Varsity made a clean sweep of the titular boards. The Allan Cup carries with it the Canada senior championship.

B.C. Eggs Shipped To New Zealand

Auckland, N.Z.—The arrival of 10,500 dozen British Columbia eggs on the Canadian-Australian liner Aorangi has caused a drop of from 2 and 4 cents a dozen in the price of eggs at Auckland. The eggs landed in splendid condition and they proved an unpleasant surprise for local producers.

Success Attends Spring Threshing

Alberta Wheat Grading Higher and Bringing a Better Price Than Last Fall

Montreal.—"Snowed-up spring wheat now being cut and threshed is grading higher and bringing a better price than that cut at the regular season last autumn. At least that applies to a number of farms in Alberta, notably a large 18,000-acre farm near Calgary, upon which only part of the crop could be cut last year," according to T. C. F. Horner, manager of the Canada Colonization Association, Winnipeg.

"This goes to show that fortune sometimes smiles at the most unexpected times," he said, "for, in this case, instead of suffering a small or a large loss, the crop actually yielded an increase."

Mr. Horner said that many of the farmers placed by the association were paying off their farms long before their 15-year terms were up.

Since the association was taken over by the Canadian Pacific Railway, under its department of colonization and development, in January, 1925, it had placed 2,433 families of about 13,380 members on the land in Western Canada. This year to March 30, 83 families have been settled on 17,771 acres.

Taking Risk On Dirigible

Lloyds Will Protect $1-500 On Flight Across Atlantic

London.—A syndicate of underwriters at Lloyds is understood to have undertaken the risk of insuring the British dirigible passenger liner R-100 for the forthcoming flight across the Atlantic.

The rate, about 30 guineas per hundred, is looked upon as moderate, indicating the confidence of the syndicate in the ship's ability to make the journey successfully.

If the ship comes down at sea and is damaged, the underwriters will pay the cost of repairs, while if she is lost altogether they will pay to the limit of the insurance.

The dirigible, which is expected to make the first flight this spring, is equipped with six 700 horsepower engines, can reach a speed of 80 miles an hour and has a cruising range of more than 5,000 miles.

It is designed to accommodate 100 passengers and to carry 10 tons of mail.

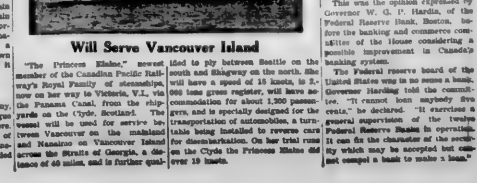
Experiment With Fertilizer

Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba View Shipments Of Superphosphates From Trail Smelter

Winnipeg.—Manitoba is participating in experiments that are being made with the use of superphosphates from the Trail smelter in British Columbia, as a fertilizer, J. T. Evans, deputy minister of agriculture, stated recently when commenting on reports that an earload of the product had been shipped to points on the prairies.

The results of the experiments are being watched with great interest.

Saskatchewan and Alberta have also got their share of the shipments, the idea being to make tests of the fertilizer over as wide a range of territory as possible, Mr. Evans said.



Will Serve Vancouver Island

"The Princess Elaine," newest member of the Canadian Pacific Railway's Royal Family of steamships, now on her way to Victoria, V.I., via the Panama Canal, from the shipyards on the Clyde, Scotland. The vessel will be used for service between Vancouver on the mainland and Nanaimo on Vancouver Island across the Straits of Georgia, a distance of 40 miles, and is further qualified to ply between Seattle on the south and Skagway on the north. She will have a speed of 15 knots, is 2,000 tons gross register, will have accommodation for about 1,200 passengers, and is specially designed for the transportation of automobiles, a turntable being installed to reverse cars for disembarkation. On her trial runs on the Clyde the Princess Elaine did over 19 knots.

CANADA AND U.S. JOIN TO FIGHT RUST MENACE

Fargo, N.D.—Representatives of four Northwest spring wheat states, North and South Dakota, Minnesota, and Montana, and the Canadian prairie provinces, Manitoba, Alberta, and Saskatchewan, formally launched an organization here to further the development of better quality wheat that is rust resistant and immune from stains.

The group, which is to be known as the hard spring wheat conference, named Dr. John Lee Coulter, president of the North Dakota Agricultural College, as president. Prof. Andrew Fenh, University of Minnesota Farm School, was chosen vice-president, and L. R. Waldron, agronomist, at the North Dakota Agricultural School, secretary.

The conference voted to request the Federal Government to furnish $85,000 to carry on its work. This sum would be supplemented by financial support from the various state and other agencies.

A program committee was chosen to consist of three men from each of the four Northwestern States, three from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, one consulting member from each of the provinces and a member representing the Dominion of Canada.

Following are the Canadian representatives:

Manitoba: W. T. G. Weiner, Winnipeg.

Saskatchewan: Dr. J. G. Harrington, Saskatoon.

Alberta: Dr. Robert Newton, Edmonton.

Dr. C. H. Goulden, Winnipeg, will represent the Dominion of Canada.

Discuss Activities Of Communists In Canada

Country Being Flooded With Red Literature Senate Is Told

Ottawa.—The recently discussed the dangers of Communistic propaganda in Canada and heard an address delivered at length by Senator C. P. Beaubien, who enquired what measures were being taken by the Government to repress the evil. Various religious bodies had petitioned the Government to close Communist schools, the Ukrainians in Canada had appealed to the Red agents.

There were 40 such schools in the country, attended by 2,000 children, Senator Beaubien said, while Labor Temples were also used for Communist meetings. Immigrants were taken there to be taught Communist tactics. The country was being flooded with Communist literature.

Senator Gershaick declared that the Communist was the enemy of the Socialist and the Labor man. He assured the Senate that the Royal Canadian Mounted Police knew of these activities and kept the Government informed.

Senator Dandurand affirmed that the Government was watching the Communist movement closely. Senator McManus declared that the Government should legislate had sought to amend the law to prevent the deportation of anyone. It was the Government's duty to deport the enemies of the constitution

Not Feasible For Canada

U.S. Bank System Impossible In Dominion Says Conservative Leader

Ottawa.—A federal banking reserve system, organized on the same basis and along the same lines as the U.S. system, would be almost impossible in Canada.

This was the opinion expressed by Governor W. G. P. Hardie, of the Federal Reserve Bank, Boston, before the banking and commerce committee of the House considering a possible improvement in Canada's banking system.

The Federal reserve board of the United States was in no sense a bank, Governor Harding told the committee. "It exercises a general supervision of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks in operation. It can fix the character of the security which may be accepted but cannot compel a bank to make a loan."

THE RECORD

FORT SASKATCHEWAN, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4, 1928

Germination tests of wheat which has been thrashed this spring prove that the vitality has been badly damaged. If there is a widespread pleating of this spring threshed wheat disastrous results will follow. The Director of the Alberta Wheat Pool are greatly concerned over this menace and urge farmers to have their seed tested for germination.

The time must be close at hand when the child, as predicted, will ask his father, "When did you do in the great war, daddy?"

It is a canny and thrifty thought to have the high school students have an art lesson coincident with some local event requiring advertising. It is no economical for each pupil to draw a poster and then take his or her effort to a store to have it displayed in the window. So practical, putting scholastic effort to a commercial use. And why not? The children might as well be doing something useful while they are learning. We might also consider closing gymnasiums and playgrounds. When the children need fresh air and exercise why waste energy in setting up exercises or having screwed accomplishing nothing, they can obtain the same health-giving results by sawing and splitting wood, digging graves for printers who have never died, or something of that nature which would be useful and beneficial to the public at large.

EASTER OBSERVANCE

Easter Sunday this year falls on April 8, exactly midway between the earliest and latest possible dates established for this important Christian festival, which may occur as early as March 22 or as late as April 25.

Strictly speaking, the observance of Easter was an innovation introduced into the church calendar more than a hundred years after the ministry of Christ, being a continuation or outgrowth of the Jewish Passover.

There is no trace of the observance of Easter in the Christian festival recorded in the New Testament or in the writings of the apostolic fathers. Neither Christ nor his apostles enjoined the keeping of this or any other particular feast. The early Christians, being derived principally from the Jewish church, continued to observe the old Jewish festivals, hence their Passover perpetuated in the spirit of their new religion and eventually became the feast we now celebrate as Easter.

The date of Easter observance was the subject of some of the most bitter controversies which rent the early church, at one time no less than three different dates having been observed under the name year by various branches.

The very name of Easter is from the old Teutonic mythology, being derived from Eostre, the Anglo-Saxon goddess of spring.

But, however originated, Easter commemorates the central basis of the Christian religion, the resurrection of Christ, and has been observed from very early times with stately and elaborate ceremonial, coupled with many curious and interesting customs, among which the sending of Paschal eggs, is one of the most universal.

This custom, in turn, is derived from pagan sources, the egg being known to the ancients as a symbol of immortality.

in a Low Priced Car

THE most recent trend of automobile design is stirringly exemplified in the "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet. The high, narrow radiator . . . the long, low bodies . . . the unbroken sweep of the lines from front to rear . . . the stylish blending of colors...its finish and upholstery . . . these distinguish Chevrolet as unmistakably new and fashionable. In power, in speed and "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet is no less modern and vigorous. Countless refinements in engine and chassis give Chevrolet a performance as dependable as it is brilliant. The "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet, alone among low-priced cars, has truly caught the modern spirit.

The G.M.A.C. . . . General Motors' own deferred payment plan affords the most convenient and economical way of buying your Chevrolet on time.

Earth's Outer Atmosphere

Consists Of Helium Gas In Opinion Of Scientist

One hundred miles above the surface of the earth the atmosphere consists almost wholly of helium gas, believes Sir William Napier Shaw, eminent meteorologist.

If this conclusion is right it will never be possible, it is contended, for aircraft to navigate the upper atmosphere.

In a new "manual of meteorology" to which Sir William has just set forth his views he deals with many other matters bearing on atmospheric conditions.

He maintains that as the light of auroras has been seen as high as 500 miles above the earth, gases of some kind must exist far out from this globe.

Comparatively low down comes the famous "heavy side" layer in the atmosphere, 30 to 50 miles up. It is this layer which reflects wireless waves and renders wireless signalling possible.

The flat, stale taste which you sometimes find in tea may be due to the package it is put up in. Red Rose Tea is of such fine quality that no chances are taken. It is packed in aluminum, the only material that gives complete protection against dust, dampness and deterioration. 6-27

Eve, when there is no need, and we need not call the inspector either, for he will ask her a lot of questions then will only worry her.

"She has no ring on," said Mrs. Kalmahi, sadly; "I am afraid everything is not right."

"She has come from the North," said Mrs. Corbett "and there's no jewelry stores there that might account for her havin no ring. We will say that, anyway."

After Mrs. Kalmahi had gone to her own suite, Mrs. Corbett stood at the foot of the bed looking at her patient. Suddenly an idea occurred to her. She went to her room across the hall and made a determined search in the middle bureau drawer, which was known as the drawer where she kept everything in it." Coming back, she lifted Helmi's left hand and put a ring on her finger. It's a little thing like a ring will give that poor girl back her character I will not be denying her mine, that has been too tight for her for many a day, and in case she should die it will save the wee one's good name. I will tell Mrs. Mahkinski, for she noticed there was none, but there's none of the rest of them need know. It will save a lot of talk and wondering. Well, there's nothing wrong with the kid, ring or no ring."

Mrs. Corbett took the slumbering infant into her own rooms for the night, at the beginning of her daughter Rose, aged twelve, who offered the young stranger a share of her bed and personal service. As the Winnipeg couch she was placed, with a barricade of pillows in front of her to prevent any one from thoughtlessly sitting on her.

When John Corbett came home and found his family increased he expressed no surprise, nor did he make comment when the events of the afternoon were related. But he did go to the couch to get a look at the baby, being warned by Rose not to come too near for fear he would start a disturbance.

"She's a fine child," he said, and went back to his supper.

"Whether she is an honest woman or not, I do not know," Mrs. Corbett concluded her recital; "but I do know this—she has been treated bad. Ain't one the limit, anyway? To go off and leave a poor girl like that with no more thought or worry about it than a lamenal?"

John Corbett went on buttering his bread on the palm of his hand, and making no attempt to defend his sex.

"Oh, I guess they are all bad, right enough," he said pleasantly. "I often wonder myself why the Lord ever made them. It's a good thing there comes a war every wee while to kill them off—the devils!"

"Shut up, now, John, you sly old dog," said his wife, laughing; "you sure do like to get a rise out of me."

"And me just tryin' to agree with you, woman!" he said.

When Danny Corbett, aged ten, came in from delivering his papers, sheeted with snow, he was not allowed to look at the baby until he had taken off his outer garments and warmed himself carefully at the fire, and even then he was not allowed by the watchful Rose to come very near. Danny offered no opinion.

After Danny had eaten his supper, Rose made a proposition to him.

"Sure, Danny, you and me could raise her if her mother dies, and she is not makin' a stir in there now no more than if she was dead. I could mind her, and you with your fine paper route sure now could get her milk. A bet, she would last her a long time, and like enough be a lot nicer than a kitten, and not say more trouble. You would get the milk, wouldn't you, Danny, and then we would go cahoots on her?"

First Woman Ship Broker

Young English Girl Has Qualified For Important Post

Although not yet old enough to vote, Miss Mabel Waller, 23, has passed examinations which make her the first woman qualified as a ship broker in England. A ship's broker's duties require the negotiating of cargoes for steamers throughout the world, the leasing of responsibility for discharging of cargoes, the entering into arrangements with captains and crews of all nationalities and the employment of technical knowledge of all classes of ships and markets in the world. Miss Waller began her career in the man-directed field as a clerk in a London ship broker's firm.

All the women on the second floor had been in to take a look at the pretty young thing with her golden hair spread out on the pillow, and at the radiant baby, who, pink, fat and fine stood with her two little rosettes of hands rolled into her eyes.

Her house is thatched "God bless her," said Mrs. Corbett, as she replaced little Jacob's veil on her face. "Poor little helpless mite, who wouldn't be good to her?"

Late that night a sound came through the three sugar holes in the storm sash which had a meaning for Helmi. It was the ringing of a train bell as the dining-car, Northern train fell its way carefully out of the yards with its heavy load of belated passengers. "You may be living or may die, but someone has to run the trains. The North Star Rooming House stood near the tracks, and the sound came distinctly and lonesomely to Helmi's ears. She raised herself on her elbow and listened, her eyes eager and straining.

When the train had gone behind the tipsal West Annual Factory and the sound of the bell had grown fainter and fainter and at last was lost in the myriad sounds of the city, Helmi fell back on her pillow sobbing like a dog in a dream. "Home for Christmas! Home for Christmas!" she murmured. "Welcome to Canada — No! No! the snow is lent—I will not go to train any more—I will go down deep under snow—snow is best place."

Away below the snow, in another world, Helmi's soul wandered lonesomely, torn with the old problem of whether to go or stay. Life was too hard if had been too hard for Aunt Lill, so she stepped out and let life go on without her. God couldn't blame her for quitting. Why could He make life a little easier for women? God was all-powerful—He might, at the beginning of time, have made life as He liked.

God was not quite fair. . . . Why had He let things go so wrong with her

Why had Jack turned against her? Why had a baby come to her, when she had no home? . . . It would be lovely to have a baby if one had a home to keep it in. . . . The girls at the Home . . . she wondered how they could be so foolish. . . . Did they never think. . . . Now she knew it wasn't fair. . . . God was mean to women. . . . Mean to babies. Rose Lamb was right. God was on the man's side every time. God was like the two magistrates, pufficed, mad, terrible. . . . She hated God!

How could she mind a baby and work, too? . . . No one wanted to get with a baby. . . . The girls at had told her what awful things women say to a girl who goes looking for work. . . . God knew all this, and yet. . . . How could God had her she left her baby at the Shelter, and it died in a week. . . . Rose was glad. . . . Helmi had thought it terrible for Rose to say she was glad, but now maybe the Shelter would be the best place. . . . She could not help it, anyway—no one wants a girl with a baby. It would have to go to the Shelter.

Round and round in a red-raw circle went Helmi's mind, growing more and more with thinking, and yet unable to stop.

Suddenly the baby, from the folds of his blanket at the foot of the bed, began to cry, a frightened little cooing cry, like no other sound on earth, the weakest and yet the mightiest human cry.

From the region below the snow came Helmi at the sound—Helmi, strong, defiant, generations back of her speaking in every movement, ready to face the world. The Shelter was forgotten. She reached down instinctively "Lill, little Lill, don't cry; it's all right, nothing can hurt my little Lill; come to your Lill."

Lill understood the words, and, lying in her mother's arms, went peacefully to sleep. The problem of the future ceased to trouble her. And Helmi, soothed by the presence of the little warm thing, so exquisitely dear and sweet, slipped gently into the kind gray mists of forgetfulness, where torturing hopes and choking fears were all held at bay by a kind gray wall in whose shadows her tired young soul found peace.

"She will be all right," said Maggie Corbett, when Mrs. Kalmahi expressed her fears; "she is strong and healthy, and the long sleep will do her good. Ain't it God's mercy that she can sleep and forget her troubles, whatever they are, poor girl. Ah, I don't think there is any use in looking for a doctor. They will not want to be disturbed on Christmas

BANANA CANOES

4 bananas.
2 oranges.
2 slices pineapple
Salad dressing.
Berries or candied cherries.

With a sharp knife cut a section of skin from the concave curve of the bananas, and carefully take out the fruit, leaving the skin in the shape of a canoe. Pare oranges; remove sections, and cut in pieces; mix with pineapple (cut in pieces) and an equal amount of banana pulp (cut in pieces). Fill canoes with fruit; cover with Mayonaise or French dressing; sprinkle generously with paprika; lay on bed of shredded lettuce, and garnish with berries or candied cherries.

EGG MILK SHAKE

2 cups milk.
2 eggs.
4 teaspoons sugar.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
¼ teaspoon salt.
Few grains nutmeg.
Few grains cinnamon.

Beat the eggs until very light. Add the sugar, salt, vanilla and spices, then the milk. Stir till the sugar is dissolved, then beat well. Serve cold.

Little Helps For This Week

"In quietness and in confidence shall be your strength."—Isaiah xxx. 15.

I would be quiet, Lord!
Nor tease nor fret;
Not one small need of mine
Will Thou forget.

Confidence is the secret of strength.

A mind may be still though active; and the quietness which is part of the "confidence" we have in Him, the Christ, is only found in the close abiding in Him, submitted in His own paradox of the Vine and the branches.—Rose Porter.

Alberta Trappers Made Profit

The prairie fur trade of the region from Lethbridge to Medicine Hat continues to net hunters and trappers good results financially, and many buyers from distant points are in the field. Furs trapped and shipped are: badger, kit fox, weasel, rabbit and coyote, and one representative furrier claims to have averaged over the past six or seven weeks $10 to $15 per day.

The Way To Wealth

The way to wealth is as plain as the way to market. It depends chiefly on two words, industry and frugality; that is, waste neither time nor money, but make the best use of both. Without industry and frugality nothing will do, and with them every thing.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF CLOVER BAR, No. 517

The council of the Municipal District of Clover Bar, No. 517, held their monthly meeting on Wednesday, April 4, with all members in attendance.

The appointment of weed inspectors was dealt with at this meeting, resulting in the appointment of Mr. W. Oshaldouton as inspector for Divisions one and two, and Mr. H. W. Dodge for Divisions three, four and five. As a great number of the residents seem to be interested in the chemical non-poisonous weed killer that the council ordered, it was decided to increase the amount from one hundred gallons to two hundred and fifty.

The most important question on the agenda was the one concerning the hospital accounts due to the Royal Alexandra hospital. Each account was dealt with separately and after due consideration the secretary was instructed to forward the superintendent a letter submitting an offer for settlement in accordance with a resolution passed by council.

Mr. Cholenski was appointed to investigate a claim for damages done by estray cattle.

Several road machinery agents were on hand to solicit business. An order for a road maintainer was given to the Adams Road Machinery Co.

With the reading of correspondence and the passing of paybeats and accounts the meeting adjourned at six thirty p.m.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH EASTER TEA AND DANCE

Bridge was played in the main hall and afternoon tea served in the ladies' room of the Memorial hall by the ladies of St. George's church Easter Monday. The tea tables gave one an idea of what spring will be like when it comes, the decorations being of pussy-willows, daffodils, etc. Prizes for bridge were awarded to Mrs. J. D. McLean, first; Mrs. A. S. O'Brien, consolation.

A dance held in the evening was well attended and enjoyed, the Fort Five orchestra tootled away in the corner in fine style and "everything in the garden was lovely." Even the quality of the coffee came in for its share of praise at the lunch at midnight.

Mention of the charming appearance of the ladies in their gingham dresses must not be omitted. It was wonderful, girls! How do you do it?

OWNERSHIP OF QUEEN'S HOTEL AGAIN CHANGES

After being in possession of the Queen's hotel for less than two weeks R. A. Brown has disposed of the property to the Fort Saskatchewan Hotel Company, Ltd. J. A. Farrell will be manager for the company.

Josephburg

The Ladies' Aid of Beaver Hills church meets today (Wednesday) at the home of Mrs. Powell.

Miss Mary Hennig graduates today at the Royal Alexandra hospital. Most of her people are up in the city for the occasion.

The annual business meeting of the Josephburg U.F.A. Local will be held at the school on Friday the thirteenth. This day is likely to be an unlucky one for members whose fees are in arrears.

Over forty children of the community were vaccinated against small-pox last Thursday morning, one hundred per cent. of the school children being present for the purpose.

Beaver Hills church is receiving a much needed redecoration inside, and has been closed for services on that account.

Mrs. F. A. Rippel is now definitely recovering from her very severe illness and is expected home soon.

Tyron Valley

Harry Ashton is around again after being laid up with lumbago and a bad foot. He will be assisted with his spring work by Jack Gowdy.

James Robinson's sale was well attended in spite of bad roads. Mr. Robinson and family expect to make their future home near Rolla, B.C., where Mr. Robinson has employment.

D'Arcy H. Ballard and mother were given a complete surprise last Thursday by his cousin, Alfred Herzig, coming in on them from Los Angeles. Mr. Herzig is assisting his friend Mr. Becker to Peace River where he expects to take up a homestead. Mr. Herzig has a large fruit farm in California and is well pleased with this western country. On his way home he visit here for a few days, it being sixteen years since the cousins met.

Mrs. M. J. Ballard celebrated her sixty-seventh birthday on Good Friday. Mrs. C. Dittrich was present for tea, bringing several useful gifts.

Railway Construction in the West

Only a few years ago there was a feeling throughout Canada that the construction of railways in the Dominion had been rather overdone. This opinion was freely stated by many men in public life, by bank presidents and financiers, and found expression in newspapers all over the country. The statement was frequently made that Canada had built railways fifty years in advance of the time when they would be needed and the population and productive capacity of the country warranted. The greatest financial danger confronting the Dominion, it was alleged, was its heavy commitments on account of railways.

The fact that Canada possesses the greatest railway mileage per capita of any country in the world, and the further fact that in the last few years during the war the Canadian Northern, Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways got into financial difficulties and had to be taken over by the Dominion Government, and that for some years following during the post-war depression the Canadian National was operated at a heavy financial loss, no doubt accounted for these rather pessimistic views. An entirely different opinion exists today.

When the C.P.R. was first projected the same faint-hearted views prevailed. The idea of a transcontinental railway across Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific, crossing thousands of miles of undeveloped prairie land and over the Rocky Mountains, was ridiculed in the English press as the dream of madmen, and even in Canada it was predicted that such a railway would never earn the cost of its side grants. The world realized today how false all these dire predictions have proven to be.

The optimism expressed only a few years ago during the anxious days of the war and the world depression which followed are proving to be equally erroneous.

In a most instructive address before the Canadian Club at Regina recently, Mr. Cyril Young, of the Industrial Development Department of the Canadian National Railways, quoted that far-seeing statesman, the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier, one of the new transcontinental, through the clay belt of Ontario, the railway was earning an operating surplus, while bringing about settlement and building up important industries, giving to Canada what heretofore it has lacked, stability in addition to its immense resources.

In the past, Canada has boasted of its boundaries reaching upon two oceans, east and west. Now, with the rapid pushing forward of the Hudson Bay Railway, Canada looks forward with eager anticipation for the time not to the day not far distant when its commerce will likewise pass through a third ocean on the north. And even before that railway is completed to tidewater, a branch line is being rushed to completion in order to handle the enormous traffic which will result from the development of the Flin Flon and other mining areas of the north which, it is predicted, will rival the richest mineral areas in the known world.

Today, instead of believing that railway construction has been overdone in Canada, the two great railway systems of the Dominion are steadily increasing their construction programmes. Last year Parliament authorized an extensive branch lines construction programme for the Canadian National, largely in Western Canada, and providing for the building within three years of some hundreds of miles of new railways. That work, which was started last year, is to be pushed with vigor during 1928.

Nor does the C.P.R. lag behind. The annual report of that Company issued last month records the fact that during 1927 no less than 363 miles of new branch lines were graded and track laid on 175 miles, while for the year 1928 the directors recommend the building of no less than eleven extensions in the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan involving the construction of an additional 247 miles of new lines.

Not to be outdone by the West, the Ontario Government is steadily pushing its system northward towards Hudson Bay, while branch lines are spreading out into districts where mining developments are taking place.

The Government at Ottawa is confronted with applications for new railway charters for lines in northern Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia aggregating thousands of miles with a view to providing for the opening up and development of the north country and the creation of new outlets to the Pacific.

These are the answers now being given to those who predicted disaster for Canada on account of its railway construction of a few short years ago. Take Saskatchewan as an example. Youngest among the provinces it already enjoys a railway mileage second only to that of Ontario, and during this year of 1928 work will be in progress upon approximately 800 miles of new branch lines, not including the Hudson Bay Railway and the Flin Flon branch both of which will directly serve the Province.

And as if to provide the final answer to the faint-hearted of a few years ago, the Canadian National has turned its operating deficits into substantial operating surpluses, surpluses sufficiently large to meet all the interest payments on bonds and debentures held by the public, while, through the encouragement given to settlement and industrial development all over the country, the Federal Government is receiving a substantial, albeit indirect, return for the money Canada has invested in that system.

Railway development, past, present, and future, is the foundation upon which Canadians are erecting a strong, prosperous, and ultimately self-contained nation, a nation that is destined to occupy a place in the very front rank of world powers.

A SPRING TONIC AN AID TO HEALTH

You Can Lay the Foundation Of Good Health Now By Building Up Your Blood and Strengthening Your Nerves Through the Use Of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The good old fashion of taking a tonic in the Springtime, like most of the customs of our grandmothers, is based upon sound common sense and good medical practice. What is always a trying time for those who are living in ragged health—men, women and children go through the winter on poorer nourishment than they stored up during the sunny summer months, and grow increasingly pale and thin. The living blood is robbed of its proper richness and vitality which must be restored if health is to be regained and kept.

It is impossible to be energetic if your blood is thin and weak, or if your nerves are frayed or exhausted. You cannot compete with others if you do not get refreshing sleep at night, or if your appetite is poor or you are losing weight. You need a tonic at this time to add to your efficiency now, as well as to save you from suffering later on. And in all the realm of medicine, there is no pill or tonic to equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills tone the blood which is carried to every part of the body, strengthening and building up the run-down organs, and bringing a feeling of new strength and energy to weak, easily tired, depressed men, women and children.

Mrs. L. Hipman, Sommerville Centre, N.B., writes:—"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been of the greatest benefit to me. A few years ago I was in a badly run down condition. I became so weak and nervous that I could scarcely go about and doing my housework left me completely used up. Everything seemed to worry me, and I was in a very depressed condition when I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and continuing their use I soon found the benefit I was receiving. Since then I always take a few boxes in the Spring to build me up for the hot weather, and I find the best results. I therefore cheerfully recommend these pills as the best health builders.

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TRANSFIGURATION AND SERVICE

Golden Text: "He that abideth in Me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit: for apart from Me ye can do nothing." John 15:5.

Lesson: Mark 9:2-29.

Devotional Reading: John 15:1-8.

Explanations and Comments

The Transfiguration, verses 2-8. — Six days after Peter's expression of his conviction that Jesus is the Christ, Jesus took Peter, James, and John apart from the rest and ascended a high mountain where he was transfigured before them. The other disciples may have been too unpretentious or too dull of comprehension for such a revelation of His glory.

The longer we live the more profoundly we believe that no one has actually more than two or three friends. He is a friend—and only he —to whom you can lay bare your heart without the pledge of secrecy. The real friend is interested in you—your joys, your triumphs, your failures become his very own.

Luke 9:29 says that the fashion of His countenance was altered: Matthew 17:2 says "His face did shine as the sun, "the glory of the Godhead burst through the veil of the flesh." "It was not a splendour that fell on Him from without, and lighted Him up: the glory came from within. It corresponded to something going on in His mind."—Davidson. It was as He prayed. Matthew and Luke tell us, that this transformation took place. The story is preceded and followed in the Gospels by Christ's predictions of suffering, death, and resurrection. The Transfiguration was a preparation for the events so soon to follow.

"On that mountain, He laid Himself like another Isaac on the altar, and he knew that the sacrifice would be demanded. The very glory of the event contains a hint of the struggle which had been going on in His mind. He was no impassive hero of a romantic history; He was a Soul in the agony of a momentous spiritual transaction. The hour had come when He was to make a voluntary dedication of Himself for a human object. In all history known no sublimer; and the self-consecration was destined to be followed by a distinct communication of divine approval. As He was praying about His Passion, He entered into the ecstasy of oneness with the heavenly Father; in the heart of Jesus all the holy resolutions of a lifetime were encouraged and strengthened, as the fashion of His countenance became changed."

The Farmyard Hen Produced In Canada Last Year Over 253 Million Dozen Of Eggs

Some one has figured that if the eggs laid in Canada in 1927 were placed end to end they would girdle the universe four and a half times. It certainly staggers the imagination to comprehend over three million eggs or 115,000 miles of them. And these are the farm eggs only. Dear knows how many more thousands of miles should be added for the eggs laid in poultry houses in the cities and suburban areas in Canada, but the number must be considerable. All of them, whether from farm or city, disappear down the national gullet at the rate of 6,860 per minute. The rate is of course much faster at meal times, for these figures are on a 24-hour basis. Still there are not enough to satisfy the national appetite and some eggs have to be imported into Canada.

Canadians are the greatest egg-eaters on the face of the globe and the consumption has been increasing tremendously, especially since egg-grading regulations came into force. It is estimated that Canadians now consume something like 327 eggs per capita per annum. Production of farm eggs in 1927 equalled 230 eggs per capita. While production is increasing rapidly, principally through the breeding of better hens rather than increasing the flocks, consumption is increasing at a still more rapid rate as indicated by the excess of imports over exports of eggs.

Canada imported roughly 3¼ million dozen eggs in 1927, and exported less than half a million dozen. The excess of imports over exports rose by a million dozen over the previous year. These are figures in the last analysis. Eggs other than in the shell or n.o.p. as they are shown in trade statistics, are not produced here. Canada in some volume, especially in recent years. Most of the eggs in this class come from China and the total amount imported in 1927 amounted to slightly over 3 million pounds, compared with 1.3 million pounds in the previous year.

The unfavorable trade balance resulting from excess of imports over exports of eggs amounted to roughly $1,700,000 in 1927. This is an increase over 1926 of upwards of a million dollars. Considered by themselves these figures may appear large but they fade away by comparison with a farm egg production in 1927 of $90,000,000. The long and short of it is that Canada just barely failed to meet her per capita consumption of about 5½ to-the-shell eggs per capita to which must be added the importations of preserved eggs amounting to perhaps two eggs per capita. Domestic egg production failed to meet the demand last year chiefly because of roughly one-half dozen per capita—a trifling amount it is true, but the shortage is increasing.

What is the outlook? Can Canada meet her own egg requirements in the future? Can she regain her lost export trade in eggs? In regard to the first of these questions, farm egg production is increasing very rapidly. In fact there has been a gain of fifty per cent. since 1921. In the same time the number of hens etc. on Canadian farms has increased by only 32 per cent., showing that the production per hen has increased considerably since 1921, due to the rearing of better birds for egg production. The process of weeding out undesirable birds and substituting hens of proven high-production strains appears to have borne excellent results in the past year, an increase of 6.5 per cent. in production being recorded for 1927 over 1926, while the number of hens etc. in farm flocks increased by only one-tenth of one per cent. Even without increasing the farm flocks the industrious biddies of 1927 just about kept up with increasing population and the increasing appetite of Canadians for eggs. There is still room for very great improvement in the farm flocks from the superproduction standpoint, but the process cannot go on indefinitely and the farm flocks must eventually be increased to keep up domestic supplies of eggs if consumption per capita goes on climbing.

If Canada had the eggs, she could no doubt find a market for them in Great Britain, says the Department of the Interior, through its Natural Resources Intelligence Service. In fact the market for her surplus eggs has always been there, but since 1902 the exportable surplus has never amounted to much. But just imagine the magnitude of the market in the United Kingdom and what could be done with poultry in Canada if prices were attractive. The United Kingdom spent over $90,000,000 a year on imported eggs in 1925 and 1926. The Imperial Economic Committee reports that requirements from home and Empire sources are 5,700 million eggs a year or 475 million dozen—nearly twice Canada's farm egg production—this with a consumption of only 125 eggs per capita. The system of uniform grading and government certification to which they have been subjected has enabled Canada's eggs to command a premium over all other eggs on the British market. If enough of them were to be had, John Bull might contest Jack Canuck a little to champion egg-eater of the world. But as it is only 5 out of every thousand eggs consumed in Great Britain, according to last reports, come from Canada. The United Kingdom itself supplies 431; Irish Free State, 95; China, 188; Denmark, 121; Russia, 47; Netherlands, 33; Poland, 33; Egypt, 23; Belgium, 21. South Africa supplies Australia 5, so that Canada does not rank behind the other British Dominions, but why she is lying in bed so late we can't tell. She could get a big slice of this egg trade and especially if consuming per capita increases as it has in Canada.

Canada's Matchless Advantage In Relation To The Growing Tourist Trade From U. S.

If the volume of United States tourist travel continues to grow at anything like its present rate, it will be only a matter of two or three years until the amount of money expended by Americans abroad reaches the colossal sum of a thousand million dollars a year. For 1926, according to the United States Department of Commerce, the outlay of American tourists was roundly $761,000,000—or nearly twice as much as the Dominion Government collects in total revenues in an ordinary year.

Canada's position in relation to this trade is one of matchless advantage. Already our tourist business represents a big item, the expenditures of tourists in the Dominion amounting to roughly $300,000,000 a year. And there is ample reason to believe that this total can be doubled in the next ten years. Canada possesses an endless variety of attractions for holiday seekers of all kinds, plus a 4,000-mile frontage facing the country which constitutes the world's wealthiest and largest source of tourist travel. Tak en all in all, there is probably no other country so favorably situated for attracting tourist trade.

The warm welcome which Canadians extend to visitors is an ever-growing influence in directing travel toward the Dominion. Those coming gladly return again and bring their friends with them. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior.

Bulb Industry In B.C. Lumber Production

Lumber production in British Columbia in 1927 totalled 740,253,000 feet board measure, an increase of 27,560,000 feet over 1926. The principal export markets for British Columbia lumber and forest products were the United States and Japan.

The value of the lumber production in the province last year is placed at $83,078,000.

Garden Roses

Five Hundred Varieties Have Been Tested Out In Canada

Roses have been under test at the Central Experimental Farms for forty years and observations on the relative hardiness, attractiveness, blooming season, freedom from disease, and general merits of different varieties have been made and recorded. Some 500 varieties are now being grown in the flower gardens of the farms. The results of these years of investigation are given in a bulletin entitled "Hardy Roses" which is distributed by the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. An interesting list of roses recommended for small gardens is given in the bulletin. Here is a list of varieties which have been grown successfully at Ottawa. Among the roses in the list are three Hybrid Perpetuals of outstanding merit. One, Frau Karl Druschki, is acknowledged to be the best white rose in cultivation. It is a strong, healthy grower with an abundance of bloom throughout most of the season. Another very popular pink variety is Hugh Dickson, a very attractive crimson, shaded scarlet flower, vigorous, and a free bloomer.

Hybrid Tea Roses recommended are Caroline Testout, a reliable, bright warm pink variety; Crusa and Teplitz, a very fragrant and hardy crimson rose, and La Tosca, a pale pink. Pernetiana roses recommended are Mme. Edouard Herriot, a free vigorous bloomer with a wonderful combination of coloring. Souvenir de Claudius Pernet, a beautiful yellow flower, and Willowmere, a hardy, continuous bloomer of unusual color.

World's Grain Show

Promoters of the proposed World's grain show to be held at Regina, Saskatchewan, in 1932, are forwarding their plans as rapidly as possible. The Saskatchewan legislature and the Regina Industrial and Agricultural Association have endorsed the project, and the federal government will now be approached within view of getting its approval and support.

C. P. R. Adds Further Trackage

Photos show the huge area covered by the railway tracks of the Canadian Pacific Railway around the harbour at Vancouver, and the new trackage facilities recently completed.

Over one hundred miles of trackage will shortly have been laid by the Canadian Pacific Railway in serving the ports of the Vancouver District, as shown by the extent of the work now underway about that city.

An indication of the programme of betterments of the already installed trackage facilities is given in the plans being carried out at Pier B-C at the foot of Granville Street, and in the proposed new C.P.R. yard at the south end of the second Narrows Bridge, and of the allowances for further additions when necessary.

Mr. C. J. Cotterell, C.P.R. General Superintendent, has issued figures showing the vast extent of existing trackage facilities exclusive of main and subsidiary lines running through the yards for the passage of through and local trains, serving Vancouver and her sister ports.

On the north shore in the south end of the second Narrows Bridge, the C.P.R. has more than 9 miles of trackage. From the south end of the second Narrows Bridge to Coal Harbor are another 27 miles. The False Creek Yard comprises 27 miles, and in the proposed new C.P.R. yard at the south end of the second Narrows Bridge, and of the allowances for further additions when necessary.

Another four miles of yard rails lie west of the Fraser River Bridge.

This trackage, so far as the C.P.R. is concerned, is not only taking care of a steady and normal growth in trade through the great port, but also handling an abnormal and expanded westward grain movement. Additions have been made and others will be necessary to care for this growing traffic, which reached a peak in the crop season of 1927-28. The Canadian Pacific's first westward wheat shipments were made in 1923, attained more than 98,000,000 bushels in 1923-24, and reached the record this spring of 32,000,000 bushels shipped through the port before the end of February.

Small Town Papers

BY

FRANK PARKER STOCKBRIDGE

"Do they were," he answered. "I was raised on the farm, but I never liked it much. That's why I came to New York in the first place. And when dad died I sold the farm and bought the paper the old Middleboro Gazette. I couldn't get the virus of printer's ink out of my system."

I waited for Burt to go on, but he said nothing more, so I opposed my question.

"I meant your gold mine," I ventured after a moment of silence. "What sort of business have you been in." You seem to have been successful."

Burt looked at me with a puzzled expression, as if he thought I was trying to kid him. "Why, I just told you," he said. "I bought the Middleboro Gazette."

I saw at once that I must have seemed stupid to him. Some big industry had picked Middleboro for its plant and the property value had run into a big city, as the General Electric did at Schenectady. But for the life of me I couldn't remember which industry it was Middleboro? I couldn't think of anything to connect the name of the town with. But I didn't let on to Burt.

"Oh, I see," I responded cheerfully. "And as the town grew big enough for a daily paper you bought it, eh? Fine! What's your population now, anyway?"

"About the same as it always has been, maybe a little more," he answered. "Around 2,000. But we've got a circulation of more than 3,000. Not bad for a country weekly, what? For a long time before Middleboro will need a daily."

"Hold on a minute, Burt," I gasped. "Let me get this straight. You've been right there in Middleboro for twenty years, running a country weekly in a town of 2,000 people, and now you've retired on your income and your sold equipment to Fifth Avenue and — Oh what's the use? I just can't understand it," I finished. If I hadn't known you as well as I used to, I'd think you were trying to put one over on me. Do you mean to tell me that anybody ever made that much money, or any money more than a bare living, and a poor one at that, out of a country weekly? You must have some property tie-ups that I don't."

"I have now, of course," He grinned back at me. "Naturally I've made investments same as any business man does with his surplus. I've got a block of land on the Middleboro National and some shares in the creamery and the cold-storage plant, and a few pieces of business property in the town, and one thing and another of that sort. But it all came out of the Gazette in the first place, and all I had to start with was the $3,000 mother and I got for the farm after dad died. Of course, I've plowed a lot of the profits back into the paper here to keep a newspaper plant up to date, you know. It'll inventory now, the plant's around $75,000, and the building's worth another $10,000 goodwill and all, I wouldn't take $50,000 for the Gazette. It earns now around 20 per cent, on that figure, and you're no idle dope, for $20,000 a year will go in a town the size of Middleboro."

"It'll go a long way in New York," I conceded. "What's your point, Burt, is the idea that there's any such money, or the half of it, to be made out of any country weekly paper," says here, any size. So I'm old Yankee grandstand used to me. It beats my time. You're sure you're making that out of the paper, not out of the job-printing business?"

I must give Burt credit for being good-natured. He always was, besides, he'd always liked me in the old days and he hadn't liked him a lot. Some men would have got mad to be questioned that way, but I knew I was friendly and interested.

"The job-printing business accounts for about a quarter of it," he said, answering my latter question first. "Job printing's a nuisance in a modern country newspaper office instead of being a profitable relief to it used to be. It's a specialty that hasn't got anything to do with the making a new paper. Fact is, my younger boy thinks both with me in the business — running the paper — the younger one, Joe, has got an idea he could do better with the plant if he had it out under his own roof, and maybe I'll humor him and operate that separately and let him see what he can make of it. But the old Gazette, standing alone on its own hind legs, has pulled down better than $15,000 a year net for me every year for the past five or six years, and it's getting better all the time.

"Yes, you're right," he went on. "It does beat your time. It's a new thing, this development of the country weekly into a remunerative industry, instead of a hazardous gamble, and the odds all against the editor and publisher, as it used to be. It wasn't any too easy the first few years I had the Gazette, though I always took down more than I needed to live on right from the start. And it isn't like taking candy from a baby now — got me right on that. A man's got to know the business and work at it same as any other business. But if he does that I don't know any business in the world that'll pay him so for a return on his investment or stand up as solidly under competition from outside as the — so hard to kill

YUKON ENTERS FEDERAL OLD AGE PENSION PLAN

Ottawa, Yukon has entered the federal old-age pensions scheme, George L. MacLean, newly appointed gold commissioner of the Yukon Territory, has affixed his signature to an agreement with the Dominion Government to participate in the federal plan.

An order-in-council will shortly be passed in cabinet council, in accordance with the established procedure authorizing Hon. Peter Heenan, minister of labor, to sign for the federal government.

Yukon Territory is the second province to enter the federal old-age pensions scheme, Manitoba having been the first province to sign an agreement with the federal government. Other provinces will shortly follow.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan are now negotiating with Mr. Heenan, and it is probable that these two provinces will shortly also come under the federal plan. Legislation to enter into negotiations was recently passed by the legislatures of Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

The signing of Gold Commissioner MacLean was affected under authority of an ordinance passed at the last session of the Yukon Legislature

NO CHANGE IN BRITISH POLICY TOWARD EGYPT

Manchester, Eng. — Sir William Joynson-Hicks, secretary of the home office, told the Cotton Spinners' Association that the latest Egyptian note would work no change in British policy. He said.

"It is true we have received a somewhat foolish despatch from the Egyptian Government. But I ask you to put your faith in His Majesty's government, and realize that this despatch will mean no change in British policy. A reply to the Egyptian Government will be made shortly."

Sir William also said that he looked forward to the time when Lancashire would be independent of the cotton supplies from the "great west" and would get all its cotton from the British Empire.

Cairo, Egypt. Premier Nahas explained to Cairo newspaper representatives briefly Egypt's position with regard to Great Britain

"In our note to Great Britain," he said, "we have striven to take the one side to uphold our country's rights, and on the other to maintain unimpaired our friendly relations with Great Britain.

The note in question was Egypt's reminder to the British Government of its latest note on the rejection by Egypt of the proposed treaty.

In his explanation the premier dealt at length with the question of the British claim to the right of interference with Egyptian legislation and with Egypt's ability unaided to maintain order. Nahas said stress on his desire to prepare the way for real friendship.

A WONDERFUL TRIBUTE

Baby's Own Tablets Declared To Be Worth Their Weight in Gold

A mother has only to use Baby's Own Tablets once to be convinced that nothing else can equal them in banishing the ills of her little ones. Once used, always used, be long as there are small children in the home — that is the tribute thousands of mothers pay the Tablets.

Among the many, many mothers who are anxious to tell of their experience with Baby's Own Tablets is Mrs. (Rev.) Smith, of East Hamilton, Ont., who writes: "Shortly after coming to Canada I began giving the Tablets to my baby boy who was then six weeks old. The result was so pleasing that since that time I have always kept the Tablets in the house. I have two children now and both of them are the picture of health. Baby's Own Tablets are the only medicine they have ever had and I really believe the Tablets to be worth their weight in gold."

Baby's Own Tablets are free from all injurious drugs and can be given to the youngest babe with absolute safety. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The normal atmospheric pressure on the body at sea level is 14.7 pounds per square inch.

The Poor Man's Friend. Put up in small bottles that are easily portable and sold for a very small sum, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil possesses power in concentrated form. Its cheapness and the varied uses to which it can be put make it the poor man's friend. No dealer's stock is complete without it

Were it not for a man's faults he might live and do without ever hearing his name mentioned.

WAS VERY WEAK NERVOUS AND RELIABLE!

Mrs. Geo. McKenzie, Campbellford, Ont., writes: "A short time ago I was in very bad with my heart and nerves, the cause of it, I think, was my going through the change of life.

"I was very weak and melancholy, and at periods I could hardly bear to hear a clock ticking, and I did not sleep well.

"I was advised to try

so I sent at once for a box; took them and got another, and before they were all gone I felt good, my nerves are fine, I do not mind my noise, and I can sleep well. I cannot recommend them too highly to those suffering as I did."

Price 50c. a box at all druggists and dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Thus appealed to, Danny Corbett went over to the couch and carefully inspected the young thing that was likely to make inroads in his hard earned income. He put his chapped and dirty little hand very lightly on the glossy, smooth head, and felt its tiny load. He gently touched the velvety cheek and found it soft as a rabbit's to his fingers. He put his hand in his pocket and drew out thirty cents in change and looked hard at it. He may have been thinking of rabbit-hunts and fishing logs, he knew something of them. But his answer was: "Sure Mike! I'll do it. Are you pretty sure her mother will die, Ma?" Danny's tone was eager.

"We ain't wishin' her mother no harm, Ma," Rosie quickly interposed, seeing the rebuke that was coming to her business partner. "We ain't wishin' nobody no harm." Rosie was very anxious not to prejudice the case. "But we know there is always a danger—you know yourself, Ma, that none of us knows one day from another, we're here today and away tomorrow, as I have often heard you say—and Danny and me are just talkin' it over in case something should happen that's all."

The warm heart of Maggie Corbett was tender to her offspring at this moment. "Look at that, John, would you? Good little things, after all, and yet it was only this morning they were fightin' like drunken shantymen. I often thought if they had had a baby in the house it might have softened them. Well, don't be settin' your hearts on this wee one, for her mother is not goin' to die, I don't think; though you never can tell about a woman when her man has gone but on her."

Outside the snow was still falling. The evergreen trees were bending with the weight of it, their branches hanging down like great white boughs. Christmas Eve surged forward with all its infectious gladness as the crowds of belated shoppers increased. The electric fans in the windows were hard pressed to keep back the shooting frost forms, which threatened to hide the season's offerings. Handsome cutters, with beautiful robes thrown over the backs of the seats, stopped at the curb to let out harrying shoppers delivery boys on foot, on wheels, in wagons, loaded with parcels, hurried to the suburbs of the city, sometimes pausing to look in at uncurtained windows where happy families gathered around sparkling tables—families so happy over the arrival of guests that they forgot to draw the blinds and so allowed some of their happiness to overflow into the street. Rosy shaded lamps threw patches of radiance on the glistening snow. Christmas wreaths tied with satin streamers glowed deeply red against the windows. The pulse of the city was beating with laughter and sleighbells.

At the corner of Second Street and Jasper Avenue a disgraced street car stopped to let out a flock of little girls and boys on their way to the Christmas tree in the First Baptist Church. Certain of the little girls with their curls protected from the falling snow by long tinsel veils, and away under their toques, were carrying mysterious pasteboard boxes containing stashes and bows and wings for the fairies. Others of them were darkly hooded and masked their identity and are entirely unguessed, for were they not cast for the dreadful witches of Shadowland? Accompanying them was a liberal sprinkling of parents, mostly mothers, with a few self-conscious fathers who had the appearance of having been dragged out. The mothers had an air of very conscious unconcern, as if they did not know their little boys or girls were going to take a part that was bound to be the very best thing on the program.

The Salvation Army Citadel blazed with light and pulsed with activity, for the big supper, where all were welcome, was going on, and the odors of turkey and sage and onions, drifting out into the street, compelled the reluctant ones to go in.

At midnight, when the bells were ringing, the snow suddenly stopped in that abrupt Alberta way. The city's lights were so many sad on bright against the deep India blue of the sky, it was hard to tell them from the stars, but high overhead was to be seen the North Star, beloved of all bewildered travellers. Now it twinkled and gleamed above all these scenes of good fellowship and merry-making with unmistakable approval. Into the uncurtained window of the Corbett's big room it peered with a deeper interest and kindlier understanding, for it could see that the Winnipeg couch was drawn out from the wall to make it into a full-sized bed, and in it there slept the unperturbed young Lib with Rose Corbett on one side of her and Daniel Corbett on the other—her two new friends, who had covenanted in her presence and in the presence of each other to furnish her with shelter, care and sustenance in the event of her mother's death. Rose and Daniel Corbett—the underwriters!

CHAPTER XXII.

It was Christmas afternoon when [illegible] noon, the very sound of which brings pictures of children playing with trains on living-room floors, satisfied with turkey and candy, starry-eyed with presents, numb with surprises and joy. Christmas afternoon! Of all the spicy, perfumed, sparkling glories afternoons of the year the most dazzling and glorious; and merely an afternoon or a day that can be marked on a calendar or divided into hours like other afternoons—but that at all Christmas afternoon is an atmosphere, a perfume, a sensation, a feeling, a spiritual experience.

It was Christmas afternoon when Helmi awakened. Number 18 in the North Star Rooming House did not suggest festivity, with its bare, buff walls, dull gray paint, elm dresser, iron bed, bare floor, with one strip of Japanese matting worn in the middle down to the threads. But Helmi was not left entirely without some gleam of Christmas, for Rose and Danny who were going to the Salvation Army Cantata that night, went singing down the hall:

"Away in a manger, no crib for a bed,
The little Lord Jesus laid down His sweet head."

and it brought to Helmi's mind the Christmas story, and because her own heart was more tender than it had ever been, owing to the rise and fall of the little white veil which covered Lili's face she loved the little Christ Child more than ever, and thought of Him and His pale mother as they lay there in the manger with the noise of cattle all around them.

"The stars in the sky looked down where He lay
The little Lord Jesus, asleep on the hay."

Rosie, just outside the door, was singing as she did the linoleum in the hall with dustless mop; Danny was working farther down the hall.

Helmi was awakened from her dream by the entrance of a little man with a slender black bag in his hand. He came in without knocking, and stood at the bottom of the bed regarding her critically. Before he could frame a question Mrs. Corbett had arrived, having seen the Doctor's car at the front door.

Mrs. Russell, who lived in No. 16 and did the cleaning in the City Hall, and therefore knew something of the correct forms of procedure [illegible] fed the Department of the happening in No. 18. Dr. Symond came over at once. No one likes to be disturbed on Christmas afternoon when the delicious birds of a turkey palm—in the atmosphere of the house and one has just helped to put two leaves in the dining-room table. Dr. Symond was prepared to be quite stern indeed, as a representative of the city authorities how could he help being stern with these unregulated young women who leave their babies on the steps of the City Hall, so to speak it was becoming entirely too common, and the Property Owners' Association at their last meeting were complaining about it; property or, too, for they were the people who had to pay the bills. Everyone when in need rushed to the City widows looking for help — unemployed — homeless — unfortunate girls—all come to the City.

THE BABY TEETH

How many should there be? "Ten little fingers and ten little toes"—making twenty in all—and there you have their number. Easy to remember, isn't it?

And when should you begin to look for them? About the sixth or seventh month.

And which comes first? As a rule, the lower front teeth, the central incisors.

So after all baby's fretfulness he has a brand new tooth or two, no wonder he's cross! Next time you hear him complaining about it, properly so, too, for they were the people who had to pay the bills. Everyone when in need rushed to the City widows looking for help — unemployed — homeless — unfortunate girls—all come to the City.

LEGISLATURE PASSED 70 BILLS

It is pointed out in connection with the number of bills passed at the recent session of the Legislature that in many cases these bills were merely amendments to Acts already on the statute books, under the system adopted by the present government in the session of 1925. Prior to that time all amendments to existing statutes were embodied in what was known as the Statute Law Amendment Act. In 1925 all amendments were embodied in separate Acts and this practice has been continued.

The principal advantage of the procedure now adopted is that much fuller discussion and consideration are given to all amendments and the attention of all members of the Legislature is particularly directed to all proposed amendments. If the method now followed had been in use in 1921, the total number of Acts passed at that session would have been 122, as compared with 70 passed in the 1928 session.

Education and Religion

There is no subject in which the people of Western Canada take a deeper or more continuing interest than the subject of education. They demand the best for their children, and that they are prepared to pay for it is manifested by the splendid school buildings which are an outstanding feature in every Western city, town and village and in the steadily improving character of rural school houses, coupled with the generous financial provisions made for the upkeep of the schools. Whatever complaint there may be in regard to the size of tax bills, the majority view is that, where pruning of expenditure is necessary, it must not be done at the expense of efficiency in education.

Demanding the best in education, there is much difference of opinion as to what constitutes the "best" and how it is to be attained. It is now generally accepted that the state owes to every child the rudiments of an education, and is responsible for seeing that such education is received. Education must, therefore, be state aided, and the state which provides the money must supervise and control the educational system and be responsible for it. The vast majority of people today will not consent to that responsibility being delegated to any other authority.

People are, however, divided in opinion as to what should be taught in the schools. Roman Catholics hold tenaciously that a school without religion is pointless and that character cannot be properly nurtured or sound morals taught except through religious teaching, hence, as Father Ryan expresses it in "The Catholic World," "the Church cannot regard as satisfactory any system of education in which religion is not the foundation of the whole curriculum." Many Protestants, and an increasingly large number of them, agree. On the other hand, most Protestants insist that the state-aided schools shall be entirely secular, and that religious teaching is the duty of the Church, the Sunday schools and the home.

The educational systems of these Western Provinces are a compromise between these two opposing views in that they make provision for the establishment of minority separate schools and for the use of the last half-hour of the regular school day for religious instruction if the trustees so decide. This compromise feature is objected to by many, and the opinion is frequently voiced that what this country should have is the national school system of the United States.

A century ago, however, all religious sects in the United States, Protestant as well as Catholic, opposed the wholly secular public school, and insisted, and had from the time of the Puritans, upon religious training in the schools. Now, after a century of secular public schools, the churches of the United States are taking stock of the situation and looking results squarely in the face. The general tenor of the complaint of the Protestant assemblies is "the comparative failure of the church's religious education," and that "neither the homes, nor the churches, nor the schools' provide an adequate religious training, and that "a solution must be found or disaster will befall both the Church and society." They recognize that the Sunday schools do not meet the need, because so small a proportion of the children attend, and the instruction for the most part is ineffective, because of lack of time, teacher preparation, and pupil interest. The problem confronting the Church is, therefore, one of combining religion with public education, Church and State working together for a great result neither can achieve alone.

What is happening? Nineteen of the principal Protestant bodies have formed the Council of Church Boards of Education for the purposes of carrying out a program of religious instruction during public school hours to supplement the regular curriculum. The plan is as follows: On the request of the parent, a child is assigned at fixed periods each week for the study of religion under a teacher designated by the parent. These teachers are accredited and supported by the sects, but their qualifications are to be the same as for other instructors. Likewise, the standard of work and the credit granted are determined as for other subjects. Where no legal bar prevents, classes have sometimes been held in the school building otherwise, in rooms provided by the churches. Textbooks and study materials have been issued by the various denominational publishing houses.

Week-day religious instruction on public school time has been adopted in about eight hundred communities in over twenty States. In New York City, Catholics and Protestants have united to secure the arrangement there. Laws sanctioning this policy have been passed in Iowa, Minnesota, Ohio, Oregon and South Dakota, while court decisions in two States and official rulings in eight others have protected it. Even where legislation has been rejected, or no action taken, the plan is proceeding without interference.

This trend of thought and action in the United States, where a national secular public school system has so long prevailed, is of interest, and the above outline is presented solely for the information of Western people desirous to discover what is best for their children and calculated to build up a strong Christian country.

The number of cases of diphtheria and deaths resulting therefrom have been reduced 60 per cent. in Pennsylvania in the last few years, says Dr Theodore H. Appel, secretary of health, at Harrisburg. This phenomenal decrease, Dr. Appel held, has been due almost entirely to the use of toxin-antitoxin.

"Nothing has been more definitely proven," Dr. Appel said, "than the power of toxin-antitoxin in ward off that most dreaded disease, malignant throat diphtheria."

Red Cross Celebration

Fifty-Eight Nations Will Celebrate Hundredth Birthday Of Founder Of Organization

On May 8, 1928, fifty-eight nations organizations, banded together under the Red Cross flag, will celebrate the hundredth birthday of Henri Dunant founder of Red Cross and joint winner of the Nobel Peace prize.

In Toronto, the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society will signally honor the occasion by giving a banquet on April 25th to welcome the delegates attending the Annual Meeting of Central Council. A limited number of tickets are being sold outside of the membership, and it is expected that nationally known speakers, including the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, will attend and give the celebration speeches. Similar functions will also be held in every Canadian province

It is fitting indeed that such a centenary should not go by unnoticed for Dunant did much to promote the idea that suffering in war, the agony of the battlefield, could be largely mitigated.

It was while this great benefactor of humanity was travelling in Lombardy in 1859 that he saw 40,000 dead, dying, wounded and sick lying on the Battlefield of Solferino, without anyone offering as much as a drink of water in kindly service. The sight of this so wrung his heart that he did not rest until an impromptu hospital was prepared in the nearby town of Castiglione with a voluntary ambulance and nursing service in attendance. Thus he became known as the "Good Samaritan of Castiglione."

The sight of so much agony never left his mind and he wrote a brochure that was fraught with much significance to the world thereafter.

Dunant for several years travelled about Europe lecturing and giving his opinions regarding the treatment of soldiers in battle, pointing out the need for a reorganization of the medical services, for the rearrangement of plans for repatriating prisoners of war and asking for disabled men who had been broken in fighting for their country's cause. Finally, Dunant's first idea grew the Conference at Geneva, which resulted in Red Cross being established for the world. The first Treaty of Geneva was signed by twelve out of sixteen national delegates, the first Red Cross Society being formed in the Grand-principality of Wurtemburg.

From that time the symbol of the Red Cross, which was originally adopted in honor of Switzerland, where the first treaty took place, became the chief organization to serve the soldier in war, and eventually to follow him and his family into civilized life, caring for the sick and promoting health in general.

Great Britain adopted the Treaty of Geneva in 1865, 1866; Prussia joined June 22, 1866; Russia was linked up on July 5, 1867, and the United States on March 16, 1882. The Canadian Red Cross Society at first was an offshoot of the British organization, but is now entirely autonomous, whilst the boundaries of the Dominion of Canada. Turkey also subscribes to the same ideals but uses the symbol of the red crescent in place of the Red Cross, Turkey being purely a Mohammedan nation.

Development of Marquis Wheat Considered Most Outstanding Contribution To Agriculture

While the contributions to agriculture from scientists and plant breeders have been many and important in recent years, the development of Marquis Wheat has been by far the most outstanding. Its introduction into Canadian agriculture marked a new epoch in the agricultural and industrial life of Canada, and to some extent in the United States.

Marquis Wheat originated from a cross made in 1892 at the Canadian Government Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, between an early maturing variety obtained in India under the name of Hard Red Calcutta, and the leading Canadian wheat, Red Fife. It was developed by Dr. Charles Saunders, of Ottawa, who, on his retirement a few years ago, was given an annuity by the Canadian Government of $5,000 a year in recognition of his great contributions to agriculture. He is still living in the Canadian Capital.

The chief points which distinguish Marquis are its ability to mature from six to ten days earlier than Red Fife; greater strength of straw than the latter variety; its greater resistance to stem rust; and its greater productiveness. It is probably safe to say that no new cereal variety thus far introduced anywhere has so excelled in so many points or has taken the place of other varieties over so wide an area. By 1915, only six or seven years after its introduction, Marquis had taken the lead over all other varieties throughout the wheat-growing areas of the western provinces, which lead it increased so rapidly that within ten or twelve years from its first introduction it re-credited with having occupied not less than 90 per cent. of all the spring wheat area in the Dominion. Even in the United States, Marquis is conceded to be the most generally grown spring wheat variety, occupying in that country between 80 and 70 per cent. of the entire spring wheat area.

It must also be remembered that the advent of Marquis has made it possible to grow a high yielding, high quality wheat in many districts in which wheat might not have been attempted, or if attempted would have yielded much less, and, in many cases would have been of lower quality and grade. While, as may naturally be expected, Marquis may have to give way in certain districts to other varieties which prove better adapted to meet the conditions which prevail there, yet at the present time Marquis reigns supreme as the "premier" variety. It is also interesting to note that practically all varieties of commercial spring wheat which command the premium in Western Canada are more or less closely related to Marquis, from which they have inherited some of their major virtues.

Acreage prepared for the 1928 crop in the Prairie Provinces is estimated as 18,395,579 acres, as compared with 15,874,883 acres in 1927, an increase for the present year of 920,-706 acres, or 5.9 per cent. Manitoba shows an increase of 136,774 acres, or 17.4 per cent.; Saskatchewan, an increase of 1,003,463, or 12.5 per cent., and Alberta, a decrease of 631,531, or 14.5 per cent. There is an increase in new breakings in all provinces, with the exception of Alberta. All provinces record an increase in summer fallow, while Alberta records a decrease in fall plowing.

Valuable Asset To Farm

Good Windbreak Useful and Adds Greatly To Appearance

A windbreak is a valuable asset to any farm. Livestock will winter better behind a good windbreak and less fuel will be needed in heating the farm home. Drifting snow is also kept from the yards and buildings if they are protected by a good windbreak.

The well-grown windbreak also provides a real fuel supply. The farm on which there are plenty of trees also makes a more pleasant home than the barren farmstead.

Four Western Provinces Take The Leading Place In Per Capita Wealth of Canada

The total of the tangible wealth of Canada is estimated at $25,673,174,-000, according to a survey made by the Canadian Government Bureau of Statistics for the year 1927, which is equal to $2,772 per head of population. This total does not include undeveloped natural resources. There was an increase of $3,000,000,000 in Canada's tangible wealth in four years, as a comparison with the survey made in 1923 discloses.

In the distribution of wealth by provinces, Ontario ranks first, with estimated aggregate wealth of $9,-000,727,000, or 35.1 per cent of the total, Quebec second, $6,238,284,000 or 24.5 per cent of the whole; Saskatchewan third, with $3,870,314,000 or 11.2 per cent. of the total for the Dominion.

While Ontario led in absolute wealth, the western provinces came first in per capita wealth; Saskatchewan held first rank with a per capita wealth of $3,544. Britain Columbia came next with $3,336; Alberta third, with $3,459, and Manitoba, fourth, with $3,069. These figures may be compared with $1,591 and $2,496, the per capita wealth of Ontario and Quebec respectively.

The total agricultural wealth is placed at $7,323,912,000, the largest it is in the national wealth, and 30.51 per cent. of the whole

Mado Ranching Popular

Many Titled People Have Followed Prince Of Wales' Lead

The Prince of Wales's purchase of his ranch in 1919 started a migration of titled European youth to Alberta which is making nobility almost as common as native Indians around the Calgary railroad station. This noble migration has become so marked that one peer, Lord Rodney, has bought a 750-acre ranch where he and Lady Rodney have started a school of ranching for the titled heads of Europe. Among their prospects who are taking a two-year course and living in as outhouse like the hired hands are: S. A. R. Prince Charles Phillippe d'Orleans, the young duke of Lancaster and Montague, the Hon. John Stanley and the Hon. Philip Stanniet. A few miles from Lord Rodney's ranch the Crown Prince of Denmark runs a large dairy farm from which he now ships tons of butter to Europe annually. Twelve miles west of Calgary Prince D'Arco, of Italy, has one of the biggest cattle ranches in Southern Alberta. Lord Minta, Count DeFavra and Count De Rousney are his neighbors

The Best Varieties Of Vegetables

New Tested Varieties Proven To Be Of High Merit

Vegetable growers, whether gardeners or commercial producers would find much information of value in the reports of the Dominion Horticulturist. Besides the new varieties originated at the Experimental Farms, practically all of the better varieties of all kinds of vegetables are given thorough test throughout the Experimental Farms System. In the latest report of the Dominion Horticulturist, available at the Publications' Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, the varieties that have proved themselves to be of high merit are named and described. The vegetables covered are: asparagus, beans, bush and pole, beets, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower, carrots, celery, corn, cucumbers, Kohl rabi, lettuce, muskmelon, onions, parsley, parsnips, peas, peppers, pumpkins, radish, rhubarb, salsify, spinach, squash, turnips, tomatoes, and vegetable marrow.

The Canadian Post Office Department delivers over 600,000,000 letters, 300,000,000 newspapers, 400,000,000 circulars, and 40,000,000 parcels annually in Canada. This delivery is made through about 13,440 post offices, and over 200,000 rural mail boxes extending over an area of nearly 3,-700,000 square miles.

WHEAT VARIETIES BY CHINA BREEDING

Much Labor Involved In Developing An Earlier Maturing Wheat

In order to develop an earlier maturing variety of wheat many factors had to be considered. Extensive collections were made and experiments were carried on at the Canadian Government Experimental Farm at Ottawa. The variety found to be most favorable to cross with Red Fife was Ladoga, named after the region in North Russia from which it came. Two varieties were developed from cross breeding and were given the names of Preston and Stanley. Both were earlier in maturing than Red Fife, but neither was as good in baking quality, although superior to Ladoga. They undoubtedly marked an advance in breeding work although, in themselves were not good enough to receive the recommendation of the milling trade.

Crossings between Ladoga and White Fife, a white-bearded variety similar in all other respects to Red Fife, yielded a number of forms, two of which received the names Huron and Percy. The former is now considered the most promising variety for most parts of Eastern Canada wherever people are not too particular about the matter of bread-making qualities

Another interesting variety bearing the name Early Riga resulted from this early crossing work. This came from a cross made in 1891 between two imported varieties. One of these called Gehun, came from the Himalayan mountains of East India, from an elevation of about 11,000 feet. The other called Onega, was brought from near Archangel, Northern Russia. Early Riga proved to be one of the earliest ripening wheats grown. It possessed very fair baking quality but was less productive than Red Fife.

"I tell you what, you skeptical old typo bossa," he continued, looking at his wrist watch and snapping me on the back, "I'm in town for a meeting of the executive committee of our editorial association to make arrangements for our convention next summer if you really want to know what the country newspaper is like in this year of grace come on along with me to the hotel. We haven't any secrets and you can mount the language of the craft was enough to pass for one of us. You'll meet some good fellows, live newspapermen, from the ninety farms all over the country and they'll tell you better stories than I can. Can you spare the time? I'd love to have you come."

"I've time enough," I told him, "but I don't like to butt in."

"Butt in, my eye!" said Sleet. "You used to be my boss, you know, and I want to show the other chaps the guy who taught me the beginnings of journalism. They'll be tickled to meet you, Bunker, if you don't know what they have to say I know what'll happen. You'll go round to the newspaper office in the morning and every man you meet will want to know what a fair Bert Ellis had turned out to be. Come on!"

I went. And I found out that that novelist's idea of making a living out of a couple of country newspapers wasn't so funny as it had seemed to me. Things have changed in the small towns, as in the big ones, since I was a boy.

It didn't take long, after Bert had introduced me all around, to discover that like thirty or forty country editors in the crowd were immensely proud of their profession, their papers and their home towns. That was the most noticeable difference between them and the sort of country editor I had known. Also, I found that the last-time country editor had plenty of gentlemanly pride, but if the size and spread of his town, the feeling was not often reciprocated. Those were ways of standing in the communities; you could tell that by the way they talked and carried themselves.

"The successful country newspaper publisher today is no longer primarily a printer." is the way one of them explained it to me. "I'm not either. I said publisher. That means that he is a business man. He may or may not be also an editor or a printer, or both, but the emphasis is on the business end. Most of us are our own editors as well as publishers, and there are still a good many who begun as printers and will always be printers at heart, but nowadays a country paper of today is decidedly a business, and a very profitable business."

There were country publishers from every part of the United States at this meeting, as well as representatives of business concerns having merchandise to sell to country papers. Between luncheon at the Advertising in the committee and the convention at the Astor luncheon table where Bert Ellis brought a dozen other good fellows together, I discovered that my former ideas about country papers were based upon conditions which are as extinct as the passenger pigeon.

Much of the picturesqueness and glamour which surrounded the old-time country editor and his shop has disappeared, to be replaced by modern efficiency. There are still some small pioneers, penetrating into new fields with the vanguard of civilization, to set up their presses and prospect the field in advance of population, but these are rare exceptions on the few remaining frontiers, and even in such cases, subscribers, advertisers and profits follow faster than R. Franklin Stamp my old boss, ever dreamed of.

A California editor told me of a man in his own state, F. L. Lvnder, who took a pioneering chance last then five years ago.

"I don't know how much capital he had," said the Californ.a man, "but it wasn't much. He started in the village, the Free Press, at Riverdale five miles from a prosperous city of 264, it's just a wide place in the road. After Dundee had come. The first payment he had just $150 self, he told me, like he wrote the paper and since then he started two others, each in a village of less than 250 people. I don't know what he's worth, but he's always paid his bills and wages promptly, kept his children in the best schools, owns two automobiles and a motor launch, has built and sold seine some real estate, and has a cash surplus in the bank."

A Florida delegate matched that in the story of Howard Sharp's Everglades News.

"I don't think there are as many as 250 people in the town of Coral Point, on Lake Okeechobee, where Sharp started the News a few years ago," he said; "but today the News has about 1500 subscribers, a lot more than the national average of country weeklies, and it covers its field quite exhaustively and intensively. Anybody who wants to know what is happening in Washington or Honolulu or whether Lindbergh made another flight yesterday, can subscribe to local city daily but they usually don't get the chance as most country papers do, unless they are within an hour or so of a big city. Nevertheless, the town many cars of bonus were shipped during the week, and the rest of the intimate personal, local news, which is what the people living there really want to know."

That is the secret of the success of the country newspaper, just as it always has been: the ability to give its readers news about themselves which the city paper, no matter how much by it may be published, cannot possibly give them. Instead of trying to compete with the daily papers, the country editors of today are leaving the fields of national and international news to the dailies even their news is a large extent, and confining on the news of their own communities or circulation territory. The country weekly in the old days had to print a good deal of general news because to many its readers were out of range of the dailies. Now the dailies penetrate everywhere, but, paradoxically, the country newspapers are more than holding their own before.

In Greenfield, Maine, Bunette for example a town of 1,000, there is a successful daily paper, but there is also the Greenfield Gazette, which has been published as a weekly for 135 years. The Gazette has part-time correspondents, one in every town in Franklin County, two in some towns, and there isn't a farmer in the town of Greenfield can print his barn or his stove without the news of it getting into the Gazette. The result is a circulation above 5,000

Explanations and Comments

The Teaching Of Jesus About Divorce.—1. The Pharisees came to Jesus and to an effort, not to obtain spiritual truth, but to entangle Him in the much-disputed question of it lawful for a man to put away his wife?" An later in their question and the tribulary one we have they thought that whichever way He answered they would have a case against Him. If He said "No," He would offend the Jews who believed in the law of Moses. If He answered, when said, "The putting away of a wife is sinful." If He said "Yes," he would be opposing the teaching of many rabbis and would offend Herodias (for Herod had put away his own wife and married Herodias), the wife of Philip, brother, while the latter was still living, and her fury might cause Him to share the fate of John the Baptist.

As was His frequent custom Jesus referred them to their law: "What did Moses command you?" He questioned. They answered by quoting the law of divorcement, and to put her away," they replied.

2. Because the very life of the nation when you realize the ties of marriage and home the family bond There is nothing we want more than a grasp of our Lord's teaching that there is but one moral law and that law the same for man and woman. Let no specious and plausible talk about "unhappy marriages" mislead us to think that it is well not to have an open, but a closed and settled, law. Let no specious and plausible talk about "unhappy marriages" mislead us to think that it is well not to have an open, but a closed and settled, law. Let no specious and plausible talk about "unhappy marriages" mislead us to think that corrective. The remedy for "unhappy marriages" is not greater facility for divorce, but increased faithfulness and meekness in the contraction of marriage. Likely in this world, where sinfulness prevails, fervence to revise the war debt questions.

The official expressed the view that the proposal was the outcome of a purely academic and unofficial preliminary discussion, although it might have considered value, which, if crystallized, would undoubtedly be welcomed by British taxpayers.

"The law," he added, "is always willing to pay less than they owe."

Apart from this brief remark, the foreign official declined to comment.

TO WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Wilson's Experience a Guide to Women Passing through the Change of Life

Hamilton, Ontario.—"I have taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot speak too highly of it as I was at the Change of Life and was all run-down and had no appetite. I was very weak and sick, and the pains in my back were so bad I could hardly move.

I got very sad at times and thought I had not a friend on earth. I did not care if I lived or died. I was very nervous, too, and did not go out very much. A friend advised me to try a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as I did. I am a farmer's wife, and always worked hard until lately, and was in bed for two months. I began to feel like a new woman after the first bottle and I recommend it with great success, also Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about your treatment, as I cannot speak too highly of them."—Mrs. EMMA WILSON, 471 Wilson Street, Hamilton, Ontario.

BRITISH EMPIRE AS AGENCY FOR WORLD PEACE

Winnipeg.—The British Empire is greater than ever at the present time, said General Sir Arthur Currie, speaking the various within the Empire toward one another, has not affected the fact that it stands in time of peace as it stood in time of war, the greatest agency of peace that the world has ever seen. This was the declaration of the British Empire given by Hon. W. Russell, K.C., before the Canadian Club here.

Mr Russell declared that the best peace of the Imperial Conference had not been as some thought, to define the status of the Dominions. The Dominions had not demanded self-governing entities in a day. Rather they had grown into it, and the present Imperial relations been to consolidate the status. Canada in relation to the Empire.

Dominion Status

Dominion status was a Canadian creation, and Canadian leaders were ends towards greater restrictions than are imposed upon the natives of India. Canada had fought for secession to some extent, but the whole question of the present government towards secession was that of the native party and the Liberal party.

Patriotic South Africa

Stand Taken by Premier Hertzog Creates Intense Enthusiasm

Cape Town, South Africa.—Premier Hertzog's changed attitude since his return from the Imperial conference in London continues to be widely commented upon. His declaration at Pretoria that as a result of the Imperial conference "there is no real separation between the Empire and no obligation to support cooperation with the British Empire," has appealed, aside in some antipathies, to all the sons of the South African Union above racial prejudice or party strife.

The Cape Times says: "Premier Hertzog's speeches are stabbing the foundations on the political life of South Africa. . . . U.S. Shipping Protests

Claim British United States Liquor Treaty is Running Both Ways

New York.—An attempt to have the British United States treaty which limits British ships to the liquors the United States ports and vessels cleared and removed at the three mile limit declared unconstitutional was launched before the United States Circuit court of appeals by the Supreme Association of Masters and Mates.

The treaty was characterized by representatives of the association as a boon to United States mariners and shipping.

Under provisions of the treaty which went into effect the serving of alcoholic beverages on British passenger vessels outside the three mile limit, passen gers are being drawn away from United States vessels in regard where they may obtain alcoholic beverages, they asserted.

The result has been according to the attorneys, a reduction in passenger traffic on United States vessels, to the benefit of United States ports and the consequent loss of revenue to the United States. It was urged that the appeal of four cases involving the question of British vessels to engage in foreign business, will be attended.

Labor Candidate Wins

Oswald Mosley, Rich Socialist Wins in Stockport in Britain

Stockport (southwark more than trotted the candidence of the Laborite in the by-election in Stockport by returning Oswald Mosley, Laborite, by a huge majority over his Conservative opponent, J. M. Pike, and one Liberal, W. Hayles.

The vote was: Mosley, 16,677; Pike, 13,881; Hayles, 5,000.

The Stockport while was received with frantic enthusiasm by Mosley's supporters when that Socialist-Laborite candidate was undersigned by the aristocratic extraction of Mosley and his wife, (who was Lady Cynthia Curzon), and their wealth, from giving him their confidence, and, it may be, fresh testimony of the oil saying in this country that "your Rational dear I know a bull."

Mr. Mosley after the announcement the result bore that the Conservative majority was cut in one-fifteen of the majority and has now no mandate to govern.

Mr. Pike said the electorate seemed to have been hypnotized by Mosley's worldly possessions. The main issues at the election were the conquest of the Labor party by wealthy aristocrats has begun."

C. N. R. BRANCH LINES PROPOSED FOR THE WEST

Ottawa.—Plans for the construction of branch railway lines at a cost of $5,000,000, chiefly in Saskatchewan, are under consideration by the Canadian National Railway. Definite decisions have not yet been made but it is believed the Western branches will include the following: from Edmonton, Alberta, into the Beaver River country; a line between Fort Saskatchewan, Alberta, and the Turtle Mountains, Sask., Rte., continuation of the existing branch running to an objective somewhere from Turtleford and the possibility of connecting it with Shellbrook, Sask.; a short line from Weyburn to Radville, Sask., and a branch line running in an easterly direction from Ridgedale, Sask. There will also be a line from Edmonton to the Peace River country in Northern Alberta are understood in Government circles. Western cabinet ministers have said repeatedly that branches to be supposed to the construction of the proposed Bruce Lake run-off.

Only one such line is undertaken in Eastern Canada and that will be a 30-mile extension to the Lake St. John line to bring wood to the pulp mills.

The proposals will be submitted to Parliament when the session is resumed.

EDMONTON SECTIONAL CHART

A revised edition of the Edmonton sheet of the Sectional Map of Canada is just issued by the Topographical Survey of the Department of the Interior. It is the tenth edition of this sheet to be published since the first one was issued thirty-seven years ago. From this series the progress of settlement during those thirty-seven years might readily be traced. When the first one was issued the Calgary and Edmonton branch was the only railroad in Alberta north of the C.P.R. main line. Today, as the present edition of this sheet shows, the area is served by a network of main and branch railway lines, and is also filled with other features resulting from the works of man. Farmhouses, towns, villages, schools, churches, grain elevators, telephone lines, post offices, etc., occupy all parts of the map sheet and serve to indicate the progress attained in less than forty years in building up this region.

The new map is both artistic and highly informative. Woods are tinted green and lakes and other waterways are in blue. Some 2300 miles of trunk roads are blocked in red, 4300 miles of secondary roads in buff, and 2,300 miles of local roads in fair condition are lined in black.

A point of historical interest on the sheet is the site of Fort Augustus, a one-time post of the North West Company built in 1794. The Hudson's Bay Company's trading post at old Fort Edmonton was built in 1795 et so to the former on the north bank of the North Saskatchewan river across from what was later and is now Fort Saskatchewan. The vicinity of these forts was the scene of constant battles with the Indians, resulting in their abandonment in 1800. Thereafter Fort Edmonton, on the site of the present city of Edmonton with its 60,000 population, was the trading centre and the gateway into the Peace River and more northerly regions.

The wooded areas in the central portion have been preserved in Elk Island Park according to a recent

NET DEBT OF CANADA REDUCED BY 87 MILLIONS

Ottawa — A decrease of $87,169,784 in the net debt of Canada during the fiscal year which closed on March 31 last is shown in the financial statement issued by the Department of Finance.

Until the department is in receipt of all the revenue collected in distant parts of the Dominion and until a number of obligations which properly come into last year's financing are met, the figures for the year cannot be regarded as complete, however.

Last year, the statement issued at the close of the fiscal year showed a decrease in the net debt of $61,429,500. The net debt as on March 31 last, according to the statement, was $2,360,673,585.

Ordinary revenues collected during the past fiscal year amounted to $410,146,536, or an increase of $26,233,336 over those of the previous year, the statement shows. Ordinary expenditure also recorded an increase amounting to $15,407,665, and stood at $396,708,741 on March 31 last.

Customs duties yielded revenue of $155,571,170 during the fiscal year just closed, as compared with $140,883,990 in the previous year.

Revenue from excise duties showed an increase of $8,827,037 over the 1926-27 figures.

There was a decrease of $14,194,965 in excise tax collections, which include the sales tax. The total amount collected was $97,046,220. Income tax collections recorded an increase of $9,360,370 over the 1926-27 revenue. The total amount collected in the year just closed was $56,547,570.

In the expenditure column, the big item was one of $170,760,973 for interest on public debt. This was over a million dollars less than in the previous year.

The amount expended for pensions during the year just closed was $36,-190,858 against $34,833,661 in the previous year.

All-British Settlers For Western Provinces

Large Party Of Boys Were Among New Arrivals

Winnipeg — Reporting more a large party of tourists from the Old Country with cameras and fishing outfits in leather cases hanging from their shoulders, some 400 new settlers from the British Isles arrived in Winnipeg last week over Canadian Pacific lines to take up agricultural work in the Western provinces.

The party, one of the largest all-British to arrive in the West for some time, were discharged at St. John from the S.S. Montcalm and proceeded here by special train.

Outstanding in the party was a group of 32 young British lads in their middle teens who were brought out to the Dominion under the auspices of the Agricultural Department of the Manitoba Government.

They were met on arrival at the Canadian Pacific Depot here by Prof. C. R. Hopper, member of the faculty, Manitoba Agricultural College, who is looking after newcomers of this type for the Government.

Fall Grains Winter Well

Come Through In Ontario Better Than Anticipated

Toronto — Fall wheat, alfalfa and other clovers have come through the winter in Ontario in better condition than had been anticipated in the general consensus of opinion gleaned from reports received by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

While a little seeding has been been done in the counties of Essex and Kent, very little, if any, has been attempted in other parts of the province. Plowing, however, is fairly general in many counties of Southern Ontario.

There is a general shortage of grain in nearly all parts of the province.

The demand for farm labor is keen, and particularly so for boys of 15 to 17 years of age who are being brought out by the Department of Colonization.

I.R.S. Broadcast Question

Matter Still Stands On Order Paper In House

Ottawa — In the government considering refusing to continue the license of the broadcasting station CKCT, Edmonton (International Bible Students), and if so, for what reason?" asked H. H. Spencer (U.F.A., Battle River), in the House of Commons.

Hon. P. J. Cardin, minister of marine and fisheries, replied that he had already answered a similar question in view of this fact, and also because he proposed later to make a statement on the matter he thought the question might be stopped. Mr. Spencer objected and said he would prefer to have the question stand on the order paper.

J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg North Centre), declared that the minister had given no reason at all for refusing to renew these licenses. He failed to see why the minister should not answer the question. Mr. Speaker decided that the question would remain on the order paper.

Endorses Hudson's Bay Route

Canada Needs Another Outlet and Entrance, Says Noted Arctic Explorer

Montreal — Favorable endorsation of the Hudson's Bay route was given here by Captain Joseph E. Bernier noted Arctic explorer, in an address before a local service club. There was a problem on the horizon, he said, which Montreal and the Dominion as a whole would have to face in future years.

As the population of the country grew and the trade of Canada increased, the port of Montreal was bound to obtain a congested condition and then Canada must look to the Hudson's Bay to provide another entrance and outlet.

Coupled with this problem, he remarked that the waters of the St. Lawrence were receding and he felt that if the large liners were going to be able to dock at Montreal there must be a dreaming up of the waters of the river to maintain the necessary level.

Western Professors Honored

Recommended For Membership In the Royal Society Of Canada

Ottawa, Ont. — Councillors of the Royal Society of Canada in session here, approved the awarding of the Flavelle medal of the society for this year to Professor A. P. Coleman, of the University of Toronto, and of the Tyrrell medal to Hon. Senator Thomas Chapais, of Ottawa. Professor Coleman was awarded the Flavelle medal for his work in the interests of science, while Senator Chapais earned his award by his meritorious work in the interest of Canadian history.

It was reported to the council that the various sections of the society have recommended for election this year the following western Canada candidates for membership: Prof. D. C. Harvey, University of Manitoba; Professor H. Clark, University of British Columbia; Dr. Lloyd L. Dixon, University of Saskatchewan; Prof. Stanley Smith, University of Alberta; Prof. Justin S. Delury, University of Saskatchewan.

Will Stay On the Job

Mayor Thompson Will Remain Chief Executive Of Chicago

Chicago — Despite the fact that most of the candidates he had backed were defeated in the primary, Mayor William Hale Thompson will stay on as the city's chief executive for the next three years. He declared that he had no intention of resigning the post he was elected to last year.

"I positively will not resign," the mayor said. "Why should I? We captured the ward committeeships and we also got the sanitary district, so there's no reason for me to resign."

During the campaign the mayor had announced that if his favorite candidate, Blatier Attorney Robert E. Crowe, co-leader in the Republican faction, was defeated, he would seriously consider giving up the mayoralty.

Crowe lost the primary to Judge John A. Swanson, Democ candidate by more than 100,000 votes.

Old Age Pensions

Discuss Arrangements For Applying Scheme In Saskatchewan

Ottawa, Ont. — Hon. C. M. Hamilton, minister of agriculture in the Saskatchewan Government, and Hon. Peter Heenan, federal minister of labor, were in conference recently discussing arrangements for applying the old age pension scheme to the prairie provinces. Administration of the act is one of the functions of the labor department. Saskatchewan adopted the federal plan at the last session of the provincial legislature, enacting a measure that would become effective on proclamation. It is intimated that as soon as the necessary adjustments are made with respect to bringing the provincial and the federal legislation into conformity with each other, the prairie province will begin its old age pension payments.

Does Canada Lack Creative Art?

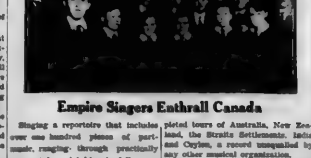
Assertion Is Made That Great Canadian Novel is Yet To Be Written

Toronto — That the great Canadian novel has not yet been written, that there is a dearth of creative effort in music, and that Canadian drama has still to come were assertions made by Fred Landon, M.A., of the University of Western Ontario, when addressing the opening session of the Ontario Library association here.

Dr. George H. Locke, of Toronto, stated that the British Library associations were likely to form a loose federation in London, which would be the centre of literary activity for the United Kingdom. That the federation should become still greater and embrace the other nations of the empire was the speaker's suggestion.

Shorthand Speed Record

Dr. Hans Jaenichel, official stenographer of the German Reichstag claims the world's speed record for shorthand. At a recent contest, Dr. Jaenichel wrote 470 syllables a minute for three minutes.



Empire Singers Enthrall Canada

Singing a repertoire that includes over one hundred pieces of part-music, ranging through practically every style and taking in folk-songs of England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales and America, with both sacred and secular music, the Westminster Glee Singers are now engaged in a tour of Canada that will be a delight to music-lovers. They are singing in the Dominion under the patronage of His Excellency, the Governor-General of Canada, and have recently completed tours of Australia, New Zealand, the Straits Settlements, India and Ceylon, a record unequalled by any other musical organization.

The singers are composed of male altos, tenors, basses and a number of boy sopranos who, like the men, are taken from the finest Cathedral choirs of Great Britain. They will give concerts in most of the cities of Canada from Halifax to Victoria and return. They are travelling for the most part on Canadian Pacific lines during their tour of the Dominion.

Protect Eastern Consumers

Will Make Public Price Of Alberta Coal At the Pit Mouth

Calgary — That the new provincial coal standards board will act only in an advisory capacity and that the Government is desirous of having the price of Alberta coal at the pit mouth made public, were two important statements made by R. J. Dunning a member of the new provincial board, at a meeting of coal operators held in Calgary to discuss the new $4.75 coal rates to Ontario.

Mr. Dunning also intimated that the onus of having the various coals placed on the "preferred" list would rest with the operators themselves.

The list he said would be submitted to J. A. Ellis, fuel controller in Ontario, at the earliest possible date. The point was stressed by W. W. McInis, of Edmonton, the chairman, that because a rate of $4.75 had been granted to Ontario consumers, it did not follow that the same rate would be granted every time the battle had been won. They had merely won the first round.

It depended upon operators, working in conjunction with the Alberta Government, to win the rest of the Ontario market. He intimated that if the movement was to be a success it was absolutely necessary to safeguard the Ontario consumer in every possible way.

Canada's Autonomy

Canada's Representation On League A Good Thing For the World At Large

Montreal — Canada's election to the Council of the league of nations was international recognition of the Dominion's autonomous status, Sir Herbert B. Amos, former financial secretary of the league's secretariat, declared in an address here.

With this recognition of Canada's autonomy, Sir Herbert said, came the necessity for greater participation by Canadians in the responsibilities of the league. Canada, he added, had not been elected by any one group, but her candidature had been endorsed by states which had nothing to gain from her election, but which thought that Canadian representation on the council would be a good thing for the world at large.

For Trans-Atlantic Flight

Another Aviator Has His Mind Fixed On "America By Air"

Madrid — Another aviator has his eyes fixed on the goal of "America by air" He is Captain Reginald Foich Truslove, an English flier, formerly chief instructor at the Gosport aerodrome in England, and later instructor of Spanish army aviators. He informed the Associated Press that he was preparing for a flight from the airdrome at Seville, Spain, to New York by way of the Azores some time in June. He has not yet selected an airplane, but intends to use a light machine.

Honors For Aviator

Washington, D.C. — A bill proposing to give the congressional medal of honor to Clarence D. Chamberlin for his non-stop flight from New York to Germany last summer was introduced in the senate by Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa.

EDUCATION IS VITAL FACTOR IN SOCIAL PROGRESS

Saskatoon — "Which is it to be, education or jail? This was the question asked by J. W. Barnett, Edmonton, secretary of the Alberta Teachers' Alliance, in an address before the Saskatchewan Teachers' Alliance. Mr. Barnett was brought to Saskatoon to be the chief speaker to the alliance, as Dr. G. M. Weir, University of British Columbia, was brought here to be chief speaker to the Saskatchewan Educational Association.

"Chicago," said Mr. Barnett, "with its huge proportion of just voters, swayed by unscrupulous political manipulators, has its Big Bill Thompson. What agency will make our polyglot western population a harmonious Canadian nation? We must face the fact, whether or not we like it, but we have just the same potentialities for political monstrosities and corruption in the western provinces as in Chicago; similar elements in the electorate—foreigners, illiterate and uncalculated to President, to western Canadian ideals, to a discreet use of the ballot. Their lack of appreciation of Canadian institutions makes a fertile soil for the growth of mob rule.

"In Chicago voters by the thousands—whose desire and use of the ballot extends no further than putting a cross alongside names indicated by ring masters of a corrupt political circus), decide the situation. They outnumber the educated, better informed type of voter, those able to read, and write, and think in English, who are not so easily swayed by lurid demagogism, who in rushed elections, and of ready will to choose. The latter are too discouraged even to go to the polls.

"Education is no longer a luxury nor an accomplishment, it is a bitter necessity. The more instructed a population, the less liable are they to the delusion of enthusiasm and superstition, which among ignorant nations frequently occasions the most dreadful disorder.

"A democratic community, in order to be truly free, wise, self-governed, needs minds that are wise, self-governed. Lacking it, the national life is at the mercy of every cutch-word, machine bom, or brazen demagogue.

"We must face this question. Do the teachers really believe in education? Do they believe that making the world 'safe for democracy' is synonomous with 'educate the masses'? Do we believe education is the most profitable investment in the world today? Do we believe the country should provide an equal degree of educational opportunity for every child irrespective of social or endowment? Do we believe the school is the place to inculcate the spirit of goodwill the basis of world citizenship and world peace?

"If these are mere confessions of the mouth rather than beliefs of the heart, then the sooner we cease talking about education and indulge in education the better they are as sounding brass and tinkling cymbals."

World's Wheat Exhibition

Federal Government Approached For Assistance In Putting Over Ambitious Plan

Ottawa — In preparation for the world's wheat exhibition which is to be held in Regina, Sask., in 1933, representatives of the various provincial governments gathered in the capital and interviewed Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, and Dr. J. H. Grisdale, his deputy, in regard to the assistance which may be expected from the federal government.

Dr. Grisdale intimated that nothing had been decided upon. There was no need for hasty action. Undoubtedly the federal government would do its share to make the exhibition a complete success.

The delegates seemed well satisfied with the progress made and went away happy.

REMEMBRANCE

This day when tasks confront the just,
Must we forget the men—in dust,
Who fought the fight, and won, and died,
Shall we forget, Shall we forget?

This night when we lay down to sleep,
Must we forget the trust we keep
For those who lie in graves unknown,
Shall we forget, Shall we forget?

Each day and night, then, let us prize
The glory of their sacrifice,
And not forget the pledge we gave,
Shall we forget, Shall we forget?

LACOMBE ENTRY TOPS EDMONTON CALF SALE

The high price of 73 cents per pound was paid by James Ramsey Ltd., of Edmonton, for the calf shown by Margaret Roger of Lacombe following the awarding of prizes in the Children's Calf-feeding competition at the Edmonton Spring Show. This calf stood second in the short ring, first prize being captured by the entry of Annie May Turner of Cadboro Bay, B.C. This calf was purchased by the Hudson's Bay Co. of Edmonton for 56 cents per pound.

OUR NURSES

The world is calling for relief
From sickness and from pain.
Humanity is bowed in grief
It's sorrow can't restrain

Many a maid has heard this cry
And pledged her loyalty,
To bring relief to all who cry,
From pain to make them free.

Those maidens bring their sacrifice
To aid a suffering world.
To help this world; they pay the price
Where'er the flag's unfurled.

Then here's to the girl dress in white.
The nurses of our land.
They bring to life; sunshine and light,
This healthy, happy band.

Dr. Symond felt very stern about all this as he stood looking at Helmi. Where is your husband?" he asked. His tone implied that he suspected foul play. She had probably murdered him and concealed the body. In Symond's manner warned Helmi that it would be better for her to tell the truth. Rescued from her dream, she stared at him with a frightened face.

"You must answer me," said the doctor, sternly, his manner was jailer but firm.

Helmi did not know where to begin. How could she tell this man her fears?

Maggie Corbett came in the room. "She has not the best English, Doctor, but I make out her own jargon up early in the war and she got wrund and came in. It is all right, Doctor, she's married, eats and sleeps sound; she has the ring on her finger and has a valise full of nice things for the little one, and she's not a charity case, Doctor, at all. She has money to pay her why."

The doctor grew more cheerful. "That is fine, Mrs. Corbett," he said. "You see, I get so many cases where these foreign girls think they are married. Some fellow shows them a paper which he says is a license, and away they go with him. They have great respect for a paper, especially if it has a red seal on it. But almost everything will do—a tax notice or a water bill even an unpaid one." Dr. Symond was quite cheerful now. Then he grew more serious. "I tell you, Mrs. Corbett ,it is disgusting how easy these girls are!"

"Sure enough," said Mrs. Corbett, "easy is right. Ain't natures wonderful, doctor? Don't it beat all how she puts it over on us?"

"I tell you, Mrs. Corbett," went on the Doctor, not wishing to discuss the angle of it, "if the women of this city who meet in their local councils and women's institutes and a lot of these other organizations if they are spending so much time on, would make it their business to get in touch with every foreign girl and warn her of these things well, I wouldn't have so much to do; neither would the Superintendent of Neglected Children—and there would not be so much congestion at the Childrens Shelter."

"You are right again, Doctor," said Mrs. Corbett, assinbey, "and did it ever strike you that it might be grand work for the Rotary Club and Kiwanibans and such like to say a word to the men? They're doin' a fine work, buddie' Homes for these little ones, but maybe if they worked a little harder on the men they would have less need for Homes. Did I see what you mean, Doctor, and I know it's a grand thing to always be able to lay all the blame on the women. You see the Lord lets her bear all the pain, and we see to it that she gets all the blame; so why not let the rest of the women bear the blame—there's no use spreadin' it any further."

"You misunderstand me, Mrs. Corbett," said the doctor, quickly. "I have the utmost sympathy for these unfortunate girls, and that is why I would like the women to do something. Indeed, I spoke to the Local Council about it when they asked me to address them."

"That was fine and good of you, Doctor," Commanded Mrs. Corbett "I'm a good hand at givin'—advice, too. Don't it make a person feel grand to give out a good gob of advice—and then if anyone does go to the dad we can say, 'I warned you, anyway you can't say I didn't. But take the tip I gave you now, Doctor, get busy on the mash. Leave the women to women and it's women who look after women anyway."

The doctor interposed "Now, Mrs Corbett, I cannot agree with you there. You must have noticed that women are very hard on women." He was pulling on his gloves now, tubbing out the wrinkles carefully.

"If, I haven't noticed it, but I've heard it. I've heard a lot of men say it."

"Now, Mrs. Corbett, I see you are a great cynic, and I would not have thought that of you" Dr. Symond said, laughingly, as he shook hands with her.

"Don't let me keep you, Doctor," she replied, "and it Christmas and all."

When he was gone Helmi opened her eyes. "I can speak English," she said. Biting her head down the pillow, "I heard what he said, Did you give me the ring to wear?"

"Just so," said Mrs. Corbett, "and it's grand that you can speak so well. Surede girl, are you?"

"No, Finn," said Helmi, "two years in Canada. Do you know anything about me? You said my mata had joined up—do you know anything about him?"

"Not a word, but you'll tell me when you feel like it," said Mrs. Corbett encouragingly.

Helmi regarded her friend gratefully. "You were good to me just now to say things for me and put the ring on my hand. I could not tell him when he asked me—he made me want to die."

"Sure Mike, I know, he's a good little man in his own way, but it's none of his business. He may be sure he wanted some knockin' round the country without her name in it then like this for the fun of it. Oh, well, you don't need to confess to him, or anyone for that matter, but only to God Himself."

"God don't care," said Helmi bitterly, "I pray and pray but God never hears!"

"Here us all!" cried Mrs. Corbett. "That's an awful way to talk about God, who is more anxious to do right by us than we are to let Him."

"Are you a Christian?" asked Helmi.

"My gracious, how do you think I could ever run a Rooming House if I wasn't and keep from committin' murder. If the sons of God hadn't been shed abroad in my heart why do you think I would butt in and tell lies for you?"

"Is it always wrong to tell lies, even kind, good lies like yours? Will God be mad with you for telling a lie for me?" Helmi was afraid her good friend might get into serious difficulties over her.

Mrs. Corbett threw out her hands and laughed. "No fear! God ain't so touchy as lots of people try to make out. It isn't as if I lied to be mean or to hurt someone, and I'll tell you how I've got it sized up. It's a sort of treat for Him to hear someone lie for a woman instead of to her, or about her if you can get what I mean."

Helmi nodded.

"Don't be talkin' now, for tomorrow is the third day, and then's the time for the fever. If it is comin' at all. Rosie is bringin' your hot milk, and Mrs. Kalbski has your supper cookin' on her stove, and I must be makin' now to see how the wee lamb is. She's done nothin' but sleep yet, and that's the best thing she can do with the long road of life ahead of her."

CHAPTER XXIII.

Helmi stayed on in Number 16, taking her meals with the Corbetts, and trying to pay for their kindness by cleaning up their congested suits and making clothes for Rosie and Danny, who had become the baby's devoted attendants. Mrs. Corbett was full of encouragement when she heard Helmi's whole story

"Your man has been delayed, that's all sure he'll come never say die, Helmi, dear—and just think of how pleased he will be to find this fine little girl, the very picture of himself, with her lovely dark eyes. She must be the spittin' image of him, for she's not a bit like you but looks don't matter so long as you are healthy, and a better child I never saw

Encouraged by Mrs Corbett's confidence, Helmi, as soon as she was able, began to go to the station on the two nights of the week the Peace River train came in, sitting huddled on a seat that commanded a seaward the big wood-faced clock. Although due to arrive at Four in the afternoon, it was often past midnight before the train drew in.

The station agent began to notice the pale girl with the big eyes who came each train night and who seemed so anxious.

She was met by his iron gray old man was met by his iron gray old wife, who looked so much like him she might have been his sister Helmi watched them, noting their fervent kiss, their light asops as they walked happily away arm in arm, both talking. Helmi saw it all, and somehow it comforted her to know that some had found happiness in their life, even if it had apparently passed her by.

"Fight the good fight of faith; lay hold on eternal life, wherunto thou art also called."—Timothy vi. 12.

Great duties are before me and great songs;
And whether crowned or crownless below, I fall
It matters not, so as God's work is done.—Alexander Smith.

The true hero is the great wise man of duty; he whose soul is aroused by truth, and supported by the smile of God; he who meets life's perils with a cautious but tranquil spirit, gathers strength by facing its storms, and dies, if he is called to die, as a Christian victor, at the post of duty.
—Horace Bushnell.

The Wrigley Swimming Marathon Trophy is a perpetual trophy to be competed for each year. The first Wrigley Marathon was held off Catalina Island, and won by George Young, of Toronto. The second Wrigley Marathon was held at Toronto and was won by Ernst Vierkoetter, of Berlin, Germany. The third Wrigley Marathon will be held in 1933, either in Canada or the United States. The Wrigley Trophy is a reproduction in sterling silver of the famous "Flying Mercury" modelled by Giovanni da Bologna. The position of the figure is changed to show Mercury presenting to Father Neptune a wreath. Neptune with his tridnet, dolphins and water surrounding are in bronze. The figure Mercury contains over 1,000 ounces of silver. In addition to the big trophy there will be provided annually a replica in sterling silver and bronze, to be presented to the city where the Marathon is held.

Wigs nearly as well made as those of our own time have been found on the Egyptian mummies.

NEW BLOOD NEEDED IN THE SPRING TIME
Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills As a Blood Improving, Health-Restoring Tonic

Every man, woman and child needs new, rich, red blood at this time of the year. That is a scientific fact. All doctors know it. The blood grows thin and poor in the winter; there is not enough of it, and spring shows the effect. Take notice and see how many people are pale and sallow at this time of the year. They complain of being easily tired, their appetite is poor, and they are often depressed and low-spirited. That is Mother Nature urging them to improve their blood supply; but often their digestion is weakened so that they cannot turn food into blood without help. Here is where modern medical science comes to the rescue Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have a direct action on the blood and enable you to get full use of the blood-making materials in your meals. You soon feel them abort —your appetite improves, your nerves are steadier ,color returns to the cheeks and lips, you have more vim and energy, and can work with less fatigue.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all who are in what is known as a run-down condition of health is proved by the experience of Mr. John A. O'Neil, Port Hood, N.S., who says: —"It is not possible for me to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly. I had been gradually growing weaker, and found it hard to do my work I suffered from severe headaches and pains in the back. I was nervous and easily irritated, and altogether my condition was deplorable. A friend urged me to take Dr Williams' Pink Pills, and I got a few dozen boxes. I saw only I had taken a short time when I found them helping me, and by the time I had taken my supply I was, I was again enjoying good health. Headaches and pains had disappeared, my nerves were strengthened and I had good reason to be thankful that I had followed the advice of my friend.

Whether you are seriously ill or merely feel easily tired and out-of-sorts, you should try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills this spring. They are sold by medicine dealers everywhere, or can be had by mail at 50 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
